Father Guarded From Crowd When Baby Dies In Fire

NEW YEAR'S EVE FIRE DESTROYED a newly-completed nine-room home and radio repair shop of Mr. and Mrs. John Webb at the Five Mile Turn, Highway 28, south. The parents and their three children, Jeffrey, 6, Gregory, 3, and Kathleen, 15 months escaped from the burning building after the alarm was sounded by a passing motorist. The fire, said to have started in the attic, got beyond control of volunteer neighbor fire fighters, but not before many belongings were carried to safety away from the blaze.

Four Children Left Alone While Parents On Party, Neighbors Rescue Three

Scarborough Man Forcibly Detained By Police For Protection After Abusing Rescuers On His Return

TORONTO, Jan. 2 (CP)—A 21-month-old baby, left unattended with three other children New Year's Eve, was burned to death when fire destroyed a winterized cottage in suburban Scarborough. Neighbors rescued the three other children—all under six years old—but were unable to save little David Brown, whose charred body was found under a window near the kitchen sink. The tot's dog was tied with him, his paws in David's lap.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, Sr., were attending a New Year's Eve party with their son and daughter-in-law. Left behind were the two children of each couple.

To protect him from irate neighbors, Brown was taken into custody by police when he returned to his razed home at 3:30 am Tuesday. Neighbors said Brown used abusive language to police and residents who tried to save his home and children.

Brown was forcibly handcuffed and removed as angry neighbors swarmed around him.

Rescued were three-year-old Clayton Brown and two sons of Edward Brown, Jr., Larry, five, and William, 20 months.

Hero of the rescue was Hugh Finnerty, who wrapped washing from the Browns' clothesline around him and crawled into the flaming house on his hands and knees.

He groped to a bed-sitting room and, tucking a screaming child under each arm, crawled back. He learned other children were inside when he heard their screams and re-entered the dwelling but was able to rescue only one.

Allies Suggest POW's, DP's Freed, None Forced To Go

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 2 (AP)—Allied truce negotiators today proposed releasing all prisoners of war and displaced persons in Korea—with the guarantee that no one would be sent home against his will. The Communists found the Allied proposal politically unpalatable. The plan starts out on a man-for-man basis and winds up as an all-for-all exchange, said Lt.-Col. Howard S. Levie, spokesman for the United Nations command. The Communists took one look at the proposal and then said in effect, "it stinks," reported Rear Admiral R. E. Libby, Allied negotiator.

The proposal is intended to provide a compromise between the UN man-for-man exchange of prisoners proposal and the Reds all-for-all demand, and at the same time provide for repatriation of all civilians who want to go home.

The negotiators on the prisoner question meet again at 11 am Thursday (9 pm Wednesday EST). So will a second sub-committee on supervising a Korean truce which again bogged down on whether the Reds may rebuild their airfields during an armistice.

Voluntary Repatriation

A UN Command communique said the key to its new proposal is "the principle of voluntary repatriation for all prisoners of war and civilians."

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang-cho said the plan contained things "we politically cannot agree to." He did not amplify.

In Tokyo, Col. George Patrick Welch, official spokesman for Gen. Mathew B. Ridgway's headquarters, summed up the UN plan like this:

"In principle, we are proposing an exchange of everyone who wants to be exchanged."

Anyone who did not want to be repatriated would not be sent back against his will. The International Red Cross would act as a supervising agent.

Levie said the exchange of prisoners would start on a man-for-man basis to make sure the UN would get back its full quota of prisoners-of-war.

Stop Counting Heads

"When we have finished exchanging all prisoners of war left on either side," Levie said, "then we will get to the point where we don't count heads."

Here is how it would work:

1. Prisoners-of-war who want to be exchanged would be on a one-for-one basis. The UN holds about 120,000 prisoners to 11,000 held by the Reds. But all South Koreans now in Communist armies would be reclassified as prisoners-of-war.

2. When one side ran out of prisoners of war the exchange would be continued: one soldier for one civilian who wanted to be repatriated. Foreign civilians would come first. Prisoners released in this exchange would

602 Fatalities Over US Holiday

CHICAGO, Jan. 2 (AP). — The four-day New Year's weekend took 602 lives in violent accidents, bringing the death toll from Christmas and New Year accidents to nearly 1,400 in the United States.

Traffic mishaps, as usual, accounted for the greatest toll over the New Year holiday—367 dead. Another 69 perished in fires, and 166 were victims of miscellaneous accidents, including plane crashes.

The toll from a variety of miscellaneous accidents was boosted by the crash of an air force C-47 plane on a central Arizona mountain, with a loss of 28 lives, and the wreck of a non-scheduled C-46 airliner in the Allegheny foothills of New York State, in which 26 persons died.

The four-day death toll still was lower than the record 789 total for the previous week's four-day Christmas holiday. That toll included 535 traffic victims.

Firing Breaks Out In Canal Hot Spot

CAIRO, Jan. 2 (CP) — Firing early Tuesday broke the New Year's Day quiet in Ismailia area, trouble spot of the canal zone.

British authorities said there were no casualties on their side and there was no information about Egyptian casualties.

A British spokesman said the firing started just after midnight near the bridge which leads to British headquarters. Egyptian guerrillas used rifles and automatic weapons while British troops returned the fire from a Bren-gun carrier and a small mortar.

The firing broke out after Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha and Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British Middle East commander, held talks.

Afterwards, Robertson, who had just conducted confidential talks with Prime Minister Churchill, again expressed determination not to leave the canal zone.

Jay New Year's Party Ends In Death For School Girls

DETROIT, Jan. 2—(AP)—Anthony Redmond, 20, of suburban Royal Oak, confessed to police Tuesday night that he was the driver of a car which ran down and killed two high school girls New Year's Eve.

He walked into a police station and said he was responsible for the deaths of Jessie Anastos, 15, and Barbara Holloway, 17, both of Pontiac, found lying in a snowbank in the Detroit suburb.

Redmond was held for investigation.

Ernest McLaren, 22, a guest at the party, said the girls told him they did not like the party and intended to hitch-hike to Pontiac to attend another.

Two Ferndale youths, Sam Harrell and Gerald Sielaff, told authorities they were driving home from another party when a tall, blonde youth stopped them shortly after midnight and told them to call the police.

Harrell and Sielaff said they saw the body of one girl in the snow "and a fellow running through the fields." They thought it was an auto accident case and telephoned police.

The shoes of both girls were found at the end of a driveway, a few yards from where the bodies were found. Police said some marks indicated the girls may have been thrown from an auto after having been choked.

A further mysterious angle to the case developed at the hospital shortly before the Anastos girl died. Nurses said a tall man appeared at the desk and inquired as to the girl's condition.

When nurses attempted to hold him for police, he broke away and ran through the door.

No Mechanical Failure In Air Crash

LITTLE VALLEY, NY, Jan. 2 (AP)—The chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board said the crash of a C-46 airliner that claimed 26 lives, including that of a Canadian passenger, near here does not appear to have been caused by either mechanical or structural failure of the airplane.

Donald W. Nyrop and five aides flew in from Washington and sifted through the scattered remains of the non-scheduled airliner Tuesday.

The party was led through 2½ miles of rugged country to the ridge in the Allegheny mountain foothills where the airliner crashed Saturday night.

The ripped wreckage of the plane, from which 14 persons escaped and huddled around a makeshift parachute shelter until help came Monday afternoon, was shrouded in fog as the investigators went to work.

The dead included Mrs. Dorothy Berman Bruce of Kingston.

In Good Condition

The twin-engined Continental Charters, Inc., of Miami craft was the object of widespread searches in northwest Pennsylvania and southwest New York for two days.

In nearby Salamanca district hospital, all the 14 survivors were reported in good condition. Two of them were discharged.

It was a passenger, George Albert, 30, of Miami, who brought the first word of the missing plane's location.

Mossadegh Welcomes World Bank Efforts

TEHRAN, Jan. 2 (CP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh was reported today to have welcomed world bank efforts to resolve the Iranian oil crisis, at least temporarily.

Hector Prudhomme and Torkild Rieber, representatives of the international bank for reconstruction and development, arrived in Tehran Monday and talked with Mossadegh.

They said they had found him generally agreeable to the bank's attempts to devise a plan to end the situation which has kept Iranian oil out of world markets and has brought this country close to bankruptcy.

Prudhomme, the bank's loan officer, said the bank hopes to formulate a plan for temporary operation of the oil industry using foreign technicians.

Father Braves Fire, Smoke To Rescue Baby Daughter

Groping upstairs through dense smoke, John Webb, North Monaghan radio repairman, rescued his 15-months-old daughter New Year's Eve as fire destroyed their home. Damage is set at $12,000, some of it covered by insurance. The home was on Highway 28, four miles southwest of the city. Also forced to flee were his 26-year-old wife, Marion, and his two boys—Jeffrey, 6, and Gregory, 3. Mr. Webb burned his hands, though not severely, as he felt his way through the upstairs of the house. The baby, Kathleen, was standing up in her crib waiting for him to come. She didn't utter a sound as her father retraced his steps through the smoke-filled building, carrying her in his arms.

In less than three hours the nine-room house and adjoining radio workshop were destroyed. Volunteers saved some of the furniture and other household effects but they were unable to stop the flames from spreading.

A ruling by city council prevented the Peterborough fire department from answering the many calls for assistance that came into the fire hall. The city department will not answer calls from outside municipalities unless there is an existing mutual aid agreement.

Neighbors Help

Hampered by lack of water and lack of other firefighting equipment, the neighbors of the Webbs were forced to stand by and watch as flames devoured the house and workshop.

Cause of the fire is not known. It started in the wall of the boys' upstairs bedroom and spread rapidly through the top of the house.

A passing motorist turned in the alarm. He noticed smoke coming from the eaves and shouted to Mr. Webb that his house was on fire. Mr. Webb had not noticed though he was in the driveway of his own home, taking inventors of the contents of a panel truck. George Gould, an

Captain Remains Alone On Wrecked Freighter

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Still clinging to his storm-cracked and wallowing ship in the Atlantic, Capt. Kurt Carlsen radioed today that he would stay aboard until he is towed to port or sinks. A new storm threatened. If he leaves, the ship and cargo become a free prize on the high seas for any takers.

Carlsen stood his watch alone through the fifth night since he ordered all others to abandon the American freighter Flying Enterprise and again reported by radio that he was in good spirits.

The US destroyer John W. Weeks early today reached the side of the 6,710-ton freighter to join the US navy supply ship Golden Eagle, which has been standing by some 250 miles south of Ireland.

Tug On Way

(The big British deep-sea tug Turmoil left Falmouth harbor this afternoon to take the Flying Enterprise in tow. The Turmoil is described as the world's fastest and one of the largest deep-sea tugs. But it is not expected to reach the freighter, heeled over with a 60-degree list, before noon tomorrow.

Another storm was reported brewing with winds reaching gale force in the area of last week's storm that disabled several ships.

Shipping officials were still hopeful that the ship and cargo can be saved. There was no immediate estimate on the cargo value.

Allied Planes Blast Railways

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 2 (AP)—Allied planes blasted Communist rail traffic in North Korea today as a frigid haze enveloped ground fighting, now almost at a standstill.

Except for patrol contacts, the ground front was in one of its deepest lulls of the so-called twilight war.

UN troops on the eastern front threw back a light probe by 12 Reds in the Satae valley. A United States Eighth Army communique said there was no significant activity Wednesday morning on the central or western fronts.

But in the air, United Nations fighter-bombers flew 210 sorties by noon and cut rail tracks at 49 points. Pilots said a number of railroad cars were damaged.

Communist ground fire shot down three Allied planes Tuesday. Only one pilot was rescued, the air force announced.

On the central front, an Allied patrol fought a two hour and 15 minute skirmish with a platoon of Reds, then withdrew.

Western US Shivers Under New Blast Weatherman Holds 10 States In Cold Grip

CHICAGO, Jan. 2 (AP). — Central and western sections of the United States were chilled by mass of cold air today. Below-zero temperatures were reported in 10 states.

Cold weather followed a weekend storm into Northern California. A reading of 30 above at San Francisco Airport this morning was the lowest for January 2 on record there.

Thermometers registered three below in Susanville and 18 below in Truckee, Calif.

The cold to the east was measured by such readings as 23 below at International Falls, Minn., and 22 below at Bismarck, ND.

Sleet and freezing rain fell on a band of land that reached from the Texas Panhandle northwestward through Central and Southern Illinois and Indiana.

Throw Snowballs To Quell House Fire

BALLINAFAD, Ont., Jan. 2—(CP) Volunteers threw snowballs on a burning farm home Sunday to prevent the fire from razing this 20-house community.

The fire destroyed the home of Arnold McEnery while he and his wife and son, David, watched a hockey game in Toronto.

While 80 volunteers showered the house with snowballs others of the town's 150 citizens formed a bucket brigade and released stock from the barn.

Ballinafad is 25 miles west of Toronto.

Canadian Delegate Injured By Taxi

PARIS, Jan. 2 (CP)—D. M. Johnson, head of Canada's permanent delegation to the United Nations, today was reported recovering in an American hospital here from scalp and knee injuries suffered when he was struck down by a taxicab New Year's eve.

He was hit by the cab while crossing the street near his hotel shortly after midnight Tuesday morning.

Bloody Noses Sequel To New Year's Riots

TORONTO, Jan. 2 (CP)—One man was knifed and several suffered bloody noses and black eyes in what police described as "a continual series of near riots" New Year's Eve at an emergency housing project in suburban Scarborough.

Allen Noah, 30, was taken to hospital with knife wounds but no charges were laid.

The 301 families at the centre are Toronto residents and were given shelter there by Toronto city council.

Rescue Team Climbs To Plane Wreck

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 2 (AP)—Mounted on sure-footed cow ponies, a rescue team will climb the face of a Central Arizona mountain today to reach the wreckage of an air force C-47 plane and the bodies of its 28 passengers.

The twin-engined plane smashed into the face of Armer mountain, 65 miles northeast of Phoenix, during a storm Sunday. Aboard were 19 West Point cadets, a crew of four and five other passengers.

Aerial searchers sighted the shattered and burned plane Tuesday afternoon.

The ground party faced a cold and difficult task in ascending the 7,000-foot mountain. Rock and ice slides kept them from going up Tuesday night. Bringing down the bodies was expected to be even more difficult.

Only one man has been to the crash scene, cattleman Arnold Johnson, 50, who made the ascent Tuesday after viewing the wreckage through field glasses.

Johnson said there was nothing to show that there were any survivors.

The C-47 crashed while flying from Hamilton air force base,

War Goes On For Canadians

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Jan. 2 (CP)—Midnight salvos and harrassing fire by two Royal Canadian Horse Artillery batteries ushered in the New Year for Canada's forces in Korea.

The occasion also was marked by a watchnight service conducted in the headquarters of Brig. John Rockingham, Canadian Commander, by Maj. Roy Burnford, of Vancouver, senior brigdae chaplain, and attended by Defence Minister Claxton.

The service followed a mess dinner at 19th Brigade Headquarters, tendered to Claxton, the theme of which was the concern of front-line soldiers for the morale of the home front.

Inside the mess the cabinet minister discovered a box marked "Drop Unwanted Issue of Cigarettes and Chocolate Bars Here. Contribute to the Morale of the Home Front."

Plan Overall Renovation In Afghanistan With UN Aid

KABUL, Afghanistan, Jan. 2 — (AP)—This isolated, landlocked melting pot of Asia is planning an over-all renovation with the help of the United Nations.

The Afghan government has appealed for technical aid in almost every phase of its national life and already nearly two dozen foreign experts on subjects ranging from customs to communications and banking to taxation are on hand.

The United Nations technical assistance program for Afghanistan is a large and still growing —concern as Afghan officials seek guidance in new governmental activities.

Afghanistan has raised the post of United Nations co-ordinator to cabinet rank.

United Nations experts are surveying the Afghan government's poorly developed statistics, studying its national banking methods, checking on its customs administration and procedures, and examining the government-controlled telecommunications system. The latest UN arrival was summoned to survey Afghanistan's petroleum potential and recommend a production program.

UN technicians already have achieved considerable success in the fields of health and agriculture.

A team of Indian experts were so successful in eradicating malaria from one fever-ridden area of North Afghanistan that villagers voted to tax themselves to finance an extension of the program. Another team of doctors has made great strides towards eliminating typhus from areas where epidemics have been occurring for centuries.

One of the most amazing results of United Nations technical advice came from William W. Dickinson, American planter who introduced the common garden hoe to Afghan cotton growers, taught them modern row method of cultivation and increased cotton production fivefold in the first year.

Youth To Face Trial In Higher Court

Charged with attempted churchbreaking, Ronald Gilmour, 22, 132 Maude Street, was committed for trial at the next criminal assizes by Magistrate W. R. Philp in Police Court today.

Gilmour was represented by W. J. Arthur Fair, who entered a not guilty plea for Gilmour and elected trial by a higher court.

Pending his trial, Gilmour was released on $1,000 bail, the same bail he was granted on Monday when he appeared on the charge after being remanded on Saturday.

"There is quite sufficient evidence to commit the accused for trial at the next criminal session," Magistrate Philp ruled after hearing the Crown's evidence at the preliminary hearing today.

Coming Down Steps

Constable Douglas Farthing, who arrested Gilmour near Park Street Baptist Church shortly after midnight Saturday morning testified he saw Gilmour walking away from the church when he arrived on the scene. Gilmour was coming down the church steps when he first saw him, Constable Farthing said.

Constable Farthing said there were two sets of tracks in the fresh snow, one set leading back to the church from where he arrested Gilmour, and the other leading from the sidewalk to the church.

The glass window in the entrance door of the church was broken. Under cross-examination, Constable Farthing said he did not see anyone breaking the window.

He said Gilmour was in a "drunken condition" when arrested, and his hands and nose were bleeding. There was also blood on his collar from a cut at the back of his head, which later required six stitches.

In Dazed State

Arguing for a dismissal, Mr. Fair emphasized that Gilmour was in a "dazed mental state" at the time. However, Mr. Fair submitted that even aside from Gilmour's condition, there were no grounds for committal in that the Crown had not produced any evidence that Gilmour had broken the window. In addition, Mr. Fair said there was no evidence he intended to enter the church, as no tools had been found at the scene indicating anyone was attempting to break in.

In committing Gilmour for trial, Magistrate Philp said that the man's condition was a defence argument for mitigation of sentence and that there was sufficient evidence for a jury to consider that the accused was the party who broke the window.

Albert walked through underbrush and deep snow for more than 2½ miles to summon help Monday afternoon. He sought help for the other survivors after his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Albert, died in the crash.

"The only ones that got out were those of us who were in the after part of the ship," reported William Bischof, a navy lieutenant.

Bischof, who is stationed at Key West, Fla., told a reporter that the plane ran into rough weather a half-hour after it left Pittsburgh en route to Buffalo.

Plane Hit Tree

Bischof said he fell asleep "and woke up as the plane started to hit trees."

"The right wing tip hit first and the plane lurched to the right," he related.

The naval officer said he was knocked unconscious and when he came to he was lying in deep snow, clear of the wreckage.

The plane's fuselage was split in two. The front section was snapped off and thrown clear. The pilot and co-pilot's bodies were pinned inside.

The plane did not burn. Both engines were torn from the wings and thrown far to the right of the fuselage.

Some of the injured were brought out on a sled towed by a tractor. All were taken to Salamca district hospital.

Telephones Police

The 30-year-old Albert, who brought first word of the wreck, telephoned police from the farmhouse at 2:44 p.m. EST.

Albert told The Associated Press by telephone that the plane crashed about 10:25 pm Saturday night, about 40 minutes after leaving Pittsburgh. He said he left the crash scene about 11 am Monday to get help.

Albert said the 14 survivors huddled around a fire all day Sunday and Sunday night. Another man tried to make his way out for help, but was unable to get through the woods, Albert said.

Mrs. Louis Atkinson, superintenden of the hospital at Salamanca, said all 14 suffered shock. Some also suffered fractures and lacerations, but none suffered from exposure, Mrs. Atkinson said.

ing their hats in silent tribute as the coffin passed by.

Litvinoff's widow, English-born Ivy Low, rode in a black limousine at the head of a procession of mourners, mostly family friends and Litvinoff's former associates at the foreign ministry.

Pravda, organ of the central committee of the Communist party, on which Litvinoff had been a member, called him an "old Bolshevik and outstanding Soviet diplomat."

Pravda's obituary notice was eight paragraphs long. It was printed on the back page.

Well Known In West

The plump, fatherly-looking diplomat won western recognition for Bolshevist Russia and fought without success for collective force to prevent the Second World War. He was a wartime ambassador to Washington.

Litvinoff was Foreign Commissar from 1930 to 1939 and had been acting head of the foreign ministry for two years before he took it over formally.

But his fortunes rose and fell with the Kremlin's feelings about the western democracies, and he was completely eclipsed after he was fired in the reduced rank of Deputy Foreign Minister Aug. 23, 1946. His fall from office foreshadowed the cold war, for of all Soviet officials he was regarded as the one who truly wanted to get along with the west.

News of his death was withheld for two days—for no stated reason.

Prolonged Illness

The Tass Agency account said only: "The newspapers carry a report from the USSR Ministry of Foreign Affairs announcing the death of Maxim Litvinoff former peoples' commissar of foreign affairs of the USSR who died Dec. 31, 1951, after a prolonged illness."

The nature of his illness was not described. Litvinoff long suffered from a weak heart condition and an ailing stomach.

Neither was there any praise in the announcement for an old time Bolshevik revolutionary and exile who spent almost his whole life working for establishment and recognition of the Soviet Union.

Litvinoff won fame at world councils in the 1920s and 1930s. He often embarrassed other diplomats by putting startling proposals into short plain words, stripped of their diplomatic stripped-pants type of verbosity.

He coined the phrase "Peace is indivisible" in a moving League of Nations speech arguing for sanctions against Mussolini's attack on Ethiopia.

He negotiated United States recognition of Russia with President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933 and said he believed it might guarantee peace.

Sudden Dismissal

Litvinoff was dismissed, surprisingly and suddenly, from his post as Foreign Minister May 3, 1939. Vyacheslav M. Molotov took over. Litvinoff then was in the midst of negotiations with Britain and France for a mutual security pact. Two days before his dismissal he had mounted Lenin's tomb in Red Square with other Soviet bigwigs for the annual May Day celebration.

The reason for his sudden sacking was not discerned until three months later, with the announcement of the Soviet-German Pact. Litvinoff had fallen afoul of a sharp change in Kremlin policy.

He returned to prestige in November, 1941, when he was appointed Russian Asbassador to the United States. He came during Congressional debates over modifying the Neutrality Act to allow shipment of war goods to Russia and Britain.

But Moscow suddenly recalled him in August, 1943 after the Quebec conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill produced no pledge of an immediate second front in Europe.

G. Fitzgerald Acclaimed Reeve Of Smith

Gordon Fitzgerald, deputy reeve of Smith township for the last two years, will be the 1952 reeve. He was returned by acclamation soon today when Reeve Ross Harrison and Allan B. Mann, two other nominees, did not qualify.

Robert McAdam, 1951 councillor, was elected deputy reeve by acclamation.

There will be a five-way fight for the three council posts. Sidney Brown and Allan B. Mann, both 1951 councillors, are contesting the election. So are Howard Beavis, Gordon Perry and Charles Ireland.

Bruce Heard was nominated but declined to stand. Mr. McAdam was also nominated but qualified for the deputy reeveship instead.

Three Trustees

The three trustees of the school area were acclaimed: Henry Sharpe, Vernon Olver and Bruce Heard. Mr. Olver is replacing David Wilson on the school board.

Sidney Brown and Gordon Fitzgerald were both nominated for deputy reeve, but Mr. Brown declined in order to run for council. Mr. Fitzgerald chose to qualify for reeve.

A veteran of well over 20 years in Smith municipal politics, Mr. Fitzgerald has never before been reeve. He has been deputy reeve for the last two years and held the same office a number of years ago.

Mr. Harrison retires after holding the reeveship for four years. He succeeded Gilbert McIlmoyl who died shortly after his re-election in 1948.

Allan B. Mann, 1951 councillor, was nominated for reeve but he said at the time that he had no intention of running.

Have Overdraft

At the nomination meeting Monday afternoon the Smith ratepayers were told that they had an overdraft at the bank of about $33,000. This is the amount of uncollected taxes in the township.

"The whole question of outstanding taxes is a serious one," said Alex I. Edmison, clerk and treasurer. "This is the largest amount of outstanding taxes in the township's history.

Mr. Edmison said there is no incentive for a taxpayer to pay up. In effect, he can borrow money cheaper from the municipality than from the bank.

Reeve Ross Harrison said he had advocated a stiffer penalty for delinquents. At present the penalty is half of one per cent for each month; formerly it was four per cent.

Twice this resolution, forwarded from the Peterborough county council, has been passed at the Association of Rural Municipalities, but there has been no government action.

Mr. Harrison said the penalty would not necessarily be compulsory. But it would give the municipality power to increase the penalty to four per cent if they saw fit.

The whole matter of outstanding taxes will be one of the first items on the agenda of the 1952 council, Mr. Edmison said.

Stalin Sends Sympathy To Japanese At Woes Of Occupation At New Year

TOKYO, Jan. 2 (AP).—Soviet Premier Stalin Tuesday sent a New Year's message to the Japanese people in which he expressed "deep sympathy" for what he called Japan's "serious situation" resulting from "foreign occupation."

The Japanese Kyodo Agency distributed the message throughout Japan.

The Soviet mission in Tokyo delivered Stalin's message in Russian Tuesday morning, after the Kyodo Agency earlier had asked for a New Year's greeting from the Russian leader.

This is the first time since the Japanese surrender that Stalin has issued such a message to the Japanese.

The message as carried by Kyodo wished the Japanese "success in fighting for the freedom of your own country" noted that the Soviet people also have experienced foreign occupation and said that "therefore, the Soviet people fully realize the hardships of the Japanese people and have deep sympathy for them."

assistant, had also failed to notice the smoke.

Inside, the two school-age boys were watching television, the baby was upstairs, and Mrs. Webb was taking a shower.

"I could hear crackling in the bathroom wall," said Mrs. Webb, "but I didn't pay too much attention. I though at first it was mice because we've been plagued by them."

Then she realized something was wrong. She had just started to tell her husband when he came running in the door saying the house was on fire.

"The baby is upstairs," said Mrs. Webb and her husband raced up the stairs to rescue the little girl.

The other children were also led from the house in safety. Also in the house, watching television, was Jerry Blodgett, a neighbor, who was going to mind the children later on New Year's Eve while the Webbs went out to a show.

The alarm was turned in at Berry's service station by the passing motorist. Mr. Berry and a group of motorists immediately jumped into their cars and started up the highway to be of assistance.

Bring Out Furniture

They managed to save a considerable quantity of furniture and tools before the fire got too big. Mr. Berry used eight fire extinguishers in a vain attempt to quell the fire.

The fire destroyed a house that Mr. Webb had been working on for three years. He built it under the VLA and moved into it about two years ago. Before it was finished the family lived in the garage for about a year.

Until they can get other accommodation the Webbs are living at the home of George Hughes, a neighbor.

State Of Roads Draws Ire Smith Critics

The state of township roads drew the fire of a number of critics at the Smith township nomination meeting Monday afternoon.

Bruce Heard, who was nominated for council but declined, said: "Our township roads are a disgrace and the county roads are not much better. Smith township have had it put over them for years, it's always the same story: things will be better next year."

Mr. Heard said that not enough money is spent on roads; and he contended that the budget for this item reflected a "horse and buggy" attitude.

Robert McAdam, a 1951 councillor, said he thought more calcium should be mixed with the gravel when it is dumped on the roads.

Allan B. Mann, another councillor, said that 9,000 cubic yards of gravel had been put on township roads during the year. He suggested that instead of using pit-run gravel all gravel should be crushed.

Gordon Fitzgerald, deputy reeve said that more gravel would be put on the roads in 1952.

Charles Ireland suggested that gravel be dumped on the roads in spring so it will stay there. Now, he said, it is dumped on dry roads and is soon scattered. The snow plow is also scraping it off the travelled portion of the roads.

Reeve Ross Harrison said that more than $33,000 was spent on roads in 1951. Ratepayers now demand more service than they used to. At one time everybody expected that roads would be blocked by snow for two or three days every winter; and during the spring breakup they would be impassable for several days.

Reeve Harrison said that council had tried their best to serve the ratepayers and keep the roads open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

He also stated that there was a good chance the county would take over the major job of improving the four-and-a-half mile stretch of the middle line of Smith. It is in bad repair because of heavy motor traffic—particularly from gravel trucks.

Reds Charging Federation Church Plot

By FRANK BRUTTO.

ROME, Jan. 2 (AP).—The Communists have opened their major 1952 campaign to block creation of a European army by charging that European federation is a plot of the Roman Catholic Church to dominate the continent.

Italy's Communists have dropped their kid-gloves attitude toward the Roman Catholic Church and have begun an open anti-clerical attack.

The first hint of the new strategy was given recently by Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist chief, in an interview in the Paris Communist newspaper, L'Humanite. A sharper statement along the same line was contained in his New Year's greetings to Italians printed today in the Italian Communist newspaper, L'Unita.

"Let us," said Togliatti, "tighten in a constantly broader front all citizens who no longer want to have anything to do with the factiousness and corruption of clerical government."

The Communist attack already has drawn reports from L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, and Alcide de Gasperi, Christian Democrat (Catholic) Premier.

The Christian Democrat paper, Italia, said Togliatti's interview in L'Humanite was "nothing but a first notice of the new orientation that is to distinguish the electoral and administrative elections next spring."

Two bright new posters splashed on Rome's walls also underlined the developing battle. One, put up by anti-Communists, showed a grinning Stalin proferring in his clenched fist a bedraggled and strangled dove of peace.

The other attacked the civic committees of Italy's Catholic Action organization which played a decisive role in the defeat of the Communist-ruled Popular Front in the 1948 national elections.

Togliatti in his interview charged that the Catholic Church was scheming to dominate Western Europe through "clericalism perched on Eisenhower's shoulders."

FIRST WOMAN COUNCILLOR to sit on Campbellford town council is Mrs. Isobel Claire Tatham, wife of a professional engineer. Active in the town's Home and School Association, the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and the Wolf Cub pack, she feels that it is time women of the town had a representaitve in municipal affairs.—W. W. Reid Photo.

Time Women Took a Hand Lady Councillor Declares

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 2 — (ENS)—When the 1952 Campbellford Council holds its inaugural meeting here on Monday, something new will be added. For the first time in the history of the town, a woman councillor will sit at the council table. The lady who has won this distinction is Isobel Claire Tatham, mother of three children and wife of W. C. Tatham, a professional engineer.

Mrs. Tatham, although she has never before held public office, has devoted much of her time to public service. She is the chairman of the local CNIB, 1st vice-president of the Home & School Association; president of both the Campbellford and Northumberland County Progressive Conservative Women's Association, and leader of the local Wolf Cub Pack.

From the Wolf Cubs, Mrs. Tatham derives a great deal of satisfaction and pleasure. "The Cubs are really my only hobby," she said. She feels very keenly the need of freedom within limits, and of supervised recreation for school age children. Mrs. Tatham also serves on the publicity committee of the recently formed Campbellford Citizens' Association.

In Father's Steps

Born in Ottawa 'not quite 36 years ago,' Mrs. Tatham was educated there and received her RN at the School of Nursing in the Cornwall General Hospital. Her father, David MacMillan, has contributed 20 years uninterrupted service as alderman for Ottawa South, on the Ottawa Council. Mr. MacMillan pinned the chain of office on Charlotte Whitton when she recently became mayor of the country's capital city.

Mr. Tatham, who is also a member of the local school board, graduated from McGill University in Montreal as a mechanical engineer, and is at present busy with construction contracting and engineering, at the head of his own company. The couple have three children, Billy, 10, Lyle, 9, and Nancy, 7. They occupy much of their mother's time and give her plenty of opportunity to understand the 'woman's angle' in present day living.

When asked just why she had decided to run for council Mrs. Tatham said she believed it was time the women of the town had someone to represent them in municipal affairs. "Each community is composed of average people, and one would expect to find them being represented by average people. This then, should include a fair showing of the feminine touch."

Mrs. Tatham went on to say that nature has endowed women with the physical stamina to withstand the rigors of public life, for few women are likely to fall victim to heart trouble, nervous breakdowns or ulcers. The average housewife, she claims, can boast of sufficient flexibility in her daily schedule to give both time and thought to outside interests.

Helping Hand

"I do not think the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, but tempered with tact and diplomacy, and a sense of humor, that same hand can and does help. Somehow, with the passing of time, the human race must instead become the human family, and just as a woman's touch transforms a house into a home, so might those same talents serve one's community."

Mrs. Tatham believes that a real democracy is possible only when enough citizens who are emotionally mature, responsible and free, take an active part in their community life. In a democracy, two opposing forces tend to create the necessary balance—those who are affirmative and those who are negative. Perhaps the most serious threat are those who are indifferent, for indifference on a wide scale can provide the background for a dictatorship to emerge.

Most of us, having reached a mature age, now turn our thoughts and energy toward the maintenance of those standards which will ensure a sound future for our young. If one is to accept the benefits which the community offers, one must also be prepared to accept some of the responsibilities, and realizing this, women spend much of their time working co-operatively to raise the standards of home and community life, she believes.

Mrs. Tatham believes it is inevitable that, having taken an active part in various activities which form the backbone of their town or city, many women find their interest growing in political matters.

Health Drive Starts Jan. 14

COBOURG, Jan. 2 —(ENS)—Having completed the fall immunization campaign for infants and school children in the 49 rural schools in the townships of Manvers, Cavan, Haldimand and Alnwick, the health unit staff have been planning during the interval between Christmas and New Year's, the details of the winter campaign.

Starting January 14, clinics will be held for children in schools in Bowmanville, Campbellford, Millbrook, Brighton, Port Hope, Colborne, Newcastle and Cobourg. In addition to the school children, immunization will be offered to infants and pre-school children in Brighton, Colborne, Newcastle and Millbrook.

A card index record is kept by the health unit staff of all children immunized and it is necessary for the staff to review each individual record in planning the clinics in each school. The requirements of each child are reviewed and the necessary consent-forms sent to the parents and each child's card made ready for the clinic. All these records require careful checking.

School children are offered immunization against diphtheria and lockjaw (tetanus) and vaccination against smallpox. In the case of infants and preschool children, the usual procedure is to use an inoculation designed to give protection against whooping cough, diphtheria and lockjaw; vaccination against smallpox is also offered. The modern knowledge of immunization gained during the Second World War emphasizes the necessity of small reinforcing or "booster" doses at suitable intervals, and this adds to the work of planning and carrying out the clinics, but in the end greatly improves the protection given to the children, it is pointed out by Dr. C. W. MacCharles, chief medical officer of the health unit.

Campbellford Rotary Holds Last '51 Meet

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 2 — (ENS). — Campbellford Rotary held their last meeting of 1951 in the parish hall Monday afternoon when reports of various committee heads were heard, and a round-up the year's activities given.

The treasurers report showed a balance of $326.41 on hand, out of which bills amounting to about $200 are still to be paid. This, however, takes into consideration the $500 the club donated to the Campbellford Emergency Relief Fund a few days ago.

Members of the Campbellford High School Band played a few numbers after the luncheon. They were thanked by president Franklin Linton.

Secretary Bill McComb reported the club now has 36 members and that an attendance record of 88.6 was the best achieved by the club in any one month, and that was in September. Only two members of the club have perfect attendance records. They are H. N. Carr and Bill McComb. Seven other members had missed only one meeting, but four of these were absent on Monday which actually reduced the number to three.

Rotarian Arthur Loucks gave an outline of the programs his committee has lined up for future meetings, and these are all top notch. The head of the CNIB will address the club in the near future and next week, the newly elected members of the Campbellford and Seymour councils will be guests of the Rotarians at luncheon.

Ask United Nations Share Korean Burden

PARIS, Jan. 2 (AP).—The United States called on all the United Nations today to "Share in the burden and sacrifice" of the Korean War.

American delegate Benjamin Cohen told the political committee of the General Assembly "We must all hope and pray" than an armistice will be reached soon. He warned that in case it is not, the UN military effort must be increased to beat down the Communist aggressors.

Cohen spoke in support of the collective measures program which would give the UN more power to fight aggression anywhere.

Two Murderers Recaptured

AMMIENS, France, Jan. 2—(AP)—Two condemned murderers who escaped from their death cells Monday were captured Tuesday, ending a 36-hour manhunt.

The two criminals—Leon Meurant, 32, a Belgian and Michel Courtin, 22-year-old Frenchman —were captured on a farm near here after police received a tip from the owner. As police closed in Meurant fired six revolver shots in the air, then he and Courtin came out of hiding to surrender.

Meurant—one of Europe's most sensational criminals—was convicted last year of murdering the mysterious French Countess Sauty de Chalon, whose nude body was found near the Franco-Belgian frontier in 1945. Courtin was convicted of the murder of a farmer's wife and her 12-year-old daughter in an attempt to get enough money to buy a racing bicycle.

Meurant is the one the police want most of all. He left a letter behind apologizing for having to escape with a "common assassin" like Courtin. Meurant promised to bring back the real killer of the countess in three months.

Woman 'Hero' Leads Raid

TOKYO, Jan. 2 (AP).—A "woman pilot hero" led a Communist air raid on Inchon harbor early Tuesday, the Pyongyang radio said today.

The North Korean high command said the Red bombers attacked Inchon and Kimpo Air Base, destroying 24 United Nations aircraft in the Kimpo raid.

(The United States Fifth Air Force said three obsolete biplanes dropped explosives in the vicinity of Kimpo and Inchon without causing any damage.)

The Red radio broadcast a dispatch from a Communist correspondent saying "Woman pilot hero Tae Son hi" led the Red bombers which "dropped every bomb over the enemy marshalling yard on the Inchon harbor. All bombs got their targets."

The broadcast continued: "After recognizing the enemy, weapon warehouses were wrapped in flames, the woman hero turned her plane's head to the base. All bombers returned safely."

UN Attorney-General Proposed For Rights

PARIS, Jan. 2 (AP).—Uruguay and Guatemala proposed today the appointment of a United Nations Attorney-General for Human Rights. He would be a sort of watchdog keeping tab on how governments carry out the covenant of human rights the UN is expected to draft.

The delegations prepared a resolution to be presented to the UN's Assembly Social and Humanitarian Committee when it resumes work next week on the human rights proposal.

Slip Breaks Hip

COBOURG, Jan. 2 (ENS)—No drunken drivers were found by local police on New Year's Eve, nor any who would come within the scope of the charge of driving while his ability to drive was impaired by alcohol. No accidents occurred, except a couple of minor bumps on icy pavements. A pedestrian, Bob Austen, 56, slipped on the sidewalk and broke his hip, while walking along Division street. In spite of sand, melting snow made sidewalks very treacherous underfoot.

Posthumous Award

TOKYO, Jan. 2 (Reuters)—An American infantry sergeant who smothered an exploding Communist grenade with his body has been pothumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Far East command announced today. Sgt. William S. Sitman of Bedford, Pa., shouted a warning to his men and hurled himself on the grenade when it fell in his machine-gun post during a Communist attack in the Chipyong area in Korea.

Worth $35,000 5 Years Ago Couple Suicide, Have $5

TORONTO, Jan. 2 — (CP) — In 1947, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hodson were established farmers worth $35,000.

When they died Saturday in a small Toronto hotel, their assets were $5.37. A week ago, they appealed to the Salvation Army to pay a $6 debt.

Police said their deaths apparently were the result of a double suicide poison pact. On a table in the room were two empty glasses. In a waste basket, an empty poison bottle.

The story of the couple—he was 65, she 64—was learned today.

Born a farm near Brooklin, 40 miles northeast of Toronto, Hodson attended the Ontario Agriculture College at Guelph from 1906 to 1908.

He married the daughter of a professor and later became deputy minister of agriculture in British Columbia. For several years he was listed in "Who's Who" along with her father, F. W. Hodson, Canada's first livestock commissioner.

"Farming isn't really my trade" Hodson was quoted as telling friends when he sold the family farm in 1947. "The time has come to splurge."

For 150 years, the Hodson had tilled the farm and built it up until it became a showplace. Trout streams snaked amid the spruce-clad hills and prize Holstein cattle grazed on the rolling meadows. The farm was held by four generations of Hodson and flourished, neighbors said, until the death of Will Kitchen, a hired hand, in 1947. For 25 years, Kitchen actually had run the property. He came from England when he was 14 and never worked for anyone else.

A son-in-law of Hodson, Frank Brown of Oshawa, said of Kitchen:

"They were inseparable and as far as my father-in-law was concerned, Will was a son. When Will died, Mr. Hodson didn't know where to turn or what to do."

In a short while, the couple began travelling the 40 miles to Toronto, spending several hours drinking before returning home. They went by taxi. Fare was $20.

Barney Harding, the taxi driver, said: "I once tried to reason with Mr. Hodson but was cut short. He told me to do as he said and I would be paid. In fact, he overpaid. Last summer, he and Mrs. Hodson were spending money so quickly I took everything offered."

12 Different Occasions

The couple travelled to Toronto on 12 different occasions, Harding recalled:

"They never travelled by bus because they said that was cheap and common. They once took a cab to the Laurentians for a week. Another time they hired a taxi and stayed several days in the Chateau Laurie (at Ottawa)."

The man who purchased the farm in 1947 did not complete the deal, losing $1,000 deposit, and several subsequent attempts were made to sell the property. It finally was sold last year to Albert Copoer for $11,000. On this, Hodson received $3,800 cash.

On March 15, the couple left the farm for good.

Move To Toronto

They spent 10 days in a suite at an Oshawa hotel and then moved on to Toronto.

For nine weeks they stayed at the Queen Street hotel where they later died.

In August the couple went to Crystal Beach on Lake Erie. Then and also by taxi, they went to a lodge at Wasaga Beach, later returning to Toronto.

On Dec. 18, their luggage was impounded at the Toronto hotel when they were unable to pay their bill.

The Salvation Army helped them redeem their luggage and Hodson made several other attempts in Toronto to borrow money.

Taxi-driver Harding said Hodson once told him:

"There is no God and no after life . . . when the time comes, I'll give a pill to May (Mrs. Hodson) and take one myself."

WHY You Should Own Your Own Home

Home ownership is the best investment for the average person. At the end of a given period of time, he has a clear title to a piece of property which will always have a market value. All authorities agree that the trend in residential construction costs will be upward. It will pay to buy now.

Prisoner Of War Figures

There are tragic discrepancies between the Chinese Red prisoner-of-war lists, and the lists which the American and other U.N. nations have made of their soldiers missing or prisoners of war. In the list which the Communists have handed over, 11,559 U.N. soldiers were accounted for. Of these, only 7,142 were South Koreans. Yet the Red Radio at Pyongyang once declared that in the first nine months of the war the Communists had taken 65,363 prisoners, mostly South Koreans. There is a great difference between 65,000 and 11,559.

* * *

It is probably true that many of the South Korean prisoners were forced to join the North Korean forces. But that will not, and has not, accounted for the discrepancies. The American-U.N. command in Korea, and the negotiators, believe that 50,000 of the prisoners unaccounted for have died from disease, exposure, or worse. The Chinese Reds and North Koreans are unlikely to have had much care or concern for the South Korean prisoners. Americans and soldiers of other western nationalities made prisoner are not used to the climate, housing and food in North Korea where their prison camps are; thus many must have fallen ill and died. That in itself is a grievous matter—in the last war, prisoners of the Germans at least were given modern medical care and sustaining food.

* * *

Staring blackly between the two lists—the relatively small Red list of prisoners they hold, and the large list which American-U.N. authorities have compiled—is a horrible fear that 50,000 prisoners of the Chinese and North Koreans have perished inhumanely.

No Music At Meals For Sir Ernest

Canada's foremost musician, Sir Ernest Macmillan, has confided to a newspaper that he does not like to listen to music while he is eating. This does not surprise us as much as it apparently surprises some of our contemporaries, for we have never known a musician who did like music at his meals; indeed, though we would certainly not claim to be a musician, we share that dislike. People who say they like to listen to music while they eat are not saying precisely what they mean; they should say that they like to ignore music while they eat. They like to talk against a background of music (like people making love in the talkies), and they perhaps enjoy the luxurious sensation that two or three industrious members of Mr. Petrillo's organization are toiling while they take their ease.

Musicians, however, really listen to music; they cannot help it. They are constitutionally incapable of ignoring those ordered and meaningful sounds which are produced by even a bad orchestra. They do not like to be compelled to such attentiveness when they want to relax and enjoy their food.

And what music it is, this music with meals. Those innumerable Humoreskes, those endless "arrangements" of music which was never written to accompany the pleasures of the table! Those yearnings of violins, those rhythmic cavortings upon the piano! How easily at this time of year the orchestra turns from the anaemic sentimentalities of the Bach-Gounod Ave Maria (so much of Gounod, and so little of Bach) to an arch performance of Rudolf the Red-Nosed Reindeer! And with what merciless insistence a tinkling little air of Boccherinf's turns up in one musical eating-house after another! A musician would rather take his plate out into the street, and devour his food among its honest noises, than divide his attention between what he has ordered, and what he has forced upon him.

An Answer Is Too Easy

We have commented from time to time in these columns upon the quality and interest of the letters which are written to the press in England; they are so often of great interest, touching upon the widest variety of topics and debating them with courtesy, good sense, and often with deep scholarship. Yesterday we were struck by the following, which is from the pages of the Sunday Times:

Bachelors All

Sir,—I have been struck by the remarkably high proportion of great philosophers who never married. Names which readily come to my mind are: Descartes, Locke, Berkeley, Hume, Rousseau, Kant, Kierkegaard, Nietzsche, Schopenhauer, F. H. Bradley, Samuel Alexander, and C. D. Broad.

Can any reader add to this list, and give any explanation?

GORDON JOHNSON.

Sheffield.

Oh, Mr. Johnson, is the answer not too cruelly apparent? Does not "philosopher" mean "a lover of wisdom"? Do wise men marry?

The answer is, of course, that many wise men have done so, and a good many of them have been happy, though others—the name of Socrates comes at once to mind—suffered from the foolishness and malignancy of their wives. But a philosopher is a special kind of wise man; he is, so to speak, professionally wise. Prudence is a part of wisdom, and prudent men do not marry. Only the rash, the hopeful, the greatly daring, make that exploration into the unknown.

A philosopher likes to talk, but he does not like to be talked to: ergo, he does not marry. A philosopher must have long periods of quiet, and children are the enemies of quiet; therefore a philosopher does not surround himself with children. A philosopher tries to govern his life upon a basis of reason: is it surprising, therefore, that he does not place himself in a position where the will of another is the equal, and perhaps the superior of his own in the household counsels? And lastly, a philosopher must not fall prey to worldly ambition, and is not a wife an incitement to ambition?

Why do philosophers not marry? What a question!

Strain Between U.S. and Latin America

Friction between the United States and Latin-American nations is by no means uncommon, but when it increases to the point where it involves twenty of the latter it is regarded as serious. That is reported to be the case at the United Nations general assembly in Paris where, it is said, relations are more strained than at any time since the Latin-American nations threatened to walk out of the organizing conference at San Francisco. It is ironical that the walkout threatened then was because representatives of those nations thought the United States was too inclined to appease Russia, whereas one of the major reasons for the friction today is pronounced Latin-American fear that the United States will lose patience and precipitate war.

This fear has been aroused by the attitude of Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Ambassador Philip Jessup. Both, at Paris, have been coldly pessimistic about the possibility of the sixty-nation assembly accomplishing anything. In addition, there has been brusque rejection of suggestions advanced by smaller nations that conferences within the assembly framework be attempted in an effort to reach a basis for lasting peace. Mr. Acheson and Mr. Jessup have given the impression that it is a case of the western formula or none at all, while Russian representatives apparently have convinced the Latin-Americans of their willingness to examine other formulae.

This fear in itself would be enough to cause friction, but the action of the United States in refusing to back Uruguay's candidacy for the vacant seat in the World Court genuinely surprised and angered the Latin-Americans. They had considered the precedent of "geographical distribution" now accepted as standard for most United Nations agencies; according to this, Uruguay was a logical successor to Mexico and the representatives unanimously agreed to support it. The United States, however, unexpectedly turned to support India. A three-hour private explanation of this move by Eleanor Roosevelt did nothing to make the Latin-Americans like the U.S. move, but they expressed deep appreciation of Mrs. Roosevelt's courteous presentation.

It is a matter of regret for the entire Western world that this friction should exist. It is even more regrettable that there is genuine reason for apprehension that a minority among United States officialdom suffers from impatience which could help precipitate the tragedy of world war.

NOTES AND COMMENT

England is sinking into the sea at the rate of nine inches a century, we read. This is one form of English ruin which no politician has promised to avert.

An anatomist says that three people in every five have one leg shorter than the other. This may be the reason why three people in every five seem to be going in circles.

The Ottawa Journal makes disillusioned comment on the number of parliamentarians who sent out their Christmas cards with the parliamentary frank, instead of a postage stamp. Certainly there is nothing that takes the fun out of a Christmas card like the feeling that you have helped to pay for the stamp.

During the Christmas season we have read many newspaper warnings that we should not offer drinks to delivery men. But we have never offered a drink to a delivery man nor, in a long experience of them, have we ever encountered a delivery man who showed signs of having taken a drink on the job. We wish people would stop warning us about things we don't do, and which we don't believe other people do. Next year we expect to be warned against offering postmen a shot of cocaine.

Prospect And Retrospect 1951 - 1952

by SEBASTIAN HAFFNER

THE initiative in world affairs during 1951 has been almost entirely with the United States. The course of events during the past year was set by four great decisions taken in Washington simultaneously in its first few days. These decisions are also still very largely governing the world outlook for 1952. They have entirely transformed the world situation in the course of the past year.

These four decisions were:—

1. Not to accept the Chinese intervention in Korea as a challenge to war with China, but to keep the Korean war limited to Korea.

2. To embark on a three-year rearmament programme with the aim of giving America and her allies unchallengeable superiority of power over Russia and her allies by mid-1953.

3. In the meantime, to give Europe priority over Asia in American strategic dispositions and to aim at making Western Europe secure against attack by mid-1952; and for this purpose, to foster and support West European rearmament efforts parallel to that of America, to bring Western Germany into the European defence community, and to encourage European integration.

4. To make peace with Japan, transforming her from a defeated and controlled enemy into an ally, and to build an American system of Pacific alliances based on the island chain of Japan, Formosa, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand.

In the course of the year, a fifth decision was added—to admit Greece and Turkey to the North Atlantic Treaty and create with Britain and France a Middle East Command, based on Turkey, with the aim of creating security in the Middle East.

* * *

DURING 1951 America has almost had the field to herself in carrying these decisions into reality. The Russian reaction, so far, has been curiously feeble. The difficulties that have appeared have all been of an "internal" character. Decision One—to refuse war with China—led to a domestic political crisis in America, culminating in the dismissal of General MacArthur; Decision Three and Four—the rearmament of Western Europe and the peace and alliance with Japan—have produced strains and stresses in the relations between America and her allies. The greatest inherent difficulties have been encountered by Decision Five — the building of security in the Middle East—which has to deal with particularly intractable material in the weak and divided local Arab States, the Arab-Israeli conflict, and the Arab suspicions of Britain. Middle Eastern security is still a very long way from being achieved at the end of 1951.

* * *

ON the other hand, America's own rearmament has made stupendous progress and by itself has gone a long way during the past year to change the world balance of power in favour of the West. American Pacific and Western European policies, too, have on the whole prospered during 1951. The Japanese peace treaty has been signed and the groundwork of a Pacific defence system laid; and Western Europe's defence, though not yet complete and somewhat behind schedule, is a great deal stronger than it was a year ago, with good prospect of further strengthening in 1952. The danger of full-scale war with China, which might have led to world war, has greatly lessened compared with a year ago. Altogether, the Western position has solidified out of recognition, and the course is set for real stability in a divided world by 1953, with the possibility of limited settlements with Russia, based on the "ratification of recognized positions of strength", thereafter. Only against this background of encouraging solid achievement can the problems and difficulties created by the American initiative fo 1951 be seen in proper proportion and perspective.

These problems are certainly formidable; but they are less formidable than the successes and achievements to which they are incidental.

The problems are three in number, and all will be carried forward into 1952. The new American world policy has created problems in the relations between American governmental policy and American public opinion at home, in the relations between America and her Allies, and in the relations between the Western coalition and the underdeveloped countries. All these problems have made themselves felt in 1951 and still await their solution, if the grand design of American and Atlantic policy the design of world peace through Western unity and strength—is to achieve success.

* * *

AT home, the new American world policy runs counter to several deep-seated American pre-conceptions; the conception of isolation, the conception of peace-time disarmament, and the belief that a victorious war with Russia would allow America to return to "normalcy". The majority of the Americans have accepted both rearmament and foreign alliances; but so far they have accepted them rather as exceptional emergency measures than as the indefinite long-term commitment which is implied in the world policy of the American Government. Even less is American opinion awake to the strong probability that if this world policy is to succeed, America's relations with her allies may have to become even closer, that indeed America may have to merge herself in an Atlantic or Western Federation. The battle between President Truman and General MacArthur has revealed a strong trend in American opinion which would prefer a war —"to have it over and done with"—to a long-term policy of vigilance and containment, and which would "if necessary, do it alone". This trend is entangled with American party politics. It may play a major part in the American Presidential election of 1952; and even if the result of these elections leaves the basis and aim of American world policy unchanged, the very increase of American strength during 1951 and 1952 may increase the impatience of a part of the American public for immediate results. If America is to maintain her world leadership as the dependable champion of peace through unity and strength, she has still to achieve national unity about this policy and its implications; and her leaders still have a great educational task before them.

* * *

IN the relations between America and her allies, there exists a similar danger of misunderstanding and failure of confidence. Paradoxically, while American policy is often accused at home of appeasement, it is often accused abroad of warmongering. The reason is the same failure of public relations and public education—a failure to explain the underlying ideas of a long-term policy to a wide public, and to translate policy from the technical terms of diplomacy into convincing and understandable everyday language. The "crisis of confidence" between America and her allies, which some observers have seen developing during 1951, exists less on the level of governments than on the level of public opinions; and characteristically, it is in this field that the Russians, with their calculatedly misleading peace propaganda and disarmament proposals, have so far counteracted American policy most vigorously.

A second and more tangible inter-allied problem has arisen out of the economics of rearmament. The events of 1951 have underlined the ominous discrepancy of economic strength between America and her allies.

* * *

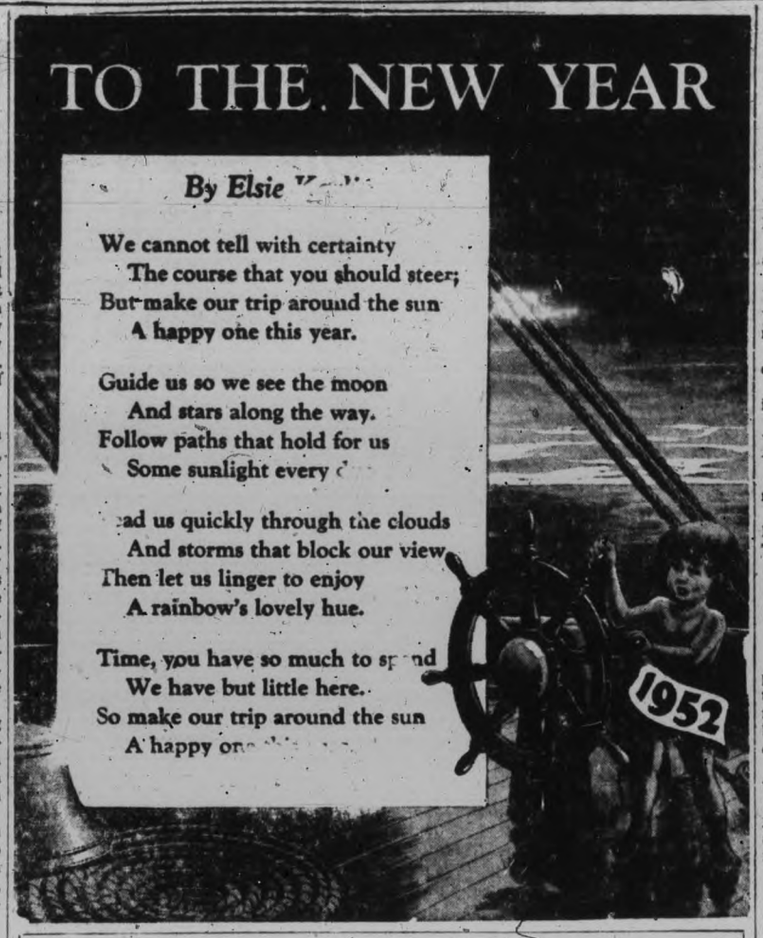
WHILE the American economy is taking the gigantic American remobilization programme in its stride, the British and Continental European economies are almost breaking down under their comparatively small parallel rearmament efforts. It is becoming clear that American military aid as at present designed is not sufficient to offset the danger, and the problem how to organize Atlantic long-term rearmament in such a way that it can be carried out to a joint plan with greatest military effect and smallest economic and political disturbance remains unsolved. There is an increasing suspicion that it cannot be solved at all in a framework of national sovereignty and that the Atlantic Alliance, in order to stand the strain or rearmament and long-term containment of Russia, will have to become an Atlantic Federation.

Finally, the new American world policy has created a problem in the relations between the Western world and the underdeveloped countries of Asia, Africa, and Latin America. The cold war between Russia and the West cuts across the other great world movement of the 20th century: the nationalist and industrial revolution of the underdeveloped continents.

* * *

BEFORE 1951, the Western Powers were trying to come to terms with this revolution, groping towards a new co-operative relationship with the underdeveloped nations through such means as President Truman's Point Four Programme, the British Commonwealth Colombo Plan, the United Nations Technical Aid Programme, etc. But American policy of 1951 inevitably implies a postponement of these policies; it amounts to a decision to give Western rearmament priority over world development. The problems of world development, however, cannot simply wait. Some of the crises and difficulties of 1951—the Anglo-Persian crisis and the Anglo-Egyptian crisis, the discontents in Morocco and other parts of Africa, and above all the large gap in the containment front in India and South-East Asia—arise directly from them. Thus in 1952, the Western Powers will have to reconsider the place of these problems in their general world strategy, and possibly revise some of their priorities, unless they are to lay themselves open to damaging flanking attacks from unexpected quarters.

* * *



NEVERTHELESS, the greatest question mark overhanging 1952 remains Russia's tardy reaction to the Western military and diplomatic power build-up. Up to 1950, Russia had retained, by and large, the world political initiative, and the enormous expansion of her power since the war—in Eastern Europe in 1945-48, in China and Korea in 1948-50—may well have encouraged her to believe that time was on her side. During 1951, firm lines have been drawn in Europe, in the Pacific, and in the Middle East beyond which Russian power is not to be allowed to expand, and behind these lines "positions of strength" are now in progress of construction. If this process continues for another year, the world balance of power is bound to tilt against Russia.

NOT only will Russian expansion be at an end, but local resistance may assert itself in Eastern Europe and elsewhere; and force Russia to move back in the years after 1953. Is Russia to wait passively for this? Will she be content to delay the process by playing on the internal problems and difficulties of the Western power build-up outlined above? Or will she take the plunge into preventive war?

The year 1952 is the last one in which this fateful choice is open to her. Since it is also a year in which the American Presidential elections will handicap and possibly for some months paralyze American foreign policy, it is bound to be a crucial year in the world affairs of the 20th century. If it passes without war and without a major upset in the Western policies which were inaugurated in 1951, it may be the year in which the world will turn the corner from permanent crisis to an incipient new stability, and from fears of war to solid hopes of a new period of settled peace.

Christmas In Soviet Russia

by EDWARD CRANKSHAW

RUSSIA should be the classical land of Christmas. Every winter the immense, unending plain is blanketed by snow, and once it is settled and firm the sledge is the only possible means of transport. Innumerable peasant villages lie thinly scattered, driven in on themselves and cut off from the world, islands of warmth and life in the empty, frozen land, each wooden cottage a little universe in itself, with its wood-pile, its store of fodder, its pig, its poultry, its solitary cow, all under the same room as members of the family, with the great wood-burning stove the focus of warmth and life.

When the sun shines the sky is an infinity of crystal blue, the snow reflecting an infinity of colours according to the depth of shadow and the angle of the sun. Then the cottages look alive. Grouped around the village church and its gilded onion cupola flashing in the sun, its walls, flatly washed in pink or pale green or blue, they turn the bleak landscape into a corner of fairy-land.

The Soviet revolution has not changed this ancient picture. It has twisted or hacked off the gold cross on the church. It has turned the church itself into a grain store. It has provided a club-room, made of wood like the cottage. But it has not changed the Russian peasant's attitude to life—and to Christmas. It would take more than the Kremlin to deny the Russians their Christmas trees; but the Kremlin does its level best to make sure that the Christmas celebrations are not connected with the birth of Christ. Christmas Day is now treated like any other working day, and the Soviet Christmas is celebrated on New Year's Day. The presiding genius is Grandfather Frost, a kind of glorified Santa Claus, and every family that can possibly afford it has a Christmas tree, decorated and candle-lit, as the centre of the traditional ritual of present-giving. In the northern half of the country, the land of limitless forests, everyone has a tree, but on the treeless steppe-lands it is not so easy, and often a tiny branch of spruce, up-ended in a pot and painstakingly decorated with treasured scraps of tinsel and coloured paper, has to serve instead.

At the New Year the irrepressible Russian love of children finds its best expression in tremendous children's parties organized by schools, local Soviets, trades unions, and local Communist organizations, run for days on end with relays of children all having the time of their lives until they are taken away exhausted and replete.

* * *

THE great annual City of Moscow Party is one of the sights of Russia, and may go on for a week. For once the Communist functionaries, the police officials, and all the bleak-faced men and women who for the rest of the year hold absolute and tight-lipped sway over the masses from whom these children spring, are able to forget their doctrine, their directives, their suspicions and their Party line and relax—as Russians, even official Russians, above all other people know how—in the sheer delight of childish high spirits. At these parties, beside the games, the dancing, the presents and the food, there is also carol singing. But the childish voices in their shrill, remote unison are not celebrating the birth of Christ; they are singing of Great Stalin or the riches of the Kolhoz from which, with the aid of Soviet science, all blessings spring.

How many of these children know the real meaning of Christmas? It is impossible to tell, but certainly more than one would expect. For although the official celebrations fall at the New Year, in tens of thousands of homes throughout the great, unspeaking land the old traditional Christmas is not forgotten. Wherever there are churches still functioning as churches (and these are not as numerous as conducted tours of Moscow and the great cities lead Westerners to believe) the Christmas services are celebrated with more than the old traditional fervour. And in the breasts of millions, who may never openly confess their allegiance to their old religion, Christmas Day will not pass without a secret blessing—just as at Easter one may see the most correct Government official instinctively offering the traditional baw and greeting: "Christ is Risen".

Bible Message

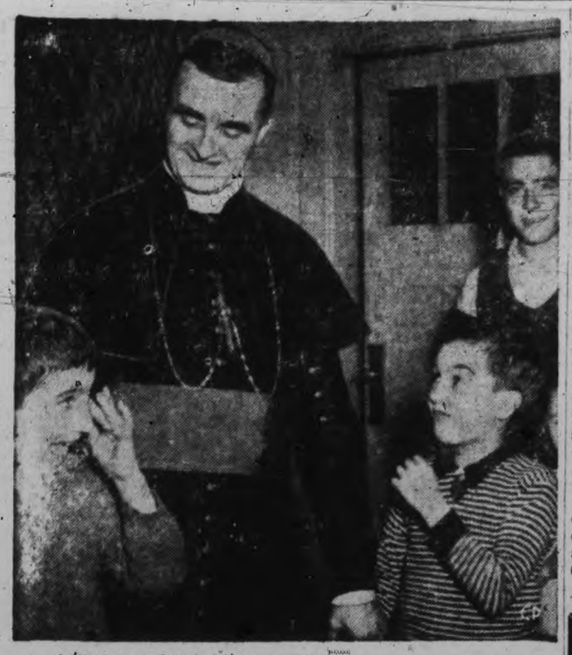
(From the Authorized Version)

Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you. Nevertheless, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing. (Phil. 3: 13-16.)

* * *

Wherefore laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings, as newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby: if so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious. To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious, ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ. (1 Pet. 2: 1-5.)



* * *

Cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee. Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness. (Ps. 143: 8, 10.)

Toronto Man Held For Murder

TORONTO, Jan. 2 (CP)—Frederick McKenzie Morton, 27, Tuesday was charged with murder in conection with the beating death of Vonie Simser, 31-year-old blonde who police said had lived with Morton for the last four years.

The woman died in hospital three hours after she was beaten and kicked into unconsciousness at a New Year's party at her mother's home on Parliament street in midtown Toronto, police reported.

Police said they were told that during the night the couple got into an argument. They said the woman was knocked to the floor and kicked for several minutes.

Falls Under Car Lives To Tell Story

MARKHAM, Jan. 2 (CP)—Mrs. Frank Grove, mother of five children, fell under her auto Tuesday and lived to tell the tale.

While backing her car down a lane on the farm of Edward Timbers, a mile south of here, Mrs. Grove opened the door and leaned out to see where she was going.

The door caught in a snow bank and flipped her out and under the vehicle. The car continued down the lane dragging Mrs. Grove underneath.

Some 260 feet farther, Mrs. Grove, protected by her heavy winter coat, managed to roll free and halted the car.

Life Contrasted To Climbing Mountain

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 2—(ENS)—At the morning service in Springville United Church on Sunday, Rev. A. E. Larke preached on the subject, "Our Lives—Retrospect and Prospect," using for the purpose of illustration interesting mountain climbing episodes drawn from his own climbing experiences in the Rockies and from the biographies of famous climbers. Mountain-climbing is a thrilling and rewarding experience he said to adventurous souls.

God's appointed road for man is uphill all the way. The Christian's epitaph must read "He died climbing":

Mr. Larke invited the congregation to appraise its own spiritual achievements during the past year.

"Have our endeavours been characterized by a spirit of expectancy—a real desire to climb—to grow in grace and in the knowledge of God or were we quite content with comortable and complacent living?

"The successful mountain climber gave meticulous attention to the matter of equipment and provisions. The success or failure of an expedition is depended so much upon this. They were guided by the experiences of both pioneer and contemporary climbers. So, too, there is available for us the record of God's word as a guide to the Christian life. We benefit from sharing with others the gifts of the Spirit".

Missed Christmas, New Year's In Jail

After spending the last several Christmases in jail, serving sentences on liquor charges, William Hanrahan, of Lakefield, almost squeezed through the 1951 holiday season without being nabbed for violating the Liquor Control Act.

However, his weakness caught up with him three days before the New Years.

He was arrested by the village Police Chief Garnet Samis and charged with having liquor in a place other than his residence.

In reading the charge to Hanrahan in police court Monday, Magistrate W. R. Philp said that two prior convictions under the same charge were alleged against him.

"Two?" replied Hanrahan. Then after he was asked if he remembered being convicted of the same offence on January 12 and September 7.

He nodded his head and when asked how he wished to plead, Hanrahan shrugged and said, "Oh, guilty."

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw suggested a five or six month sentence, with a recommendation for alcoholic treatment at Mimico Reformatory.

Magistrate Philp said the maximum sentence for a third offence was three months, but included a recommendation for Mimico in sentencing Hanrahan.

Lach, Richard Lead NHL Scoring

MONTREAL, Jan. 2 (CP). — Detroit Red Wings may be setting the pace in the National Hockey League standings but a couple of boys from Montreal Canadiens are grabbing their share of individual honors.

Detroit, with 50 points in 35 games, is perched comfortably atop the standings. Toronto Maple Leafs and the Habs are tied for second spot with 38 points, 12 below the leaders.

A look at the individual scoring records show Elmer Lach heading the parade with 37 points, made up of nine goals and a record 28 assists.

Teammate Maurice Richard follows with 35 points, composed of a pace-setting 20 goals and 15 assists.

Cordie Howe of Detroit picked up three points over the New Year holiday to move into third place with 33 points. He has one goal less than Richard and one less assist.

Tied For Fourth

Three players are tied for fourth spot. They are Sid Smith of Toronto, with a 13-18 mark, Don Raleigh of New York, with a 12-19 record, and Ted Kennedy of the Leafs, with a similar total.

In the goal-keepers' department Terry Sawchuk of the Wings is far ahead with seven shutouts. Al Rollins of Toronto comes next with three and Gerry McNeil of Montreal racked up his first scoreless game of the season last night as the Montrealers defeated the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 3-0 in Chicago.

Gus Kyle of Boston is the most penalized player in the league with 85 minutes.

Otonabee Boys Tie

KEENE, Jan. 2 —(ENS)— The Otonabee pee-wees got started in Keene with an exhibition game by two picked teams from the league and it ended in a 6-6 tie. Team No. 1 tore into their bigger and more experienced rivals right from the start and ran up a four-goal lead which they held, right through to the last period when they tired and team No. 2 came on to tie it up.

Grant Shearer lead team No. 2 with four goals with Don McCarthy and Lorrie Shearer getting one each. For team No. 1, Johnny McIntyre popped in three and Pete Nelson, Norm Godfrey and Bill Renwick each scored once.

It is expected to begin the schedule next Saturday with the usual doubleheader and it is hoped that the kids get, at least, parental support at these games as they put up a good, clean show.

Teams:

No. 1, goal, Paul Nelson; defence, Godfrey, W. Nelson, Pete Nelson, Gary Nelson; forwards, Pete Shearer, McIntyre, Mather, Renwick, M. Maloney, L. Maloney, Stillman, D. Nelson.

No. 2, goal, Doris, defence, Steele, Comrie, Hawkes; forwards, McCarthy, Lorrie Shearer, Grant Shearer, Bill Shearer, Wismer, Gall.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Since the "Jolson Story" came out a lot of writers have been coming up with this or that "Story." Latest we noted was in a recent edition of the Canadian Trotter and Pacer, and it was called "The Stewart Story." It referred to Alec Stewart, Port Hope, who operates the Stewart Stables two miles east of Newtonville. He has quite a brood there and this past year he turned down an offer of $10,000 for Mighty Cox, which did 2.05 on a half-mile track. Alec has 64 head worth around $80,000 and really goes in for the standard-bred pacers and trotters. So does his brother, Hugh Stewart of the local Exhibition Board.

Appearing from time to time in our paper will be a sports column by Elmer Ferguson, under the heading Calvert Reporter. A paid ad. The writer is well known to many Canadian fans as sports editor for years of the Montreal Herald — and, incidentally, Ken McDonald (a former Examiner sports editor) is now a news editor at the Herald. Fergy is frequently heard on the hockey forum of Maple Leafs' broadcasts. Quite a capable sports' columnist and commentator of many years' experience. Some of his future columns will deal with Jersey Joe Walcott, big Jim Thorpe, Thorpe, gambling in sports, and so on.

Was That Nice, Dit?

Local readers of Andy O'Brien's sports features in Weekend may have seen his last article on NHL referees. He emphasized "savvy" as being important in refereeing, as well as knowledge of rules and a decisive attitude. We liked this illustration: "Lt. Col. Clarence Campbell, MBE, now president of the NHL, was referee one 1937 playoff night in Boston when Dit Clapper socked him flush on the jaw. Campbell let Clapper go with a major for fighting instead of tossing the book at him, because 'I felt that Clapper, a great competitor in a severe game, didn't know whom he was swinging at in the melee.' Although naturally flustered from the blow, Campbell had retained calmness of judgment." Golly, Dit, you shouldn't ha' done it!

Bun Morganson of the Tely mentions our town a few times in his annual sports roundup. Of lacrosse, he says: "Peterborough lined up an all-star club to make a clean sweep of the Ontario, Eastern and all-Canadian senior titles, defeating the Vancouver Combines out west after a hectic series." And of baseball, he remarks: "Oshawa and Peterborough ran afoul of the Viaduct League management, but the TBA suspension meant nothing to the Ontario body and Oshawa went on to win the OBA title. Mathers downed Kingsway from the Viaduct League for city honors." A typical Toronto outlook. Even the OBA is supposed to reverse its decisions to suit a few Toronto sports' officials—one of whom Oshawa and local ball officials figure was Bunny Morganson.

Hawklets And IOOF

Hockey of the OHA variety returns here tonight with an 8.30 junior "B" game in Civic Arena. It's Belleville Hawklets vs. the local Oddfellows. Another streamlined struggle assured as the husky youngsters shoot the works. Other clubs in the circuit are beginning to worry about the drive lately of the slow-starting IOOF-ers, and well they might worry. Johnny Godfrey's gang will be tough onions for all from here in, we expect. They finished the old year in strong style and are rarin' to climb up with the first and second squads after hurdling Kingston Vics in the standing. It shapes up a dandy puck duel and should draw well.

* * * * * *

All has been fairly quiet in senior "B" circles over the holiday, but there are some hot times coming up. In a racing sense, they've rounded the turn now and are jockeying for positions as they pound down toward the stretch—that last drive before the finish. Eagles have been trailing the field lately but are showing signs of moving up fast, while Petes are out in front of the pack. These two local teams hook up in one of their thrilling tilts here Friday night and that one should jam the place. If Eagles can take the Petes in this one, then boyoboyoboy there'll be a dogfight the rest of the way, and no fooling!

Illinois Wallops Stanford 40-7 At Rose Bowl

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP). — Tennessee may be the No. 1 collegiate football team in the United States but you would have a mighty tough job today convincing either Maryland or Illinois.

The boys who operate the split-T formation for coach Jim Tatum at Maryland have the figures to back up their argument. They soundly whipped Gen. Bob Neyland's Tennessee Volunteers 18-13 Tuesday in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

Illinois, while not coming into direct contact with Tennessee, showed it has a pretty fair outfit itself by walloping Stanford's Indians, kingpins of the Pacific Coast Conference, 40-7 in the Rose Bowl. Victory by Illinois was expected but not by any such great margin, Maryland ranked third in The Associated Press Poll. Illinois was fourth, three notches above Stanford.

The Rose Bowl, granddaddy of all post-season gridiron classics, and the Sugar Bowl headed a country-wide card 11 games which drew more than 400,000 fans, with millions more looking in on the Illinois-Stanford affair at Pasadena, Calif., on a national television hook-up.

The Bowl at Pasadena was packed with the largest turnout, 96,825 while another 82,000 jammed into the Sugar Bowl.

The 1951 rankings ran true to form in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., where Georgia Tech (No. 5) edged Baylor (No. 9), 17-14 on Pepper Rodgers' 10-yard field goal in the closing minutes.

But Kentucky's Wildcats, riding on the arm of Vito (Babe) Parilli, dumped 11th-ranked Texas Christian 20-7 before 75,000 in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. Kentucky was ranked 15th.

Other results in what may be the last of the big bowl days included: Miami (Fla.) 14 Clemson 14-0 in 'Gator; Texas Tech 25 College of Pacific 14 in the Sun; Houston 26 Dayton 21 in the Salad; Stetson 35 Arkansas State 20 in the Tangerine; Hinds J. C. 27 San Angelo J. C. 22 in the Oleander; Bethune-Cookman 27 Texas College 13 in the Steel; Prairie View 27 Arkansas AM & M in the Prairie.

Roth Continues Top OHA Scorer

TORONTO, Jan. 2 (CP). — Mickey Roth, top-flight centre for Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, continues to lead the loop's scoring race. His 31 goals and 40 assists give him 71 points.

Tied for second place, 15 points behind Roth are Ed Stankiewicz of the second place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Danny Flanagan, Roth's Stratford linemate.

Aussies Need 129 Runs To Win

MELBOURNE, Australia Jan. 2 (Reuters).—Australia, with nine second-innings wickets standing, needs 192 runs to win the fourth test against West Indies here, a victory which would clinch the five-match series.

West Indies brought their second-innings score to 203 today, topping Australia by 259 runs. Australia knocked off 68 of these by the close for the loss of one wicket. First innings scores were West Indies 272, Australia 216.

Jeff Stollmeyer (54) and Gerry Gomez (52) were the top scorers of the West Indies' second innings. No fewer than four batsmen — S. Guillen, J. Goddard, J. Trim and S. Ramadhin—were out for zero.

Dunnett Wins 'Y' Road Race

HAMILTON, Jan. 2 (CP). — Keith Dunnett, representing the Dundas Legion, Tuesday won the 31st annual YMCA road race.

Competing against 22 runners from Ontario and New York State, Dunnett took the lead half way through the 10-mile run and never lost it.

His time was 56:23 minutes, some five minutes slower than the 51:34 record set by Galt's Cliff Bricker in 1918.

Dunnett's lead was threatened by Alton General but the Hamilton Olympic Club's top entry could do no better than second. Bill Husband also of the Hamilton Olympic Club, finished third.

The three-mile junior event for runners 19 years and under was won by Jan Kivisild of Toronto's Central YMCA. Frank Calzi of the University of Syracuse was second and Galt's Donald Moffett third. The winning time was 16 minutes.

Keen Tilts At Keene

KEENE, Jan. 2—(ENS)—In the New Year's Eve doubleheader at the Otonabee rink, Indian River beat Westwod 5 to 1 in the first game and the Downer's boys shut out the Keene team 2-0 in the nightcap. Both games were fairly even all the way but Westwood and Keene lacked scoring power. Don Bethune, a young newcomer to the league, looked good for the Shur-Gain boys, scoring two goals and setting up two while Don Hope banged in two with V. Colby scoring the other and assisting on two for the River team. Nelson scored the only goal for Westwood, Cardwell assisting on the play. Bruce Warr, as usual, stood out for Westwood.

The second game got a bit rugged in spots as the ice softened towards the end and with both goalkeepers playing well, goals were scarce. Harold Burns and Humphrey scored for Downer's to defeat their arch-rivals from Keene, Bob Locke assisting on both counters besides playing a good clean game. Joe McCarthy worked like a Trojan for Keene in the losing case. Thursday next will see the usual doubleheader at the Otonabee rink in Keene at seven and nine p.m.

Teams:

Indian River: V. Colby, Miller, Shearer, H. Hope, O. Colby, Don Hope, Davidson, Stewart, Fife, Elmhirst, Bethune, Craib.

Westwood: E. Wilson, Fife, Warner, Nelson, R. Warr, Cardwell, B. Warr, B. McMillan, J. McMillan, Humphreys, B. Wilson, Green.—

Downer's: Labable, Buck McIlmoyle, Close, Batten, Wade, Locke, Burns, Humphreys, Morris, B. McIlmoyle, Barker, Steenburg.

Keene: Mackness, Nelson, Manbeck, Houle, Brown, McCarthy, Whalen, Kempt, Wood, Adamson, Hope.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The Sydney (Australia) Daily Telegraph Tuesday announced it has opened a fund to provide a wedding present for Australia's tennis ace, Frank Sedgman, who has decided to remain an amateur for another year.

The newspaper invited the public to subscribe to the "Sedgman wedding present fund." The paper said the drive was suggested by Jim Ashton, a New South Wales sheep raiser.

Ashton started the ball rolling with a subscription of £50 and The Telegraph added another £500.

The 24-year-old Sedgman, who almost single-handedly defeated the US in the Davis Cup challenge round, and 21-year-old Jean Spence of Melbourne, have announced plans to marry in January but the exact date has not been fixed.

Jockey Johnny Longden said Monday in Arcadia, Calif., that he and two Canadians have purchased the Australian colt Consider and plan to place him at Hollywood Park in the spring.

Longden said he and Max Bell and Wilder Ripley, Calgary businessmen, made the purchase through Tal Davis, Australian dealer. The price was not disclosed. The jockey said the colt, four years old Tuesday, is being shipped here next month.

Centre Rudy Migay will rejoin Toronto Maple Leafs for Thursday night's game in Montreal. Migay suffered an injured leg the last time he turned out with the National Hockey League club and was sent down to Pittsburgh Hornets in the American Hockey League for conditioning when it healed.

H. Guy Bedwell, 76, who trained Sir Barton, the only Canadian-owned horse ever to win the Kentucky Derby, died Monday night in Upper Marlboro, Md., of a heart attack.

Bedwell was credited with training more winners than anyone else in the United States with the exception of Hirsch Jacobs. He trained for such stables as that of Commodore J. K. L. Ross, Canadian millionaire who died last year and who owned Sir Barton.

New OMHA League To Help Juveniles

COBOURG, Jan. 2—Juvenile hockey has been organized under the OMHA banner in this district and the teams competing will be Lindsay, Orono-Newcastle Combines, Whitby, Bowmanville and Cobourg.

Opening game for the local club, sponsored by the Lions, takes place Thursday in Lindsay and the first home game finds Lindsay right back here Friday. Coach of the club is Jack Buchanan, veteran Peterborough and Cobourg hockey star, who lined up with the intermediate A Comets last year but has stuck to his coaching duties this season.

The lineup is intact with the exception of high scoring forward Billy Bowen, overage this year, and goalie George Charles now in Korea. Counted on to carry the load are Rolly Campbell, Frank McIvor and Neil Cane. Under the existing system of player exchange, between the two towns, Port Hope will send players Evans, Kotzko and perhaps one or two more to strengthen the local lineup.

Hockey's Big Seven

Each picked up three points, giving Lach 37 and Richard 35. Lach's 28 assists are the league mark and Richard's 20 goals also are tops.

Third place is held down by Gordie Howe of Detroit who is one goal short of Richard. He has a total of 33 points.

11 Teams To Play In Trent League

TRENTON, Jan. 2—Latest word released by Dick Bridgman, secretary-treasurer of the Trent Valley Hockey League, is that 11 teams, rather than 10, will operate in the league, which starts play tonight.

Stirling is the extra team and will perform in the Northern Division with Lakefield, Marmora, Hastings, Havelock and Norwood. Stirling will open its season at home tonight against Hastings.

Stirling filed entry several weeks ago, became faced with a player shortage and decided to withdraw from the loop. However, at the last minute the team executive managed to line up sufficient playing strength to continue its league franchise.

Laufman Averages One Goal A Game

TORONTO, Jan. 2 (CP): — It's not very often a player averages a goal a game over the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A schedule, but Guelph's Ken Laufman is well on his way. With the season half over he has banged in 30 in as many appearances, adding 53 assists to lead the 10-team circuit's point parade with 83.

Eight behind in second place is Ken Wharram of Galt Black Hawks, who has tallied 27 times and assisted on 48 goals for 75 points.

Gerry McNeil, Montreal, who racked up his first shutout of the season New Year's night as the Canadiens blanked Chicago Black Hawks 3-0.

Gordie Howe, Detroit, who scored all his team's goals although the Red Wings dropped a 5-3 decision to Montreal Canadiens Monday night.

Canadiens Blank Hawks After Edging Wings, Rangers Trip Bruins 5-2

By The Canadian Press

The New Year brought plenty of joys to Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers. It was even better than Christmas. Showing signs of stir during the latter stages of 1951, both clubs burst through with victories Tuesday night in their initial 1952 National Hockey League appearances. Each win moved them up a notch in the loop standings. Canadiens shut out the Black Hawks 3-0 in Chicago to move into a second-place deadlock with Toronto Maple Leafs. Rangers downed the Bruins 4-2 at Boston and climbed over the Beantowners into the league's fourth and last playoff spot.

Monday night, Montreal surprised the Red Wings 5-3 right in Detroit, their first win over the league-leaders in eight tries this season.

At Chicago it was Maurice Richard who started the ball rolling for the Habs after only 12 seconds of play in the game. The Rocket rammed a penalty shot past goalie Harry Lumley for what proved to be the winning margin.

Penalty Shot

The penalty shot cropped up when officials ruled Jim Peters hooked Bert Olmstead from behind as he attempted a shot on the Hawk goal. Paul Meger tallied Montreal's other two goals in the last period.

Monday night in Detroit the Canadiens rallied around little Gerry McNeil, playing right after the death of his mother in Quebec. They stopped the Wings 5-3.

Despite Gordie Howe's three-goal effort, Elmer Lach pushed in two while Maurice Richard, Floyd Curry and Billy Reay came through with singletons for the Hab win.

In Boston Tuesday night, the Rangers chalked up that 4-2 win, their first road victory since Bill Cook took over as coach.

Defenceman Steve Kraftcheck, who has scored only three goals all season, rapped home two first-period markers and the Blueshirts went on from there to win. Gaye Stewart tallied a second-period goal and Wally Hergesheimer finished the scoring in the final session. Dave Creighton potted both of Boston's goals.

No games are scheduled in the National Hockey League tonight. Thursday night Toronto Maple Leafs move into Montreal for a battle over second place with the Canadiens.

Jean (Johnny) Beauchamp, 30, internationally - known hockey player, died Tuesday of burns suffered Christmas Eve while trying to extinguish a fire in the family homestead at Ste. Rose de Lima, Que. He learned his hockey in Ottawa, but left the city for a time to play in Paris, London, Hollywood and New York.

BIRDS ENJOY ROOF TOP BATH

A flock of starlings fluttered about on the police garage roof today, frolicking in the warm sunshine. They enjoyed a mid-winter bath in three pools of water melted by Old Sol, as he gains strength on his way back north.

TRAFFIC SUGGESTION

Suggestion to the council's traffic planning committee is parking only on one side of streets on the bus routes, especialy such streets as Reid St. north of Wolfe St. Snow banks created by city plows reduce the width for traffic. In some stretches recently streets have been so narrow that they were safe only as single lanes.

David Leether, Sr., 358 George St. S., had his first perfect crib hand Tuesday after 45 years of playing. Mr. Leether, who has been playing since he was 12, was dealt the Jack of diamonds and three fives. Then his wife, with whom he was playing, cut him the five of diamonds. A perfect hand.

SENT TO PENITENTIARY

Arrested in Niagara Falls, Charles Tann, formerly of Port Hope, pleared guilty in Niagara Falls to charges of robbing the Jacob's Gun Shop in Port Hope of several valuable antique guns some time ago and was sentenced to two and a half years in penitentiary. The sentence will run concurrently with sentences given in connection with other robberies.

LEAVE LIGHTS UP

Utilities Commission has its little moments of sentiment. For example there was some reluctance Monday about taking down the festive street lights of the Christmas season. "I think we might leave them for a while," G. S. Matthews suggested. The other members agreed, and for the immediate present there will be no rushing and relegating the red and green light lines to the Commission's attic or basement.

CGE Fires 11 Welders For Striking

Repeatedly Warned J. E. Girven Says In Letter

Eleven of the welders who have been out on a wildcat strike since Dec. 10 were fired today by the CGE.

In a letter to employees, explaining the company action, Works Manager J. E. Girven said: "(They) were discharged for failure after repeated warnings to resume work in a normal manner when they reported to their department on Dec. 27, 1951, after having participated in an illegal work stoppage since Dec. 11, 1951."

The welders and the company are at odds over a change in the price paid welders for a welding job on rotors. Both sides claim the other is violating the company agreement with Local 524, UEW, the bargaining agent.

Union officials told the company they did not authorize the strike and said they had repeatedly urged the men to return to work.

22 Walked Off

Twenty-two welders from the structural steel department walked off the job Dec. 10 after they found that a price on one of the welding jobs had been changed.

They estimated they would lose an average of 12 cents an hour.

The company gave the men until Dec. 28 to get back on the job or they would be fired. Nine of the original 22 are working but 11 others did not resume work in the way suggested by the company. They were fired early today.

"It is understandable that people will have complaints," said Mr. Girven. "It is because of this that we have a clearly established grievance procedure in the company-union agreement.

"This procedure, which is an essential part of union agreements, is provided so that there may be an orderly review of the complaints of employees while they continue working and not depriving themselves of their wages."

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW YEAR'S BABY arrived at 2 a.m. Jan. 1 at St. Joseph's Hospital. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mastai Joseph Moher of R.R. 2, Indian River. Runners up in the "First Baby Race" at St. Joseph's were three girls born on New Year's morning at 3:30, 4:00 and 6:40, despectively.

Few Accidents Disturb Peace Of New Year's

For the second straight year, Peterborough and district welcomed the new year without a serious accident.

Four arrests were made in the city. Two drunks were locked up. Another man was arrested for having liquor in a place other than a residence and a fourth man was held overnight at his wife's request.

None Injured

Five minor car accidents were reported in the city up until midnight Monday. Nobody was injured and there was only slight property damage to the vehicles involved in each case.

No drivers were arrested for drunk driving, or driving while their ability was impaired by alcohol. However, alert officers on duty at dances and public parties relieved several drivers of their car keys when it appeared they were unfit to drive.

Commenting on the quiet entrance of 1952 as far as accidents and crime were concerned, Chief Constable John Thompson said, "We certainly can give our citizens a boost for their good behaviour."

On New Year's Day, the accident lull continued and there were no traffic mishaps of any consequence reported in the city.

$260 Damage

New Year's Eve, $260 damage resulted when two cars collided on George St., shortly before 11 pm.

Driving north on George St., F. Elmer Rowe of Millbrook stopped in a line of traffic and was struck in the rear by a car driven by Joseph R. Hickson, 1 Stewart St.

Damage to the rear of the Rowe car amounted to an estimated $60 and the front end of the Hickson car was damaged to the extent of approximately $400.

Constable Wilfred Perry investigated.

Slippery streets were blamed for most of the accidents.

Early New Year's Eve, police predicted that if the mild weather continued, there would be few serious accidents and the spring-like mildness of the holiday helped keep acoidents at a minimum.

Mrs. Eliza McGinnis 103 On New Year's Day Keeps Secret Of Long Life

On her 103rd birthday New Year's Day, Mrs. Eliza McGinnis had a ready answer for the traditional question, "What is your formula for reaching such a grand old age?" "It's a secret," she replied.

Still enjoying good health, "Grandma" McGinnis has a good sense of humour and she smiled as she added that she had told reporters the same thing last year.

"It seems to be working pretty well," she explained, "and I don't want to spoil it."

"Grandma McGinnis really enjoys motoring."

On New Year's Day, she motored with her daughter, Mrs. Edmund Pratt and Mr. Pratt, from their home, seven miles west of Warkworth to attend a dinner party in her honor at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Elven Doxtator, 116 Montgomery Street.

Many Trips.

Since coming to live with Mr. and Mrs. Pratt in September, Mrs. McGinnis has made three trips to Peterborough and often visits two of her daughters and a son who live at Maberley, near Perth.

Dimming eye sight prevents her from doing as much reading as she would like, but she still reads the headlines, and enjoys listening to the radio. She always did a great deal of knitting and crocheting until recently, when failing eyesight forced her to give it up.

As she chatted with members of her family in the Doxtator living room, she commented on the amount of snow that has fallen this year, and recalled going to New Years dinners before the turn of the century, bundled up in a horse drawn cutter.

During the conversation, Mrs. McGinnis dropped a few hints that may explain how she has managed to pass the century mark. She has never let small unimportant matters bother her.

Then too, she explained that in 1874, when she was married in Niagara Falls, the Anglican clergyman who performed the ceremony predicted she would "never grow old. "I'm still going strong," she said and enjoying it.

Niagara Falls was a favorite honeymoon spot even then and Mr. and Mrs. McGinnis spent week there, before Mr. McGinnis returned to his job of railroading.

Fenian Raids

This was the time of the Fenian Raids, when Irish fanatics from the American side used to sneak across the Niagara River and make hit-and-run raids on the Canadian shore.

One of these raids she recalled took place while she and her husband were in Niagara Falls. The heights overlooking the river were heavily fortified but in spite of the canons and the alertness of the militia, a few boatloads succeeded in landing during the night an proceeded to shoot up the town and burn several buildings.

Then, Niagara Falls was about the size of Perth, (where she lived for a number of years) and the only doctor in town was wounded in both legs as he went about treating the wounded during the fighting.

Side-Wheeler

The trip from Niagara Falls to Kingston and then up the Rideau Canal was made in one of the old side-wheeler steamships that used to ply the Great Lakes and inland canal systems, carrying passengers before the era of motorcars.

Her husband, George McGinnis who died in 1928, was a foreman of the Kingston-Pembroke railroad, and superintended its construction. Later, he worked with the Grand Trunk, until his retirement.

In all her years, Mrs. McGinnis has never been to a dentist or a hospital and has always enjoyed good health.

She was born at Cambden, near the village of Wilton, north west of Kingston, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Bertram. Her father operated a farm there.

A member of the Anglican Church, Mrs. McGinnis still attends church occasionally but finds it more convenient to attend the Free Methodist in Warkworth with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Pratt.

Nine Children

She had nine children, four boys and five girls. One boy and a girl died in childhood, and a son George of Perth died last spring. The others are still living; Mrs. Duncan Avery (Mary) and Mrs. George Fife (Maude) and Charles McGinnis all of Maberly; Mrs. William Ennis (Margaret) of Fallbrook; Mrs. Edmund Pratt (Christina) of Warkworth and Arthur McGinnis of Kingston.

There are 26 grandchildren and 18 great grand-children.

For 10 years, Mrs. McGinnis moved around with her husband, living in temporary quarters as he moved about from one railway construction camp to another. During these years, Mrs. McGinnis said she did the cooking for the men and at one time, she said she slept in a bedroom that was a converted powder house that had been used for storing dynamite.

Since her husband died 24 years ago, Mrs. McGinnis has been living part time, with different members of her family. She is still enjoying life, and looking forward to reaching her 104th birthday on January 1 1953, when she promises to reveal her "secret" of longevity.

Prices Stay Firm In City Stores Despite Law

Ottawa's anti-price fix measure which became law Saturday night has not resulted in an immediate cutting of retail prices in Peterborough stores and it is expected not to have any definite effect on present prices.

A large departmental store manager said that the general opinion of store managers was that the measure would "make no difference; that's unless someone gets panicky or uses it to get business."

He explained that in the United States some stores "took advantage of the measures to make a slaughter." Other stores followed suit but the whole disturbance has now quietened down."

Can't Afford It

"Actually no one can afford to sell at lower prices, and that's in any business along the main streets."

Clare Collins, president of the Canadian Shoe Retailers' Association, said the association objected to the legislation on the grounds that the government was interfering with business.

Mr. Collins said that the anti-price fix measure will not provide lower prices for shoes and that there would be no difference.

He admitted that some stores will be having their regular seasonal clearance sales on some lines. These sales will not be the result of the law but too high inventories.

Earlier this week Fred M. Payne, executive secretary of the Shoe Retailers' Association, said that a survey made by the organization had resulted in the conclusion that the bill would have little or no effect on the retail shoe industry.

"It will not mean cheaper shoes," he said emphatically.

All Agree

Clothing, furniture, electrical appliance, and other store managers all agreed that prices would remain firm in spite of the new law. They were of the opinion that the law would not accomplish what the government hoped it would do—assist in lowering the cost of living.

Furniture and electrical appliance store managers said that in the furniture lines there were only a few items where the prices are set. They added that the seasonal sales, "regular clearance sales" are expected but other than that "there will be no drastic change." The electrical appliance departments will follow the same pattern.

Boy Clocks In At 2 A.M. First Baby Born In 1952

Peterborough's annual Stork Race had six entrants on New Year's Day at the two city hospitals. The winner, a boy, arrived at 2 am at St. Joseph's, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mastai Joseph Moher of R.R. 2, Indian River. He weighed into the world at 7 pounds, 2 ounces.

Number Two and Three, both of the weaker sex and born at the same hospital were as follows: to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jackson of RR 2, Peterborough, at 3:30 am and to Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Cummiskey of 541 Brioux Ave. Baby Number Four, a boy, was born at Civic Hospital at 5:13 am. The fifth baby, a girl, arrived at 6:40 am at St. Joseph's, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yule of 517 Weller St. Said the nursing sister of this infant: "According to its surname, it should have arrived on Christmas Day."

The sixth, and last, New Year's baby, was born at 3:30 pm at Civic Hospital, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bowen of 409 Wolfe St.

G. A. Macdonald Leaves Utilities

"I'm sorry you are not going to be with us again." Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, said Monday to George A. Macdonald prior to the the final adjournment of the year. "We have had a lot of interesting meetings together."

Fred Hills, third member of the Commission, also bade farewell to Mr. Macdonald who was completing almost one-quarter of a century in Peterborough's elective municipal service.

Mr. Macdonald was an alderman from 1926 to 1935; mayor in 1936 and 1937, terminating his work in the council just as the years of the depression were passing their peak.

Member 11 Years

Mr. Macdonald has been a member of the Utilities Commission from 1940 until 1951. Macdonald's Point at the end of Rink St. developed as a civic improvement during Mr. Macdonald's years in the council. In the time of depression Senator Duffus suggested some undertaking to provide needed work. The riprapping of the Crescent St. bank of Little Lake was proposed, and was approved by the federal government. The park was an afterthought.

Mr. Macdonald was mayor and was deeply interested in the project, immediately for its employment advantage, and also in the longer view as another waterside park site. Mr. James Hamilton was associated in the promotion of the rip-rap work, and the park was completed during his mayoral term.

Boys' Parliament To Raise $14,600

The Ontario Older Boys' Parliment was praised Monday for its $14,600 budget passed during its 31st session during the Christmas holidays at Trinity College School, Port Hope.

The Rev. David Gallagher, Lieutenant - Governor, congratulated the 89-member house which represented boys groups across Ontario on the excellence of the legislation passed. He especially praised the $14,000 budget which is to be raised by various church boy's groups in the province. The money will be used to finance summer camps, conferences and other projects.

Gordon Hutchinson, Toronto, was elected prime minister for the 32nd session. Other officers were: William Dowdell, Windsor, leader of the opposition; Paul Bitzer, president of the cabinet and Eric Snider, Meaford, alternate.

Dwight Fell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Fell, 193 Hunter St. E., represented boys' groups from Peterborough. No one attended from the county.

Can't Leave City To Fight Fires

Fire Chief George Smith wants it understood by rural residents that the fire department will not answer rural calls.

"We can't go to outside fires," he told The Examiner. "The exception is Lakefield. "We have a mutual aid agreement with them."

A city bylaw forbids the fire department being sent beyond city boundaries. Exceptions have been made, but from now on the bylow is being strictly adhered to, said Chief Smith.

The question came up again Monday afternoon when the home and radio repair shop of John Webb on the Port Hope highway, four and a half miles southwest of the city, burned down.

Had To Refuse

Firemen logged a number of calls from people wanting the city trucks to go out to the North Monaghan fire. But the firemen had to refuse.

The responsibility for protecting rural property rests with the municipalities themselves. That is the view of city officials.

The city fire department also has an agreement to protect St. Alphonsus school and Mount St. Joseph both in North Monaghan township; also the Kawartha Club in North Monaghan and the CGE power house in Douro.

HARRY R. DEYMAN of Cobourg, crown attorney for Northumberland and Durham, was among the appointed 50 King's Counsel announced by Lieut. Governor Ray Lawson on New Year's Day. He was born at Gooderham, Ont., and educated at Oshawa and Toronto. He graduated in 1936 and was called to the bar, opening an office in Cobourg. Two years later he was appointed crown attorney, at the age of 26, succeeding Colonel F. D. Boggs, K.C.

December's receipts were down from November and from December 1950. Last month, receipts were $637,308.31, compared to November's $661,756.61 and $849,654.51 for December 1950.

Spanish Prisoner Hoax Tried On Artist

"The Spanish prisoner" is back in prison.

The opening gambit of this hoary hoax—a letter—has been sent to Sir Wyly Grier, famous Canadian artist, from Mexico City.

The letter was written December 6, and was sent on to Peterborough where Sir Wyly was on a two-week visit to his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gould, 690 Aylmer St. Stella, Mrs. Gould, is well-known herself as an artist, and teaches art classes in Peterborough.

The proposition offered by the writer, who signs himself only "P", boils down to this: If Sir Wyly will go to Mexico City and get P's trunks out of hock, P (in jail for bankruptcy) will give Sir Wyly one-third of $450,000 hidden in a secret compartment in another trunk deposited in a United States customhouse.

P says in his letter that it is "a very delicate matter on which depends the entire future of my dear daughter, as well as my very existence."

One of the trunks, he declares, contains a baggage check, "given to me at the time of checking my trunk for North America." With this baggage check, the trunk with all that money in it can be collected.

Apparently P has some of his story untold, for he says that he will not sign his name until Sir Wyly writes to him, and "then I will entrust you with all my secret." He promises "undeniable evidence."

Friend's Address

P has done well by himself in prison; he is in charge of the prison school. But he is careful to remark that Sir Wyly cannot write directly to him at the prison, and so gives the following return address: Sir Silvino Arias, Ramon Guzman 72 E, Mexico City 4, Mexico.

Senor Arias is spoken of by P as a "person of my entire trust who will deliver it (the answer) safely and rapidly."

The Spanish prisoner story is one of the oldest and best-known confidence tricks used in the continent.

Usually it follows this pattern. A letter comes to a prominent man, and it is usually unsigned. It tells that the writer is a prisoner either in a Mexican or Spanish jail, and if the prominent man will come to the city in which the jail is located and release the prisoner, the prisoner will lead him to a treasure somewhere. The prominent man is promised a cut of the cash.

All the details, of course, are not given in the first letter. A reply is necessary, most often to a "trusted friend."

Bring Money

If a reply comes, then more details are handed out. The prospect is told where to go to meet the trusted friend and how much money to bring to release the prisoner.

If the prospect is unwilling to make the trip, it is suggested in a further letter that he send a certified cheque or a money order for the amount necessary to spring the prisoner.

Of course, if he goes to Mexico, or wherever the prisoner is jailed, meets the trusted friend and gives him the money, the prospect sees nothing more of the trusted friend, nothing of the prisoner, and worst of all nothing of the treasure.

The trick is seldom successful.

Up Parking Fines

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 —(AP)— Parking fines were increased sharply Tuesday—from a straight $4 to $10 for hydrant parking and $15 for double parking. Some 200 traffic cops were put on the alert to tag errant motorists with the new, costlier summonses.

Mao Makes Appearance

TOKYO, Jan. 2 —(AP)—The leader of Communist China, Mao Tse Tung, appeared at a public New Year's celebration in Peiping today and urged the Communist government and army to "still greater victories" in 1952. He called on all the people to "rise and launch vigorously and uncompromisingly a large-scale struggle against corruption, waste and bureaucracy."

27 Fatalities In Canada Over Holiday

By The Candian Press

Violent death was an unwelcome participant in Canada's New Year's celebration, claiming at least 27 lives.

A Canadian Press compilation early today of fatalities reported since the long holiday weekend started at midnight Friday showed 10 deaths in highway crashes, five in fires, five in shootings, two drownings, an asphyxiation that took two lives and three deaths from miscellaneous causes.

In many areas, strict police vigilance against drinking drivers was credited with keeping down the number of traffic deaths. Good weather in most parts of the country enabled most Canadians to travel in safety. But despite these factors, and a campaign to encourage careful driving and walking during the holiday season, the overall toll exceeded 1951's New Year's weekend count of 26.

Ontario listed 23 fatalities, Quebec nine, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia two each and Alberta and British Columbia one apiece.

Violent Deaths

Police in Toronto said Vonie Simser, 31, was fatally kicked and beaten during a New Year's party. They charged Frederick Morton, 27, who they said had lived with her for the last four years, with murder.

Mrs. Gasper Gorgzak, about 30, was stabbed to death Tuesday night on an Edmonton street. Police charged her estranged husband with murder.

Two charges of murder were laid against Spr. Joseph Lanoie, 35, of Welland, in connection with the shooting at Petawawa military camp, near Pembroke, of Spr. J. W. Caulfield, 21, of Pine Falls, Man., and Cfn. C. E. Johannson, 19, of Saskatoon.

Martin Plestis, 52, was held as a material witness in conection with the New Year's Eve shooting of Anthony Millerin, 48, in the Montreal suburb of Ville Jacques Cartier.

Richard Connors, 10, mistaken for a deer, was shot to death at Spencerville by an older brother out hunting with a Christmas-gift shotgun.

Mrs. Hattie Hudson, an elderly hotel guest, and a man tentatively identified as Clarence Cloney, 70, also a guest, died in a $250,000 fire that destroyed the St. Regis Hotel at Amherst, NS.

Oscar Kingslev, 26, and Jeanette Rouleau, 25, of Alfred, Ont., were found asphyxiated in a parked automobile at Grenville, Que., 65 miles northeast of Ottawa.

Mrs. Charles Purdie, 68, was drowned at Port Lambton, Ont., when she fell through soft ice into the St. Clair River. At London, Ont., Lewis Wayne, 9, was drowned in the Thames River when thin ice on which he had been playing broke.

David Brown, 21 months, was burned in the Toronto suburb of Scarboro when older children playing with matches set fire to a Christmas tree in his home while his parents attended a New Year's party.

Struck down and killed by motor vehicles were Victor Giroda, 40, at St. Martine, Que.; John Kelly, 50, at Simcoe; David E. Knill, 51, at Brantford, and Fletcher Ruark, 75, at Windsor. A level-crossing crash at Lanoraie, Que., cost the life of Marcel Mageau, 22, of Joliette, Que. William D. Sharp, 42, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., was fatally injured when his bread truck overturned near Rouyn, Que.

Soon after the start of the weekend, Ann Hdyciw, 22, and Joan Warner, 20, both of Montreal, died in a fire while on a ski trip to Ste. Marguerite, Que.; George Carpentier, 28, of St. Remi de Napierville, met with death in a traffic accident near Montreal; Nelle B. Weselon died of traffic accident injuries at Kitchener; David Philp, 7, was drowned in a Toronto sewage plant tank; and Donald Cox, 10, was accidetally shot at Saanich, BC.

Only One Canadian Named In King's New Year's List

LONDON, Jan. 2 (Reuters)—Four new viscounts are created in the King's New Year's honors list.

The list contains 55 awards for political and public service to Britain, given by the King on the recommendation of Prime Minister Churchill. Some of the names indicate Churchill has not forgotten his wartime friends.

Two of the viscounts—Brendan Bracken and Robert Spear Hudson—jump to the peerage from plain ministers. Bracken, 50, shockhaired and eloquent, was minister of information in Britain's wartime coalition government. He recently announced he is resigning from parliament for health reasons. Hudson, a farmer, was in the diplomatic service before entering parliament. He was wartime minister of agriculture.

The other two new viscounts are men already knights—Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister in Churchill's wartime coalition, and Sir John Anderson, a wartime chancellor of the exchequer and minister of home security.

Other Honors

In addition to the four new viscounts, today's list creates one new baron, two privy counsellors, four baronets and 34 knights bachelor.

It also includes the award of Commander of the Order of the British Empire to Harry Oldham, trade commissioner in Toronto. This is the only award to a person in Canada.

The awards bestow regal recognition on people, some famous and others hardly known, for public duties, heroism and a host of services as varied as the recipients.

Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador to the United States, was created Knight Grand Cross of the Order of Saint Michael and St. George. The Rev. Iva Newborne Patterson, secretary-treasurer of the American Baptist Mission for Nigeria and the Gold Coast, was made honorary officer, Order of the British Empire. He has spent 26 years in Nigeria.

The creation of four baronetcies with their hereditary succession, marks a reversal of the policy adopted by the late Labor Government. When they came to power in 1945 they virtually dropped these awards.

The new baron is Lord Winterton, eldest member of the House of Commons until his retirement before the last election. He was born in 1883. His previous title came from an Irish earldom which did not prevent his sitting in the House of Commons.

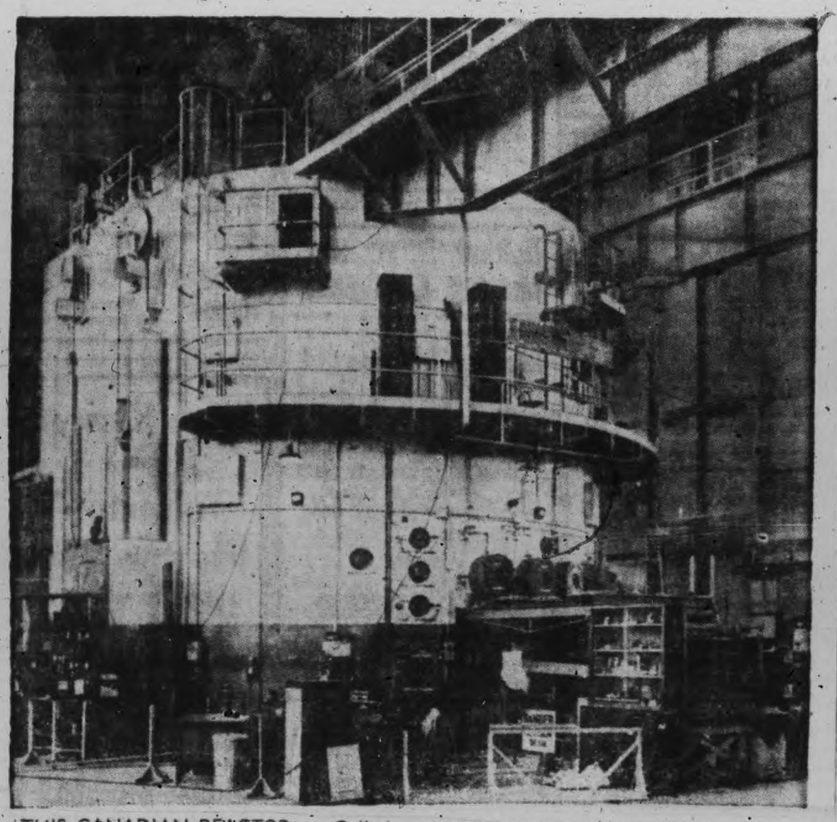
The new privy counsellors are Sir Ulick Alexander, treasurer to the King since 1941 and the man who signs all the King's cheques, and Charles Williams, who has been a member of parliament almost continuouusly since 1918.

Workers Honored

The honors list recognizes dangerous and arduous service as well as routine political service. Some awards are given to British oil workers ousted from Iran and others to personalities in Britain's 3½-year-old war against the terrorists in Malaya.

The Malayan campaign gave Lt.-Gen. Sir Harold Rawdon Briggs, who directed operations against the terrorists until last November, a Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Grantley Herbert Adams of Barbados, the first Negro to act as a British delegate to the UN Assembly, is honored with the CMG (Companion of St. Michael and St. George).



The King has remembered some of the men who fought for his life when he had a lung resection operation last September. As a token of his gratitude for their skill, the King appointed Dr. Peter Kerley and Dr. Robert Machray, Commanders of the Royal Victorian Order. This is an order exclusively for personal services to the Sovereign. Dr. W. Russell Brain, who in 1949 suggested in medical address that some of Britain's greatest writers were insane and would today have been regarded as certifiable, was knighted.

One of the greatest living authorities on aeronautics and aerodynamics, Professor Leonard Bairstow, is made a knight. His scientific discoveries played a great part in defeating Hitler's Luftwaffe.

Prof. Rudolph Peters, another "backroom boy" whose wartime antidote to Lewisite, a poison gas, is used in the whole range of arsenical poisoning, was made a knight. Dr. David Randall Pye, 65, who has described himself as the first "backroom boy," was also knighted. He was director of scientific research at the air ministry from 1937 to 1943.

Rumored Near Prague

LONDON, Jan. 2 (Reuters). — The Daily Herald today reports Paris police have been tipped off that Donald MacLean and Guy Burgess, British diplomats who vanished last summer, sent Christmas greetings to relatives in Britain from small town near Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Ability Impaired Driver Admits

Arrested Christmas Day after being involved in an accident, Wallace Manbeck, 512 College St., pleaded guilty in police court Monday to driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

He was fined $50 and $2.50 costs.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw offered no evidence on a second charge against Manbeck of leaving the scene of an accident.

Manbeck agreed with a summary of the evidence by Mr. Bradshaw, who said that Manbeck was arrested after he had been in collision with a car driven by John Clarke, 46 Hamilton St., at Park and Weller Streets.

Mr. Bradshaw said the investigating officer reported that Manbeck failed to stop for the stop sign and did not stop after the accident. The driver of the other car caught up with Manbeck at McDonnel and Donegal Streets.

When police arrived, Mr. Bradshaw said Manbeck was "unsteady on his feet and smelled strongly of alcohol."

Gas Explosions Cause Deaths

KENORA, Jan. 2 (CP)—A gas explosion in a circulating heater was blamed by a coroner's jury Monday night for a house fire here Christmas Day that took the lives of five persons.

The victims were Mrs. Delia Haller, her daughter Catherine, 3; Mrs. Louise Pero and her two children, Jackie, 3, and Linda, 16 months.

They were trapped upstairs when fire raced through their two-storey dwelling.

Gerald Caron, a survivor, said he was awakened by a "loud bang" and noticed flames between the stove and kitchen and along a wall where stove pipes ran. He found his grandfather, Caesar Caron, lying on the floor, and caled his brother George to help carry the old man to safety.

Gerald Caron, clad only in underwear, ran to a neighbor's house to send in a fire alarm. George Caron said he put a ladder to a window in an attempt to reach Mrs. Haller. He could not recall hearing any response.

Describing Christmas decorations, he said that three lines serving a radio, light and Christmas tree came from one outlet. A fuse had been replaced about 10 days before.

The jury said it could find no evidence that the wiring or tree lights were the primary cause of the fire, but recommended that the cause of blown fuses should always be determined and heavier fuses should not be used as replacements without expert advice.

THE SEPARATE SKIRT has a strong hold on fashion. In current resort collections, surface decoration is stressed and the variety in these decorations is great. The three-dimensional applique, braid embroidery and raised ruchings all are used as accents for circle skirts. And, because these ful skirts look best when they're teamed with tops designed for them, co-ordinated tops and stoles are also offered. Separates, have a one-piece look. This smooth effect is achieved through careful fitting of tops and through use of wide cummerbunds. Hibiscus bloom (left) down the front of a circle skirt in black poplin. The blossoms are in colored felt and are layered to achieve a three-dimensional effect. The felt is repeated in a narrow strip at the hemline. A cummerbund cinches in the waist. The halter top is neatly fitted and deeply slashed. There's a stole to cover bare shoulders when need arises and it, too, blooms with colored hibiscus. Pink poplin (right) is cut into a circle skirt that has two big bouquets of three-dimensional felt violets appliqued at hip and hemline. Both skirt and matching stole are bordered in the felt. Camisole top has a stand-out petal cuff.

Diamond Owner Set To Fight Jewel Syndicate

DAR - ES - SALAAM, Tanganyika, Jan. 2 (AP).—A Canadian-born geologist who followed his own theories of diamond mining to fabulous wealth let his marketing agreement with the world diamond syndicate lapse Tuesday amid speculation that he may try to break the syndicate's monopoly of gem trading.

I. C. Chopra, legal adviser to Dr. John T. Williamson, the one-man diamond prince, said Williamson "has not renewed his diamond sales agreement with De Beers." It expired at midnight on Monday.

"Future sales policy is very confidential and I can say no more now, but an announcement may be made at any time," Chopra said.

Chopra's comment lent fresh support to speculation that Williamson may be planning to break the tight diamond market wide open by selling the output of his fabulously rich diamond mine at Mwadui, Tanganyika, at his own prices.

When Williamson began operating the 10-year-old mine, which now is one of the world's leading diamond producers, he agreed to sell his output through the Diamond Trading Corp., representing South African diamond interests including De Beers.

Exports Cease

But exports from the Mwadui mine ceased after the first quarter of 1950 as a result of a dispute between Williamson and the South Africans. The Diamond Trading Corp. prevents the sale of diamonds at cut prices.

Williamson has gems already in London ready for marketing, and may sell his diamonds direct to dollar buyers.

Financial circles said Williamson is unlikely to do anything to disturb the present boom in diamond sales—but if less prosperous times come along, he would be in a position to do some spectacular price cutting.

Williamson has been producing an estimated $8,400,000 worth of diamonds a year and is believed to have nearly two years' production on hand.

Havelock Girl Wed In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 2—(ENS)—Against a background of evergreens and ferns, sprinkled with silver stars and lighted by red candles in silver holders, the wedding was solemnized on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Anderson, Lakefield, of Noreen Adele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollock of Havelock and William John Ward, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. Vitler of Belleville. Rev. H. Kaye of Peterborough officiated.

The bride was lovely in a street length frock of rose beige lace, with brown feather hat, matching shoes and accessories and a corsage of green carnations.

She was attended by her sister Mrs. E. Anderson as matron of honour wearing a black lace dress, grey feather hat and matching accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at which the bride's mother received in a gown of grape crepe with grey hat and matching accessories and wearing a corsage of white gardenias.

She was assisted by the groom's grandmother gowned in forest green with black hat and accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Later the bride and groom left by train for Montreal and points east. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

Clothes Shop Tries Self-Service Plan

CHELTENHAM, England (CP)—Latest sales-promotion idea in one of the biggest clothing stores here is self-service.

The firm, part of a chain-store organization, allows a discount of 1s 6d. in the pound—7½ per cent—to those who will "browse," leisurely looking at and trying on clothes that catch tht eye. The only attendants are a supervisor and girls to rehang discarded garments. Timid buyers are no longer harassed by over-zealous sales girls.

The management hopes that the saving in salaries will be enough to make up for the discount.

Warkworth Choir Presents Cantata

WARKWORTH, Jan. 2—(ENS)—The Choir of thirty voices of St. Paul's United Church presented their Christmas Cantata entitled "Christmas Bells" on Sunday evening to a large and appreciative congregation.

A lighted Christmas tree on either side of the pulpit with lighted candles on the altar table made a beautiful setting for the occasion.

The choir was under the direction of Mrs. Douglas Knight A.T.C.M. the church organist and choir leader, and she was assisted by Miss Ina Bowen A.R.C.T. at the piano.

The Cantata consisted of 13 choruses. There were several numbers given by the full choir while a ladies' chorus of 19 voices sang "The Vision of the Shepherd" and a Male Chorus favoured with the anthem "The Angels' Refrain." Another anthem entitled "Following the Star" was divided into a Men's Chorus followed by a Ladies' Chorus and then the full choir.

A bass trio of Messrs. Howard Mitchell, Gordon Platt and Edward Thompson, sang "Make Straight His Pathway."

Those who took solo parts in the various anthems were Douglas and Mrs. Don Thompson.

At the close of the cantata the Rev. J. M. Ritchie of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was asked to pronounce the benediction.

Curlers No Asset In Job Seeking

LONDON—(CP)—A teen-age girl booked for an interview with a prospective employer turned up in curling pins—and refused to take them out, saying she was going to a dance that night.

This is just one of the problem cases reported in a census taken by a London youth employment bureau.

"For this type of girl," said the report, "life begins when the factory closes.

"Work is an in-between period that has to be filled as profitably as possible."

On the whole the report is encouraging. Some girls must be told to tone down their make-up. Boys "need correction" in their choice of shirts and ties. But most youngsters take expert advice easily and settle down in their first job.

The bureau placed 39,000 youngsters in employment during 1950.

RIGHT: Thank the guest, but say that you would rather leave the dishes, so that you can spend all of your time with your guests.

Revelry Welcomes New Year But Celebrations Orderly

By The Canadian Press

In the best New Year's tradition, Canadians joined in a hearty and noisy welcome to 1952.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that the celebration was one of the most spirited in years. But the revellers kept within bounds. Police departments in most cities described the long holiday weekend as "quiet" from their point of view.

When the whistles blew and the bells rang out, the top-hatted crowd added to the din with horns and noisemakers at the well-attended public parties. At scores of less elaborate celebrations, merrymakers joined hands and sang "Aul Lang Syne." Elsewhere in scores of homes, family groups waited quietly for the midnight strike that signalled the start of the New Year.

For most families, a bountiful dinner was the main feature of New Year's Day.

In Ottawa, more than 1,000 persons attended the Governor-General's levee in the parliament buildings. Persons from all walks of life, but mostly from the armed services, moved slowly down a long corridor to be received by Viscount Alexander.

Good Weather

Almost everywhere the weather favored holiday activities. It was cloudy and mild in the east, crisply frosty in the west. In Regina, the mercury sank to 46 below zero.

New Year's Day in Korea was marked generally in the Canadian sector of the battlefront only by a turkey dinner.

For unattached Canadian women, the dawning of the New Year had particular significance. For 1952 is Leap Year.

In Vancouver, members of the Polar Bear Club had the club's 32nd annual New Year's Day dip in the chill waters of English Bay.

It was the coldest Jan. 1 swim in the club's history, said secretary Joe Blackmun.

"Wonderful, invigorating," commented president Peter Pantages, who has taken the winter dip 32 times. Hardiest swimmer was Harry Kovish, 38, who stayed in the water 13 minutes, 36 seconds.

United Church YP Groups Greet '52 At Party in YMCA

Amid clanging gongs, flying streamers, the din of horns and whistles, and the bursting of balloons, about 175 young people and young married couples welcomed the New Year at the Y.M.C.A. at a dance sponsored jointly by the United Church Young People and the Y.M.C.A.

Dancing in the gaily decorated gymnasium began at about nine thirty with Lloyd Starke MC-ing and flipping the records in place of an unobtainable orchestra. The program contained novelty and mixed dances during the earlier parts and later square dancing was added to the entertainment. Novelty prizes were awarded for spot and elimination dances.

An interesting diversion in the evening's fun was the use of films of orchestras playing popular dance tunes. Other MC's during the evening were Art Dixon, Bill Piercey, and Ron Davis.

As 12 o'clock struck, balloons containing lucky prize winning numbers were released from the ceiling, while the hall resounded to greetings, noisemakers and the strains of "Auld Lang Syne."

At twelve thirty a short "Watch night" service with a sing song was conducted by young people from George St. church. This program was accompanied by a short inspirational address by Y.M.C.A. director, Chas. Forsythe.

Dancing was afterward resumed, continuing until two-thirty.

Hogmanay Dance 'Best Ever' Say Scottish Of This City

"The best Hogmanay Dance ever in Peterborough" is the comment of some of Scotland's true sons who were guests at the party of the Canadian Scottish Society. Traditionally the Scottish celebrate the coming of a new year most heartily and "hogmanay" is the name they give the New Year's eve party.

Executive members and their wives on hand to welcome their friends at the Legion Hall were Mr. T. Leckie, president and Mrs. Leckie; Mr. and Mrs. T. Hammell, Mr. and Mrs. E. Caddell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilchrist, Mr. and Mrs. A. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. T. Nimmo.

Each lady received a tray and comb set as a gift and the door prize was a lovely coffee table, won by Jimmy Kermack. Nice gifts were also given the winners of lucky spot lances and other novelties. Paper hats and noisemakers as favors gave the party a carnival flavor.

Specially invited guests were Mayor-elect Hugh Waddell and Mrs. Waddell, the Hon. Harold R. Scott and Mrs. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Hurrell Dodds. All declared sincere pleasure in the event, and Mr. Scott also got his desire when he asked the Pipe Band to play "Road to the Isles."

The flag of Scotland, St. Andrew's flag and the Scottish Standard decorated the hall and hundreds of balloons hung from the walls.

At ten minutes of 12 o'clock midnight, the Peterborough Pipers began to play slow marches and as the clock struck 12 they changed to six-eight time for the entrance of 1952.

Those attending were:

1,000 Greet Governor-General

OTTAWA, Jan. 2—(CP)—More than 1,000 persons—999 men and four women — Monday shook hands with Viscount Alexander at the Governor-General's traditional levee in the parliament buildings.

The ceremony dates back to Canada's colonial days when the Governor received his male subjects on New Year's Day. The four women who attended Monday's ceremony included Ottawa's Mayor, Charlotte Whitton, and three unidentified women of the armed services.

The levee, probably the last for Viscount Alexander unless his term is extended beyond next fall, started at the stroke of noon. Persons from all walks of life, but mainly from the armed services, moved slowly down a long corridor of the parliament buildings to extend greetings to the King's representatives.

Agricultural Minister Gardiner represented the federal government. Prime Minister St. Laurent spent the day with his family in Quebec.

Barrie-Carnegie

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Dec. 26th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carnegie, Omemee, when their elder daughter, Nancy Louise, became the bride of John David Barrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barrie of Norwood.

The bride wore a ballerina gown of net and velvet over blue taffeta and carried a nosegay of roses and carnations. She was attended by her sister Miss Kathryn Carnegie gowned in blue taffeta with headdress and bouquet matching.

Mr. Kenneth Barrie of Ottawa was his brother's groomsman. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. V.E.R. Zufelt of Omemee United Church.

The couple will live on the groom's farm near Norwood.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Syrup, at Home

You'll be surprised how quickly a bad winter cough can be relieved, when you try this well known recipe universally used throughout Canada. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 ounce bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then fill up with granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes four times as much cough medicine for your money. Never spoils and tastes fine.

Quickly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the phlegm, helps to clear the air passages, and soothes the irritated membranes. This explains why it brings such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat irritations. Money refunded if it does not please you in every way.

FOR EXTRA CONVENIENCE GET NEW, READY-TO-USE, PREPARED PINEX.

Nursery Rhymes Aid Vocabulary Of Young Child

TORONTO—(CP)— Even very young children, who cannot understand the words read to them, are sensitive to the sounds and rhythm of nursery rhymes, says Mrs. U. Jones of Oshawa.

In an interview here while attending a convention as convener of the Children's Reading Committee of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, Mrs. Jones said parents should read to their children regularly and tell them stories.

"These children will have wider vocabularies and more active imaginations than children who have not had these advantages," she says.

Family reading will give a child the feeling of security he needs. "Think back to the pleasures you had as a child and you will not want to deprive your children of the story hour."

The taste for good books should be developed as soon as the child gets his hands on his first picture book. If a child has access to good books he will develop a taste for them, Mrs. Jones says.

Good taste can also be developed by choosing the best in stories to read to children.

"When he has come to love and value good books you will receive your reward for your early efforts."

Millbrook CGIT Conducts Service

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2—(ENS)—The C.G.I.T. of St. Andrew's United Church conducted a special vesper candle-lighting service on Sunday night. The Rev. Margaret Butler, CGIT leader, led the service. Those who gave readings accompanied by soft music from the organ played by Miss Estella Hetherington were Margaret Guthrie, Wilhelmina Eadie, Alice Hawkins and Dorothy Ball. Janet Hobbs led in responsive Scripture reading. There were three choruses by the girl's choir.

The first candle in memory of God's words at creation "Let there be Light" was lighted by Marilyn Sanders, the second candle in memory of Jesus' words "I am the light of the World" was lighted by Ada Olan, and third in memory of Christ's saying to his followers "Ye are the light of the World" was lighted by Luella Kellett.

The Rev. A. M. Butler gave the address and pronounced the benediction.

The offering was received by Lenore Oullette, Irene Olan, Frances Elson and Alice Hawkins.

In the morning a special White Gift service had been held when the whole Sunday School attended in a body.

Henry Gray of the M. and M. committee and Herbert Patton, Sunday School superintendent, gave the Scripture readings. Mrs. Lawrence Winslow sang the solo part in the anthem.

The beautiful basket of chrysanthemums in the chancel of the church were in memory of the late Percy Stinson placed there by the Stinson family.

Janet and Judy Hobbs were guests over the weekend of Kathryn Magee in Peterborough.

Princess Selects New Colors

LONDON (CP)—Princess Elizabeth will sponsor four new colors during the royal tour of Australia.

The colors, as described by the British color council, are Edinburgh rose, a flower-fresh pink; tudor cream, the soft glow of a creamy rose; Pacific yellow, the luminous color in the crest feathers of Australia's white cockatoo and windflower blue, typical of the clear blues found in many Australian wild flowers.

The council, of which Elizabeth is patron, said the last two were suggested by Australia and New Zealand.

DOROTHY DIX

Privileged Boy's Desire To Be Let Live Normal Life

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a high school boy of 14, and all I want is to be a normal teen-ager. My parents, who married late in life, do not understand this. They insist on driving me to school in a car, supervise every phase of my schoolwork, even complaining loudly if they feel I am not treated fairly by my teachers. They are interested in my activities, but I can't confide in them. Mother, on several occasions, has repeated to her friends things I have told her in confidence. They want to travel around on week ends, when I'd like nothing better than to stay home. It isn't that I don't appreciate the advantages of having a nice home and good background, but all I want is to lead the same kind of life my schoolmates do without starting a family quarrel.

JERRY S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are not alone in your plight, Jerry; it's shared by many other boys also the sole sons of parents who married later in life. Older parents, it is true, can usually give their offspring more financial benefits than can the struggling young couple, but the advantage is frequently offset by their total lack of understanding of the problems of youth.

They Lack Perspective

Naturally, the further away we get from our own youth, the more difficult it is to get a perspective on the problems of the new generation. If a couple reaches the age where they would normally be grandparents before they became parents, obviously they are in for a difficult adjustment. Their child becomes a treasured toy upon whom every luxury must be lavished. Paradoxically, this pampering is often accompanied by an exercise of discipline designed to push the youngster more quickly into an acceptance of adult standards. Naturally the result is utter confusion on the part of the child, who only wants, as does Jerry, a normal existence.

Changing your parents' attitude towards you is not a fight to be waged single-handed. Can you enlist the aid of a teacher, or adult friend who could exert a little influence with your family? A straightforward talk on the desirability of less supervision might help. It will not effect a great change, however; your parents are too set in their own habits by now. Just realize that you have many advantages, and let these benefits offset in great measure the liabilities of your position.

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think it's wrong for my boy friend to come over when I have a job baby-sitting? He is very nice and the people for whom I work don't object. However, my grandmother does not approve. C. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When you have a job, you also have responsibility, and you will not adequately fulfill your obligations if you turn the evening into a social affair. Your employers are very kind to permit your boy friend to spend the evening with you, but it is not the proper or right thing to do. Heed your grandmother's advice; have your social occasions on evenings not taken up with baby-sitting.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Can you tell me if a real father can be kept from taking a child if it hasn't been adopted? Do I have any legal right to keep a child who has lived with me for quite some time? R. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Many, many court battles have been fought over cases like this, and the outcome can only be determined after legal consideration of both sides. Better see a lawyer as to just what your rights are, and how they can be protected.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Emem's Split Pea Soup As Special-Purpose Menu

(Economical and easy and good).

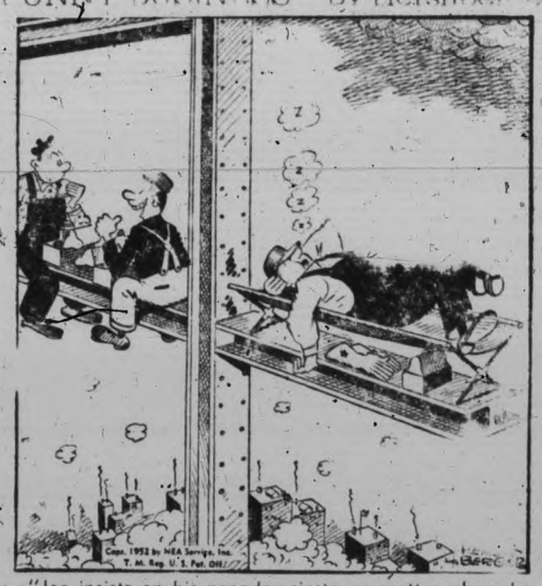
Emem's Split Pea Soup
Special Tea Biscuits or Toasted Rye Bread
Individual Vegetable Salads
Mince Pie Coffee

Frankly, I'm tired. I baby-sat the New Year out. I'll admit that sounds martyrish and I was far from being a martyr but the late hours—stretching to breakfast-time—that some of these young-marrieds can keep appall me (date me, too, I might add). But the baby sitters' bureau was quoting $1.00 per hour, and figure up what that would have cost from 9 pm to 7 am.

Seventeen years ago when Marianne and Pete were infants, I think they were still on the silver-standard of 25 cents per hour—either that or we stayed home.

So—I am content to have pea soup as our main attraction for dinner tonight. It will take all day to make it the way I'm dawdling around—but it is good, girls. I know—for I've had several experimental sips.

I'm going to make another batch for lunch on Saturday when my friend Barb and her family are coming. I am doing it for three reasons: (1) because her husband is a pea-soup addict (that is for my pea soup, the shy little violet said); (2) our silver soup tureen has received one of its all-too-rare polishings from Annie and while it is gleaming I am going to use it as often as possible; and (3) pea soup is cheap—if you will excuse such an unladylike word.



Emem's Split Pea Soup

Take a pea and split it and do that a thousand times or else order a pound of split peas from the grocer. After picking them over and washing them in strainer soak them in 2 quarts water overnight. In the same water put them on to cook. I add a smoked bacon end weighing about half a pound, but a bone from a smoked ham or any smoked pork will do. Add whatever meat or bone you use at the beginning and 3 or 5 stalks outer celery including leaves, chopped small, 1 medium onion chopped, 1 tablespoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Boil uncovered for 5 or 10 minutes as this will boil over; when it stops foaming cover and simmer until peas are tender and meat is so soft it almost disappears. Taste. You may want to add more salt and pepper. Some pea soup addicts want a little lemon juice.

Note: I add anything I happen to have on hand. I used some left-over carrot and spinnach water as part of the water content. I even added some leftover mashed potatoes and rolled oats porridge.

Two Soldiers Killed At Petawawa

PEMBROKE, Jan. 2 (CP)—Two Petawawa camp soldiers, stewards at the swank headquarters mess, were shot and killed early Monday and another soldier has been charged with the slayings.

Ontario Provincial Police Inspector T. W. Cousens, called to the big army camp early Monday morning, announced that two charges of murder have been laid against Spr. Joseph Lanoie, 35, Welland, a member of the 59th Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers.

The victims were identified by the army as Spr. J. W. Caulfield, 2, Pine Falls, Man., 59th Field Squadron, RCE, and Craftsman C. E. Johannson, 19, Saskatoon, of the 23rd Brigade workshop, RCEME.

Two bullets killed Johannson in his second-floor room. Caulfield was shot once in the back in the mess bar.

Inspector Cousens said he had seized and was holding as evidence a war-souvenir Luger automatic, believed to be the murder weapon. It will be subjected to ballistics tests.

Caulfield and Johannson both lived at the ranch-style officers' mess. Monday night they had a get-together and invited a third soldier friend.

Army officials said Johannson left the party early and went up to bed in his second-storey bedroom. It was there he was shot twice.

Later Caulfield was shot in the back as he leaned over a water cooler in the mess bar. The bullet passed through his body, ricocheted off the cooler and embedded in the wall.

New Plants Meet Growing Demands For Power

OTTAWA, Jan. 2—(CP)—Canada developed another 881,250 horse power of new hydro-electric capacity during 1951 but her total of more than 13,000,000 is only about 24 per cent of known resources.

Resources Minister Winters, reporting today on the state of the country's power developments, said another 1,700,000 horsepower is planned to become effective in 1952-53 and a similar amount is planned for 1954-55.

Power development is keeping pace with general industrial expansion, the minister said. On the whole there are adequate power production facilities to meet current demands "but little reserve capacity was available."

Construction of electrical plants was active in all provinces with Quebec leading in new hydro-electrical capacity coming into operation during the year with a total of 461,700 horse power.

Power Distribution

There also was active construction in the field of power distribution. New main transmission lines were completed or were under construction in many sections of the country. New transformer and sub-stations were built, secondary lines extended and good progess made in rural electrification, particularly in Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba.

Growing demands for power in British Columbia brought an advance in plant extensions and new facilities. The British Columbia Electric Company, Limited, and the British Columbia Power Commission, both brought new capacity into operation during the year and are undertaking work to further power available in 1952.

Important Project

The minister terms "a project of outstanding importance," the Aluminum Company of Canada Nechako - Kitimat development. Present plans called for an installation of 420,000 horse power by early 1952 but tunnel and transmission-line capacity is designed for a total installation of about 1,000,000 horse power.

In the Yukon the northwest territories power commission is constructing for operation in 1952, a 3,000 horse power development on the Mayo river, with an ultimate capacity of 8,000 horse power.

In Alberta the installed capacity of water-power plants was practically doubled during 1951 with the completion by Calgary power Limited of the Spray Lakes scheme involving three new plants wih a 100,600 horse-power capacity.

Saskatchewan Plants

The Saskatchewan power corporation completed installation of a new steam turbo-generator of 15,000 kilowatts capacity at its Estevan plant. At its Prince Albert plant a unit of 10,000 kilowatts, purchased from the City of Edmonton, is under installation for 1952 operation and at Saskatoon a new unit of 25,000 kilowatts is on order for early delivery and operation late in 1952.

The Manitoba hydro-electric board's Pine Falls project on the Lower Winnipeg River went ahead on schedule, with the expectation of bringing two units totalling 38,000 horse power into operation shortly. The plant, with a total capacity of 114,000 horse power, is to be completed in 1952.

The Winnipeg electric company has under installation the sixth and final unit of 37,500 horse power and operation is scheduled for 1952. This will bring the turbine capacity of the plant to 225,000 horse power.

Rural Service

The Manitoba power commission continued its rural electrification program and service was provided for an additional 5,000 farms and 19 towns and villages.

Because of a heavy increase in power demand in Southern Ontario, the large construction program of Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario has been expedited. A development of 496,000 horse power at the Des Joachims generating station has been virtually completed. All eight units of the Otto Holden generating station will be completed before the end of the year with a total capacity of 272,000 horse power.

Plans now are well advanced for a second generating station at Queenston, containing seven units totalling 735,000 horse power. Four units will be in operation by the end of 1954, and the others the following year.

Steam-electric projects also are beign pushed, notably the J. Clark Keith generating station at Windsor where four units will be installed with a total capacity of 264,000 kilowatts. Construction of the first stage is nearing completion and the first unit already has gone into operation.

Lines Extended

Extension of the commission's rural lines continued during the year and it is estimated that by the end of 1952, the commission will be serving about 324,000 rural customers, including 122,400 farms.

In Quebec a total of 461,700 horse power was brought into operation during the year and development to yield about 1,500,000 horse power is under construction for completion sometime between now and 1955.

Biggest Addition

The largest single addition to plant capacity in Canada during the year was that of 223,000 horse power in four units in the Beauharnois number two power house of the Quebec hydro-electric commission in the St. Lawrence River.

The commission also began construction in September of a second plant on the Upper Ottawa River south of Cadillac. The initial installation for 1953 operation will be 16,000 horse power in two units with the ultimate capacity of 64,000 horse power.

The Shawinigan water and power company made a big addition to its generating capacity with addition of three units of 65,000 horse power each at is La Trenche plant on the St. Maurice River. The plant now has capacity of 325,000 horse power.

The Aluminum Company of Canada has under construction two hydro-electric developments on the Peribonka River in Quebec. One at Chute-du-Diable will consist of five units with a total turbine capacity of 275,000 horse power. The second, located 13 miles downstream at Chute-a-La-Savanne, is also designed for five units of a total of 275,000 horse power. Both will begin initial operation this year.

Under Construction

No new hydraulic plants were brought into operation in Nova Scotia during the year, but two were under construction for operation in 1952. The Nova Scotia power commission made good progess on its Gulch development on the Bear River consisting of one unit of 8,600 horse power. The Nova Scotia Light and Power Company has under construction at White Rock on the Gaspereau River, a development of 4,000 horse power with completion scheduled for this year.

Important additions were made to fuel-power generating stations in Nova Scotia during the year and others are under construction.

In New Brunswick, the New Brunswick electric power commission proceeded with construction of its 27,000 horse power development the Tobique River. It is to be in operation by the spring of 1953.

The Maritime electric company completed the installation of a unit of 7,500 kilowatts at Charlottetown. The company built 40 miles of line and made moderate additions to its Prince Edward Island distribution system.

The Newfoundland light and power company completed its new 13,000 horse power plant on the Mobile River and also brought into operation a new unit of 3,350 horse power in its Tore Cove plant. Also under construction are two other plants, one of 7,500 horse power at Cape Broyle for 1952 and the other of 7,500 horse power on the Horse Chops River for 1953 operation.

The Anglo-Newfoundland development Company Limited is undertaking modernization of its water-power plants on the Exploits River.

In Labrador, the Iron Ore Company began preliminary construction on a development at Manihek Rapids on Ashuanipi River designed for the installation of 12,000 horse power and ultimate 24,000 horse power.

Claxton Holds Powwow With Soldiers

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Jan. 2—(CP)—Defence Minister Claxton of Canada Tuesday decorated two members of the Royal Canadian Regiment for bravery in the field in Korea.

Lieut. E. J. Mastronade, of Toronto, received the Military Cross and Cpl. Wilfred Pugh, also of Toronto, the Military Medal.

Claxton doffed the politician's attributes Tuesday and in the Korean front-line atmosphere became a strangely-humbled warhorse.

The smell of cordite was in his nostrils—33 years after his First World War discharge as a gunner—as he surveyed the Canadian sector. The cabinet minister speedily became a soldier among soldiers and apparently they warmed to him while he became increasingly saturated with the obvious high tone and spirits of the Canadians here.

Early in the morning the troops showed a reluctance to allow themselves to be drawn out. But during the course of 21 brief speeches he delivered during his arduous front-line timetable, his manner became one which resulted in frank, free-for-all bilingual discussions between him and the troops about the things uppermost in their minds.

Claxton told inquirers he would investigate closely complaints that Tokyo leave facilities were inadequate, on his return to Tokyo.

Claxton fired the 200,000th shell in Korea of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery in a gun detachment commanded for the occasion by Brig. John Rockingham, brigade commander. He spoke on the field telephone to a Canadian outpost manned by a French-speaking group headed by Pte. Royal Kiroac, of Hull, Que., who on Monday killed two Chinese.

Claxton also announced that the National Revenue Department is sending 1,000,000 smuggled United States cigarettes, confiscated in Canada, to soldiers here.

He offered to carry messages back to the men's families and by nightfall had almost 1,000 notes to deliver.

Tuesday night at an RCR mess dinner, attended by all the unit commanders of the brigade, he termed the day the "happiest New Year's Day of my life." Later Rockingham had difficulty in dissuading him from returning to RCHA gun positions where he wanted to get back into harness.

Edit Vishinsky

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 — (AP)—Pravda and Izvestia have edited Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky again. A remark by Vishinsky in the Paris session of United Nations calling Hungarian courts "our" military and judicial authorities has been rewritten. The editing recalls a similar performance at the current Paris session, when Pravda deleted from a Vishinsky text his remarks about how Western disarmament proposals kept him laughing so much he could not sleep.

Kingston Choir Ends Visit In New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (CP)—The 62-member male voice choir from St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, left for home Tuesday by train.

They are expected in Kingston early today.

Kingston Gains 9,000 Citizens Population 42,000

KINGSTON, Jan. 2 — (CP) — This 105-year-old city jumped Monday night from 12th to eighth place among Ontario cities.

At midnight, the historic harbor city tripled its land area and absorbed some 9,000 new citizens with the annexation of the village of Portsmouth and Kingston township.

It grew from 2,410 acres to nearly 11,000 acres and stretched about 1½ miles both to the west and to the north. The population swelled from 32,924 to some 42,000—next to Kitchener with 43,084.

The taxable assessment is expected to jump $9,000,000 to $45,000,000 with an estimated revenue of $2,250,000 annually.

But growth is not without its pain.

Another 45 miles of streets were added to Kingston's 46 miles to be kept clean in summer and snow-free in winter. A new fire truck has been purchased at $25,000 and a $10,500 garbage packer added. Two snow plows have been ordered, and Mayor C. A. Curtis has promised a major sewer project. Eight constables will pad out the police force.

$2 Million Fire Destroys Trenton Hangar, 7 Planes

TRENTON, Jan. 3 (CP)—A court of inquiry opened today to determine the cause of Wednesday night's fire which destroyed more than $2,000,000 worth of government property at the RCAF's No. 66 repair depot here. Lost in the blaze which razed a storage hangar were seven planes and a quantity of precision tools. The chief fire marshal for the air force was to arrive here later today from Ottawa to examine the debris.

A crane used to lift aircraft was damaged beyond repair. Also lost were several barrels of oil and a quantity of high-grade kerosene, which fed the flames.

The repair depot, Canada's largest, is commanded by Group Capt. D. H. MacCaul. It reconditions RCAF aircraft and uses the same runways as the main Trenton air force station nearby to fly planes in and out.

Serious Loss

An RCAF spokesman at Ottawa said the fire was a "serious, regrettable loss, but not a major disaster." The air force had followed a dispersal policy and other repair depots were available across the country.

WO2 Russ Chessum, making his regular patrol of the station, spotted the fire shortly after 5 pm EST. Flames were leaping high up the walls on the southeast corner of the 180-by-200 foot wood-and-steel structure.

Firemen from the air station and from the Trenton department, reinforced by firefighters from Belleville, nine miles to the east, battled the blaze for more than two hours and succeeded in confining the fire to the one hangar. Two neighboring hangars, from which planes were hastily wheeled by air force men, were scorched.

Home Scorched

Eleven families in a nearby H-hut were warned to prepare to move but their home was only scorched.

During the evening, firemen poured water on the twisted wreckage of the hangar to prevent a further outbreak.

The fire was the second in two days in a Canadian armed services establishment. A small fire early New Year's Day damaged the Canadian Army's central ordnance depot in Ottawa.

Murray Urges Steel Union Postpone Strike

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ, Jan 3—(AP)—Delegates to a special steel union convention today deliberated a new strike postponement after President Philip Murray declared the patriotic course is to postpone a work stoppage.

The head of the CIO and the United Steel Workers gave every indication that he and the USW executive board favor accepting President Truman's appeal to continue steel production and submit their contract dispute to the wage stabilization board.

The President, in a message to the opening session of a specially-summoned union convention, appealed to the steelworkers to cancel their threat of an industry-wide strike.

Murray told the 2,200 delegates that Truman "recognized that the companies refused to bargain with the union" in his message appealing to both sides to keep steel flowing.

Heading For Washington

At a pre-convention press conference, Murray said he expects to be in Washington Monday for the first WSB hearing.

Since the WSB does not conduct hearings in labor controversies where a strike exists, Murray's statement was a tip that Steel Mills will continue to pour steel for important defence and civilian customers.

The USW wants an 18½-cent-hourly pay raise for workers now earning about $1.93 an hour, plus a union shop, guaranteed annual wage, elimination of wage inequities and other concessions.

The industry made no wage offer and proposed to forego a price increase if the union agreed to give up its wage demand.

UK Millionaire James Rank Dies

LONDON, Jan. 3 (Reuters) — James V. Rank, millionaire flour miller and elder brother of movie magnate J. Arthur Rank, died in a London Nursing Home today. He was 69 and had been ill with gastric influenza.

Britain's No. 1 wheat buyer, he had been director of the Imported Cereals division of the Wheat Ministry since 1938.

Rank built up his giant milling organiztaion from a family business founded at Hull, Yorkshire, by his father.

But he was best known to the British public for his race horses, his coursing dogs and his extensive breeding interests in England and Ireland.

He had two great regrets. Despite all his sporting successes he never won either of Britain's two greatest races—the Derby and the Grand National Steeplechase.

Allies Recapture Two Strong Points

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 3 (AP)—Tank-supported Allied infantrymen attacked behind a thundering artillery barrage today and recaptured two strong points on the western front.

The sudden outbreak of fighting in Korea was ordered to regain ground lost to a Chinese assault Dec. 28.

Today's fighting was fierce, but brief.

The Eighth Army said the infantrymen were heavily engaged for an hour. Then two Red groups retreated and abandoned the strong points to the Allies.

The action was west of Korango, just south of the 38th Parallel and about 10 miles northeast of the truce village of Panmunjom.

Three other small fights—all started by Red probes—were reported along the freezing 145 mile front.

Missing For Week Two Hunters Sighted

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 3 (CP)—Two hunters missing for a week were sighted today by a search plane near Thorburn Lake south of Port Blandford.

The two, Jack Barton, manager of the Newfoundland Flying Club, and Steve Trent of the RCAF left by plane from Torbay Dec. 27 to hunt caribou.

A small aircraft will pick them up some time today.

Canada Will Bulid Supersonic Jets

OTTAWA, Jan. 3—(CP)—The age of supersonics is knocking at Canada's door.

She has barely started production of her own all-weather jet fighter, the CF-100 Canuck, but Canada already is looking ahead—planning a new, high-speed jet to travel faster than sound.

The projected new supersonic, dart-shaped jet is still in the discussion and drawing-board stages, a defence production source disclosed Wednesday night, and it may be a year or two before Canada actually gets into production.

But when it does, the supersonic jet will become the front-line fighter aircraft for the RCAF eventually replacing the sleek and speedy Canuck.

Russia Asks UN Council Act On Truce

Vishinsky Drops Hint Of Ominous Events To Come In Asia

PARIS, Jan. 3 (AP)—Russia, in a surprise move, today proposed that the United Nations' Security Council intervene in the Korean armistice negotiations. It asked that both Korea and the lessening of world tensions be considered at a high level, possibly by foreign ministers or chiefs of state.

Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky submitted the proposal to the 60-country political committee after a long speech denouncing a western collective-action plan and hinting ominously at events to come in southeast Asia.

The American delegation immediately frowned on the Vishinsky proposal. Pending official comment, United States sources said the Soviet resolution is unacceptable.

American informants pointed out that the US favors continuation of collective measures as an important factor in the UN efforts for peace. They said the call for a security council meeting has been made before without response from the Russians, who would not recognize Nationalist China as a member of the council.

Would Avoid Veto

The Americans said that since Russia has veto power in the council, it would be useless to bring the Korean armistice negotiations to that body. They added that the place for successful conclusion of such talks is in Korea, with the veto-free general assembly deciding later on a political settlement.

Offer 2 Million As Settlement

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3 (AP)—A plan under which some 600 suits resulting from the Noronic steamship fire would be settled for $2,150,000 was presented in federal court today.

The settlement offer was made by lawyers for Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., owner of the cruise ship which burned at a Toronto pier the night of Sept. 17, 1949, with a loss of 119 lives.

Claims now total about $19,000,000. Most of the claimants live in Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania. There were 524 passengers on the 36-year-old Noronic when it came into Toronto from Detroit and Cleveland.

Lawyers for the Noronic Survivors Committee told Federal Judge Paul Jones they would recommend their clients accept the settlement. The committee represents 89 of the 110 death claims, and the remaining claims are scattered among about 20 lawyers.

The settlement offer was described by the lawyers as the biggest ever made in a marine disaster.

What Are Things Coming To?

Family Plagued By Ghost That Likes Tossing Things

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 3 (AP)—Sh-h-h-h.

The Henry Thacker family is waiting for its spook to perform again.

He already has sent a two-pound photograph album swirling through the air; floated a corn cob from the basement up to a ground-floor dining room, and sailed a ring box from one room to another.

These and other antics which began Sunday have attracted curious neighbors, one of whom said she had a painful encounter with the mystery.

Mrs. Robert Covington said she was standing near a dresser when a nail-file struck her back with such force she felt the sting for several minutes.

A skeptical county patrolman, Russell McDaniel waited six hours Wednesday for the galloping ghost to appear. He didn't but—McDaniel said a cardboard box almost hit him. The box came from the dresser, hit the ceiling, then flew toward the officer.

His doubts somewhat shaken, McDaniel said he won't even consider the possibility of any superhuman power involved until he sees the flying objects leave their resting places.

So far, the only one reported to have seen an object actually take off is Walter Brown, 16-year-old student living with the Thackers. He said he watched Mr. Thacker's spectacles rise from a table unaided and jump about three feet into a chair.

The Thackers have lived in the 23-year-old home more than a year. They feel there must be a reasonable explanation of all these goings-on. But what?

A reporter waited five hours in the house Wednesday to see the spook in action. He didn't.

"I'm glad its stopped," Mrs. Thacker told him, "but I'd like to see something hit you in the head just so you'll believe us."

WON'T LEAVE HIS SHIP—A British tug Turmoil is reported nearing this stricken freighter in the North Atlantic where Capt. Kurt Carlsen has spent five days and nights alone as his ship was battered by heavy storms. The Flying Enterprise is shown here listing heavily, but still remaining afloat. This picture was taken by a crew member of the rescue ship Sutherland.

Rescue Thousands Trapped By 3-Day Blizzard In US

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 3 (CP)—Western states today are crawling out from under the paralysis of a three-day snowstorm and sub-zero spell that marooned motorists, tied up rail traffic and took three lives in Colorado. Another two are missing after the cab of a semi-trailer was swept off snow-packed Wolf Creek Pass in southwestern Colorado in a snow slide.

Rescuers Wednesday night used snow plows, sleds and snowshoes to bite through eight-foot deep banks of snow and rescue 21 men marooned for more than five days in 10,000-foot Cumbres Pass on the Colorado-New Mexico border.

The men were brought to Chama, NM, Wednesday night aboard a rescue train. All were reported in good shape.

Bad Ice Storm

Eastern New Mexico, most of West Texas and the south plains area of Texas is locked in the grip of an ice storm. Telephone calls out of Lubbock in West Texas are expected to be on an emergency basis only today because of ice on wires. Thirty minor wrecks were reported on highways in that area. The cold and ice extends as far west as central New Mexico.

An estimated 1,000 persons, meanwhile, were freed when highways connecting Utah's basin with Salt Lake City were opened. They had been isolated since Saturday. Trucks reached the region Wednesday night replenishing food supplies.

The bite of sub-zero temperatures, dipping as far as 30 below or more in some places, continued Wednesday night but considerable warming was predicted over much of the western states today.

More snow was held likely Friday for areas of Utah now shaking off effects of the storm.

Girl 11 Weds Law Steps In

RISING FAWN, Ga., Jan. 3 —(AP)—An 11-year-old br , who says if she loses her husband it will ruin her life, may be parted from him just the same.

Eva Dean Baggett, 11, married Avril Ott, 23, last Dec. 26, but Dade county authorities say the marriage isn't legal.

Eva Dean wrote her mother Wednesday and said "if they was to put Arvil in jail . . . you (her mother) would ruin my life, forever!"

Maddux Hale, county attorney, says a female "under the age of 14 is not competent" to marry in Georgia, and Judge A. W. Peck, says he is going to turn the matter over to the Grand Jury when it meets in March.

The marriage licence listed Eva Dean's age as 15. Her mother said she was born April 12, 1940.

Mrs. Baggett says she did not give Eva Dean permision to marry.

Mrs. Baggett said Ott lived in their two-room house near Signal Mountain, Tenn., for five years and "told us he was going to get her when she come 12, but I thought he was kidding."

Hitch-Hikes To Go To Jail

HAMILTON, Jan. 3 (CP). — A 26-year-old truck driver with 41 cents in his pocket hitch-hiked for four days—two of them without food—to give himself up to Hamilton police.

Leroy Hill and his 26-year-old wife walked into Central Police Station Wednesday night to surrender to sergeant of detectives Stan Gaylard on a charge of theft from employer.

Hill pleaded guilty today to stealing $307.33 from Robert Jones Lumber Company. He will be sentenced Jan. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill also face charges of deserting their three children—from two to five years of age—and will appear in family court.

Four weeks ago, Hill told police, he became despondent. He was unable to find housing accommodations for his family and so was forced to board out his three children.

The Hills stayed in New York City for a while and then crossed back into Canada for a stay in Montreal.

One Cabinet Member Eligible For Pension

OTTAWA, Jan. 3 (CP)—Only one member of the federal cabinet was eligible for the new universal old-age pensions when they became effective New Year's Day.

He was Fisheries Minister Mayhew, who was 71 Oct. 13 last. The rest of the ministers, including Prime Minister St. Laurent, are under 70, the age at which payment of the $40-a-month pension starts. The Prime Minister will be 70 Feb. 1.

Ten members of the Commons and 37 members of the Senate are eligible for the payment.

Claxton To Visit Base Installations

KURE, Japan, Jan. 3 (CP) — After a tour of inspection in Korea an official Canadian party headed by two cabinet ministers arrived here tonight in the private plane of Gen. Matthew Ridgway, Supreme United Nations commander.

Defence Minister Claxton and Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe and their party will spend two days inspecting base installations here and Canadian destroyers in the Korean theatre.

Tug Nearing Captain Alone On Ship

Report Latest Storm Eases Slightly, Destroyer Stands By

LONDON, Jan. 3 (CP) — Clearing weather this afternoon smoothed a path for the British tug Turmoil, churning her way to the rescue of Capt. Kurt Carlsen, braving the elements alone on his crippled ghost ship.

The Turmoil's radio officer told Reuters News Agency by radio-telephone that the stubby vessel, the fastest of its kind, is headed towards the listing freighter at 13 knots. Weather improved during the day and, under a shining sun, the sea calmed a little.

"A heavy sea is running at the moment, but the waves are not so high as they were this morning," the radio man said.

He said they hoped to reach the Flying Enterprise, drifting with a 60-degree list some 360 miles off England's westernmost tip, between 8 and 9 pm (3 or 4 pm EST).

Radio contact with the Danish-American skipper, who has braved the seas for five nights since he ordered his crew and passengers to jump to safety, should be made about 6 pm (1 pm EST).

Carlsen, 37, whose determination has made newspaper headlines the world over, sent out a radio message today he is "Well and in excellent spirits."

Hailed by the British press as "Captain Enterprise,' he appeared more concerned about the suffering of his would-be rescuers than his own fate.

Carlsen is exisiting on a diet of tea and "bits of dried food," he informed the commander of the United States destroyer John W. Weeks, which is standing by.

"You fellows are taking a worse beating and are suffering more than I am," said the youthful skipper whose faithfulness to the tradition of the sea has stirred the imagination of millions.

Cost-of-Living Figures Ready

OTTAWA, Jan. 3 (CP) — The November edition of Canada's cost-of-living index will be made public Friday.

The monthly report will cover the trend of prices between Oct. 31 and Dec. 1 and will indicate whether the living costs of Canadians continued to rise in the November period or whether there was any recession.

If the index follows the pattern of previous months in 1951, it will be up. The index rose without letup in every month from January to October.

In October it advanced four-fifths of a point to an all-time high of 191.2 from 190.4 the previous month. The increase was slightly higher than the six-tenths of-a-point climb during September, but was far below the record monthly jump of 4.5 points last February.

Won't Make Concessions

Mossadegh Turns Down World Bank Proposals

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 3 (Reuters) —Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh today refused to accept world bank proposals for reviving Iran's oil industry until they are clarified.

He said that the proposals, which reached him today, were not the same as those outlined to him by the world bank when he was in Washington recently.

In the proposals handed him today, "general principles" for reviving the oil industry were outlined. The bank reserved the right to appoint and dismiss the oil board, management and employees being reserved.

The bank said it would provide the money to run the Abadan refinery, the world's largest, closed down since Iran kicked out the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and nationalized the fields last summer.

The Prime Minister saw two representatives of the World Bank Tuesday. According to the influential newspaper Keyhan he said any proposals from the Bank must be within the framework of the nationalization act. He insists that British technicians must not return to the Abadan refinery.

The Bank in a letter to the Prime Minister today outlined these general principles:

1. The Bank reserves the right to appoint and dismiss the board, management and employees.

2. The Bank's services will be temporary until final settlement is reached with Britain and will not affect the rights of either party.

3. The bank undertakes to provide the money to run Abadan.

4. Oil will be distributed through existing facilities.

Court sources said today the Shah has advised Mossadegh not to jeopardize American friendship.

Hiding All Night Inside Building, Get Staff Singly

TORONTO, Jan. 3 (CP)—Two armed men tied up 18 persons and robbed a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in suburban York township today. Estimates of the amount of loot ranged from $40,000 to $50,000. The pair—one armed with a sub-machine-gun and the other with a revolver—entered the bank during the night. They tied up the 13 staff members as they arrived for work, starting with the first arrival at 8:15 am. They also tied up five customers who came to the bank early.

Shortly before 10 am, after the last member of the staff fell into their net, they made off with the cash.

A bank official, mentioning that it was payroll day, said the loot might run to $50,000. A police officer at the scene gave an estimate of $40,000.

Change Faces

One of the men wore a false rubber nose, the other thick-lensed glasses. Bank employees said they had no idea how the pair got into the bank. Residents of the area — Dufferin Street North of Eglington—said they heard no disturbance during the night.

The customers were in the bank before the normal 10 a.m. opening hour by special arrangement between the bank and neighborhood stores.

Three members of the staff of one store got caught in the trap. A girl went to make the bank trip. When she didn't come back on schedule, the boss sent a second girl to check. She didn't return. So he went himself. All three were tied up.

A. G. Cantrell, who arrived at the bank around 8.15 a.m., said: "The two men were in their shirt sleeves. They waved their guns at me and told me to go into the manager's office. The pair told Cantrell "as long as you're careful we won't hurt you."

Forced To Open Safe

After the last staff member was tied up the men took Manager E. J. Jackson and accountant J. W. McDonald into the vault and forced them to open the safe.

"One man put some of the money in a briefcase, took a key to the bank and went outside, locking the door after him." Cantrell said. "He came back a few minutes later. I thought they were

Convert 2 Warships For Guided Missiles

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — The United States Navy will soon begin converting two heavy cruisers into the world's first known guided-missile warships.

It was learned today the 13,600-ton Canberra and Boston, which have been in the mothball fleet, will sail from the west coast, probably within a week, to east coast yards for a start on the remodelling.

An authoritative navy source said the navy expects that when extensive changes have been completed, guided missiles for their main armament will be ready. This source declined to say how much time would be needed.

The two cruisers, both commissioned in 1943, carry nine eight-inch guns.

Mediation Fails TTC Strike Almost Certain

TORONTO, Jan. 3—(CP)—The deadline for a threatened strike of Toronto street-car and bus operators may be set tonight.

The Street Railway Employees Union (AFL-TLC) has called a membership meeting for midnight.

Discussions aimed at settlement of a wage dispute between the Toronto Transportation Commission and 4,700 of its employees broke down late Wednesday. The conferences were held under sponsorship of Ontario Labor Minister Daley.

The union last week took a strike vote. The result was not announced, but it was reported the ballot empowered the union executive to call a strike if it considered it necessary.

A strike would affect not only the city-owned transit services in the greater Toronto area, which has a population of 1,300,000, but also the subsidiary Gray Coach Lines whose buses serve a wide area of central Ontario.

TTC Offer

The TTC has offered a basic hourly rate for operators of $1.45 —five cents more than the present rate, which includes a 16-cent cost-of-living bonus. The union seeks $1.55.

Besides offering to incorporate the bonus into the basic rate, the TTC also proposed to continue a cost-of-living clause which adds one cent an hour to the wages for ever 1.3-point rise in the index.

The commission says it could not grant the full demand of the union without increasing the fare to a straight 10 cents. It was increased last Aug. 1 to three tickets for 25 cents from the former four tickets for 25 cents.

Talk of the strike has been current for several weeks. As a result, most large business organizations have drawn up tentative plans for transporting their staffs to and from work in the event of a walkout. In most cases, they will rely on pools of employees' cars, supplemented in some cases by company vehicles.

2 Children Die In House Fire

HAWKESBURY, Ont., Jan. 3—(CP)—Two children were burned to death today in a fire which gutted a tin-sheathed frame building on the main street of this town and left at least 27 persons homeless.

Dead are Richard Shannon, aged four, and one-year-old Marcel Shannon, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shannon. Three other children escaped from the Shannon's second-floor apartment and hospital authorities denied earlier reports that two were critically burned.

Those left homeless in the blaze included a Mr. and Mrs. Paquette and their six children, Mr and Mrs Lionel Cayen, a Mr and Mrs. Villeneuve and a Mr. and Mrs. Richard.

Early reports placed the damage at $50,000.

Cable Spool Derails 50 Cars On 2 Trains

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3 (AP)—A spool of steel cable fell through the floor of a box-car at nearby Hilliards Wednesday night, derailing 50 cars in two freight trains and setting off explosions of gasoline and ammunition.

Three persons were injured, none seriously, by shrapnel as a carload of 20-millimetre shells exploded.

More than 150 firemen battled the fire, which got so hot it melted steel box cars.

No estimate of the damage was available.

Reds Reject UN Exchange Of Prisoners

Communists Want All-For-All Trade, Allies Stand Firm

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Communists today turned down an Allied plan for exchanging war prisoners and civilians as "no more than a barter of slaves."

But a United Nations negotiator said he "Rejected the categorical rejection of the Reds."

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang-cho said he wanted no part of the Allied plan because it was "simply and solely on a one-for-one exchange." The Reds want an all-for-all trade.

Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby said that was the end result of the Allied plan.

He refused to accept the Red rejection because, they "either misunderstood our proposal or they are deliberately misinterpreting it in order to deliberately obscure the issues."

Libby indicated Lee might be waiting for new instructions.

Reiterates Plans

He reiterated that the UN plans to return every prisoner-of-war who wants to be repatriated. He said the one-for-one exchange called for in the first two points of the Allied plan would control merely the rate of exchange—not the number of prisoners and civilians ultimately traded.

Another sub-committee, dealing with truce supervision, remained deadlocked Thursday over Communist insistence on the right to build and repair military airfields during an armistice.

Both sub-committees will return to Panmunjom at 11 am Friday (9 pm EST Thursday).

Under the Allies' plan offered Wednesday, prisoners of war would be exchanged on a man-for-man basis until all prisoners held by one side are turned back. Then the side still holding prisoners would trade them for civilians. When all prisoners were traded there would be a mass exchange of remaining civilians.

However, the Allies specified no one would be handed over against his will. The Red Cross would interview each man to make sure he wanted to be repatriated.

While the Allies hold far more prisoners than the Reds, Libby said thousands of South Koreans serving in the Communist armies should be reclassified as war prisoners and exchanged.

Lower Grade Teachers Seek Equalized Salary

The single salary scale has been adopted as a policy by the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation. This announcement follows meetings in Toronto of the federation's executive.

Adoption of the single salary scale as policy is a re-affirmation of the federation's opinion, stated at other times.

By this scale, a high school teacher and a public school teacher with the same qualifications would receive the same salary. The Federation of Secondary School Teachers does not agree with the single salary scale. They feel secondary school teachers should receive more than public school teachers.

At the same meetings, the federation executive expressed firm opposition to any move whereby municipal councils would control the budgets and expenditures of schools and boards of education in Ontario.

In conjunction with the adoption of the single salary scale, the executive expressed the desire for an effort to implement the policy of improved qualifications for elementary teachers to the point where the training of such teachers should be within the structure of provincial universities.

Burned In Bed

MONTREAL, Jan. 3—(CP)—Mrs. C. Burrage, 62, Wednesday was found burned to death in her bed. Firemen who answered a call to investigate smoke seeping from her window, said Mrs. Burrage had apparently fallen asleep while smoking.

Dollar Down

MONTREAL, Jan. 3 — (CP)—The United States dollar today opened at 13/16 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 3/16 from Wednesday's close. That is, it took $1.00 13/16 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was 2.80⅝, down ⅜ from Wednesday.

Mystery Man Shot At Door

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) — Carlos Diaz, 38, described by police as a well-dressed "man of mystery," was shot and mortally wounded on his doorstep early today.

Police said the slayer apparently knocked on the door of h ground-floor apartment, fired three shots from an automatic when Diaz answered, and fled.

Detectives said they were without a clue to the identity of the slayer or the motive.

Diaz, who died in hospital without regaining consciousness, lived alone in a well-furnished apartment. Police said they did not know his occupation.

Women On Reserve Get Vote For First

BRANTFORD, Jan. 3 (CP). — For the first time women of the Six Nations Indian Reserve at nearby Ohsweken had a vote as the council held its 1952 inaugural meeting today.

Also for the first time, the council was elected for two years instead of one.

Another first: A chief councillor was elected by a ballot of the electors instead of being chosen from among the 12 elected councillors.

This year the council consists of 13, instead of the previous 12.

Lt.-Col. E. P. Randle, superintendent of the Six Nations and Mississaugas of the Credit Reservations, swore in chief councillor James Powless and the other 12 councillors.

Vishinsky proposed that the council be called under Article 28 of the UN Charter, which authorizes governments to send chiefs of state or foreign ministers as delegates to such council meetings. This made the proposal look like another version of the USSR demand—keynote of its current peace offensive—for a five-power meeting, including Communist China, to bring about a pact of peace.

Counter-Suggestion

The Soviet suggestion was offered to counter the draft — presented by 11 countries including Canada—calling upon the UN to set up a new anti-aggression machinery. It was made after Vishinsky delivered a 37-page speech denouncing the Western draft as one that could lead only to war. He said the American-sponsored proposal "boils dow nto sanctions—in other words, war."

In that speech, Vishinsky hinted at things to come in Asia. He accused the US of ferrying Chinese Nationalist troops into Viet Nam, Burma and Thailand for an attack on the Chinese Reds. These measures, he said, would be described as "defensive" "when military operations begin against Southern China."

Vishinsky did not elaborate on this point.

He made no mention of the Security Council proposal in the earlier speech. He brought it up later in a resolution which called on the Assembliy to abolish the collective measures committee which has been drawing up the new anti-aggression program.

US Pilots Need More Planes

FIFTH AIR FORCE BASE, Korea, Jan. 3 (AP)—A flying colonel whose "boys" have shot down 139 Communist planes said today United States jet pilots "need more and better planes" to keep up with the growing Communist air force over Korea.

"The enemy has a better airplane and far more than we have," said Col. Harrison R. Thyng in an interview. His fighter-interceptor wing flies Sabre jets, fastest US plane in combat.

He said greater skill and better training of American pilots are responsible for consistent victories. But, he added, the Reds are using Korea's MIG Alley as an aerial school where they have trained "class after class" in jet combat flying and American tactics.

"The F-86 Sabre jet with good American teamwork can effectively fight against three or four-to-one odds," Thyng said. "Recently odds have been six to seven against us."

There are never more than 50 Sabre jets in MIG Alley at one time. The Reds frequently have more than 200 MIG-15s up at once.

Maj. Zane Amell, of East Lansing, Mich., said:

"I used to think they were afraid of us, but after three months I have come to this conclusion: they are patrolling the Yalu River boundary between Korea and Manchuria to make sure we do not cross it.

"I feel there will come a day when they will let loose with all the combat initiative we can handle."

Stock Prices Make Very Little Headway

TORONTO, Jan. 3 (CP).—Stock market prices made little headway today in early afternoon dealings. Western oils, however, weakened steadily after a mixed opening.

Industrials opened irregularly following yesterday's slight decline, edged upward during the first hour but slipped again at noon. Retail stores drew firm support while utilities, agricultures, constructions, foods, liquors, textiles and manufacturing companies held gains and losses in balance. Papers, banks and refining oils dipped. Volume for the first three hours was 1,161,000 shares.

Western oils outnumbered gains about two to one. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Federated Petroleum, New British Dominions and Western Leaseholds were among the losers.

Base metals showed little trend. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay, International Nickel, and Quemont strengthened but East Sullivan, Golden Manitou, Noranda and United Keno Hill weakened.

Senior golds were quiet. Bralorne and Wright-Hargreaves eased pennies while Lake Shore added fractions. Secondary issues were mixed.

Arrested Man Admits Issued Forged Cheques

After being picked up on a non support charge Wednesday night, Bruce Stephens, alias Robert Emmons, 22, admitted issuing forged cheques in Montreal and seve l Ontario cities.

A local woman, believing she had legally married the man as Robert Emmons in a civil ceremony, laid the charge after he had left town and failed to support her. Since Stephens, alias Emmons was arrested, it has been found that the woman is not legally married to him.

He was arraigned in police court today on the non support charge and remanded in custody to appear in family court Friday.

Notified Oshawa

Meanwhile, city police have notified Oshawa police who have a warrant for his arrest. They are also trying to track down his record (he admits being in jail once) through the RCMP in Ottawa.

Montreal police have also been contacted, as he gave his address as 5508, 13th Ave., Rosemount. Several bills from Montreal stores were found in his pockets when he was arrested. There were also a number of similar purchase slips from clothing stores in Toronto, St. Thomas, London, and Cornwall, showing purchases during December.

The man told police his real name is Stephens and he uses the name Robert Emmons as an alias to sign cheques he has forged with the aid of the stamp of an oil company which he had when arrested.

Found Stamp

He gave his occupation as a service station attendant and said he had found the stamp in a bus.

According to police, Stephens admits tendering cheques, bearing the stamp of the oil company, under the signature of one of the company's agents, whose name is on the stamp, in part payment for purchases at various stores throughout the province.

His latest purchase, being in a Port Hope store, where he paid a small amount on an electric iron. He had the purchase slip but said he had not yet picked up the iron.

The majority of the sales slips were from Montreal stores, and included a suit of clothes, and other dry goods, amounting to more than $100.

When he gave his particulars to be recorded in the prisoner's book, Stephens gave an Ottawa address, but previous to this he had told Sergeant Bill Aggas he had been living in a Montreal apartment.

According to police, Stephens worked in the city at different times recently under the name of Emmons.

A warrant has been out for his arrest for about two weeks. He was arrested Wednesday night, by Constable Douglas Farthing.

Ready For Rescue

The American destroyer radioed that "Preparations have been made with Capt. Carlsen for rescue if required."

The Flying Enterprise's 10 passengers, one of them dead, and crew of 40 were taken off the ship last week.

W. L. Thompson of McKinney, Tex., commander of the Weeks, said Carlsen stayed in the cabin amidship's without light or heat. Every two hours he has been calling the destroyer to talk with the commander—chiefly interested in "the state of the weather, conditions of his ship and arrangements for towing."

"There are a great many members of the crew (of the destroyer) that would have swum to the Enterprise to deliver him a single cup of hot coffee.

Not Worried

"We are much more concerned for his safety than he is. He never expresses worry and is always optimistic about his current situation."

The destroyer said the Flying Enterprise was rolling heavily in squalls driven before winds ranging up to 63 miles an hour.

At times, the Weeks reported, the ship was heeled over 80 degrees—almost flat on its side.

Carlsen survived another stormy dawn after five defiant and frightening nights alone on the Flying Enterprise, a 6,711-ton freighter built during the war for Pacific coastal trade.

Whether the Flying Enterprise could be towed to port was an open question.

Frederick Parker, captain of the Turmoil and veteran of 45 years at sea, made no promises.

Those from the tug's 27-man crew picked to go aboard the Flying Enterprise will need some of the qualities of human flies to stick to a deck tilted 60 degrees and pitching like a chip.

Finally, the men put on their jackets and overcoats and calmly left the bank.

Didn't Leave Much

The loot was the greatest in a bank holdup in the Toronto area. The largest previous robbery was the $35,000 holdup recently at a bank in suburban Leaside.

Edwin Alonzo Boyd, notorious bank robber who escaped jail in November, was blamed as leader of the gang that committed the Leaside holdup but police were unable to say whether he was one of the two men involved in today's robbery. They noted that one of the men wore a false nose and said Boyd was notorious for his use of disguises in robberies.

Pending final determination of the amount stolen, manager Jackson said: "They left some money, but not much."

Missing Nurse Hunted In 3 Provinces

KINGSTON, Jan. 3 (CP). — A search covering three provinces continued Wednesday night for an attractive army nurse who vanished nine days ago without a trace.

Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom, 26-year-old niece of Lt.-Gen. E. W. Sansom, retired Second World War corps commander, was last seen the afternoon of Dec. 24 when she boarded a train for Sherbrooke, Que. Since then, not a trace.

The RCMP described her disappearance as being "under mysterious circumstances." Officials at Kingston Military Hospital where she worked fear foul play.

Police have little to work on, other than a good description of the nurse and the assurance of her friends that she would have communicated with the hospital had she been delayed.

Her father, Herbert Sansom of Stanley, NB, Wednesday night left for Montreal where the search now is concentrated, after conferring with hospital officials and Provost Corps investigators. He arrived here from New Brunswick Tuesday night.

Last-Minute Decision

Retracing her steps, police said Lieut. Sansom made a last-minute decision to spend Christmas with her aunt, Mrs. A. A. Savage, in Sherbrooke. A taxi-driver took her to the station. She was not around when the eastbound train pulled out.

Her Christmas leave was up Dec. 27 and when she did not report at the hospital army officials telephoned Mrs. Savage. She had not seen her niece or heard from her.

Police checked her New Brunswick home. Also nothing. Her parents believed Lieut. Sansom was going to spend Christmas here.

The nurse had no known romantic entanglements. Friends here agreed she "didn't go off and get married."

US Television May Show Plays and Movies For Fee

NEW YORK, (AP)—Americans soon may be able to see a first-run movie or a current Broadway hit on their television sets, if they are willing to pay for it.

Three different forms of subscription television have been developed, and the federal communications commission shortly will be asked to lift its ban on use of the air waves for any service for which a fee is charged.

Fundamentally, all three are similar. During a subscription program, television signals from the station are scrambled, to be unscrambled on the home set only where the viewer has the necessary attachment and has paid the program fee.

Subscription telecasts would be open of extra-special attractions not available for free telecasts, or costing too much for budgets of advertising sponsors. They would be in addition to all the regular programs on the air.

Ask Authorization

Officials of the Zenith Radio Corporation of Chicago have indicated they expect to ask the FCC shortly to authorize their method, called phonevision. Arthur Levey, president of Skiatron Electronics and Television Corp. which calls its system subscriber-vision, forecast the other day that some form of subscription TV would be operation within two years.

The FCC has been authorizing experimental telecasts as the subscription television systems with a view to considering whether to permit such operations in the future.

Finds Big Demand

Zenith ran a 90-day test of its phonevision, with 300 selected Chicago families having sets on which they could receive telecasts of fairly recent movies at a rate 3½ times greater than the average family attendance at the movies. They paid one dollar for each movie ordered.

Skiatron, having completed the technical tests, plans to ask the FCC for permission to start a similar test of its subscriber-vision in New York within 60 to 90 days. Technical tests are being made in Los Angeles by Paramount Pictures Corp. of its telemeter system. Radio Corp. of America has disclosed that it also is working on a subscription TV method.

Motion Picture producers, sport promoters and college athletic officials have expressed keen interest in subscription TV as a means of allowing telecasts of their products and events without causing heavy box office losses.

As envisioned by the developers, subscription television could be used by all stations for occasional telecasts, or by a single station in a community specializing in pay-as-you-see TV. But in any event it would supplement—not replace—the regular programs which the set owner receives free.

Engineers Still Battle With Ice

MONTREAL, Jan. 3 (CP).—Residents of ice-battered Montreal North and Riviere des Prairies waited the outcome of a slugging match between man and the flooding back river as civic engineers started a survey of the river's ice field.

"Our main purpose is to locate and destroy every jam in the river," J. C. Chagnon, commission chief engineer, said. "We intend to map the water-level and when we know where the real trouble lies shall blast immediately."

About 80 houses were damaged by the floods which started Christmas Eve. Some 200 persons were forced to leave their homes.

Mr. Chagnon said the survey of water levels is expected to take about three days.

Six blastings made last week as "experiments," failed to budge the 2,000,000-ton jam, now softened by two days of temperatures in the high 30s.

Demolition will be undertaken by squads of the Royal Canadian Engineers.

During the holiday, Riviere des Prairies was generally quiet. The river rose several inches Monday and receded about three inches Tuesday.

Violence Mars Chile Campaign

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 3 — Chile's presidential election campaign broke out into violence for the first time today. No arrests were made.

Supporters of Senator Carlos Ibanez threw tear gas bombs into a theatre where Senator Arturo Matte, candidate of a right wing bloc of parties, was addressing a meeting.

Ibanez, a former president, is the candidate of a splinter group of the Agrarian party and Independents. He advocates renewal of diplomatic relations with Russia, broken off in 1947. Fist fights started outside the theatre. Police quelled the disturbance. Several persons were slightly injured.

Back Hurt, Limbs Ached Felt Tired-Out, Rundown

Stomach Out Of Order; Nerves on Edge; Couldn't Sleep — Tells of Grand Relief She Got By Taking Syntona.

Of particular interest to men and women suffering from stomach disorders, nervousness and tired rundown condition is the recent experience of Miss Florence Bailey, 37 Childers St., London, Ontario. It is typical of the many thousands who have found prompt, lasting relief by using Syntona Herbal Compound. Many people have said that a short treatment of Syntona has done more for them than anything they ever used before.

Here is Mrs. Bailey's own story:

"For a year I suffered from stomach disorders having awful gas, indigestion and sour acid risings after my meals. I would get sick headaches and dizzy feelings and my nerves were so on edge I couldn't sleep. My back hurt, limbs ached all over and I constantly felt tired-out and rundown.

"After taking one thing and another without any relief a friend urged me to try Syntona. She recommended it so highly that I got some and even with the first bottle I felt better. Now, after taking it a few weeks, all the troubles I mentioned are cleared up. I sleep well, have no pain anywhere, and enjoy all my meals without distress afterwards.

"It is wonderful to find a medicine like this and I highly recommend it to others."

OTTAWA, Jan. 3 —(CP)—The Federal Government will pay half the cost of compensation which any province may provide for civil defence workers injured during duty or training, the health department announced today.

Creditable New Year's Accident Record

Ontario's traffic record over the New Year's holiday, extending from the Friday beforehand until the night of January 1, is a creditable one; there appears to have been a marked decline in the number of accidents, and the consequent charges of dangerous and drunken driving. This change for the better is chiefly owing, we believe, to the powerful appeals which have been made by the government, by press and radio, and by many other agencies as the holiday season approached. It shows that such appeals are of value, and that if the dangers of irresponsible driving are made plain enough to the public, the public will respond by taking greater care.

* * *

Reports from some places show that greater numbers of drunken people had to be taken into custody for their own good, but they were not driving. Apparently they were not so drunk that they failed to heed the caution, "If you're drunk, don't drive; if you drive, don't drink." It is not good news to report that drunks were numerous, for drunkenness is deplorable at any time, and to be drunk in public is to make oneself ridiculous and possibly objectionable. But a drunk, rolling along the pavement, is unlikely to kill or maim anybody, which cannot be said of a drunk in charge of a car.

* * *

We hope that the Highways Department and the other agencies which have shown themselves active in this campaign against irresponsible driving will find ways of hammering home the lesson of the New Year season, and further reducing the number of motor accidents in Ontario—both those which are attributed to drunkenness and those which are the outcome of other forms of foolishness. A few accidents are expected every weekend, for then traffic is heaviest, but it has been proven that persistent admonition brings results, and undoubtedly we can reduce the accident record very far below its present figure.

A Welcome Note In Advertising

When a newspaper expresses approval of advertising, nobody is very much surprised: when a newspaper expresses admiration of an advertisement which did not appear in its own columns, it may be inviting a reputation for eccentricity, but we don't care; we want to say how much we like the big ad. that Eaton's carried in the Globe and Mail on New Year's Day. It was in the form of a long and jolly rhyme, in which seasonable greetings were extended to all sorts of people and institutions. We particularly liked these lines:

Compliments of New Year's Day
To our neighbour 'cross the way,
Whose reputation we all know—
The doughty Robert Simpson Co.
(Say, how generous can you get
In the name of etiquette?)
Let the sonorous pipe organ
Sound in praise of Henry Morgan;
Shout Hosanna, all together
For the sake of Kent-Fairweather;
Clash the cymbals, shoot the works,
For Creeds, Holt-Renfrew, Northway's, Birks';
A friendly word, a firm handshake,
For all the fine concerns who make
Toronto such a thriving place
With such a busy populace!

We like this not only for its generosity of spirit but for the light touch which distinguishes it and the whole advertisement from which it comes. The lively and humorous in advertising is not common in Canada, though it has been the mark of some of the best and most effective advertising in Great Britain for a quarter of a century. Let us make our point plain: it is not the painstakingly and ponderously funny advertisement which we enjoy, but the witty, the decorative, the stylish and the civilized. It is possible to be too solemn about retailing; any philosopher will tell you that solemn and serious are not exchangeable terms, in advertising or in anything else. And it was Bernard Shaw who said, "I decide what needs saying, and then I say it with the utmost levity." Let advertising copywriters take note.

Unhealthy Americans?

If Canadians, first cousins to Americans, stand mid-way between the U.S. and the U.K. in matters of health as well as trade and tradition, then Canadians are not a remarkably healthy people. Despite American passion for hygiene, pills and patent medicines, a like passion which Canadians share, the healthiest average man in the world is not the American. A professor at Yale has challenged the American assumption of being the healthiest race by test-tube experiments. These suggest that American adults are "more susceptible and less resistant to many common virus diseases" (e.g. mumps and the common cold) than persons in other parts of the world.

The professor placed blood samples from various people in test-tubes and "challenged" them with a variety of germs. He found that the blood specimens did not fight off the germs at all hardily. In fact, American blood is deficient in anti-bodies (germ-destroying agents).

Thus, if an average American adult has good health it is not because his blood and system are naturally good. Americans have one of the highest longevity rates in the world. It must therefore be presumed that longevity in the American adult has little to do with natural good health. Hygiene, pills and patent medicines (and doctors and nurses) must get credit for keeping the American alive—if not healthy.

We suspect that the reason Americans must depend on ersatz health (through pills and plumbing) is because their blood has been thinned in over-heated houses, their skins parchmented by dryness and summer sun-tanning, and their circulation retarded by their inability to practise self-locomotion. These are merely wild guesses based on prejudices against the North American over-heated buildings, the blanched skins and the fad for pill-taking.

It is not a guess that Americans are not the healthiest people in the world. The Yale scientist is giving the statement test-tube proof. It was demonstrated during the last war, when forty per cent of the Americans called up for service were rejected as physically unfit.

Tax Scandals

American newspapers continue to be dominated by news about the scandals in the Tax Division of the Department of Justice. The American cartoon which we publish on this page today illustrates newspaper and public concern about the situation. High Government officials in the Department of Justice may or may not have accepted bribes; but they have been expensively entertained by businessmen who wanted to evade income-tax assessments.

The publicity attending the scandals is due to two reasons: the amounts of money and the high officials involved are important; and the Republican opposition is using the scandals to attack President Truman's government. Mr. Truman has made a large effort to recover the Administrations' prestige. Tainted officials have been fired; J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been consulted (the public has great confidence in Mr. Hoover); and Judge Murphy has been appointed to investigate and clear up the mess. Judge Murphy is the brilliant and tenacious prosecutor of Alger Hiss who was convicted of perjury at his second trial.

Canada fortunately has no such scandals in its higher ranks of the Civil Service. Our system makes them unlikely. As has been pointed out in a recent article on this page, the top positions in the American Civil Service are constantly being filled by able and efficient amateurs, called to the job from business or their professions. They do the work well for a term, then leave the Civil Service to return to their more lucrative private lives. Other good amateurs are called to fill the jobs. As a result of this practice few men in the middle ranks of the Civil Service can get to the top. This discourages able men from making a career of Government work. Further, the system of making junior and higher appointments a matter of political patronage does not ensure that the best and incorruptible persons get jobs such as district commissionerships of income tax collection. Canada is better served by its civil service system.

Royal Mint Joins The Export Drive

The Royal Mint, London, is the great-aunt of all mints and is still a supplier of coinage for many countries which do not strike their own. Canada has a mint of its own; but even it was established as a branch of the Royal Mint, and so set up in 1870 three years after Canada became a nation. Actually, the Ottawa mint did not open for production until January 2nd, 1908. In 1931 it became a branch of the Canadian Department of Finance.

Other countries have not severed their business with the Royal Mint. We learn that sixty per cent. of the Royal Mint's coin output in 1949 was for Commonwealth and foreign Governments. During the year it struck a total of 453,800,000 coins of 55 denominations, with a value of £9,700,000. That is much bigger coinage business than the Royal Canadian Mint indulges in. Actually, the Ottawa mint's chief work now is to refine gold.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Russian wine makers have perfected a new grape which produces a cherry-red wine tasting like chocolate. A mess like that should be popular with our teen-agers, especially if livened up with some nuts and a gob of whipped cream.

The Festival And After

By STEPHEN SPENDER

THE Festival of Britain was the cultural event of 1951. The light and gay architecture of the Skylon, the spacious Dome of Discovery, the acoustic achievement of the Festival Hall, and the general air of packing a great many instructive and delightful things into boxes which seemed to concentrate impressive effects into very little space, were the most important lesson of the year in the field of artistic enterprise.

A lesson they certainly were, for there was something instructional about the whole South Bank Exhibition. It taught that the solution of our cultural problems in the age of austerity is to produce the greatest variety of effects within the narrowest limits of means. In this, it was parallel to the Sadler's Wells Ballet, the Old Vic (during its good seasons), and the Third Programme. It is a lesson in which Britain may lead the world.

THE Festival was instructional also because it appealed to an audience wanting to be informed as well as delighted. The Dome of Discovery, the Lion and the Unicorn—they were packed with information. The crowds showed that there is a large English public wanting to know about science, interested in the arts, respectful of scholarship and amused by Jabberwocky. These people — many of them young — bring to the arts an interest which is not so very different from that with which they visit the inventions in the Dome of Discovery. They are interested in the technique of performances, and are willing to allow technique to lead them beyond itself into an appreciation of beauty.

In some respects the English character seems to be changing. It is much more widely open to foreign influences and to intellectual pursuits than it was before the war. In twenty years' time the typical young Englishman will probably be a person as interested in the arts as he is in sport, and in the technique of his own work.

WALT Whitman said that great poets need great audiences. Great audiences we seem to be getting, and in quantity of perception and imagination they are an improvement on those of the past. But they are an audience-trained audience—listeners, spectators, who are good at "selective listening." They can twist the receiving knobs, but they do not bang a tune out all by themselves on the keys. Since it is of the essence of creation that everything is one's own work and home-made, one cannot be altogether happy about this one-sided development of a receptive kind of imagination.

Apart from architecture (when it gets a chance), the arts which gain most from the more or less collectivized society we live in are those which are most co-operative, most suited to festival and audience mentality. These are music and the theatre. The great successes of this year have been T. S. Eliot' play, "The Cocktail Party," first produced at the Edinburgh Festival in 1950, and Britten's opera, "Billy Budd," intended for the Festival of Britain.

ELIOT'S poetry and E. M. Forster's libretto for "Billy Budd" remind us how much we are still living on the capital of a much older generation. Britten's reputation was also made before the war. In spite of the tremendous success of these works, I doubt whether either of them is its author's greatest achievement. Eliot's play marks the furthest and perhaps the most successful stage he has reached in his development as a poetic dramatist. It is the complement in writing of Alec Guinness's appearance as Hamlet in modern dress between the wars. Guinness put poetry into modern dress: Eliot has put modern dress into poetry.

Impressive as is "The Cocktail Party," the conception itself is less poetic than, say, that of Tennessee Williams in "Summer and Smoke," and still less than those of Cocteau in "Orphee" and "La Machine Infernale." Even the plays of Anouilh seem to me to have more poetry of the theatre than anything a contemporary poet has yet put in metrical lines upon the stage.

❖ ❖ ❖

BRITTEN'S opera, like "The Cocktail Party," was convincing, thrilling, and enthusiastically received. But having given all these results their due, doubts linger in my mind, perhaps partly because the critical reception seemed disproportionate in a year which had also seen the production of Stravinsky's opera, "The Rake's Progress," to my mind a work of profounder originality and far greater invention. Perhaps, also, after listening to "Billy Budd" three times in two weeks on the wireless I became over-conscious of its thinner passages. The dramatist who really seemed to have taken a step forward this year was Christopher Fry with "A Sleep of Prisoners," which seems to me to be his best work.

IN literature the results of the gradual undermining of individuality are evident in the disappearance of nearly all the journals which gave new writers a hearing, and in the catastrophic situation of publishing. Since the war few new writers have appeared, perhaps because there is a dearth of them, perhaps because, although they are encouraged in various ways, they are not reviewed and discussed at sufficient length. The older writers—most of them coming from the older universities—are perhaps too dismayed by the disappearance of a world of leisure and occasional luxuries.

The co-operative of culture which corresponds in literature to State-supported theatres, orchestras and opera houses is the B.B.C. But writing, unlike music and the theatre, does not necessarily gain from being canalized into communal channels, because even the best radio writing is only a by-product of the work of a person capable of writing a poem or a novel for the solitary reader. Literature may soon become like coal, the by-products of which are more plentiful and more highly valued than the original thing itself. A whole society of listeners and viewers may stop reading, and books may only be used by research students who are adapting them into broadcasts—if not into lectures on each nation's literature for other nations.

AT present English culture is still being carried on by the old and the middle-aged, who have for the most part come from Oxford or Cambridge. To judge from "Nine," one of the few existing journals given mainly to work by new writers, the younger people from these Universities devote most of their energies to studying, reviewing, translating and annotating medieval and Renaissance literature. They may be very well advised to do this. After the years of war, such studies are probably a sign of recovery.

All the same, in thinking about the future one is forced to look rather to the public who thronged the Festival and the Festival Hall, and who attend opera and ballet at Sadler's Wells, than to an exhausted old stock, or a convalescent young one, from the older universities. It is perhaps significant that the liveliest developments in poetry are all of a regional character. There are Dylan Thomas and Vernon Watkins from Wales, W. R. Rodgers from the North of Ireland, and W. S. Graham from Scotland.

A HUGE audience is growing up who have little in common with the half-educated public produced by the elementary schools and the popular newspapers, for they are continuing their education after maturity, and they are being cultivated by the wireless and theatres and concert-halls. It is reasonable to hope that this new blood will strengthen the rather discouraged middle class, from which nearly all our talent has emerged in the past.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE danger is that we are making culture accessible on terms which invite those who receive it to remain too passive, whilst at the same time we have a machinery which diverts new talents too quickly into second-rate mediums of expression, such as broadcasting: unless, indeed, when books have disappeared, broadcasting will become the medium of a spoken literature. The hope that a new culture is emerging is encouraged by the architects of the Skylon and the Dome of Discovery. Perhaps we may soon enter a period in which there will be a healthy relationship between artists and audience or spectators.

It Promises to Be Bigger Than Ever Next Year

An Industrialist On Education

By A. J. E. CHILD, of Canada Packers in the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation magazine "The Bulletin"

PERHAPS I am a crank on the subject, but I want to talk at greater length about language.

The lack of ability in language of the high school graduate, and even the university graduate, is disgraceful. We cannot get stenographers who can spell nor clerks who can compose a letter. The rules of English grammar were never learned, or have long since been forgotten.

I do not know how much English grammar is taught in high school, but it is not enough. Furthermore, I am very sorry to see that Latin has been dropped as a compulsory subject, because Latin is invaluable in understanding the grammatical rules of English, and in assisting in the correct usage of English vocabulary.

Greek has the same uses, but I think Latin is sufficient for the average high school student. (The person who wants the best in linguistic equipment will, of course, seek out Greek on his own.)

There is another value to Latin. Its study imposes mental discipline that may be sorely needed at a later stage.

So far I have mentioned only English grammar. I think we should do more to instil in our students a respect and a liking for the best in English poetry and prose.

When I went to school I thought poetry was only for sissies and only needless exercise in memory work. No teacher in high school or university made any attempt to sell me the idea that poetry was good for me. I woke up to the fact many years later when I realized the wonderful craftsmanship in language that is to be found in good poetry, and when I discovered how inspirational it can be to thinking individuals.

EVERY time I read some of the better prose or poetry—and, if you want to know what poets I read, I shall mention the names of Pope, Dryden, Wordsworth, Byron and Shelley—every time I do so I return to my desk and write better letters. The benefit of that lies not in any increased satisfaction of my ego, but rather the benefit is in the more efficient way in which I communicate my ideas to my business associates and subordinates.

Furthermore, I think, I am helped by my friends the poetry and prose writers to phrase my communications in language that has life and enthusiasm rather than being merely mechanical.

If this paper falls flat on your ears, it is because I have neglected the great writers too long.

French should also be compulsory in our schools. Not only does a study of its grammar do much to improve one's English grammar, but it is the language of a great part of our population, with whom the failure to understand each other, and each other's culture, is a serious matter. I might interject here that my conversations with natives of the province of Quebec indicate to me that they teach their grammatical rules better than we do.

Looking over the course of studies of a Toronto collegiate, I was struck with the large number of optional subjects. What are we trying to do? Are we trying to satisfy everybody's ideas with the danger of succeeding in none?

I think it is a mistake to try to do too many things in a secondary school. In four or five years no curriculum can fully equip a student for all the walks of life into which he might go. Let us not, therefore, try to erect a tall structure of assorted bits and pieces of knowledge, but rather let us build a solid foundation of basic subjects, well-taught, that will be a starting point from which the high school graduate can develop himself as he sees fit. We should warn the ambitious student also that his need for education will not stop on leaving school.

In my school days there were no optional subjects, perhaps because I went to a small school. I doubt that there should be any today. What boy or girl entering high school knows what he or she needs as intellectual equipment for later life? I first encountered optional subjects at university, and even there I made mistakes of choice which I have since regretted.

I should like to repeat again my view that we need more mental discipline and more mental hard work in the schools. Leaving the student free to choose his own subjects is getting away from that objective.

SINCE first composing this paper I reviewed it with a friend of mine. He suggested two points that I should have thought of. I do not know how much teachers can do to promote them, but I certainly tell you that they are desirable for those who wish to succeed in industry.

First is the need for creative imagination. Nobody can stand still in business. And, to go forward one must have productive ideas, generated by an imagination that works in all waking hours, generated by an imagination that needs only the tiniest spark to set it alight. Every possible use of school courses, especially those in history, economics, literature, and the sciences, should be made to stir imaginative thinking in the student.

I doubt if self-criticism is often mentioned at school. In business we find that the newcomer is usually surprised and hurt when he first meets criticism of any kind. But, business thrives on criticism and the manager who does the best job is the one who is constantly criticizing his own efforts. The successful industrialist is not the man who thinks about the good things he did, but about the mistakes he has made.

I wish to close with a generalization, albeit a very necessary one. Whether the educational system equip boys and girls for industry, the professions, government, or the arts, its first responsibility is to equip them to be good citizens. That is my firm personal belief.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.

Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us. Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father? Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.

And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you. (John 14: 2, 3, 8, 9, 11, 12, 16, 17.)

RELIEVING THE PRESSURE

Platinum Supply Failed To Meet 1951 Demands

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 — (CP).— Demand for platinum exceeded supply throughout 1951, C. W. Engelhard said today.

Mr. Engelhard, president of Baker & Co., Inc., of Newark, NJ, and its affiliates, including Baker Platinum of Canada, Ltd., dealers in platinum and other platinum metals, states that the shortage persisted despite an important increase in South African production and enlargement of Canadian production facilities.

Canada supplied about 55 per cent of the United States' platinum imports in 1951, in large part from the nickel-producing properties of Northern Ontario. South Africa and the United Kingdom, where South African platinum is refined, supplied about 35 per cent. Other countries, including Colombia, supplied the balance.

Russia, Mr. Engelhard said, was formerly an important source of supply, "but little platinum has come from there for several years." He added:

"Demand for other platinum metals — palladium, rhodium, ruthenium, iridium and osmium— has been heavy throughout the year, especially for palladium which has the greatest commercial importance of these five other platinum metals.

"The 1951 consumption of palladium may have exceeded consumption of platinum. For many years extensive use has been made of it for electrical contracts and other purposes. In addition, it has many uses in chemical processes." Additionally:

"It is gaining favor throughout the world as the newest precious metal for jewellery and adornments....

"Rhodium has important industrial uses, particuuarly in precious-metal alloys for high temperature work....Ruthenium and iridium are used mainly as hardeners in precious-metal alloys. Osmium, the rarest of all the platinum metals, is important in synthesizing certain new pharmaceutical products."

Mr. Engelhard said that, for 1952, "it appears that the demand for platinum will continue to exceed the supply in the near future, but the supply of most of the other platinum metals appears to be adequate."

Shakeup Hits Revenue Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)— President Truman Wednesday announced plans for a sweeping shakeup of the scandal-ridden Internal Revenue Bureau.

He said the move is one of a series of steps he plans to take to protect the government "from the insidious influence of peddlers and favor seekers, and to expose and punish any wrong-doers."

The shake-up will be in the form of a reorganization plan to be submitted to Congress. It calls for abolishing the 64 offices of district collectors of internal revenue.

Most of these districts include a single state, but some of the large states have more than one district.

In place of the regional district collectors, the reorganization plan will put all operating functions of the bureau under 25 district offices, each headed by a district commissioner.

The plan also calls for establishment of "a strong, vigorous inspection service completely independent" of the rest of the bureau.

Middle Aged Mother Gets Draft Notice

CHICAGO, Jan. 3—(AP)—Mrs. Joe Willie Riley, who lost one of her two sons in the Second World War, and who was classified A1 by a draft board last spring, has been ordered to report at an induction station next Monday.

Mrs. Riley, who describes herself as middle-aged, says she will report.

She said she returned all notices except the latest. She called the draft board and said it was all a mistake after she received her first notice a year ago.

Charles W. Tripp, chairman of the board, said he was investigating.

Organize Board For Coming Year's Work

Inaugural meeting of the board of education will be held on tonight at 7:30 in the board room of the city hall.

The Rev. M. P. Poole, of All Saints' Church, has been invited to offer prayer and then will follow the election of chairman by ballot and without nomination.

Dr. R. C. Honey, chairman in 1951, has intimated that he will not accept re-election and it is expected that W. B. Gordon, the 1951 vice-chairman, will be elevated to the position of presiding officer.

Two new members will take their seats: Arthur Pitchford who will return after an absence of two years, and Charles Huffman, who joins the board for the first time.

Following the election of a chairman, a vice-chairman will be elected in a similar manner and then will follow the naming of a committee to strike the standing committees. While this committee is at work the board recesses.

Committee chairmen are elected

With the completion of the organization the board will get down to work and transact the monthly business. It is expected that the secretary-treasurer will be able to present a statement on the finances for 1951.

Severe Currency Crisis 1951 Problem For Britain

Written for The Canadian Press
By GEORGE ABRAHAMSON

LONDON, Jan. 3 — (CP) — Another currency crisis, if anything more severe than those of 1947 and 1949, marked 1951 in Britain.

Production in general continued to increase slightly, but the output of such basic commodities as coal, steel and construction materials suffered from manpower and raw-material shortages.

Increased expediture on defence, therefore, necessitated return to wartime controls on the use of several essential commodities before the end of the year. Nevertheless, the rearmament drive made only slow progress.

Inflationary pressure increased throughout the year. Heavy private spending in anticipation of further price advances was not checked effectively by the slight tax increases embodied in the 1951-52 budget, nor was the public expenditure reduced.

False Prosperity

The influx of foreign luxury foods and consumer goods under the liberalization-of-foreign-trade policy provided an outlet for surplus spending power at the cost of the country's balance of payments, whilst creating a false sense of prosperity. Imports exceeded exports by about £100,000,000 a month, compared with less than £30,000,000 a month in 1950.

The widening of the gap between imports and exports was partly due to the adverse trend of the terms of trade caused by high raw-material prices; but also, as the year advanced, British exporters experienced more difficult conditions in overseas markets, especially for textiles.

For the first time since the war Britain was seriously affected by disequalization in trade with Commonwealth and other sterling countries, as well as a deficit in commerce with Continental Europe.

The dollar deficit, which assumed threatening proportions in the third quarter when the sterling area lost gold and hard currency at an annual rate of $2,500,000,000, was due in about equal parts to the deterioration of British foreign trade, increasing dollar expenditure by other sterling countries, and movement of "flight capital" rendered possible by relaxation of currency restrictions. Seasonal factors aggravated the problem in October, but there was a noticeable improvement before the end of the year.

The Conservative government, elected Oct. 25, faced with a currency crisis of unxecpectedly large propertions, imposed drastic restrictions on less-essential imports from Europe and on tourist spending abroad.

Bank Rate Raised

The bank rate was raised by one-half per cent; restrictions on new capital issues were interpreted more strictly; private banks were instructed to cut down on loans to customers for consumer spending, hire-purchase, unessential investment and speculation, and even on financing of stocks of merchandise in producers' and distributors' hands. New non-residential construction projects were delayed, and the rate of new house-building was readjusted.

The financial markets reacted to these drastic measures by a general fall in security prices which gathered momentum as it progressed.

Gilt-edged securities which ended 1950 on a 3½-per-cent yield basis brought down to 4½ per cent by December, as a result of heavy selling by banks and other holders intent on increasing their liquid funds; 2½ per cent Consols fell from 70 to 60, and the fall quickly spread to other categories of securities.

Ordinary shares which had risen by an average of 20 per cent during the first 10 months of 1951 lost most of their gain in the first six weeks of the new government's tenure. Gold-mining shares, which had fallen by 17 per cent in 1950, lost a further six points. Overseas securities, base metals shares, chemicals, shipbuilding and engineering shares, however, held a large part of their 1950-1951 gains.

Building societies and insurance companies continued to attract large funds, and small savings developed more favorably, thanks to higher interest rates for savings certificates. Many industrial companies earned excellent profits, but mostly used the surplus earnings to strengthen their internal reserves.

Quinte Hawklets Triumph Against Triple Links In Junior "B" Puck Game

Lloyd Doran's junior Hawklets went all out Wednesday night at Civic Arena to defeat Odfellows 9-3 in a fairly rugged junior "B" hockey fixture before a fair-sized crowd. Hec Lalonde, youthful centre star for the visiting squad, emerged the game's individual hero with a sparkling offensive display, including five goals and one assist. In fact, Lalonde's three tallies in the first frame, together with a neat set-up for Gilmour's marker in the early stages, gave Hawks a safe lead on which they were never headed, despite a hard battle all the way by Links. Belleville's first three goals were scored when Links were a man short.

Drove Hard

Belleville played a hard-driving game both ways with the first line of Lalonde, Jackson and Gilmour particularly effective and every Hawk man on his toes to earn the verdict on the play. Oddfellows, on the other hand, got away to a bad start and though they worked hard in the final two frames to make it a fairly even struggle, were unable to offset the havoc of the four-goal first period.

It was a typical Hawk-Oddfellows struggle, though not as close in a scoring way, with plenty of give and take both ways. Referee Crombie meted out 17 penalties in all, 10 to the visitors, with the mid-frame roughest of all as eight sinners sat it out—four a side—for a variety of offences during the hectic sessions. A Brown-Batley collision cost the Hawk player a major as the Link guardsman came out 30 feet to check him as he swept in on a breakaway.

The second period found Oddfellows playing their best game as they held Hawks even on two fine goals by Gord Coyle and Red Robinson, to equalize Carey's early thrust from Houle and a neat individual counter by Therrien at the seven-minute mark. It was a fast, even frame that saw both teams giving their best in a tense two-way battle.

The third period saw no let-up in the action as both squads played it hard to the finish. Hawks tallied first in the early minutes as the first line clicked again, but Ferguson from Armstrong and Robinson offset that tally with a nice effort climaxed by Fergus' low drive that trickled through Barclay's legs. Midway through the finale Jacklin and Lalonde combined with Duke Doran to score two quick ones, the first on a scramble; but the second was a clear-cut effort from Jacklin for the fleet centre. In fairness to Oddfellows it may be said the score was not entirely indicative of the play; but on the whole, Belleville earned the verdict in a fine showing.

Belleville—Goal, Barclay; defence, Green and Brown; centre, Lalonde; wings, Jacklin, Gilmour; alternates, De Gray, Doran, Therrien, Stephens, Carey, Houle, Wilson.

Australia Gets 1-Wicket Victory

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 3 (Reuters)—The last pair of batsmen—Doug Ring and Bill Johnston—today gave Australia a one-wicket victory over the West Indies in the fourth cricket test match today. The down under eleven won the best-of-five series three matches to one.

But the real hero of the Australian innings was skipper Lindsay Hassett, who hit 102 for the seventh and greatest test century of his career.

It was one of the closet finishes ever seen on the Melbourne ground. With nine men out for 222, Australia still required 38 for victory when the last pair came together.

Ring realized the only way to win was to go for runs, which he did superbly, while Johnston held up his end.

The crowd of 30,000, wildly excited during the action-packed 30 minutes the pair were together, went nearly hysterical when Johnston turned Frank Worrell to leg for the winning hit.

The West Indies strove to even up the series. They dismissed half the Australian side for 147 and at tea, with the score at 204 for six, the home team still needed 56 runs.

West Indies' spin bowlers, Alf Valentine (five for 88) and Sonny Ramadhin (three for 93) were at their best on a pitch taking spin and they were supported for keen work in the field.

May Admit Vancouver

REGINA, Jan. 3 (CP). — The Western Interprovincial Football Union will decide at its annual meeting here Jan. 19, whether it will admit Vancouver for the 1952 season and become a five-club circuit covering the four western provinces. League secretary Bob Gillies of Regina reported Wednesday that Vancouvers formal entry application, accompanied by the $25,000 "good faith" bond requested by the Union, was received by the Jan. 1 deadline.

Cooper Named Coach Cobourg Team

COBOURG, Jan. 3. — Robert (Bob) Cooper is the latest addition to the Cobourg Comet hockey team, taking over the coaching reins here Tuesday night for the Port Hope game. Cooper replaces Gerry Scott of Oshawa, who relinquished the reins in the midst of a losing streak. They have won but two games, both from the front-running Lindsay Muskies.

Desperately seeking some means of halting the downward slide of the Comets, the executive decided to try a veteran member of other Cobourg teams in the past. Cooper played defence for the club in 1950 and '51 and was a one-time member of the U of T hockey squad during his university days.

The new coach is best known for his work with the Galloping Ghosts on the gridiron and he won the John Black Trophy two seasons ago for being the most valuable football player to the team.

Whitby player graduations to the Port Hope Redmen, retirement of veterans from this year's edition, and being without an adequate defence have made the Comets the doormats of the loop since the start of the season in November. Falling attendance at the gate and the failure to hold up in the last few minutes of games convinced the officers that a move must be made.

Not Eligible

Scott, a top-notch junior "A" player a few years ago, is not eligible to play for the Comets and will likely resume his hockey career in the Oshawa Mercantile League. He has been commuting back and forth between the two towns since he was appointed coach in October.

It is expected that Cooper's appearance on the team will mean a return to the club of several other veterans who have not played so far this year.

Reasons for the removal of Scott were not given out but the fans have been far from kindly toward the lack of defence and the benching of Fred McMillan in the last two games. McMillan, rugged rearguard, appeared to lose favor because of his penalty gathering but his punch at the blueline was missed sadly according to the local grandstand coaches.

The loss to Bowmanville, final game under Scott's tutelage, was particularly due to weak defensive efforts, the railbirds claimed.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

The draw for the Canada Packers Trophy bonspiel, to be played on Saturday, is posted in the club rooms. Up until 10 o'clock last evening, the committee was refusing entries. It was away oversubscribed.

W. Switzer, A. Malbus, H. Wilson and M. Smith won the prize for high two-game winners over at Oshawa the other day.

It would seem that one of our younger skips has not been curling as much lately as he used to. There is a good reason for it—the story broke during the holiday season.

Think this over:

On a quiet evening at home, a wife suggested to her husband: "Dear, why don't you read to me while I sew?"

The husband obviously didn't warm to the idea, stammered a bit, then said: "I tell you what—you sew to me while I read."

Neill Trophy results:

K. Bissett won from W. Moorhead; R. Bocan won from H. Baptie; F. Sheedy won from H. Hamblin; J. Lowes won from J. Sinclair; R. Johnson won from R. Best; F. Paterson won from R. Dawson; H. Thompson won from B. Deuch.

England Ahead By 96 Runs

CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 3—(Reuters)—England was 96 runs ahead of India tonight in the third test cricket match, which ends Friday.

After being two runs behind (342 to 344) on the first innings, England scored 98 for two before stumps were drawn at the close of the fourth day's play.

The slow tempo which has marked the match from its commencement indicates that it will be drawn, as were the first two tests at New Delhi and Bombay.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

With the Olympic Winter Games coming up next month, we're rather curious to see how much international sportsmanship will be shown — particularly where Communistic countries are concerned. A bulletin blandly reports: "The 45th Congress of the International Olympic Committee was held in Vienna last May when 34 members attended. Russia, Nigeria, Gold Coast, Hong Kong and Germany were admitted to membership. The eastern and western zones in Germany agreed to act jointly in selecting All-Germany teams for the next Olympic Games. The admission of Israel was postponed until local differences could be adjusted." We can imagine how much east and west Germany will co-operate.

* * * * * *

Decided differences of opinion also exist between the two local senior "B" hockey clubs. A well-known fact to fans. Off the ice these rival puckists as a rule get along well, but when they're playing hockey they wouldn't give each other the correct time. While a lot of fans no doubt would like to see the clubs combine, there's no question but that the customers revel in this rivalry. Else why would they pack the rink regularly to see Eagles and Petes clash? You'll see it Friday eve here when these teams tangle in another sizzling encounter. It's a puck natural.

* * * * * *

Eagles Are A-Comin'

Petes lead the pack after turning in some smart hockey the past several weeks. But the Eagles are rebuilding and improving every time out, after losing some good players early in the schedule, and they may be ready to upset the leaders in this scrap. They'll sure be shooting the works in an attempt to dump their city opponents, and the latter won't spare the gad, either. Quite a spell since they've met in ice combat but folks won't forget the hot action of previous fixtures — nor will Petes' and Eagles' forwards forget to keep their heads up going into the other defence. Not if they want to keep those heads on their shoulders! Drop around and view the battle.

* * * * * *

Strikes up there was a bit of unfinished business from last year. The suggestion that a puck exhibition be arranged between the hockey-playing senior lacrosse champs and the Petes or Eagles — or a combined team of 'em. With money raised helping to defray some of the expenses incurred by Eagles' Joe Rochetta who suffered a broken leg in the first game of the OHA season. These lacrossers who can play hockey, too, include: Dootch Vitarelli, Bob Thorpe, Moon Wootton, Art Dugan, Curly Mason, Russ Slater, Mick Magee, Red Creighton, Bill Edgar, Joe Whitnell, Em Creighton, Rock Batley, Gary Robinson, Red Robinson, Barney Dundas, Pup Curtin, Ross Powless and maybe one or two more. A strong squad could be picked from this bunch.

Quinte Hawklets Fly

Belleville Hawklets flew fast and furiously in the first frame here last night to take an early junior "B" lead and go on to win 9-3 over the Oddfellows. Play was pretty even in the last two heats of a speedy tussle, but Red Doran's classy Quinte crew earned the victory. Hec Lalonde proved a one-man gang for the winners as he netted the rubber five times and aided on another. Jim Crombie handed out 17 penalties to keep order, the visitors hitting penance pew 10 times. It's a tough, tough race, alright. Johnny Godfrey's local IOOF-ers rest now till Saturday when they take the trip to Kingston, and they're hoping to grab off a win there.

Trent Valley League puck schedule opened last night, the only result we have at the moment being a 13-3 decision for Norwood in Marmora. In a tilt marked by 20 penalties before 300 fans, Norwood gave notice to other clubs in the district circuit that they'd be mighty strong. Leading their attack were Payne, Thorpe, Creighton and Tompkins. Yes, they've corralled Honey Tompkins, the evergreen Red Creighton and Bob Thorpe, former pro, so there'll be a lot of rubber hitting the rigging in various district villages this cool semester. So far, no TVL schedule has been sent to us.

GARBAGE BOWL GAME—Two members of the Southern Bombers, the gents at the left in the natty woolies, look on as the pyjama-clad Northern Combines pile on to their charging teammates in the New Year's Day Garbage Bowl game in Montreal. Combines scored their first victory in three years by a 5-0 score in Canada's only bowl game. Many Bomber supporters contributed the loss to the dazzling colors of the pyjamas worn by Combines. All proceeds from the game, which was played at Montreal West High School grounds, will be turned over to the School for Crippled Children. An estimated 2,500 were on hand.

Sports Figures Bad Guessers During 1951

BALTIMORE, Jan. 3 (AP). — If you picked Brooklyn to win the 1951 National League pennant or Notre Dame to beat Southern Methodist move over, chum. You've got company.

Illustrious company, too.

A whole hat full of potent predictions by limelighters of the sports world backfired with a bang in 1951.

Just look back:

Jan. 1—Jockey Joe Culmone, who rode 388 winners in 1950 to tie Willie Shoemaker for the year's racing honors and a 44-year-old record: "I'll break it next year for sure." (Charles Burr finished with 310 for the 1951 honors and Culmone was well down the list with 151.)

Jan. 2 — Albert B. (Happy) Chandler after major league club owners denied him a new contract as baseball commissioner: "I will remain at my post until the last day and the last second." (He quit July 15 with 10 months to go on his contract.)

Jan. 3—Al Unser, Baltimore Oriole catcher: "I'm through as a regular player. I want a job managing." (Unser was most valuable player in the American Association in 1951 with the Milwaukee Brewers.).

Jan. 5—Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, veteran race horse trainer: "Big stretch will be the leading three-year-old and win the Kentucky Derby." (Big Stretch was 18th in the Derby, sixth in the Preakness, and switched to training for jump races.)

Shunted Around

Feb. 1—Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees: "I expect Joe Page to make a comeback." (Page was shunted to Kansas City early in the season, wound up in San Francisco.)

March 20 — Manager Steve O'Neill of the Boston Red Sox: "The Red Sox are the team to beat. We have a great chance to win." (Sox finished third in the American League, 11 games behind the Yankees.)

April 3—Jimmy Demaret: "I have been resting for the past six weeks and honestly expect to become the first golfer to take the Masters twice in a row." (Finished in a tie for 13th, 19 strokes behind Ben Hogan.)

July 5—Phil Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, on signing Phil Cavarretta as new pilot: "He won't be rehired as our manager for '52." (In August, Phil was signed to '52 contract.)

July 12—Randy Turpin, after outpointing Sugar Ray Robinson in 15 rounds in London: "I'm confident I can beat him again." (In New York return bout, Ray knocked him out in tenth round.)

Aug. 11—Manager Chuck Dressen of the Brooklyn Dodgers, 12½ games ahead in the National League: "It's in the bag." (Giants won pennant in three-game playoff.)

Oct. 17—Happy Chandler again: "I'm happy none of the Kentucky players were in any of the basketball scandals." (Oct. 20, former Kentuckians Ralph Beard, Alex Groza, Dale Barnstable, admitted shaving points in games.)

Oct. 26—Joe Louis, on eve of his bout with Rocky Marciano: "He can't fight. I'll beat him, Maybe knock him out." (Marciano beat Joe into a technical knockout in the eighth round.)

The 25-year-old preacher became the 13th track and field performer to win the award presented annually by the Amateur Athletic Union to the "Amateur athlete who, by performance, example and good influence, did most to advance the cause of good sportsmanship during the year."

Richards, an instructor in religious philosophy at La Verne (Calif.) College, was the first choice of 174 of the 487 ballots cast by a nationwide panel of sports authorities in the annual poll.

Maureen Connolly, 17-year-old national tennis champion from San Diego, Calif., was second. She received 115 first place votes.

Third position went to Sergeant Mal Whitfield of the Army Air Forces. The 1948 Olympic 800-meter running champion, and three-time national champion at the distance received 59 first places.

The Frank Sedgman wedding gift fund reached the 1,455-pounds mark ($3,244) in the first 24 hours it was open for public subscription.

The Sydney (Australia) Daily Telegraph sponsored the drive after Sedgman, the tennis ace and hero of the Australians 3-2 Davis Cup victory over the US, rejected an offer of 40,000 pounds ($89,200) to turn professional.

Twenty-one members of the San Diego State College football squad went to the hospital Tuesday night with food poisoning after a victory dinner. Celebrating their 34-13 win over the University of Hawaii in Honolulu's Pineapple Bowl football game New Year's Day.

The US Davis Cup squad which failed in its quest for the tennis trophy, left Sydney for home on Wednesday with boomerangs instead. All members of the squad, except Dick Savitt of Orange, NJ, and Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., departed by plane. Savitt, Australian and Wimbledon champion, defends his Australian crown in the national championships starting at Adelaide, Jan. 18. Richardson also will participate in the tourney.

Lou Smith has been named the new sports editor of The Cincinnati Enquirer, succeeding the late A. Louis Lawhead, managing editor Everett M. Boyd announced in Cincinnati Wednesday night. Smith recently was elected president of the National Baseball Writers of America.

Ewell Blackwell, famous Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, Wednesday signed his 1952 contract for an undisclosed salary, "The Whip," who had only a fair record last season—he won 16 and lost 15—came to terms with general manager Gade Paul after a brief conference in Cincinnati.

Edward G. Barrow former president and general manager of New York Yankees, entered in hospital in Portchester, NY, Wednesday. The 83-year-old former baseball executive is expected to undergo surgery.

Last minute entry from Portugal Wednesday increased the number of nations taking part in the Olympic winter games to a record-breaking 29. The wire from Lisbon arrived in Oslo shortly before the New Year's Eve deadline but was not received by the Norwegian Olympic Committee until yesterday because of holiday delays.

Rangers Kicking Up Heels Blank Detroit Wings 1-0

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers have started the new year with a bang. The Blueshirts, revived under new coach Bill Cook, downed the league-leading Detroit Red Wings 1-0 Wednesday night. The shutout put them within six points of Montreal and Toronto, tied for second place in the National Hockey League standings.

It wasn't so long ago that the New Yorkers were bobbing in and out of the loop cellar, along with Chicago Black Hawks. When Cook, a New York star for many years, took over a few weeks ago, they started the slow climb toward the first division.

Only Tuesday night the Rangers blasted Boston Bruins 4-2 to knock the Beantowners out of fourth place. Their victory Wednesday night duplicated their 1-0 shutout last Wednesday when they ended Detroit's unbeaten string on the road at 15 games.

Goalies Brilliant

Brilliant play by both goalies featured Wednesday night's contest. Illustrating the offensive mood of the new Rangers was the fact that Terry Sawchuk in the Detroit nets had to turn back 31 saves to 17 stopped by Chuck Rayner for New York.

Slim Don Raleigh banged in the deciding marker at the 12-minute mark of the first period. Rangers then promptly went to work to outskate and outcheck the league-leaders the rest of the way.

Defenceman Jack Evans and linemate Gaye Stewart assisted on Raleigh's goal.

The only NHL game tonight sees Toronto Maple Leafs take on Montreal.

Hornets Clip Mohawks 4-2

By The Canadian Press.

Pittsburgh Hornets maintained their 10-point advantage over the second place Cleveland Barons in the western division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night, defeating Cincinnati Mohawks 4-2.

The Barons, meanwhile, took their sixth straight victory, downing Buffalo Bisons 4-1.

In the eastern division, Providence Reds gained their first victory in four tries over the pace-setting Hershey Bears, walloping the Bears 7-2. Providence now is nine points behind Hershey.

In the only other game played St. Louis Flyers snapped an eight-game losing streak by whipping Syracuse Warriors 5-2.

At Pittsburgh, centres Bobby Massard and Phil Maloney snapped a two-game Pittsburgh losing streak by scoring two goals each.

Mickey Mackintosh and Herb Dickenson scored the Cincinnati goals.

At Cleveland, the Barons' Cal Stearns and Steve Wochy scored in the first period. Ken Schultz gave Cleveland a 3-0 lead in the second period and Joe Carveth added another for the Barons in the final minutes of the game.

Stratford Subdues Dutchmen 6-3 As Windsor Edges Generals 6-5

By The Canadian Press.

Three "home-town boys" made good in the Senior A Ontario Hockey Association Wednesday night—against their "home town."

Billy Flick, Dinny Flanagan and Mickey Roth, all former Kitchener linemen, carried the Stratford Indians to a 6-3 win over the Kitcheneh-Waterloo Dutchmen. The win tightened Stratford's hold on the No. 1 spot in the senior loop.

In the Junior A League the Windsor Spitfires won 6-5 over the Oshawa Generals, marking the first time this season they have taken two games in a row. This still leaves the Spits in 10th and last place in the listing but they now are within two points of the ninth-place Generals.

John Lumley, formerly of the Toronto Marlboros, scored the winning Windsor goal in the last minute of the game.

Both Toronto entries in the Junior A loop played in their home town Wednesday night, Marlboros winning 9-2 over Waterloo Hurricanes and St. Michael's going under in a 4-2 game with St. Catharines Teepees.

Moves Team Ahead

The St. Catharines win moved the team ahead in its sixth-place spot but it brought them no closer to the fifth-place Kitchener Greenshirts. The Kitchener boys also moved up two points by defeating Barrie Flyers 3-2 at Barrie.

In a Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game, Sudbury Caruso Miners defeated Sudbury Wolves 8-6. Defenceman Tug Parri poured in three goals for the winners.

In Kitchener, the largest crowd of the season—4,057 fans—watched the Flick-Flanagan-Roth line score all of Stratford's goals. Flick got three, Flanagan two and Roth one. Ed Stankiewicz got two of the Dutchmens three goals and Mike Dzuira scored the third.

In Windsor's winning effort Bob Brown scored two goals and the other four were marked up by Reg Campbell, Lorne Watters, Jack Miller and John Lumley. Bob Attersley scored three goals for Oshawa and Fred Etcher and Len Lawrence threw in one apiece.

In the Toronto games, St. Catharines' Frank Martin shot two into the St. Michael's net and Henry Ciesla and Ken Myles scored the others. St. Michael's scorers were Jim Logan and Bob Sabourin.

Marlboros' win was based on two goals apiece by Rod McElroy and Wally Maxwell with single tallies by Eric Nesterenko, Danny Poland, Louis Bendo, Earl Balfour and Ron Ingram. Hurricane scorers were Bill Oliver and Bob Mader.

At Barrie, Graham Joyce of the Kitchener Greenshirts scored twice in 10 seconds and Duke Edmundson put in the other. Barrie's Don McKenny and Johnny Martan scored one each.

Mizell Called Great Lefthander

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 3 (AP).—A veteran baseball observer says Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, a St. Louis Cardinal acquisition, may become "the greatest lefthander the game ever had."

Johnny Keane, last year's manager of Rochester Red Wings and a long time member of the Cardinal organization, called Mizell a faster pitcher today than Dizzy Dean or Wild Bill Hallahan were in their prime.

He said Mizell also probably is faster than Lefty Grove was.

Mizell, called up by the Cards from their Houston Texas League farm, signed his 1952 contract on Monday and will report to the Cards' training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Vinegar Bend's record with Houston last season was 16 victories and 14 defeats.

Keane, now manager of the Cards' Columbus club in the American Association, said all Mizell needs is a good change of pace.

Say Sedgman Greatest Since Crawford

By GORDON TAIT

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 3 (AP)—Frank Sedgman, a shy, even-tempered young man of 24, has succeeded Jack Crawford as Australia's "gentleman of the courts." He also is the greatest tennis player the country has produced since Crawford.

Frank, who neither smokes nor drinks, is a real hero to Australian tennis fans. They like him for his coolness, ability and modesty. Australians are delighted he decided to stay amateur.

Sedgman says he will remain amateur "until after the 1952 Davic Cup challenge".

Although Australian promoter Ted Humphreys said he offered £40,000 to Sedgman to turn pro, amateur interests persuaded the champion to stay with the amateurs at Saturday's Davis Cup dinner.

Sedgman at present is Melbourne representative of a racket maker.

Sedgman and pretty 21-year-old Jean Spence of Melbourne said they plan to marry sometime in January, probably after the Australian championships at Adelaide, ending Jan. 28 where Frank will attempt to regain his national title from American Dick Savitt.

Wimbledon Next

After the Australian championships, the Sedgman's expect to visit Wimbledon, Frank said he is not certain whether he will be able to defend his United States title, but would like to.

The 168-pound Sedgman has been playing tennis since he was nine. At 13, he won his first title, the Victorian Schoolboy Championship.

About this time, Australia's present Davis Cup captain, Harry Hopman, saw how easily the rangy boy played. He got Frank to build up his strength by daily visits to the gym and three-mile runs. He has played tennis ever since.

Just how good a tennis player is Sedgman?

Crawford, great former champ, says you couldn't be certain Sedgman would have beaten Jack Kramer in 1946 or would beat him today.

"How would Frank handle Kramer's service?" Crawford asks.

American Davis Cup captain Frank Shields rates Sedgman a little higher.

"Sedgman's performance for days running was greater than anything I ever have see," said Shield. "Budge or Vines or Kramer might have produced more scintillating tennis on one day—but for three straight days I never have seen its equal."

White Sox Abolishing One-Night Stands

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 3 (AP)—Chicago White Sox are going to try something new this year to get their baseball team in the best possible condition.

"We are abolishing the old idea of one-night, or one-day, stands on the way home from training camp," said Frank Lane, White Sox general manager.

Lane said today one-night stands take the edge off the players before they start the 154-game schedule.

"On our way back from Pasadena, Calif., our spring training camp, we will make some stops all right, but they'll be for two to four days. That will give the players more time to rest."

Race Problem Needs Solving In America Too

TORONTO, Jan. 3—(CP)—The Rev. Tracy K. Jones, Jr., a former Methodist missionary to China, said today that unless churches can solve the race problem in North America, "there is no point in our going to Africa, because we cannot solve the race problem there."

In an address prepared for delivery to the second annual assembly of the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches, Mr. Jones, conference secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, said the race issue occupies a central spot in the "cold war." He called on the churches to transcend racial barriers.

"If we cannot say we are one people, then we are irrelevant to the needs of our time and the needs of people around the world," he told the gathering at which 32 Canadian and United States denominations are represented.

In Low Repute

"Many Easterners hold Western man in low repute because, among other things, he has in this century produced two major wars, has exploited people of color, and because some of his magazines and some of his movies reflect moral standards lower than those of pagan cultures." Earlier, the Rev. Fred Goodsell told a press conference that the Christian church is growing in Communist China.

He said that, when the Communists took over, there were enough trained Chinese Christians to look after hospitals, schools and churches after foreign missionaries were expelled.

Says Canada's Mineral Production May Be 2 Billion In Four Years

TORONTO, Jan. 3 — (CP) — Canada's mineral production may reach $2,000,000,000 within four years, V. C. Wansbrough, vice-president and managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, said Wednesday in a year-end review.

Citing an estimated production of $1,200,000,000 in 1951, Mr. Wansbrough said the industry is heading towards a $2,000,000,000 year, and "that year might well be 1955 if present prices and production trends continue and major expansion projects in aluminum, iron ore and petroleum come in on schedule."

While rising prices account for a large part of the increase in dollar value, volume is rising, too, said Mr. Wansbrough, and in 1951 the index of physical volume was higher than ever (162.7 compared with an average 100 in 1935-39, and a wartime high in 1941 of 134.5). He added:

"Indications are toward steady markets in 1952 and to meet demands (of Western rearmament and domestic needs) the industry will undertake further expansion by increasing present facilities and ferreting out new sources of supply."

Other Points

Other points in Mr. Wansbrough's review included:

Iron ore set a production record of more than 4,000,000 tons, about three-quarters of it from Ontario's Steep Rock and Algoma mines.

A start was made on development of the Quebec-Labrador field, with ore deposits now proved totalling 420,000,000 tons, continued on schedule.

Value of non-ferrous metals was up nearly 30 per cent at $465,000,000, and producers expect 1952 to be their best year yet.

In 1952, an increase of five per cent in nickel production is expected over this year's 275,000,000 pounds, still short of the 1943 peak of 288,000,000 pounds. Sherritt Gordon's nickel property at Lynn Lake, Man., is expected to be in production within three years and to add 17,000,000 pounds annually.

Copper and zinc were each up 20 per cent, copper at $148,000,000, a record, and zinc at $117,000,000. Lead increased 12 per cent to $55,000,000, but volume was slightly lower and prospects for 1952 indicate little change. Asbestos reached $80,000,000, up 23 per cent.

Gold production was about $160,000,000, showing the first decline since 1945, and Mr. Wansbrough comments:

"Position of the gold mining industry as a whole has not been changed appreciably by freedom to sell on world markets. At the moment, the Canadian mint price is averaging $35.90 while the free market is approximately $39.50.

"However . . . the uncertainty of future world prices, together with processing, handling and insurance charges which go with free market sales, are important considerations."

Will Send US Mission To African Togoland

PARIS, Jan. 3 — (CP) — The United Nations Trusteeship committee voted Wednesday night to send a mission to African Togoland to study British and French rule of the African natives there.

The vote came as a victory for the native spokesmen who pleaded before the committee that the Colonial powers were exploiting the natives and ruling by terror.

Two Canadians Get Fellowships

TORONTO, Jan. 3—(CP)—The National Cancer Research Institute of Canada Wednesday announced that a Toronto doctor and a Kingston physicist have been awarded British Empire Cancer Campaign exchange fellowships.

The fellowships, awarded annually by the Empire organization in collaboration with the Canadian institute, went to Dr. M. M. Darte and Arthur F. Holloway. They cover a year of advanced study in cancer research or therapy at a leading British centre.

Valued at $1,000, the fellowships also include travelling expenses.

Dr. Darte, 31-year-old native of Welland, is a specialist in children's diseases and conducted research in leukemia at the Hospital for Sick Children here under a Canadian institute fellowship. He will study at the British Post-Graduate Medical School, Hammersmith, London.

Mr. Holloway, born in Hamilton, is a medical physicist at Queen's University. He has been working with the 70,000,000-volt synchroton X-ray equipment there and will take advanced studies in high-energy radiation at the Royal Cancer Hospital, London.

Approve Increase

OSHAWA, Jan. 3 — (CP) — A special meeting of the Ontario Malleable Iron Company employees Wednesday night approved a five-cent-an-hour boost in pay, negotiated by Local 1817, United Steelworkers of America (CIO), to cover the rise in the cost of living since April. The raise, dating back to Nov. 1, will affect more than 300 workers. A pension plan was also introduced by the company to cover 75-year-old employees with 25 years' service.

108 Oil Discoveries

EDMONTON, Jan. 3—(CP)—A record 108 oil and natural gas discoveries were made in Western Canada in 1951, industry sources reported Wednesday. Forty were oil strikes, 68 gas discoveries in new areas. More than 200 oil companies poured more than $2,000,000,000 into western oil and gas exploration, development and land.

Life Insurance Tops 2 Billion

TORONTO, Jan. 3 — (CP) — Canadians bought nearly $2,000,000,000 of life insurance in 1951, J. K. Macdonald, president of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association, said in a year-end statement.

This is an increase of some 13 per cent over 1950 and about double the volume issued in 1945.

Canadians now have nearly $17,000,000,000 of life insurance in force, said Mr. Macdonald—an average of nearly $1,215 for every person in Canada. Life insurance companies "are administering funds totalling more than $4,000,000,000 accumulated for the benefit of 5,000,000 Canadian policyholders and their dependents—a pool of savings which is increasing at the rate of some $250,000,000 each year.

"Life insurance thus continues to be the main source of family security for most Canadians."

During the year, life insurance companies paid out $240,000,000 in benefits of which $90,000,000 was in death benefits, and $150,000,000 to living policyholders.

No Financial "Hang-Over" This Year ... It certainly was a lovely festive season and now that some of the bills are coming in I find that, for once, the melody lingers on. That's because my finances are in such good shape — thanks to my BANK OF MONTREAL savings program. It's just about a year since I first started to save in real earnest ... by Personal Planning at the B of M. Now, despite rising costs and none-too-light holiday expenses, I'm able to keep putting money away in my B of M Savings Account. Take a tip from me and start planning your family finances. It's a real challenge — but it's fun, too. Ask for your free copy of "PERSONAL PLANNING" at your neighborhood branch of the B of M today. It's the very best start there is toward making 1952 your year to beat your money problems.

Chilled To The Bone from a day of shopping? Here's a warm-you-up thought while you're waiting for the bus. Just think of a piping-hot bowlful of Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup for supper! It takes but a jiffy to prepare once you're home. M-mmm ... what grand 'n' glorious tomato flavour. There's that same superb flavour — of vine-ripened "Aristocrat" tomatoes — in all the HEINZ TOMATO PRODUCTS. Such a cheerful foursome of rosy-red goodness for winter meals ... Heinz Tomato Juice — Heinz Ketchup and Heinz Chili Sauce. I'm putting Heinz Tomato Products at the top of my shopping list now. How about you?

Love The Way My Dishes Sparkle when I use those grand, new detergents. But have you noticed how drying detergents are to your hands? That's why I always keep a bottle of JERGENS LOTION handy — use it after every watery job. You see, because Jergens is liquid, it quickly supplies the softening moisture that dry, thirsty skin needs. Yes, you'll find when you use Jergens after housecleaning chores — your hands will look like they'd never done a scrap of work. Soft, petal-smooth, lady-of-leisure hands for you! And at so little cost — just 15c, 37c, 65c and $1.15.

Are You doing only 1/5 as much as you could to save your family's teeth? Look at the facts: In a 2-year test among school children, DENTOCIL-LIN, the original penicillin tooth powder, reduced decay 55% — 5 times more than reported for a famous university's ammoniated formula! And Dentocillin is effective with just morning and evening brushing. Reason? Penicillin fights decay up to 2½ hours after use. (Anti-decay ingredients in other dentifrices become powerless after about ½ hour.) Dentocillin is safe, has been recommended by thousands of dentists for nearly two years. Really cleans teeth. Tastes wonderful. Change to Dentocillin, now! 3 months' supply, 75c.

Resolved ... to make my meals as gay and sparkling and as good to eat as I can — all the year through, in '52! And I'll depend a lot on JELL-O JELLY POWDERS to help me. Such a glorious variety of salads and desserts to be made from those seven, exciting "locked-in" flavours ... exclusive "locked-in" Jell-O flavours that you release only when you add hot water to Jell-O. Try fruit and vegetable moulds — make tempting whips and creams — cube your Jell-O for desserts or salads — or make delicious Jell-O tarts. Truly Jell-O is versatile. And economical, too! Easy-to-make Jell-O Jelly Powder desserts cost only about 2c a serving!

Whew! That's Over For Another Year ... all your holiday entertaining. It was fun — but, confess! — just a little tiring. And now you're ready for a quiet, sociable get-together with friends — no frills ... just bridge, sandwiches — and coffee. Well, I'd like to suggest that you try INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN COFFEE. It's economical. It's as easy to make ten cups as one — and there's no waste. It's wink-quick to prepare — takes no longer to make than boiling the water. And Instant Chase & Sanborn Coffee is so good. That's because it's made by folks who "know their coffee" ... it's the only instant coffee backed by over 85 years coffee experience. And my experience is — folks love it!

Let It Snow ... Let It Blow ... you're "safe" from the aches 'n' pains of a January cold when you let BEN-GAY (Baume Bengué) come to the rescue! Yes, this is a favourite time of year for "Peter Pain". He strikes without warning in chest colds, neuralgia and rheumatism, but you'll be well prepared for him with pain-relieving Ben-Gay. Just rub it in! It breaks up congestion and gives wonderfully quick relief, along with a soo-othing, comfortably warm feeling. That's because Ben-Gay contains up to 2½ times more of those two famous pain-relieving agents — methyl salicylate and menthol — than 5 other widely offered rub-ins. Contains skin-soothing lanolin, too! Better buy Ben-Gay — just 75c a tube!

FIRST WINDSHIELD STAMP

Alvin S. Yelland, 677 Bethune St., bought the first 1952 windshield stamp at the Chamber of Commerce offices Wednesday.

DIES IN CLEVELAND

George Markum, father of Mrs. Frank Laurie, Camp Cleveland, Pigeon Lake, died in Cleveland, Ohio, on New Year's Day. Besides Mrs. Laurie, surviving are a son, Stanley, and a daughter, Jennie, both of Cleveland.

TEN VETERANS

Ten employees were made members of the Quarter Century Club of the Western Clock Co. at a recent dinner. The new members are: Herman (Bennie) Benson, Charlie Batchelor, Jim Yarn, Art Knott, Orvel Smith, Hugh Robertson, Allie Stevens, Max Pomeroy, Ida Trotter and Mickie McNeely.

HALIBURTON NEWSPAPER

A weekly newspaper will be printed in Haliburton soon for the first time in the village's history. W. Noice, B. Feir and Creighton Feir who purchase the former Minden Echo have moved the press and other equipment to Haliburton.

GETS PERFECT HAND

Billy Castle, of 4 Prince St. has gone one better than Mr. Leether for he got a perfect "crib" hand while learning the game on New Year's Day. He was playing with his uncle, Clifford Castle, who has played cribbage for many years and never had a perfect hand. In the hand were three fives and the Jack of Spades and a five of spades was turned up.

NO CHANGE IN HEAD MEN

The only community body in which there has been no electoral change to start the New Year is at Curve Lake. No chief has been chosen to replace the late Chief George Coppaway who was drowned last year. A new one will be elected in June, 1952. In the meantime, four councillors are looking after reservation affairs, William and Merritt Taylor, Austin McCue and Amos Irons.

FOUR FAMILIES PARTLY ISOLATED by flood waters from a small creek near Western Ave. appealed to the city hall today for action to clear the water from the street, sidewalks and cellars. Only people with rubber boots have been able to leave the doorsteps this week. William Ryder, 741 Chamberlain St. wades through water (above) to a friend's car with help from borrowed rubber boots. Water covers the street and both sidewalks (right) making rubber boots a necessity in the neighborhood.

Southenders Wear Waders As Water Encircles Homes

The small creek which flooded the wartime housing area along High and St. Mary's streets last spring has been playing havoc this week with homes along Chamberlain St., between High St. and Western Ave. Recent mild weather caused the creek, which winds its way from the Civic hospital along Highway 28 down to Western Ave., to overflow its banks along Chamberlain St., flooding cellars and isolating women and children in four homes.

Wednesday night's colder weather formed a thin layer of ice across the street and sidewalks and in the cellars.

Mrs. C. R. Darling, 741 Chamberlain St., said today she hasn't been able to go out since Monday for groceries, the water is crowding both her front and back doors. Among the hungry people she provides for daily is a small baby.

Mrs. Darling's son, Frank Milligan, a student at PCVS, couldn't get out today for the re-opening of school.

"I can't afford to buy us all rubber boots," said Mrs. Darling.

Two Feet Deep

Outside the Darling home the water varies from a foot to two feet deep on the road and sidewalk as the waters have spilled over the edges of the deep south ditch. There is a slippery layer of ice beneath.

Only way of getting in and out of the homes is by wearing rubber boots. A friend of Mrs. Darling's boarder, William Ryder, helped Ryder leave the house today. From a car the boots were thrown to Ryder on the doorstep; from there he waded through ice and water to the car.

Mrs. Darling phoned the city hall and was told that "they would do what they could." She added that she was told that ice further down the creek had to be broken first and the creek bed cleared.

Cellar Fills Up

Another woman Mrs. R. E. Wilson, 779 Chamberlain St., is faced with a cellar filling with water and her summer vegetables being awash. She also is isolated by the overflowing creek.

William C. McIvor, 747 Chamberlain St., phoned Mayor-elect Hugh Waddell today "to come down and look at it."

Mr. McIvor made "half a dozen calls to the city hall yesterday but they don't care at all. The Johnson Motors is not flooded but we are."

"They are always asking the people to have the garbage out the night before. Why, they never even took it today. They'll have to break it out of the ice now."

An employee of the CGE, Mr. McIvor has been able to come and go only by wearing hip rubber boots.

"It's like this every year and it's about time someone did something about it," he said.

Hastings Fire Damages House

HASTINGS, Jan. 3—(ENS)—Fire damage to the Hastings home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Baker, Front St., amounted to about $2,000 Wednesday.

The blaze, thought caused by a short circuit, was mostly confined to the second storey of the brick home. All upstairs windows were broken, some bedroom furniture was badly damaged, and a gaping hole was burned in the roof.

The Bakers and their three children—Gary, Billy and six-months-old Denise—were unharmed. Mrs. Baker, whose uncle owns the house, got out wearing only a fur coat, her nightgown and slippers.

Mrs. Baker said that one of the children saw the fire about 11 am, and called her. She opened the stairway door leading to the second floor and saw flames and smoke upstairs. She took the children and ran out.

Mr. Baker, who works in Oshawa, was home for the holidays, and helped neighbors and firemen save furniture and other household goods. The first storey of the house was relatively unharmed.

Service Held For C. H. Rogers

Memorial service at St. John's Anglican church for Capt. Claude H. Rogers, son of the founder of Peterborough Canoe Co., was held Wednesday afternoon. It was largely attended by his relatives, friends and business associates.

By profession a mechancial engineer, he worked on the Niagara power development, returning to the canoe company after the death of his father. During the First World War, he was gassed, and suffered from severe asthma after that.

Thirteen years ago, he moved to Phoeniz, Arizona, where he died on Sunday.

Wednesday's service was conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery at a later date.

Visitors Crowd To See Airliner

COBOURG, Jan. 3 (ENS)—It is estimated that more than 1,000 people visited the Charles Wilson farm in the past three days to view the big C-46 California Airways plane which safely crash-landed with 47 passengers two weeks ago.

A bulldozer has cut a lane direct from Highway 2 to the location of the plane a few hundred yards south in order to facilitate the moving in of equipment needed in readying the plane for a takeoff estimated to take place in two weeks.

Workers have excavated under the retracted landing wheels of the plane so that they can be lowered into position when the plane is rolled forward and up to a normal position. New propellers will then be fitted and the field put into shape for a takeoff.

250 Drivers Get Licenses

The Chamber of Commerce offices report that they had a busy day on Wednesday issuing drivers' permits and car licence stamps. Approximately 250 were issued licences and permits.

When the office opened at 9 am, 25 people were lined up at the door and a steady flow kept up all day. By 3 pm, 204 drivers' permits, 97 passenger car windshield stickers, 14 commercial vehicle stamps and seven trailer licences had been issued.

Numbers lessened a little today with 75 this morning.

$800 Damage Done To 6 Cars In 3 Accidents

A car driven by Charles Bell, Campbellford, travelling east on Lansdowne Street, and a southbound car on Monaghan Road, driven by Walter Wood, 700 Orpington Road, collided at Lansdowne Street and Monaghan Road Wednesday evening.

Damage estimated at $300 resulted to the front end of the Wood car. The car driven by Bell was damaged on the left side.

Skids On Ice

Skidding on icy pavement when an oncoming car made it necessary for him to apply his brakes, Donald C. Long, 747 Duffus Street, slid into the rear of a parked car as he was driving south on Rogers Street, Tuesday night.

Damage to the trunk of the parked car, owned by William Wakefield, 95 Lansdowne Street, was estimated at $25. The front end of the Long car was damaged to the extent of $75.

Damage estimated at $400 resulted when two cars collided on Water Street, north of Dublin Street, Tuesday night.

Emmett Crough, 223 Perry Street, driving south on Water Street, was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Phyllis Dixon of Buckhorn, who was driving north on Water Street.

Not Enough Room

Crough said he applied his brakes as he approached two cars parked on the west side of Water Street, because he did not think there would be room enough to pass between the parked cars and the oncoming car driven by Mrs. Dixon.

His car skidded on the icy pavement and the two cars collided, causing $275 damage to the front end of the Crough car and $125 damage to the car driven by Mrs. Dixon.

Constable Wilfred Perry investigated all three acidents.

UEW Seeks Reinstatement Of 11 Discharged Welders

The executive of Local 524, UEW, are trying to get reinstatement of the 11 welders who were fired Wednesday morning by CGE. George Wallace, president of Local 524, said the executive "are putting the whole weight of the union behind reinstatement of the discharged welders.

"Tonight we are having a steward's meeting to further discuss the situation," said Mr. Wallace, "and there is a possibility we may call a full membership meeting during the weekend."

James E. Girven, works manager, said 11 of 22 welders originally involved, were fired Wednesday morning "for failing after repeated warnings to resume work in a normal manner when they returned to their department on Dec. 27."

Company officials said that nine of the welders returned to work Wednesday.

Two On Job

Today, say union officials, there are only two of the welders in the shop and they are doing other jobs, not welding.

The dispute was triggered off December 10 when all 22 of the men walked out—four were suspended and the others went out later in sympathy—after the company had lowered the price on a welding job.

Local 524 told the company that the walkout was unauthorized, and that they had repeatedly urged the men to return to work. The union has the collective bargaining agreement with the company.

Both the company and the welders accuse the other of breaking the contract.

The company said the men should return to work, do their jobs in a proper manner, and file a grievance through the regular channels if they have a legitimate complaint. Eleven of the men failed to do this, even after repeated warnings, the company claim, so they were fired.

The welders said that this particular job of welding has drawn a certain price for at least two and a half years and that the company are violating the agreement in suddenly changing it.

Why don't they go back to work and file a grievance as suggested by the company?

Say Will Stall

"Well, it's like this," said one welder: "So we go back to work and take an illegal cut of 12 cents an hour. Then we file a grievance. We've seen it happen before. The company will stall and stall; months, maybe even a year, will go by. There is no indication they really intend to do anything about it. And in the meantime they can slap on a dozen other price cuts.

"What are we suposed to do about that? File a dozen other grievances, maybe?"

C. S. Jackson, Canadian UE president, said today that the union had filed a grievance on behalf of all 11 discharged welders. But this particular type of grievance — dealing with discharges — has to be processed within seven days.

"Unless the company finds a basis for negotiating a settlement with the welders within seven days, then the company stands accused of attempting to introduce a series of wage cuts by means of intimidation and provocation," said Mr. Jackson.

Weekend To Help Korean Youth

TOKYO, Jan. 3—(CP)—Pak Jong Yong, an ambitious 19-year-old Korean high school graduate, will fly to Canada with Defence Minister Claxton soon to enrol in a Canadian agricultural school.

Mr. Claxton, visiting in Korea and Japan, today invited young Pak to make the return flight with his party.

Pak's education in Canada is being sponsored by Weekend Picture Magazine which appears each Saturday in The Examiner, and he likely will stay two years. He hopes to become a scientific farmer and return to Korea to help in the rehabilitation of his homeland.

The youth came to the attention of Canadian correspondents in Korea where he was a houseboy at their billet in Taegu. They were impressed with his intelligence and his efforts to learn English and arranged for his period of study in Canada.

1951 Building Sets Record By Topping $4½ Million; $600,000 Higher Than '50

CGE's New $350,000 Addition Gives Spurt In Final Month To Beat Previous Record; 301 Houses Listed Valued At 2½ Million

'Peterborough's building permits last year amounted to $4,608,187 in new property values. Add to that total for 1951, the corresponding $3,959,358 for 1950, and the aggregate for two years is $8,5667,545. These were two successive records in new construction for which permits were issued through City Engineer Chalmers' office at the city hall. The total for December was $421,655 as compared with $50,970 in December, 1950. Canadian General Electric Company's new addition to its punch press department at an estimated cost of $350,000 accounted for that broad margin of increase over the permits of the final month of 1950.

2nd CGE Addition

That was the second CGE unit of enlargement to the Peterborough works. The new pattern shop and woodworking building on Monaghan Road was begun in September at an estimated cost of $200,000.

These two items make a total of $550,000 in new capital investment by Canadian General Electric Company, especially significant in providing increased space for manufacturing operations.

The December details of new building were reported today by City Engineer Chalmers as follows:

December 1950

Three garages	$ 1,500.
Three dwellings	22,200.
14 miscellaneous	27,270.
Total: 20 permits	$50,970.

December 1951

Three garages	$ 875.
Four houses	41,000.
16 miscellaneous	379,780.
Total: 23 permits	$421,655.

Totals for the two years, as quoted above were: 1950—$3,959,358; and 1951—$4,608,187.

New High

Peterborough investment in new buildings advanced to a new all-time high last year, exceeding the previous peak that was reached in 1950.

Details of the building carried on in these two years were provided by Mrs. Jean Hunt, of the City Engineer's department, as substance of further interest.

Permits for 1950

162 Garages	$ 46,919.
301 houses	2,518,000.
767 miscellaneous	1,394,439.
Total for the year—1230 permits	$3,959,358.

Permits for 1951

156 garages	$ 47,645
218 houses	1,865,530.
747 miscellaneous	2,695,012.
1121 permits	$4,608,187.

Building in Suburbs

These Peterborough permits obviously do not include any suburban building in the adjoining townships.

It is especially interesting to note the total amount of new investment in houses during the last two years.

There were 301 new houses in 1950 and 218 in 1951. Their total estimated cost was $4,383,530—all new dwellings in the city.

'Fair Cut' Seen From County Lumber Camps

A "fair cut" of lumber from the Eagle Lake and Apsley districts is expected for this year, Fred J. Overend, manager of the Peterborough Lumber Co., said today.

With the labor situation improved and weather conditions better to date, the company is "more optimistic" than last year.

Mr. Overend said the 50-man crew working out of the Eagle Lake camp under William Budd needed plenty of frost and not so much snow to get the cutting done in good time. Last year, he said, there was no real frost until March, and the busiest part of the cutting began months late.

By the first of next month, he said, trucks should be hauling logs from Apsley across to the company's sawmill on Gull Lake, in Cavendish township. These will be logs bought from settlers north of Apsley, where the cut is also described as "fair."

In May, these logs will be joined by others sent by water from the Eagle Lake camp. The route they will follow takes them over the Eagle Lake dam, through Gold Lake to the mill on Gull Lake.

"It's hard to tell yet for sure," said Mr. Overend, "but everything seems more satisfactory this year."

Camera Club Shown Printing Methods

W. H. Staffen of the Peterborough Camera Club gave a printoning demonstration to 15 members of the club at their rooms on Wednesday evening. He showed two methods, bleaching and re-development, and traced the efforts of pioneering photographers to obtain these desired effects. The Lewis Davidson travelling exhibit of landscapes and portraits will be shown and discussed at the club meeting of Jan. 8.

ST. FRANCIS DE SALES SCHOOL, east of the city limits on the Warsaw Rd., opened for classes today. Thirty pupils within a three-mile radius of Otonabee and Douro townships will attend its two classrooms. The brick and block-faced rural Separate School building was started in the first week of June, 1951.

City Couple Wed In Belmont 50 Years Ago

HAVELOCK, Jan. 3—(ENS)—Fifty years ago New Year's Day, Sarah Davis and Willard Hubble, both of Belmont township, were married at the home of the bride's parents in the South Lake Settlement by the Rev. E. A. Hamilton. On Tuesday the golden anniversary of this event was celebrated at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dafoe in Belmont township. Mr. and Mrs. Hubble now live at 259 McGill St. in Peterborough.

Groomsman at the wedding of 50 years ago, Arthur Munroe, uncle of the bride and the flower girl, Lillie Allie (now Mrs. Robert Newell), both reside in this district. The bridesmaid, Phronia Davis, later Mrs. Bert Weese, sister of the bride, died a few years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubble are natives of Belmont township. The latter is a daughter of the late Samuel Davis and Angeline Munroe, while Mr. Hubble is a son of the late Sanford Hubble and Lovicia Munroe, their mothers being cousins.

The first year after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Hubble lived on a farm east of Blairton station. Then they moved to Havelock for 10 years, going back to Blairton at the end of that time where they purchased a farm.

Farming was an occupation which Mr. Hubble carried on as a side line as he was employed for 45 years with the Canadian Pacific Railway as a section man, the latter part of his service in this department being in the capacity of foreman. In following up his work on the section he moved to Indian River for about four years, and then to Trenton where after 10 years' residence he retired seven years ago and the Hubbles moved to their present home in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubble had a family of six daughters, five of whom are living. They are: Mrs. Scott Lingle (Elsie) of Fort Erie, Ontario; Mrs. Thomas Sanders (Ella) and Mrs. Jack Wood (Celesta) of Peterborough; Mrs. Wallie Edwards (Viola) of Hastings; Mrs. Arnold Dafoe (Phronia) of Belmont township. They have 12 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren. A daughter, Mrs. Wilfred Jones (Hazel) of Buffalo, NY, died 13 years ago.

The celebration took the form of a family dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs Arnold Dafoe at 5 pm The lace covered table was centred with a large three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom around which were decorations of lily of the valley, orange blossoms, white bell and white bow. The cake was lettered in gold with gold leaves and roses adding to attractive decorations. At each end of the table there was a bouquet of yellow roses in green vases, the gift of a niece, Mrs. Moss Gollogher of Peterborough. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Hubble were presented with an electrice fireplace and a mantel lamp by members of the family.

Those present at the dinner party were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sanders, Reginald and Mervin Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wood of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Warden Covert and son Jerry of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Wallie Edwards, Miss Joyce Edwards and Mr. Pat Lunz of Hastings; Mr. and Mrs. Mossom Gollogher, Mr. Douglas Gollogher of Peterborough; Mrs. Donald Gollogher and Rickey of Arona.

In the evening a reception was held in Belmont township hall when about 200 friends and former neighbors gathered to offer congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Hubble. During a period of community singing, for which William Briar of Keene was the accompanist, Mrs. William Anderson read "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet" substituting the Christian names of Mr. and Mrs. Hubble for those used in the song, after which it was sung in this manner by the gathering. Vocal numbers were sung by Reginald Toms who played the accompaniment on his guitar. Dancing made up the program for the balance of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubble have a common hobby—flowers—as their home in Peterborough will bear testimony.

FIFTY YEARS WED on New Year's Day was this smiling couple, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hubble, formerly of Belmont township and now living at 259 McGill St. The celebration for their golden wedding was held at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dafoe, Belmont. Mr. Hubble retired from the CPR as foreman seven years ago, and the couple moved to Peterborough at that time.

Say Illegal Radio Relayed Bookie Results

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP). — A man was accused Wednesday of interfering with reception of broadcasts from radio station WJZ by operating an unlicenced radio transmitter in an ultra-modern bookmaking shop.

Edward Chudy, 27, was held in $5,000 bail by US Commissioner Edward Macdonald for hearing Jan. 9 on a charge of operating a radio transmitter without a licence while accepting bets.

Officials said Chudy had established two firsts.

William Kiser, a federal communications commission engineer, said the alleged use of electronic equipment for the relay of telephone conversations was the first of its kind to come to the FCC's attention.

U.S. Attorney Myles J. Lane added that Chudy undoubtedly will be the first person charged in this district with violating the new internal revenue laws controlling gambling. Federal law requires a $50 tax stamp fee for bookmakers.

Lane said Chudy and Fred Fisher, 33, a former policeman, rented a Lexington Ave. apartment and tapped a telephone with wires attached to a radio transmitter. He said the radio transmitter relayed messages to another Lexington Ave. apartment where bets were received.

Lane said a number of complaints concerning interference with reception of WJZ radio programs led to the investigation.

The maximum penalty for violating federal laws governing unlicensed radio transmissions is nine years' imprisonment and $25,000 fine.

Charges Chiang's Men Taken To Thailand

PARIS, Jan. 3—(AP)—Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia charged today that the United States is transporting Nationalist Chinese troops from Formosa to Thailand and western Burma.

He said they were intended for use as part of an American campaign of aggression against Communist China.

Vishinsky made the charges during a lengthy speech on a proposed new veto-free united Nations anti-aggression plan.

He said one of the dangers of the new plan was that "when events begin to take their course on the southern borders of China," the "legitimate defensive act" of China might be condemned as aggressive by the "American-controlled" assembly and U.N. machinery put to work against that country.

Vishinsky said this is what happened in Korea.

Unknown Boy Rescued From Scugog

LINDSAY, Jan. 3. — An unidentified boy narrowly escaped drowning in the Scugog river New Year's day.

Mr. Rufford of Cambridge St. N., Lindsay, reported that he pulled the boy from the river in McDonald's Park. The two boys were presumably jumping in the snow near the river's edge when one o fthem landed with such force that he dropped from sight into the river.

His companion seeing his chum's plight shouted for assistance and Mr. Rufford answered the call. He found the boy up to his armpits in water and after much difficulty was able to pull him out.

The boy thanked his rescuer, but didn't give his name.

Mr. Rufford says that he has no idea who the boy is. He reported that the lad said he lived about one mile from the scene and left for there to get dry clothing.

The boys were about 11 or 12 years old.

When Davis was arrested in Geneva in November 1950, McCarthy disclaimed any association with him, Davis said.

Sculptor Jo Davidson Dies Suddenly In France

PARIS, Jan. 3 (AP)—Jo Davidson, 68, famed American sculptor died of a heart attack Wednesday night at his country home in Central France.

The bearded sculptor, who rose from New York's lower-east-side tenements to the top level of art and living, had been regarded as in relatively good health despite a few minor heart attacks in recent months.

His wife telephoned friends in Paris that Davidson died near Sache, a village a few miles from Tours. He had gone from his Paris home to Becheron, his country place, for the Christmas and New Year holidays.

He became ill late Wednesday and a doctor was summoned. Four hours later he was dead.

Many of the great men of his time sat for Davidson's sculptor and many of his works are on permanent display in museums and government buildings over the world.

In recent years he had taken an interest in political and social trends.

Won Many Prizes

He won many prizes, including the French Legion of Honor. He lived and studied many years in Paris but maintained a New York home until recently.

Among his subjects were Franklin D. Roosevelt, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., Albert Einstein, Will Rogers and great figures of the world wars.

He returned to France Dec. 20 from Israel after doing busts of that country's leaders, including President Chaim Weizbann, Premier David Ben-Gurion and Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett.

Mrs. Davidson said the sculptor had appeared tired after the trip to Israel where, she said, "he did a great amount of work." She said he had a bronchial condition which affected his heart.

In Paris in 1909, he married Yvonne De Kerstrat, who died in 1934. They had two sons, Jacques and Jean.

Davidson's second wife is the former Florence Gertrude Lucius. They were married in 1941.

Britain Given $39 Million

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The United States turned over $39,888,000 to Britain Wednesday night in a move to keep intra-European trade flowing.

The payment is a prelude to resumption of large-scale American financial aid to the hard-pressed British government.

A gift of about $300,000,000 is expected to be announced shortly as part of American help to Britain under the Mutual Security Defence Program. American and British officials have been talking over the size of this American contribution for the last month.

Britain has requested about $600,000,000 for the period ending July 1. But, American officials, confronted with a shortage of foreign aid funds, are said to believe half that amount represents as much as the United States can bear at present.

The money is to reimburse Britain for a portion of that country's gold payments into the European Payments Union. The payment, the MSA said in a statement, carried out an agreement between the United States and Britain made on July 7, 1950.

Declare Plane Story "Error"

TORONTO, Jan. 3 — (CP) — Canadian Aviation, monthly magazine published in Toronto by Maclean-Hunter Publishing Cd. Ltd., says in its current issue that an October announcement that production of trainer planes had started at Fort William was "a gross error if not a deliberate sham."

The magazine, of which R. A. Keith is editor, says in its January editorial that, two months after a ceremony in which Production Minister Howe took part, there still is not a single post-war Harvard from Fort William anywhere near the flight stage.

A story from Fort William Oct. 28, carried by The Canadian Press, said Mr. Howe and other officials were in that city "to see the first Harvard test flown and to inspect the Canadian Gar and Foundry Company plant."

The magazine editorial says:

"The trainers acclaimed at the Canadian Gar plant Oct. 27 and put through their flying paces for the visitors were, without exception, assembled from war surplus os 'shelf' components . . . freighted to Fort William and bolted together on the assembly line there."

Let Contracts

OTTAWA, Jan. 3—(CP)—Contracts amounting to $57,304,000 for work on the Trans-Canada highway have been let out by the eight provinces engaged in the $300,000,000 federal-provincial undertaking, Resources Minister Winters said Wednesday in a statement.

Negotiations Failure

Boy 10, Found Drunk On Street

OTTAWA, Jan. 3 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Lavergne of Ottawa were remanded Wednesday to Monday by Judge J. P. Balharrie in juvenile court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of children.

The charge was laid by police New Year's Eve after the Lavergne's 10-year-old son was found by Constable Edward Lamourie in a drunken condition on a west-end street. The boy was taken to hospital.

Police went to the Lavergne home and found the parents unconscious, with 34 empty beer bottles strewn about the house.

Police said the boy, terrified over the condition of his parents, drank almost half of a 12-ounce bottle of whiskey before going out into the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Lavergne are being held in custody pending their second appearance in court.

Shotgun Blast At Midnight Aimed Too Low

LINDSAY, Jan. 3.—A Lindsay resident's annual custom of firing a shotgun into the air at midnight every New Year's missed its altitude this year.

A couple of residents in the south ward of the town were sitting in their home listening to the radio as the New Year came in. On the stroke of midnight they heard a shot followed by the tinkling of glass. This shot is an accustomed ritual and they paid no attention to it. And they presumed the tinkle was an icicle dropping from the eaves of their home.

But the next morning it was found that the shotgun blast had not gone heavenward. Instead it shattered some of the storm windows and the door was splattered with lead.

The responsible person is reported to be sorry about the accident, but Chief Arthur Webster fears that the New Year's shooting is doomed to become just a memory.

SPECIAL DELIVERY — This helicopter, nicknamed the "Pregnant Bumblebee" because of its bulging waterproof mailbins, has been delivered to Newfoundland to inaugurate Canada's first regular helicopter air service. The federal government decided to use the helicopter on an experimental basis to carry mail to 20,000 residents on a group of isolated islands off the Newfoundland coast. If the four-month experiment proves a success, helicopter mail service will be inaugurated to break the isolation of other winterbound communities.

NORTH BAY—(CP)—As a result of decline in fur prices this season trappers appear to be taking less beaver, although the animals are plentiful. To the end of the year only 67 beaver were sealed by forestry officials here, compared with 126 in the same period of 1950.

Wins Acquittal In Arson Case

SUDBURY, Jan. 3 (CP) — Michael Dominic Wednesday was acquitted of arson in connection with a fire which destroyed his house at Bowland's Bay, 25 miles northeast of here, last September.

Also charged with arson in the same fire, John W. Hull last week was sentenced to one year.

Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe said Wednesday he could not convict Dominic because there was no evidence of his part in the fire except for Hull's uncorroborated evidence.

Hull gave police a statement saying Dominic agreed to pay him $100 for setting the fire to obtain insurance. Hull claimed he received only $20.

Hull's statement to police was read during his trial. Evidence was that insurance of $1,117 was paid.

Dominic testified he gave Hull $50 for work he had done, not for setting fire to the house.

FULL AS CAN BE — These two nylon party dresses illustrate 1951's craze for full skirts. (Left) Pale blue nylon tulle over blue taffeta, is this New York evening gown designed to create a sensation at any New Year's party. The snug and strapless bodice is edged around the top with net and allover-embroidered with iridescent sequins. (Right) Short and sweet for the evening is this gown of pale blue nylon net over taffeta. Flounced into an apron effect, the dress has a strapless taffeta bodice filled in with net. The stole (another 1951 favorite) is separate and the deep hemline flounce continues up the sides of the dress.

THE FASHION - RIGHT BLOUSE that's light, soft to the touch, wrinkle-resisting, that launders well and needs no ironing, absorbs moisture easily and holds its pleats under all conditions is the blouse that fills the bill for the paycheck girl. In all orlon or part-orlon acrilic fibre fabric, this is the blouse for the full-time, working wardrobe. It can be laundered at night, along with lingerie, and turn up next morning ready for another day without benefit of ironing. The new orlon and part-orlon blouses are done in basket weaves, in shantungs, in crepes, in taffetas. The fabric is light weight but shape retention is inherent in the fibres. Blouse colors (white, magnolia, mauve, charcoal, mint green) are planned to provide an accent for basic suits. Long-sleeved blouse (left) is in basket-weave and is all orlon. A yoke front is tucked to create a pleated look. Tailored, notched collar and front closing with pearl buttons are classic. Tailored shantung blouse (right) with short sleeves is in orlon-and-nylon. Zig-zag front closing, edge of sleeves and collar are corded.

Edmonton Actress Star Of British Stage, Films

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON— (CP) — The New Year has a problem for dark-haired Edmonton-born Dianne Foster, 23-year-old wife of Toronto's Andrew Allan, drama supervisor for the CBC.

Dianne, who's been married for just six months— and says "I've never been happier in my life"— faces the prospect of having to stay in London while husband Andrew returns to Canada for radio commitments.

Dianne, a dark-eyed, five-foot-two Canadian, came to London in July, 1950, on holiday after two years in radio in Toronto. As with many another Canadian entertainer, the holiday soon turend into a business proposition. Now Dianne has a five-year contract with a British film company and has just finished her second stage appearance.

Her first dramatic role in London started last February in Agatha Christie's thriller, "The Hollow." She played Veronica Gray, a middel-aged blonde actress and one of the principal suspects in a murder case.

For this, Dianne went blonde and "looked such a mess" she crept out daily in a huge fur cap that obscured her hair from view.

With Orson Welles.

Her next part was dark-haired Bianca in Orson Welles' "Othello" at St. James's Theatre, which came off just before Christmas. This was the greatest thrill of Dianne's career in London. One of her aims in coming here was to study voice control, and she says it's lesson in itself just to listen to Welles.

She got the part of Bianca after appearing with Welles on radio, Luxembourg in "The Lives of Harry Lime," the character from "The Third Man" film.

IN "OTHELLO" — Dianne Foster, 23-year-old Edmonton actress, went to London last year on a holiday. Since then she has appeared in one film, is making another and has had parts in two stage plays, including "Othello" with Orson Welles in the title role. Dianne also married Toronto's Andrew Allen, drama supervisor for the CBC, now on leave in London.

Dianne has also made one film "Quiet Woman," starring Derek Bond and Jane Hylton. Now she is at work on "Lost Hours" with Jean Kent and Montreal's Mark Stevens, playing the part of a loose-living red-head while Jean, who generally takes this type of part, wears the halo.

Dianne is already committed for a third film. This means she will be unable to return to Canada with her husband when his six months' leave from the CBC ends in March. At present Allan is working with the BBC as a temporary producer in the features department.

Woman "Queen" Of Coming Decade Says New Editor

"The next ten years are the most important in the whole of Canada's history — and the Canadian woman is the "queen pin" in this development," says Lotta Dempsey, newly appointed editor of Chatelaine magazine. "She is the most active partner in the most important business in Canada—the family."

"Her opinions, her needs, her decisions are of far-reaching importance in all phases of Canadian life from baby bonuses to taxes. Her shopping list has widespread effect on industry, trade and economy."

"Canadian women have stopped trying to wear the trousers. They take their natural and indispensable place in Canadian life— in business and at home."

Lotta Dempsey, well known newspaper columnist and radio commentator succeeds Byrne Hope Sanders as editor of Chatelaine. Miss Sanders has resigned to enter a business partnership with her brother.

Miss Dempsey was born in Edmonton, Alberta, was a reporter on the Edmonton Journal and feature editor of Chatelaine for 12 years before she went to the Toronto Globe and Mail to write her popular column "Person to Person."

She has travelled widely in Europe, the US and Canada. In 1948 she won the Canadian Women's Press Club gold medal for the best article written by a Canadian woman writer.

Fashion Flashes

A sure-fire hit for Spring is bound to be the tailored suit in heavy silks, many of them ribbed or corded. Nearly every good house is showing many such suits, and buyers are ordering well. Mainly they are done on soft, classical lines and come in pastels and jewel colors as well as the more conventional hues.

✧ ✧ ✧

There's a wealth of design and beauty in the new resort fashions, plus ingenuity and imagination. Brilliant yellow terry cloth is used for novel one-piece sun suits. The top is double-breasted with huge buttons, and the rather high neckline and side edge are bordered with narrow self-pleating. The double-breasted opening continues in plastron form to below the waist, and the brief shorts are also ruffle-edged. There's a big matching beach bag—a drawstring job lined with plastic film.

✧ ✧ ✧

A study of the clothes worn in the latest plays gives a good indication of fashions that are of current inspiration yet designed to conform to the individuality of the wearer. Typical of stage costumes is a biege linen suit, the skirt slim, the jacket standing away at the hipline to show the yelow satin lining. The front edges are bound to match.

strictly tailored for day wear. Longer horizontal effects are stressed in envelope, pouch and satchel styles. Wide openings and roomy interiors are planned for comfort as well as effect.

Over-the-shoulder bags, large double-handled carry-alls, and roomy swagger styles are featured for sport and travel in alligator as well as a variety of less expensive leathers. Stitching is a popular note on calf. Suede and calf are used for linings.

Transformation effects are used. A flat pouch bag may be slip-covered with reversible leather envelopes. This enables madame to have one basic bag in black or navy with extra covers to match every color scheme in her wardrobe.

One Paris department store is showing new box calf bags which are guaranteed not to spot in the rain. Prices are attractively low, starting at 2,900 francs (about $8).

Draping and couture touches are given free rein in fabric bags. All types of materials are being used, from soft millinery felts and plushes—effective when matched to the hat—to velvets, satins and metallic fabrics.

Evening brings forth a wealth of brocades and lames, often heavily embroidered or made on rich jeweled frames.

Grandmother's petit point bags are back in the fashion scene. Tapestries or flowered patterns provide the motifs. Caviar beading and fine hand embroideries are also popular for evening.

One shop specializes in antique silver frames which are mounted with black antelope. Many Parisian women are combing their attics for old-fashioned frames which may be polished up and remounted.

Tailored Handbags May Be Slip-Covered

PARIS—Bronze, copper and silver are the smartest shades for handbags this winter, with alligator skin continuing a favorite for general utility wear.

With black as popular as ever, the new season's colors for purses stress light brown, gold and toast tones which may be carried with almost every other color. Clear bright greens and deep burgundy lend variety.

Thre is no radical change in the shape of handbags, which are

One-Piece Suits Dominate Resort Swimwear

SAN FARNCISCO—The one-piece swim suit dominated all resort collections, although the two-piecer was certainly not neglected. Nylon and lastex weaves, with such new entries as shantung lastex, held their customary high place in swim-suit fabrics, but it was interesting to see the great emphasis given to cottons. Denims (yes, they're meant to be worn in the water), seersuckers, prints, illustrated. California's "confidence in cottons" for swimming.

After-swim fashions created more of a stir than ever. Brief coats, just long enough to cover the bathing suits, cover-up skirts that really made the swim suit look like a dress, terry "dry-off" suits, and "crazy" beach hats gave promise of making resort beaches more colorful than ever this year.

Teacher of Blind Covered Large Area

REGINA—(CP)—A Regina woman who has taught the adult blind in Saskatchewan for more than 30 years is going into partial retirement.

Miss Margaret Liggett now will confine her teaching duties to the summer months. For 20 years she was the only teacher of adult blind in Saskatchewan. For the last 10 years she has had only half the province to cover.

Her pupils, as a home teacher, were blind people not qualifying for children's education under provincial auspices and blind people past an employable age.

Two of her prize students were persons who lost their sight after their 80th birthdays. Miss Liggett taught them to read Braille books and to type letters to people with whom they had been corresponding.

Travel Technique

Miss Liggett says that originally she taught her students only Braille, typing and handwork, but recently emphasis had been laid on travel technique.

"Travel technique is training in getting about the home and the streets by oneself," Miss Liggett says.

She was born at Indian Head, Sask., and because of weak eyesight was not able to attend school for any one full term. When she was 13 she was sent to the Ontario School For the Blind at Brantford, the first child sent there at the expense of any government other than that of Ontario.

Today it's regular procedure for blind children from the prairie provinces to attend that school at the expense of their provincial governments.

DOROTHY DIX

Young Wives Disapprove Annual Office Parties

DEAR MISS DIX: We are three young married women with children and would greatly appreciate your honest opinion on the following. What with the holiday season upon us, our husbands will undoubtedly attend the usual office parties at which they will dine and dance with their women associates, and without their wives present. Do you think this is proper?

K., L., AND B.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: The practice of Christmas and New Year's parties in offices, or other places of business, has become so firmly entrenched that all your disapproving will not curtail it. It seems to me to be rather a pleasant custom. For any business organization to fulfill its mission successfully, there must be harmonious accord among all its members. Isn't it logical that the friendliness growing among congenial business associates should have an expression in one gala event at the year's end?

They Are Innocuous

A wife with inclinations toward jealousy will naturally resent her husband's participation in such affairs—as she resents his every move where another woman is concerned. A sensible woman, on the other hand, especially one who has herself been in the business world, will appreciate how innocuous these things are.

Attendance at office parties is very often pratically obligatory, so don't begin to berate your husbands as soon as they announce their intention of attending one, if you can trust your men with their business associates for the rest of the year, why make an exception for the holidays?

DEAR MISS DIX: We have been married 41 years, and during this time my wife and I have always gotten along nicely. Since we purchased our TV set however, we are continually disagreeing over what programs each of us should see. I can't understand why my wife can't meet me halfway. I am very patient and considerate, but she wants her way. After watching her choice of programs for three or four hours, I'd like to see some sporting events, but she gets so mad at the suggestion, she's ready to throw things.

S. J.

ANSWER: After watching TV for three or four hours, anyone will be ready to throw anything! This new and wonderful medium of entertainment is causing similar disruptions in most homes. They can only be solved through the give-and-take policy. Each member of the family should be alloted a certain amount of choice, with everyone else abiding by it patiently.

If your wife concedes your right to a share in the program selecting, she'll probably discover herself becoming very much interested in sports. Some of the gentlest ladies I know have become rabid wrestling fans after being exposed to the sport for a while.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For several months I have gone steady with a boy two years older than I. I am 16. I broke up with him and have since gone out with other boys, but not steady. Now I find that my former boy friend is spreading rumors and stories about me that aren't true. How can I stop him?

B. J. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: This is a problem in which you could use adult help. Take your father into your confidence and let him handle the situation for you. Someone should see this former boy friend of yours and see that he stops his gossiping. If he keeps it up, your family should have a lawyer see him. This step will undoubtedly curb his lies, but I really don't think you'll have to do more than have dad talk to him. Don't let the situation continue and grow worse. Nothing is more vicious than a person who delights in tearing apart another's character. Drastic measures alone will stop them.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Sour Cream Cookies Sought Other Recipes Thrown In

We are in danger of having this dubbed a cookie column.

I hope before it happens you get all of this cookie-making out of your systems.

A girl in Labrador wants Sour Cream Cookies, and since I always have to make a batch of "Aunt Rachel's Cookies" (sour cream) for a "side-present" for my brother for Christmas, they are a cinch for me. Someone else wants mincemeat cookies and another pal accuses me of the serious error of not printing in this column the recipe for date squares "for at least a year—I've been watching".

Alright—I give in as always.

Sour Cream Cookies

One-half cup good quality shortening, 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 4 cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon each soda and vanilla, 1 cup thick sour cream. Cream together the shortening and sugar until they are light in color and fluffy. Beat in the unbeaten eggs. Sift together the sifted flour, salt and soda. Add the dry ingredients to the first mixture alternately with the sour cream. Mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls on buttered cookie sheet about 2 inches apart. If desired sprinkle with a mixture of 2 teaspoons cinnamon and 2 tablespoons sugar. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 12 minutes.

Aunt Rachel's Cookies

One cup thick sour cream is beaten until light with 2 cups white sugar; then beat in 2 eggs. Sift about 5 cups flour and sift with 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons soda. Add them with the vanilla —1 teaspoon.

Chill dough for several hours. Roll out ¼-inch thickness and cut out with 4-inch fluted cutter. Place 1 inch apart on greased cookie sheet and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes.

NOTE: Steamed and dried raisins may be added to the above dough—up to ¾ cup.

Mince Meat Cookies

Cream together 1 cup each best quality shortening or margarine, white sugar and brown sugar, then beat in 3 eggs until fluffy. Add 3 cups sifted flour which have been sifted with 1 teaspoon each soda and cinnamon, and ½ teaspoon each salt and nutmeg. Add this alternately with 1 cup each mincemeat and chopped walnuts. Drop from a teaspoon onto buttered cookie sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes.

Date Squares

One-third cup butter or margarine or shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup each chopped dates and nuts. Cream together the sugar and shortening then beat in the eggs until the mixture is very light. Sift the flour and measure it and sift it with baking powder and salt. Fold it into the first mixture, then stir in the dates and nuts. Press into buttered pan about 8 x 10 inches. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes but watch this—it should be at exact centre of oven. While quite warm cut into squares, and when it can be cut from pan roll in powdered sugar.

Now may I leave cookies alone for a while?

Arcturus in the Bootes Constellation is the brightest star in the Northern Hemisphere.

Queen's "Dresser" Fashion Expert

LONDON (CP)—When the Queen accompanies the King on his recuperative cruise on HMS Vanguard, planned for early 1952, one of the party will be white-haired, soft-voiced Celia Willox, a Scotswoman who has been personal "dresser" to the Queen for more than 11 years.

Miss Willox knows the Queen's taste in clothes perfectly, and many times couturiers will telephone to ask her advice on whether to show the Queen a new material or design. If Miss Willox says "no," that ends it.

She is an expert on fashion past and present, and few can challenge her word on the many orders that the Queen is entitled to wear. Her knowledge of first-class jewels is also impressive. The Queen's private collection contains gifts from different parts of the world, and the crown jewels —worn on such occasions as the coronation—include the Koh-I-noor diamond and the Star of Africa.

Dates Confused Court Dismisses Traffic Charge

New Year date confusion resulted in a Highway Traffic Act charge being dismissed in police court today.

"It's quite a little trick to ask a man to appear in court 11 months before an accident happened," commented the accused, Lawrence Davidson, 78 Sophia St.

Mr. Davidson pointed out that the summons requiring him to appear on a charge of failing to signal for a left hand turn was dated January 3, 1951.

The accident resulting in the charge occurred December 6, 1951.

Adding to the confusion, Magistrate W. R. Philp noted that Davidson was charged with having committed the offence on December 6, 1961.

At this point, Mr. Davidson was asked if he would agree to an adjournment, since the crown could not hear the case, because the officer involved was not present.

Magistrate Philp advised Mr. Davidson that since the crown was asking for the adjournment any date to him would be suitable.

"Ten years from next Tuesday," suggested Mr. Davidson, adding he had already lost a half day of work and was ready to proceed.

After it was explained that today was the first time the charge had been heard, and it was not usual to have the officers appear in traffic cases before it is known ho wthe accused intends to plea, Mr. Davidson agreed to an adjournment until January 7, in spite of the two wrong dates.

Later, Mr. Bradshaw said that in view of the two typographical errors, he would offer no evidence

UK Biggest Exporter Of Active Isotopes

LONDON, Jan. 3—(Reuters)—Britain has become the world's biggest exporter of radio-active isotopes, the main peacetime by-product of atomic energy, the Supply Ministry said today.

Hospitals, factories and universities in 25 countries last year were supplied with isotopes — metals and chemicals "cooked" in an atomic pile until they give off radio-rays.

Britain's atom "factory" at Harwell last year produced 9,000 isotopes, an increase of nearly 6,000 in two years. About 2,400 of these were flown overseas, compared with only 23 three years ago.

Receiving countries included the United States—Britain's main export rival.

Students Feel US Also Menaces Peace

NOTTINGHAM, England, Jan. 3—(CP)—An organization of British students decided Wednesday that the threat to peace comes as much from the United States as from Russia.

In its annual congress here, the national union of students voted to that effect by a 58-to-32 margin after an unofficial debate between Konni Zilliacus, former left-wing labor member of parliament, and F. O. Darvall, Director-General of the English-speaking union.

The debate was sparsely attended. Previous sessions of the congress have shown most members eager to hear both sides but not necessarily sympathetic to Russia or hostile to the United States.

It was not felt that the debate reflected the views of British students generally.

Devaluation Rumors Stampede Hungarians

VIENNA, Jan. 3 —(AP)—Rumors of a devaluation of the Hungarian currency are presently turning the Hungarian capital into a "lunatic-asylum," radio Budapest said late Wednesday night.

The broadcast accused British-American agents of having caused a panic among the city's population by spreading rumors of an impending devaluation of Hungarian banknotes of higher value.

"For two days Budapestians are trying to buy whatever they can get for their money," the radio said. It added that especially luxury goods, phonograph records and stamps were being bought by the public.

Describing the rumors as blunt lies and attempts to create unrest, the radio appealed to the population to keep its senses together.

Has New Plant That's Ideal For Arid Areas

ROCKINGHAUSEN, Ruhr, Jan. 3 — (Reuters). — A German analytical chemist claims to have created the ideal plant for arid regions. He calls it topine.

Dr. Gerhard Ruehl, 47, says of his plant: It has a potato-sized white bulb, a sweet, nutritious vegetable with a high vitamin-C content.

It yields more sugar than sugar beet, yet it is an ideal food for diabetics.

It is suitable raw material for a 56 proof brandy.

It grows on almost desert-like ground.

It has foliage, sprouting thickly up to 15 feet, which is superb cattle fodder.

It may be sown and harvested at times which do not clash with those of other crops.

Dr. Ruehl also claims that the plant requires no special care and can easily hold its own against weeds.

He said he obtained the topine by crossing the German topinanbur with the Mexican helianthus macrophyllus.

Stffe Melves of Westerloh, a small farmer who tried it, said, "It is a marvellous plant. The foliage of one single acre keeps two cows."

Deplores Stonings

BOGOTA, Colombia, Jan. 3—(AP)—The Colombian Government said Wednesday night it deplored recent stonings of a Baptist church in Bogota. Interior Minister Luis Ignacio Andrade said propaganda for a religion alien to the Colombians had brought about a reaction from "primitive people." Colombia is predominantly Roman Catholic.

Smaller Percentages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—The government told major United States automobile makers Wednesday that they would be limited to smaller percentages of total-car production in the April-June quarter. It also gave them no encouragement that the industry would avoid substantial reduction of basic raw materials during the same period.

Remand 6 Workers

WINDSOR, Jan. 3—(CP)—Six former production employees of the Ford Company of Canada were remanded Wednesday to Jan. 16 on charges laid in connection with the forced closing Dec. 3 of the Ford plant powerhouse.

REACH SAFETY—Seamen all glad to be ashore after drifting helplessly for seven days during one of the worst winter storms to sweep the Atlantic are these crew members of the S.S. Mayfall, shown at St. John's, Nfld., as they await the repairs of their ship. The ship was bound from Bonavista to St. John's when fuel pumps broke down seven miles from her destination. For three days the vessel drifted while crew members used mess tables to keep fires going. This fuel ran out and she drifted with food and water running low. On the seventh day she was spotted by another ship and taken in tow.

High Russian Officials Attend Litvinoff Funeral

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Jan. 3 (AP)—Pallbearers from among high officials of the Russian Foreign Ministry Wednesday carried the remains of Maxim Litvinoff to his grave among Russia's great.

There was no religious service for the former commissar of foreign affairs who played the leading Soviet role in re-establishing diplomatic relations with the United States after the Bolshevik revolution. Born a Jew, Litvinoff did not belong to any church.

Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko led the group of official mourners and acted as a pallbearer. Deputy Foreign Ministers Valerian Zorin and F. T. Gusev also were among the pallbearers.

Three young men in Foreign-Ministry uniforms led the procession, carrying red pillows on which rested Litvinoff's many decorations, including the Order of Lenin.

The death of Litvinoff, who broke through Russia's diplomatic isolation from the West after the First World War and was her spokesman at the old League of Nations for a system of collective security and disarmament, was announced in eight paragraphs on the last page of Pravda today.

The sad-faced former Ivy Low, Litvinoff's British-born widow, was among the mourners. Two children also are survivors.

Although Litvinoff died Monday after several years' illness, his death was not announced until his body had been taken to the Foreign Ministry Wednesday and all plans made for the funeral.

SA Officer Dies

Funeral services will be held at Stratford. He was a native of Wingham.

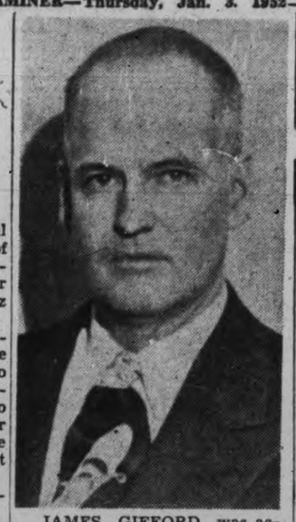
Arab Leader Calls British 'Fools'

PARIS, Jan. 3 (AP) — Abdul Azzam Pasha, secretary-general of the Arab League, Wednesday called British officials "fools" for wanting to remain in the Suez Canal zone.

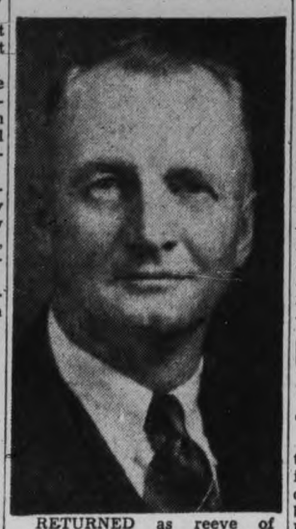
"They are fools," he said, "fighting a nation of 20,000,000 people determined to put them out. No force can stop the Egyptian Nationalist movement. There is no use playing around with it. Either the British must occupy the whole country for 20 years, or they must get out."

He spoke before the Anglo-American Press Association.



He accused Britain of wanting to keep 10,000 troops in the Suez Canal zone merely for reasons of tradition. Actually, he said, they furnish no protection at all.

Azzam Pasha said that Egypt and all the Middle East are not neutral, but anti-Communist.



"We think," he said, "that we have an idealogy superior to Russian materialism and American dollar-democracy. But our real fight is against the Russian ideology."

Azzam Pasha—himself an Egyptian—said the Egyptians are ready to recognize that the Russians may be a danger 10 years from now, but they consider Britain the danger at the moment.

"Why should we think of Russian aggression," he asked, "when we already have an agression."

Import US Beef, None In City Yet

Import of dressed beef from the United States was a reported development in the food and provisions trade toward the end of the holiday season.

The Canadian consumer has probably lost track of the beef cattle business during the last year particularly since animals on the hoof were being sold from this country for delivery across the border. One report Monday intimated that supplies of dressed beef were then in transit to Canada. Prices in the American market, it was said, had reached a level of parity or less than the Canadian beef product, attracting Canadian orders for the home consuming market.

It is not indicated yet what may be the results of this purchasing abroad or the extent of their volume. Enquiry here indicated that none of the American beef has reached Peterborough.

According to the recent information beef is entering the company of other foodstuffs, ordinarily produced at home, but imported in varying quantities during the last year.

It will be recalled that butter was bought in Denmark for the Canadian market; eggs from Holland; lamb from Australia and the United States; pork products from the USA for a while last summer.

Alimony Keeps Rooney A Poor Man

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3 (AP)—"It's the penalty of being human," sighed Mickey Rooney.

He was commenting on his alimony situation. He is paying at the rate of $450 a week for wife No. 2 (Betty Jane Rose) and $500 for wife No. 3 (Martha Vickers), he reported. He has no payments to wife No. 1, now Mrs. Frank Sinatra.

Rooney hopes there will be a settlement with the second Mrs. Rooney, who has remarried. He has two children by her, one by Miss Vickers.

Rooney has no savings. Part of this is due, he claims, to mismanagement of his funds by advisers.

"But I'm getting on my feet again," he said. "By the end of next year I should be able to save $30,000 or $40,000."

Rooney has deals with his old lot, MGM, where he is supposed to do a picture a year, and with Columbia, where he is director as well as actor.

He has been doing his Andy Hardy role in radio. He also takes an occasional flier at night clubs and theatres. This year he will make his debut in television.

Used As Detour For 7A Schoolgrounds Suffer

BETHANY, Jan. 3 (ENS)—At the annual school meeting main item of discussion was the condition the school grounds had been left in by the Department of Highways. When Highway 7A was being straightened and repaired through Bethany, a section of the school playground was used for the detour and was suposed to have been restored to its natural state on completion of the highway. The machinery and equipment was all moved away by the construction company and nothing done.

It was reported that letters had been written and interviews held with the parties responsible, but nothing concrete done . . . the matter being tossed about between the highways department, the construction company and the board of education. It was decided to contact the Durham Health Unit as another angle of approach and see if pressure could not be brought to bear on the parties responsible as the playgrounds are not safe for the children in their present state.

The matter of township public school areas was also discussed but no action taken.

H. Rayson was chairman for the meeting. The secretary's report showed a balance on hand of $92.95.

Last year's trustees, Emory Smith, Clarke Pomeroy and H. Rayson were reappointed for another term; F. W. Reynolds continuing as secretary-treasurer.

May Ask Truman To Oppose Armistice

CHINHAE, Korea, Jan. 3 (delayed) (AP) South Korean President Syngman Rhee said Wednesday he may go to Washington and ask President Truman to oppose any armistice that leaves Korea divided.

Rhee said in an interview he had confidence that Truman would oppose an armistice which "would leave my people at the mercy of the Communists."

Rhee expressed fear that the truce negotiations at Panmunjom will be concluded on terms that he and his people cannot accept. "I am afraid our friends are sacrificing our safety in order to come to an understanding with the Communists," he said.

Chicken Thieves Ordered Make Restitution, Pay Fines

Two men convicted of stealing chickens will be spending the next 75 days in jail if they are unable to pay the fines imposed by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court Wednesday.

David Symonds and Donald Collins both pleaded guilty to three charges of stealing chickens valued at more than $25 from Robert George Fowler, of the third concession, Smith township.

Symonds, a private in the Princess Patricias on leave from Currie Barracks in Calgary was ordered to pay fines totalling $92.

On one charge, he was fined $10 and $12 costs, plus $15 restitution to the owner, and $10 and $2.50 costs and $15 to the owner of the chickens on each of the other two charges.

Collins was fined a total of $82.50, $10 and $2.50 costs and $15 to Mr. Fowler, from whom the chickens were stolen on all the charges.

25 Days On Each Charge

In each case, Magistrate Philp said the men were to serve 25 days on each of the charges if the fines are not paid. The terms will run consecutively.

Both Symonds and Collins who lives on Highway 28 just outside the city were convicted of stealing a quantity of wire on August 28, 1951.

Mr. Fowler from whom the men admitted stealing the chickens said he had lost 46 nine month old Barred Rock hens and New Hampshire roosters. He valued the stolen chickens at approximately $120.

Obtained Warrant

OPP constable Thomas Fitzpatrick said that after investigating the theft he suspected Collins and Symonds and obtained a search warrant. He said that 14 dressed chickens were found hanging in a shed at the house of Collins' mother. Two of the seized chickens had been sold to neighbors he said.

The chickens were removed from Mr. Fowler's chicken house on three different occasions in December, on December 7, December 21, and December 28.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw asked for a "severe penalty" for both men. "Certainly the farmer is entitled to the value of the chickens," said Mr. Bradshaw, "For this is one of the most miserable forms of theft."

In passing sentence, Magistrate Philps first ordered the men to pay $20 to Mr. Fowler on each of the charges. When it was revealed that 16 of the chickens were under seizure in a food locker, the amount of restitution was reduced to $45 for each man.

Mr. Fowler agreed reluctantly to the value of the dressed frozen chickens set at $2 each.

After sentence was passed, Mr. Bradshaw said he wanted to point out to Symonds and Collins and the public that the maximum penalty for the offence is two years in prison.

UK Tug Reaches Listing Freighter, Mate Joins Captain

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The first mate of the British rescue tug Turmoil today succeeded in boarding the Flying Enterprise to join Capt. Kurt Carlsen on the crippled American freighter. The US destroyer John W. Weeks radioed that the tugboat man "managed to get aboard over the taffrail of the Enterprise and is now standing by with Capt. Carlsen." Tugboat captain Dan Parker was quoted as saying he is "confident I can get tow rigged if we get a break in the weather."

The message from the Weeks—timed at 2:30 pm (9:30 am EST)—said fog was closing in and the wind had increased to 28-32 knots at times.

The message was not delivered to naval headquarters in London until 4:45 pm. Meanwhile the British government weather forecasting service had issued warnings of gales—winds of 50 miles an hour—in the vicinity of the Enterprise.

Carlsen has been alone on the Flying Enterprise since last Saturday, the day after a wild Atlantic storm broke his ship and knocked her over on her side. The freighter has been listing at 60 to 80 degrees.

Make 5 Vain Attempts

His crew of 40 and 10 passengers were taken off, but he decided to stick with his 396-foot ship and her cargo, valued at more than $1,000,000, and protect the owners' rights in the ship, worth $1,400,000. The vessel, built in 1944, is owned by the Isbrandtsen Line, New York.

A message at 11 am from the Weeks said the rescue tug Turmoil had made five vain attempts in worsening weather to get a towline aboard the Enterprise.

The 2:30 pm message from the destroyer Weeks said the list of the Flying Enterprise, around 60 degrees Thursday, had increased "very slightly." But the freighter was "still buoyant and riding satisfactorily."

Capt. Parker said he would continue efforts around the clock to get a towline aboard the disabled freighter, wallowing 300 miles west of the southern tip of England.

May Be Taken Off

An early message from the Weeks said there was a possibility Carlsen would be taken off his ship today, but later it was explained this meant "after towing commences."

This made it plain that Carlsen intended to see his beloved ship all the way to safe harbor.

The 11 am message from the destroyer Weeks said:

"Weather conditions worsening. Wind southwest, force 22-27 knots, sea moderate to rough, sky overcast, intermittent rain squalls, barometer 29.92 steady.

"Flying Enterprise now on a northwest heading and taking seas on the exposed main deck and deckhouse.

"Tug turmoil has made five unsuccessful attempts to pass messenger line to Capt. Carlsen in the bow and is now going to try putting a line over the stern."

More Facilities For Troops Claxton Promise

By BILL BOSS.

KURE, Japan, Jan. 4— (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said today of Canada's troops in Korea that "we have every reason to be proud of them and consequently every reason to do everything possible for them in the theatre and at home."

He was speaking at a press conference after a three-day visit to the Canadian 25th Brigade. He gave the conference as soon as possible after reaching Japan to ensure his opinions were expressed while his impressions of the visit were still sharp.

"If there's a cease-fire," he said, "the brigade, which is all in front line, probably will have to retire. If there's no cease-fire there will be more action. But if and when the situation is more stablized, we will do everything we can to provide every possible additional facility for rest and recreation.

Get Extra Films.

"Meantime, with the unit active, we found we can at least make arrangements for an additional supply of news broadcasts, films an dso on. We visited every unit from the headquarters to the reinforcements units in rear areas. All we have seen and heard makes us realize whey the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade under (Brig. John) Rockingham is recognized by all commanding officers of other forces in Korea as one of the finest fighting foramtions in the 8th Army.

"All our party, veterans of the First or Second World Wars, have never seen anything to equal the morale or fighting quality of the 25th. They're the best-fed, best-clothed, best-trained and, considering conditions, the best-treated troops we ever had.

"We found some of them concerned about family matters at home. We're going to see that steps are taken to speed up inquiries and act where necessary."

Claxton said he and Veterans Minister LaPointe had exchanges of opinions with theatre ground and air commanders and that the US Eighth Army Commander, James Van Fleet, and Corps Commander Mike O'Daniel "spoke in highest terms of the fighting qualities of our forces."

"People who've served only in Europe have no conception of the difficulty of the terrain these men have to overcome," he said. "I've been told it's comparable to the worst in Sicily and Italy. It's a place where successful action, even survival, depends on the quality of leadership, equipment and training to a greater degree than any previous fighting."

28 Islanders Near Starvation

DUBLIN, Ireland, Jan. 4—(AP)—A radio message from storm-bound Little Blasket Island, off the Kerry Coast, said today 28 residents are in a "desperate situation" for lack of food.

Gales raging off the Irish coast have made it impossible to send regular supplies from the mainland for two weeks.

The islanders reported by radiotelephone they are nearly out of flour, bread, meat, tea and milk, have no fuel, and are subsisting mainly on their few remaining potatoes.

Among the marooned is a child, five-year-old Geroid Keane.

The crew of a boat loaded with provisions had hoped to make the three-mile crossing from the mainland today, but hoped-for calmer weather did not materialize.

Russians Get Tough With Iran On Delivery

TEHRAN, Jan. 4 — (Reuters)—Russia has told Iran she will not deliver 6,000 tons of badly needed sugar, promised under a trade agreement, until Iran sends her 1,200 tons of raw cotton, a finance ministry informant reported today

He said his government had been unable to buy the cotton from growers because it lacked funds.

In November a Russian trade delegation had told the ministry Russia would send the sugar and take the cotton when it became available, he added.

Canadian Dollar Hits 12-Year High

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP). — Value of the Canadian dollar was at a 12-year high today.

The Canadian dollar was traded in New York at 99.18¾ cents in United States currency — its highest exchange rate since the summer of 1939.

A week ago it was worth 98.12½ cents. It was quoted at 96.43¾ cents late last November.

Banking circles here said the steady rise is due chiefly to stepped up foreign demand for Canadian currency, mostly on the part of investors abroad who want to buy Canadian stocks and bonds. New offerings of Canadian securities are attracting foreign capital, it was stated.

British Army Seals Off City Of Suez

Terrorist Gangs Roam Streets Sniping At Troops

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 4 (Reuters)—Scattered fighting flared up today in Suez city. Gangs of terrorists roamed the streets and sniped at British troops.

British troops had sealed the city, at the southern end of the Suez Canal, after Thursday night's outbreak in which two British officers were wounded.

Reports reaching here said Suez apparently was without law and order. A British military spokesman merely said: "There is some doubt whether the situation is entirely under control."

Terrorists sheltering in buildings in Suez fired at water filtration plants and other British installations which were the object of terrorists attacks Thursday night.

Troops closed all roads into Suez, at the southern end of the canal, at the order of Brig. J. W. Tweedie, commander of the 39th Infantry Brigade.

Tweedie announced the move after a probe into Thursday's clash between British troops and Egyptians, which broke a three-day lull.

It is the first British act of retaliation since Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, Middle-East commander, returned to the zone Dec. 31 after talks with Prime Minister Churchill and announced that Britain would "meet force with force."

US Worried About Red Move

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP) — The United States expressed grave concern today that a new Russian move to transfer Korean armistice negotiations to the United Nations Security Council might break up the talks now going on at the front.

American delegate Benjamin Cohen told a press conference that the United States could not understand why the Soviet Union had made such a proposal at a time when truce talks in Korea appeared to be making slow but sure progress.

Cohen said the US was opposed to a Russian resolution calling for a special high-level security council meeting to discuss how to aid the armistice talks.

The proposal, he declared, could not fail to have a bad effect on the talks at Panmunjom. He said he wondered whether the Russians wanted to settle the Korean war or to reopen it.

But Russia's proposal appeared to be gaining strong support today among the small powers.

A high diplomatic source reported today that, although many small countries favor the Soviet proposal, they want to ignore the section which would have the special council meeting take up the question of the Korean armistice.

Delay Steel Strike 45 Days

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ, Jan. 4 (AP)—The United Steelworkers of America (CIO) today postponed their threatened strike for 45 days but warned they will walk out in late February if the US government can't settle the steel contract dispute. Cheering delegates to a special USW convention approved a recommendation of the union's top strategists including President Philip Murray that the work stoppage be held off to give the Wage Stabilization board time to suggest a settlement. The recommendation calls for a strike postponement until 45 days from the day on which the Wage Stabilization Board begins hearings on the steel dispute.

The board has scheduled a preliminary hearing for next Monday in Washington.

The recommendation was made in the form of a resolution submitted to a special convention called to decide whether the 1,000,000-member union would strike in about 90 per cent of the US basic steel industry to back up its demands for pay increases and other contract concessions.

The proposal carried the endorsement of Murra yand the 36-man policy - making executive board.

President Truman had made two appeals to the union to forego a strike and keep badly-needed steel flowing for defence and essential civilian needs. Noting the White House pleas, the resolution said:

"To the President of the United States we say: we accept your request and agree to postpone the effective date of our strike so that the wage stabilization board may consider the case promptly on its merits and recommend fair and equitable terms of settlement."

The board's recommendations will not be binding on either union or industry.

UK Studies Plan To Build Powerful Atomic Furnace

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Reuters)—A $2,000,000 plan to build an experimental atomic furnace powerful enough to drive an aircraft carrier or fuel an electricity station will be put before the British government, it was learned today. After 18 months of research, scientists are ready to construct the furnace, which may provide the answer to Britain's chronic fuel shortage.

The government, it is understood, will be asked to consider the plan soon after parliament reassembles Jan. 29.

Last week United States scientists announced they had produced electricity from atomic energy for the first time.

Research men at Harwell, Britain's No. 1 atom centre, believe their furnace will take a year to build. But it may take 10 years before all problems are overcome to make it work effectively.

Save On Coal

Millions of tons of coal would be saved as scientists estimate the furnace would be able to operate for 30 years without re-fuelling.

Though the cost of building a prototype atom power station is about three times that of a conventional station of similar design, the coal-saving factor makes the scheme worthwhile.

Every pound of active uranium in the atomic station would save more than 3,000 tons of coal.

In the hush-hush Harwell laboratories scientists have also been able to reduce atom-ray dangers. And they have discovered a metal tough enough to stand up to nuclear bombardment.

They say a liquid metal, such as sodium, is a suitable medium for transferring the intense heat.

Crete's Juliet Leaves Romeo

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 4 (Reuters)—Crete's 20th century Juliet, beautiful Tassoula Kefaloyannis, 19, who defied a battalion of troops to marry her Romeo, has left him after less than two years of married life.

Her desertion might start a vendetta worse than that caused by her runaway romance in the summer of 1950.

Newspaper reports from Canea, on the Island of Crete, said Tassoula told the state attorney Thursday night that she had decided to leave her handsome husband, Kosta, and go back to her father.

The reports said she had decided to do this so that "all measures can be taken to protect her father—Liberal Deputy Manolis Petrakoghiorghis—against attempted murder by her husband's friends."

It was the long-standing family feud that forced dashing young Kosta to carry his Juliet off into the Cretan hills 18 months ago.

Their flight almost started a civil war between rival factions in Crete supporting the two families—divided by politics as well as domestic disputes.

Charge Parents On Manslaughter

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, Sr., today were charged with manslaughter in connection with the death New Year's Eve of their 20-month-old son David, killed when fire destroyed the house in which he had been left alone with three other small children.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, Jr., were charged with criminal negligence. The children had been left alone in the house while their parents went to a New Year's Eve party.

When fire broke out shortly after midnight, neighbors rescued Larry Brown, 5, William 1, sons of Brown Jr., and Clayton, 3, son of Brown Sr.

The body of David Brown was found later in the ruins of the winterized cottage. Police took Brown Sr., into protective custody when neighbors threatened him with violence.

Mrs. Brown Sr. fainted in court when the charges were read. Hearing was set for Jan. 11.

Trapped Chinese Surprise UN Troops

US 3rd INFANTRY DIVISION, Korea, Jan. 4 — (AP) — A United States platoon had occupied a hill, checked the captured bunkers, formed a defence perimenter, and settled down for a short stay.

For two days all was quiet. No Communist troops came around shooting. Boredom set in.

On the third day, the infantrymen heard a rumbling on opposite side of bunker they had been occupying. The bunker wall collapsed. Out stepped 13 well-armed but hungry and thirsty Chinese soldiers. They had holed up in the other part of the bunker but decided to surrender after their water gave out.

Allies Recapture Prized Christmas Hill

SEOUL, Jan. 4—(AP)—Allied infantrymen stormed through heavy mortar and small arms fire today and recaptured prized Christmas Hill on the east-central Korean battle front.

Communist troops had attacked and won the hill after dark. The assault touched off a see-saw fight that lasted throughout most of the night.

The peak had changed hands repeatedly since Chinese troops seized it on Christmas Day. The hill is west of Mundung Valley.

Along the rest of the 145-mile battle front, patrols of both sides probed and fought minor skirmishes.

Toronto Street Car Union Calls Walkout Three Days Ahead Of Time

Drivers And Taxis Pick Up Workers Waiting At TTC Stops, Mayor Calls Emergency Session Of Board

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP)—Toronto's street-car and bus operators went on strike today. Mayor Allan Lamport appealed to citizens to "keep your heads." Seeking higher wages, the 4,700 operating employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission, publicly-owned system serving Canada's second largest city and suburban areas with a total population of some 1,300,000, struck at 5 am. Paralysis of public transportation was immediate and complete.

But there was little confusion despite the suddenness of the strike call, reached at a union membership meeting in downtown Massey Hall in the early hours of the morning. Most persons took the situation in stride and, generally, good-humoredly.

The public turned to automobiles, on the streets in numbers estimated at five times the usual number, to reach work. Most motorists automatically opened car doors to groups of persons waiting on street corners and while thousands were late, most got to work.

May Last Week

No immediate end was seen to the strike, sixth transit walkout here since 1902. TTC officials said it might last "at least a week."

Union officials charged in reply: "It would appear the commission is not going to try to settle the strike for a week."

There was no violence. At midmorning, union officials were informed that the TTC had "padlocked" all property and barred strikers from the yards. James Robertson, union business agent, said: "It has ceased to be a strike and now becomes a lockout."

Mayor Lamport and the board of control met in emergency session to cope with problems arising from the strike. The mayor said he felt the full wage demands of the strikers—15 cents an hour

Gives Tips On Building Of Air Raid Shelters

OTTAWA, Jan. 4. (CP).—Tips on how to construct air raid shelters are contained in the latest manual released by the office of Canada's Civil Defence Co-ordinator, Maj.-Gen. F. W. Worthington.

The manual contains plans and specifications showing how shelters can be built in buildings or aside from buildings. The householder is told how he can plan accommodation in his own home that will stand up under almost anything short of a direct hit.

No general sale of the manual is planned.

Jumps 100 Feet Off Bridge To Death

HAMILTON, Jan. 4 (CP)—A man believed to be George G. Granatier, Hamilton sign painter, today fell 100 feet to his death from a bridge on the Hamilton-Toronto highway, three miles east of here.

Drivers on the highway said they saw a car which was proceeding toward Toronto stop in the centre of the bridge. A few seconds later they said they saw a man leave the car, run around the front of it, leap onto the bridge railing and sit there for a few seconds.

Mrs. Peter Mahay of Stratford, was a passenger in an auto immediately following the car.

"He appeared to be a man of around 45," he said. "He left his car and was on top of the railing in a few seconds. I did not know what was going to happen. Then he slipped, dropped about two feet and hung with his fingers on the spars. He stayed like that for about three seconds, then he let go and I heard his body crash onto the ice."

Alberta Towns Isolated By Snow Storm

LETHBRIDGE, Jan. 4 (CP). — Nearly all the major towns in this Southwestern Alberta district Thursday went into their second day of isolation as drifting snow plugged the highways.

Raymond Cardston, Pincher Creek, Magrath and Picture Butte and Waterton Lakes National Park still are isolated despite efforts of snowplow crews.

Rural schools were forced to close and traffic on all but main highways was at a standstill.

Winds were averaging 40 miles an hour, with gusts up to 58.

Conditions were not expected to return to normal until the weekend.

Have Tough Job

Livestock feeders are finding it difficult to move feed daily over snow-packed trails to sheep and cattle in feed lots.

Temperatures in the area hovered around the 20-above mark.

Snowplows Thursday cleared the highway between Pincher Creek and Cowley, releasing marooned cars and two Greyhound buses that were snowbound. Army rescue vehicles evacuated more than 100 persons, including 10 babies.

The first official estimate today placed at more than $100,000 the damage caused by flood waters of the ice-choked Bow River in Calgary's suburban Bowness this week.

The estimate was made by Carl O. Nickle, Progressive Conservative member of parliament and chairman of the newly formed executive of the Bow River Flood Emergency Fund, after an inspection of the flooded area.

Police Stage Narcotics Raid

BUFFALO, NY, Jan. 4 (AP).—Federal, state, and city authorities today widened a roundup of narcotics peddlers and users that so far has netted 13 arrests.

Det.-Sgt. John Stanton of the police narcotics squad said the crackdown was launched Thursday night in co-operation with federal and state narcotics agents who have been operating in Buffalo for the last two months.

A federal agent said the crackdown stemmed from the recent disclosure that Buffalo was one of the chief distribution points for narcotics purchased in New York City.

Wanted To See People

Ghost Haunting Family Engineered By Lonely Girl

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 4 (AP)—Maybe you don't believe in ghosts, but it was a ghost that brought 11-year-old Joyce Sanders her greatest happiness.

"It made a lot of people come to see me," the youngster told county police Thursday between sobs as she admitted the spook that haunted the Henry Thacker family was her own creation.

Joyce was lonely, and she had problems that would make many an adult wince. The youngster, a boarder in the Thacker home with her two sisters, is a ward of the Louisville and Jeferson County Children's Home. Her mother is critically ill with cancer. She doesn't know where her father is.

To pass away the time, she put the spook to work last Sunday at his playful antics. Various household articles would float mysteriously through the air. Boxes sailed around the room for no apparent reason. News of the "phenomena" spread and soon crowds of curious neighbors filled the Thacker home.

Joyce was never happier. She and her sisters saw themselves on television. As the crowds grew, the girl made the ghost more active, moving him to other parts of the house.

Country patrolmen Russell McDaniel and Jack Fisher, somewhat skeptical of the reports, investigated. They saw the falling cans and knives. They also noticed that all such goings-on took place only when Joyce was around.

After a private conference with the fifth-grade student, they announced the ghost was no more. Joyce had admitted throwing the object when no one was looking.

But, she added, "I didn't throw all those things. People just imagined some of them."

Angry Citizens Have Sore Feet

Caught In TTC Strike, Thousands Hike

TORONTO, Jan. 4 —(CP)—Much of Toronto marched to work today.

Thousands of citizens, caught in the effects of a street-car and bus strike, found shank's mare the only way to get downtown.

For many it was too long and hard a way. They gave up the project, unable to obtain taxis or share over-crowded private transportation.

For those who grimly kept on, it was a weary pilgrimage along strangely-silent streets. There were no noisy street-cars to clatter over the intersections or down the cobbled tram lines. The city's travelling went silently on rubber—or painfully on foot.

The suddenness of the strike call by employees of the city-owned Toronto Transportation Commission put many a firm's carefully - planned emergency transport out of kilter.

Some companies broadcast instructions over local radio stations early today. One big department store told all employees living roughly a mile or so away to walk to work.

Special Urgency

The city's growth in recent years to suburban areas as much as 20 miles from downtown lent a special urgency to the plight of residents of these areas.

Rail lines provided some transport from towns east and west of the city. But to the north, 20 miles to suburban Richmond Hill, the strike-bound TTC was the only transport link. Northward, more than 100,000 live more than five miles from downtown.

At the Bay and Dundas Streets main terminal of Gray Coach Lines — a TTC subsidiary — there wasn't a bus to be seen today. Drivers had taken them to the garages. The station, normally the centre of operation radiating to eastern, western and northern Ontario, was strangely still. This cut off hundreds of commuters living in towns 30 and 40 miles away.

I talked to men and women trudging downtown. Some were angry. One woman said she had walked from Sunnyside, more than three miles.

Motorists Helpful

Workers reaching downtown said motorists were going out of their way to pick up passengers. Some drivers halted whenever they saw citizens walking to inquire if they wanted a lift.

A hotel employee, going home after a night's work, glumly faced the prospect of a five-mile, uphill walk to St. Clair and Dansdowne Avenues.

"Oh, well," he said, with a shrug, "I used to be a policeman. It'll just be like old times."

His mood, half-nettled, half-philosophical, reflected much of Toronto's today.

Charge Reds Writing Truce Terms

UN Official States Allies Making Most of Compromises

TOKYO, Jan. 4 (AP)—The United Nations command spokesman said in effect today that the Communists are writing most of the terms of a Korean armistice.

"We have been doing all the giving," said Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, "and they have been doing all the receiving. We have made many compromises in an effort to make progress in the armistice talks.

"They have interpreted these compromises as weaknesses and have sat back waiting for the United Nations Command to make additional compromises.

"Every major concession during the talks has been made by the United Nations Command."

Would Give Agreement

For the most part, the record of six months of debate would support Nuckols but the Communists would give him an argument on several points.

The Reds could claim they made a major concession when they dropped their demand that the cease-fire line be drawn along the 38th Parallel. They bowed to UN insistence that the line follow the actual battlefront. Almost all of it is north of the 38th.

Another major concession by the Communists was their agreement to allow inspection behind their lines by neutral observers, although they placed limits on the extent of inspection. It nevertheless was a major departure from Communist policy of never allowing outsiders to get behind an Iron Curtain and look around.

The Reds gave in to several other UN demands. They turned over to the Allies their list of prisoners-of-war before any decision was reached on how to exchange prisoners. After heavy UN pressure they also agreed to set up a sub-committee to discuss prisoner exchange at the same time another sub-committee worked out terms for enforcing an armistice.

Yield On 80 Per Cent

Nuckols said the UN Command has yielded on "4½ of the six major safeguards that we felt necessary for the security of our forces in Korea."

UN negotiators:

1. Have agreed to give up warwon islands off the North Korean coasts, which could serve as "sentinels" during an armistice.
2. Have dropped their demand for behind-the-lines inspection by joint UN-Communist military teams and accepted the Red proposal for inspection by neutral powers.
3. Have dropped their demand for aerial observation of Red areas.
4. Have accepted the concept of limited rotation of troops during an armistice. The number has not yet been decided.
5. Have agreed to limited rehabilitation of North Korean airfields for civilian use. (This is the "half safeguard" referred to by Nuckols. The UN Command, concerned over growing Red air power, originally demanded no construction of new airfields or reconstruction of old ones.)

$2,000,000 FIRE—Seven planes, No. 9 hangar and a large quantity of precision equipment were destroyed when fire swept RCAF's No. 6 Repair Depot at Trenton, Ont., Wednesday night. Firemen from nearby Belleville and Trenton assisted by service personnel on the station fought two hours to bring the fierce blaze under control and prevent its spread. A court of inquiry opened Thursday to determine cause of the fire.

Seven Objections To Allied Plan

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Communists made seven objections today to the six-point Allied plan for exchanging prisoners-of-war and rejected a new United Nations appeal for an immediate trade of sick and wounded prisoners

In a nearby tent at Panmunjom Allied truce negotiators asked for an explanation of reports that the Communists are shipping crated planes into North Korea. They also accused Red China of releasing soldiers of Korean origin from its armies in 1949 and 1950 to form the nucleus of the North Korean Red army.

Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsien Fang said there was nothing wrong in this.

Hsien, in turn, accused the Allies of holding behind their lines through intimidation with the atom bomb some 500,000 North Koreans.

Both sub-committees reported no progress toward an armistice. Both agreed to try again Saturday at 11 am (9 pm EST Friday) in Panmunjom.

The prisoner-exchange subcommittee held a marathon session lasting four hours and 20 minutes.

The Reds rejected the Allied exchange plan Thursday, but Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby asked them to study it further.

US Granting New Aid To India Under Pact

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 4 (AP)—Financial aid from the United States will be made available to India under an agreement to be signed here shortly, authoritative sources said today.

Details and the amount involved are being kept secret in India until the signing.

Sources said the agreement would be more comprehensive than the $1,500,000 point four program signed by the US and India in December, 1950. The new agreement covers both technical assistance and capital aid, they said.

A Washington special dispatch to The New York Times Thursday night said the Truman administration has decided to make a new effort to help India solve her economic problems with a $54,000,000 development program provided under the current Mutual Security Act appropriation.

Libya Has Applied For UN Membership

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP)—The new kingdom of Libya applied today for membership in the United Nations.

Observers believed that Russia, although opposed to Libya's military base tieup with the western powers, might refrain from using her ever-ready veto, and let Libya in.

Their reasoning was based on two factors:

1. The precedent set up by admission of Israel and Indonesia—both more or less creations of the UN.
2. The Russian desire to butter up the Arab countries, which are expected to campaign for Libyan membership.

Cut Christmas Trees Then Sought Owner

HALIBURTON, Ont., Jan. 4 — (CP)—Gordon Evans of Toronto told Magistrate E. A. Gee yesterday he was always in the habit of cutting a stock of Christmas trees and then looking around for the owner to pay for them.

Appearing on a charge of cutting 45 trees on a Dysart township reforestation project, Evans was reprimanded by Magistrate Gee and ordered to pay the township $90 for the trees and court costs of $21. He was placed on a year's suspended sentence.

Township Reeve Harold Black said he was happy to have the case brought to court. "People are taking trees from the project without permission every year. They seem to think they can pull up in a truck and start chopping down trees wherever they find them."

Frost Plans To Simplify Appeal Method On Rents

TORONTO, Jan. 4—Three things emerged from a provincial cabinet meeting Thursday which was devoted largely to consideration of problems of rent controls: There isn't going to be a flat percentage increase allowed for all controlled premises. The means by which a landlord or tenant may appeal against the rent fixed for his premises will be simplified.

The triparty committee on rent controls, which came to an end with the dissolution of the 23rd legislature, will be reconstituted.

A Toronto Star report on Wednesday predicted the government after the Thursday cabinet meeting would announce new, higher rent ceilings. Premier Frost said Thursday such a step had never been considered.

To Meet Tuesday

Jointly with Attorney-General Porter, he said that the cabinet would meet again on Tuesday about rent controls, following which some changes to simplify the regulations may be announced.

One scheme under consideration by the government would involve the creation of rental boards. These would function in the same way to the courts of revision which hear assessment appeals.

Such boards likely would sit in the evenings and in different parts of the city. They would attempt to resolve the differences between a landlord and tenant as to rent, and, if unsuccessful, would have power to set the rent.

At present appeals against a rent fixed by the rentals administration are taken to courts presided over by county court judges.

The government next week also is expected to announce certain changes which will make the rent control regulations in general more understandable to the layman.

US To Consult Britain On Atom

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill can get assurances when he reaches Washington that the United States will consult Britain before ordering any atomic bombing from air bases in the United Kingdom, it was learned today.

The Prime Minister voiced concern soon after the Conservative election victory that Britain might not be told in advance. He said in his Guildhall speech that an American atomic attack from the East Anglia air bases would put vulnerable Britain in the forefront of a third world war.

American authorities said it has been understood from the start that the bases would be used on a partnership basis.

US "Mistaken" About Visit

LONDON, Jan. 4 —(AP)—The Liberal News Chronicle says today that some American newspapers are putting the "wrong complexion" on Prime Minister Churchill's impending visit to the United States.

He is not going as a suppliant, the paper says.

"Some of the comments made, not only by the press but by Congress, are ungenerous and they suggest the people making them are not quite in touch with the realities of the situation," the Chronicle says.

"In some ways, their nervous apprehension at Churchill's coming is a measure of the high regard in which they hold him. But it would be a pity if the true nature and purpose of his visit were allowed to be obscured by persiflage or misunderstanding....

"Although the wrong complexion has been put upon this visit, the fact that Churchill has undertaken it does bring home the very close relations between the two countries which make it necessary," the paper adds.

80-Year-Old Woman Enjoys Sliding

JAFFREY CENTER, NH, Jan. 4 (AP)—It's "dignity be hanged" when 80-year-old Mabelle Cutter slides "belly bumps" down main street on her sled.

Miss Cutter did it last week on her 80th birthday—and she plans to continue doing it as long as snow lasts this winter.

She said she didn't assume the more "elegant sitting position" when she slid down the hill as a girl, and she added: "I'll be darned if I'm going to do it now."

A British Guard commander shot and killed an Egyptian cutting a cable near Suez today. The guard tried to chase him off, but when he refused to move, fired.

Surprise 30 Egyptians

A British patrol surprised 30 Egyptians loitering around some searchlights during the night and arrested four.

British headquarters said today that Egyptian "thugs" started Thursday's clash by firing at a signal box near Suez. At the same time another gang of Egyptians, perched on rooftops sent bullets spattering around water filtration plants in the area.

The scrap lasted two hours. Two British officers were wounded, one in the toe, the other in the thigh, the statement added. Thursday night's reports had said only one officer was injured.

Egyptian government bulletins Thursday night had claimed 15 British troops killed and 14 Egyptians wounded in the clash. The government asserted that 1,800 British troops, with tanks, had attacked a railroad marshalling yard.

December 1951 Warmer, Wetter

Weather for the month of December was warmer and wetter than for December 1950, according to data provided today by Peterborough's official weatherman, Jim Harrison, Superintendent of the Filtration Plant.

Statistics for December, 1951, are as follows: maximum temperature 59, minimum, 13, and average 22.45 degrees. Rain amounted to .63 inches and snow, 33¼ inches to give a total precipitation of 3.955 inches.

For December a year ago the high was 45, the low 16 below zero and the average temperature 20.7 degrees. Rain was .21 inches, and snow, eight inches, for a total of 1.01 inches.

The apparent difference for the past month, of course, was the depth of snowfall which was 25 inches greater than a year ago.

Bus Service Hit

Highway bus services—by the TTC's subsidiary, Gray Coach Lines—came to a halt in a populous section of Central Ontario.

The strike itself was no surprise. It had been in the making since December. But the timing caught the area off base when members of the Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-CIO) at an early-morning meeting rejected a proposal of its executive that the walkout be delayed until next Monday.

At 8.30 am it was too early to assess the full impact on industry and business. It was softened by swift adoption of emergency transportation measures by firms and individuals.

Firms which had made advance arrangements for car pools broadcast emergency instructions to employees. Thousands who normally travel by bus and street car got out their own autos. And they offered rides to thousands of others clustered at street car and bus stops.

Auto traffic in the early morning hours was at least five times heavier than normal.

Cruising Taxis

Cruising taxis—which adopted a flat $1 rate for a ride downtown—were numerous in the outskirts.

Privately-operated suburban bus lines were not affected. But because of terms of the TTC's charter they couldn't carry passengers within the city limits.

Hundreds within range of railway stations in the suburbs and in the city got to the downtown area by train.

The strike was completely effective and the TTC made no effort to operate. At 5 am—the start of the day working shift on the street car system—all street cars headed into the barns and stayed there. Gray Coach buses remained in their garages. Pickets went on duty at car barns and terminals.

The city adopted emergency traffic measures. Several main downtown streets were designated as one-way arteries to speed the increased flow of auto traffic. Parking restrictions were relaxed.

Picked Up By Truck

Plans of some firms called for pickup of employees by truck. But William Mills, president of the Truck Drivers' Union (AFL), announced that any union drivers picking up passengers would be suspended. Many firms went ahead with the truck plan, possibly using non-union drivers.

Most firms were expected to complete emergency measures over the weekend in an effort to get their traffic as close to normal as possible by Monday. They face a major job. On an average day, 393,600 people enter Toronto's downtown business area—229,000 carried by street cars and buses.

The union arranged to have about 75 maintenance men—such as boiler firemen and watchmen—remain at work. The strike doesn't involve inspectors, who supervise traffic, or TTC guides, who sell tickets at busy corners. But there wasn't anything for them to do.

The walkout, threatened for weeks, climaxed a long wage dispute. The union demanded a 15-cent hourly wage increase to $1.55 an hour. The TTC offered a five-cent increase to $1.45, including incorporation into the base rate of a 16-cent cost-of-living bonus. The company offer was in line with a majority report of a conciliation board.

Reject Proposal

The two basic wage figures—$1.55 and $1.45—were only 10 cents apart, But H. C. Patten, TTC general manager, said the difference was 30 cents. He estimated cost of fringe benefits demanded by the union at 20 cents an hour. He said accession to union demands would mean a 10-cent fare compared with the present three tickets for a quarter rate.

The union is reported during last-minute negotiations to have reduced its demands to $1.53 an hour.

Labor Minister Daley of Ontario entered the dispute in its closing stages. It is understood his final settlement proposal called for $1.48 an hour retroactive to last Oct. 1 and $1.51 effective next March 1. The union rejected this proposal at its mass meeting after midnight in Toronto's Massey Hall.

Before the vote was taken, the newspapermen were asked to leave the foyer of the hall, where they had remained after the gathering voted to exclude them from the meeting proper.

The union members leaving the hall at the conclusion of the rally were laughing and smiling.

The union released the figures on a strike vote taken about two weeks ago. It was 3,831 to 323 in favor of a strike.

Immediately after the meeting, the union executive went into session. One of the matters to be considered was that of working out arrangements for the strikers to be paid two weeks' wages coming to them from the TTC. The men also are entitled to strike pay of $15 a week from the International Union after the first week of the strike.

Several suburban bus lines were not directly involved in the strike. However, it was not known immediately whether those which normally use TTC terminals would be able to continue to do so.

Enforced Law Closes Garages

LINDSAY, Jan. 4 — Action, taken under the Highway Improvement Act, has forced four Lindsay gasoline stations to close temporarily and has affected three other stations.

The regulation, passed during Second World War, forbade setting up gasoline pumps closer to the highway or road than eight feet inside the property line.

A shortage of materials and labor during the war among other things forced the Department of Highways not to enforce the law. This year the department clamped down on all clear vision pumps and the pumps with eight-foot boundary. The law took effect January 1.

Most seriously affected is Western's garage, where owner, Clare Western, said that it is impossible to move the pumps back eight feet inside the property line. the garage will not sell gasoline in the future.

The other six stations are either preparing to move the pumps, according to regulations, several planning extensive renovations at the same time, or have just let contracts.

All the clear vision pumps at the stations will be replaced by the meter pumps.

Bus Service Cut To London

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP)—Bus service between London and three other Western Ontario cities was cut today when drivers for Gray Coach Lines, Ltd., went on strike.

The bus tie-up is part of the Toronto transit strike which started at 5 am. Gray Coach a subsidiary of the Toronto Transportation Commission, normally operates four round trips a day between London and Toronto. The route from there is via Elginfield, St. Mary's, Stratford, Kitchener, Guelph, Brampton and Cooksville.

There also is a one-a-day service between London and Guelph.

The strike, however, does not halt all service between here and Toronto. Other buses make the trip several times daily via No. 2 Highway going through Ingersoll, Woodstock, Brantford and Hamilton.

Service west of London — to Windsor, Chatham and Sarnia—also is by a bus line not affected by the walkout.

Chinese Mob Slaps, Spits On Three Nuns

HONG KONG, Jan. 4 (CP). — Three Roman Catholic Nuns—one of them a Canadian—were slapped, spat upon and smeared with filth by a Chinese mob after they were publicly tried in Red China last October.

The story of bestiality at the hands of the Communists was related New Years Day by one of the three, Marguerite de Reading Biberegg of Switzerland.

The other two were Lucine Riffou of Cap Desrosiers, Que., and Angela Casale of Italy.

(Originally they were identified erroneously by Roman Catholic sources here as Anna Fung and Agnes Swicker.)

The incident occurred last October in Changchun. The Nuns were later deported.

The Swiss Nun, whose religious name is Sister Mary Rudolf, said the Communist-incited crowd beat them and spat upon them for 11 hours. Each time they fell they were forced to rise for more slapping and spitting.

When a Communist officer stopped the ordeal the three were so bruised and drenched with spittle they could hardly see.

All three are over 50 years old. They were put on the train the day after the beating and reached Hong Kong Dec. 10.

The Sisters were convicted of the usual Communist charge of "murder" of children under their care at an orphanage. The charge is standard, based on deaths of children, many of whom are near death when brought to the orphanage.

Resume Talks On Firing Of 26

WINDSOR, Jan. 4 (CP)—Ford of Canada and Local 200, the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL), resumed talks today on grievance procedure in the cases of 26 fired Ford production men.

The parties had adjourned for two days to permit union leaders to question the men following three days of company-union conferences. The men, fired Dec. 3, have been charged by the company with inciting wildcat work stoppages in the Ford plant.

Dismissal of the 26 touched off a 12-day wildcat strike which ended Dec. 14 when both company and union agreed to leave the firings to arbitration.

It is believed that union-company talks are not dealing with the cases of six Ford production men fired Dec. 21 for alleged leadership Dec. 3 in a forced powerhouse shutdown at the Ford plant.

Police have laid a variety of carnival charges—including assault and intimidation — against the six in connection with the incident.

Mixed Support Holds Market To Little Gain

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP). — Mixed mid-session support today held early afternoon stock market prices for little gain.

Industrials opened slightly higher in continuation of yesterday's late upswing but lost most gains during the first hour. Miscellaneous industrials led the market with a scattered list of fractional advances. Agricultures, steels and liquors drew firm support while papers, utilities, constructions, foods, banks and retail stores held gains and losses in balance.

In base metals Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay, International Nickel, Quemont and Waite Amulet climbed fractions. United Keno Hill, MacDonald, Yale Lead and Yukeno weakened.

Western oils were mixed. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Okalta, Sapphire and Western Leaseholds strengthened but Gridoil, North Canadian and Trans Empire slipped.

Senior golds were quiet. Lake Shore added fractions while Giant Yellowknife and Malartic eased. Secondary issues made little headway.

"REGIONS BEYOND"

This forty-five minute sound film shows the Congo district in full colour. Most of the film, photographed in the heart of the Congo district of Africa, tells the true story of the work of two of God's servants, given the names of Jim and Mary in the film.

The story begins with the founding of a new village outpost, moves on through two attempts at Jim's life, an outbreak of a fever epidemic, the death of their baby daughter from the same fever and the heart-rendering funeral that followed. It climaxes in the mission hospital at the main station where Mary, in bed with fever, reaffirms her determination to go back to their village with Jim to finish what God had led them to begin.

Crashed Plane Dug Out, Awaits Runway

COBOURG, Jan. 4—There was much activity Thursday out at the farm of Charles Wilson on the outskirts of Cobourg where the US plane with its 44 passengers landed safely on December 20 after being blown off course by a bad storm.

Thursday the wheels of the big airliner were lowered into holes which had been dug underneath and the aircraft was pulled out along an earth ramp by a bulldozer. Up on level ground damage was assessed more readily than when she was lying on her fuselage with landing wheels retracted.

Engines Not Damaged

Flight engineer W. D. Lymburner of Sanderson Aircraft Ltd., Malton, in charge of the job of getting the plane in shape again, found that the engines were in good shape. However two new props have to be installed, along with two cowl gills, two oil cooler radiators, a new rudder and elevator parts. Some of these have to come in from the United States.

Perhaps next week, perhaps later, when the repairs are completed and a 2,000 ft. emergency take-off strip levelled off, the plane will take off to the northwest, over No. 2 Highway, and will have to clear hydro and telephone wires which flank the highway. When the take-off is imminent, all traffic on the highway will be kept clear of the take-off course.

Planning To Prosecute 3 Chinese Papers

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Jan. 4—(AP)—Attorney General Dr. Raden Soeprato says three Chinese newspapers — two of them pro-Communist, the other a Nationalist publication—will be prosecuted for "inflammatory publications."

The two Communist publications last week printed strong appeals from Peiping radio for unity "against Nationalist traitors."

The pro-Nationalist daily printed a cartoon showing Stalin leading a leashed dog. The dog's head was that of Chinese Communist Premier Mao Tse-tung. Seoprato, whose government has recognized Red China, said the cartoon was an insult to a friendly state.

Lloyds Give Captain 7-to-2 Chance On Ship

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Lloyds of London made Capt. Kurt Carlsen a 7-to-2 choice today to reach harbor with his broken freighter Flying Enterprise.

The famed insurance brokers quoted a premium of 30 guineas for each £100 of coverage to reinsure the freighter against total loss.

That means Lloyds gives Carlsen about 70 chances to make it against 22-to lose his ship—or in horse-player odd something like 7 to 2.

Midland Has Hopes From Toronto Strike

MIDLAND, Jan. 4 (CP)—Toronto's street-car and bus strike is going to do great things for this Georgian Bay town, says the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

"The strike.... will accelerate Ontario's industrial decentralization. Several firms... considering sites in this district have told us that under no circumstances would they locate in Toronto. The traffic tangle was bad enough before the strike."

Recount Reveals Larger Majority

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4 — (ENS).—Judge M. A. Miller of Cobourg announced the result of the recount of the ballots in the election for Deputy Reeve today, which resulted in no change as far as the position of the present deputy is concerned.

The recount did result, however in a correction of the original figure of a majority of some 41 votes for Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason, who won the seat at the December 3 elections here. The majority was believed to be 14 votes, but after the recount by Judge Miller, the figure now is officially recorded as 16 votes. This gives the present Deputy Reeve a clear-cut, but small majority.

In the December 3 elections, Mason polled 671 votes to 655 by Nicholas. William A. Nicholas, a councillor in the 1951 town council, demanded the recount after the election. He said he was not contesting the election, merely the majority. It was brought to light that a deputy returning officer in one of the wards made a mistake by counting the total of votes cast for Councillor Douglas Maybee, and crediting these to Deputy Reeve Mason. This accounted for the difference in the majority figures. Nicholas lost one vote each in wards 2 and 4, according to the recount.

The judge will settle who pays the costs of the recount. Mr. Nicholas posted a $100 bond to secure the recount, but whether or not he or the town will have to pay the costs has not yet been announced by the judge.

The official count by wards in the election for Deputy Reeve is as follows:

	Nicholas	Mason
Ward 1	166	205
Ward 2	132	170
Ward 3	221	127
Ward 4	136	169
Totals	655	671

The count started at 10:30 Thursday morning, and Judge Miller announced his decision one hour and 35 minutes later. Total ballots counted were 1,526.

Building In Peterborough

Again Peterborough underwent a record amount of building, in dollars-and-cents recording. During the year just ended building permits were issued to a total of $4,608,187 in new construction. The total for 1950, another record year, was $3,959,358.

* * *

It is interesting to note the fairly constant increase in building (the figures reflect equally an increase in building costs) since the war. Here are the figures:

1946—$2,435,941
1947—$3,511,771
1948—$2,356,097
1949—$3,781,799
1950—$3,959,358
1951—$4,608,187

The slump in 1948 may be attributed in part to the economic slow-down before the Korean war, and in part to the municipality and citizens getting their wind between the immediate post-war period and the new peacetime state of affairs. The figures included new housing (but not houses put up under government auspices), municipal building, shops, and new factories or additions to them.

* * *

An analysis of the private house-building permits is interesting. Here are the figures:

Year	No. of Houses	Total Cost	Average Cost
1946	160	$765,450	$4,780
1947	123	614,750	4,990
1948	193	1,077,900	5,590
1949	270	1,775,250	6,575
1950	301	2,518,000	8,330
1951	218	1,865,530	8,450

* * *

These figures, compiled from building permits issued by the City Engineer, show that 1,265 houses have been privately built in the city since the war. This is quite apart from housing blocks developed with Government assistance, for which the City Engineer has no records, since they were built without permits. It is a good, thriving record; a tribute to individual enterprise and optimism in a field of rising prices.

* * *

And prices have risen. The record above is black (perhaps we should say red) in this regard. In 1946 the average cost of houses built privately in Peterborough was $4,780. Last year it was $8,450. The list does gloss over the kind of houses built. For instance, in 1950 the average price rose $1,755 over 1949. It is a tremendous increase not entirely to be accounted for by the rise in building costs. The quality of the houses built must have been better in 1950 than in 1949; or their size was greater. In other words, we prefer to believe that among the 301 houses built in 1950, a larger proportion than usual were bigger and better houses than usual. But, alas, there can be no gainsaying that the average cost of the 218 houses built in this city last year was $8,450, according to the City Engineer's records. Gone are the days when 'Bide-A-Wee' could be put up for $2,500 (an average price for a bungalow before the war) or even for $4,780 as in 1946.

Wool-Pulling At Ottawa

Too many statements not in accord with facts have come out of Ottawa during the last year, particularly as regards the defence program, for us to believe that the Government is above-board with the Canadian people. To the contrary; it seems that the Government is trying to pull the wool over their eyes.

Take the instance of "Harvard Day" at Fort William on October 27th last. The local Chamber of Commerce issued special invitations to 200 leaders in government and industry "to recognize the production of the first Harvard trainer" at the local plant. As Canadian Aviation notes, the celebration was a big success. The Right Honourable C. D. Howe, Minister of Defence Production, principal banquet speaker, said that it was a privilege "to accept the first Harvard trainer aircraft to come off the assembly line." It seemed to be the first-fruits of the $36 million trainer program, begun in March.

Canadian Aviation says there no Harvard of postwar manufacture was "anywhere ready to fly."

The trainers acclaimed at the Fort William plant and put through their flying paces for the visitors were, without exception, assembled from war surplus or "shelf" components which had been modified at Montreal, freighted to Fort William, and bolted together on the "assembly line" there. Even now, two months after this premature celebration, the first postwar Harvard trainer manufactured at Fort William is still many weeks from the flight test stage. . .

For the success of the plant tour which was a highlight of the big day, it was fortunate that the Fort William plant had a bus production program humming and that bus panels in the big forming presses, punches and routers could have been Harvard skin panels. It made a convincing enough picture, especially with the "shelf" components, of 1945 vintage, on the assembly line. Apparently no one noticed, or was indiscreet enough to mention, the manufacturing plates labelled "Noorduyn."

If this were an isolated instance, it might be put down to over-enthusiasm or miscalculation. But there are many examples of ministerial misstatement, particularly on matters relating to defence expenditures and achievement. Is Ottawa deliberately hoodwinking the people? Is the Government so conscious of its own power and security of tenure that it feels it can rule for the people's good without consulting or informing them; or indeed, by acting one way and talking another? Even if the people are being mislead for what the Government conceives to be their own good, it is their right to know what the path is, and its direction.

Louis XIV and Napoleon after him are reported to have said: L'etat, c'est moi. 'I am the State'. The Liberal Administration at Ottawa seems to think "L'etat, c'est nous." The Harvard trainer affair needs explanation.

Think Again, Mr. Rinfret

As we walked to work this morning our eye was caught by a new, beautifully painted truck working for the Post Office; upon its side it bore the royal arms and these words in gold—Royal Mail. We looked again to be sure that our eyes were not playing tricks, but the words were still, unmistakeably Royal Mail, and the paint was plainly very new. We walked on, deciding that the Postmaster-General, the Hon. Gabriel Edouard Rinfret, was the victim of a strange illusion. For Mr. Rinfret insists that the expression Royal Mail is no longer used in this country. He says that it was abolished 25 or 30 years ago, when the Hon. Charles Murphy was postmaster-general. And yet we had seen, in new and glossy paint, this discredited phrase on a Peterborough mail truck. And we are certain that if Mr. Rinfret were to look across Canada, he would find Royal Mail on a good many post boxes, trucks, rural delivery carts and other appurtenances of the mail service. Indeed, as has been pointed out by the Ottawa Journal, the four large mail boxes in the Houses of Parliament bear this legend, along with the royal arms and the word "Canada."

If somebody officiously decided to get rid of the term Royal Mail during Mr. Murphy's regime, it is apparent that a good many other people, with better sense, decided to keep it, for it continues to appear on Post Office equipment which is quite new. And if Mr. Rinfret is wise, we think that he will leave matters as they are.

The Loss Leader

The long wrangle in Parliament over the bill to ban retail price maintenance has produced the spectre of the "loss-leader." A loss-leader is an article of well-known brand or in common demand put on sale at a spectacularly cheap price, sometimes well below the cost of it to the merchant. It is a device to attract customers into the store. For instance: a grocer might advertise bread at nine cents a loaf ('one to a customer') in the hope that the people who come to buy the loaf will remain to buy other goods on which the grocer makes a good profit—a profit big enough to make up for the loss on the bread.

Government proponents of the price maintenance bill have said that the loss-leader is not the bogey the 'opponents' of the bill believe; that laws can and do prevent this cut-throat commercial method. But the opposition to the bill was not giving any leeway. When the M.P.'s returned to the chamber to resume the debate after a recess, they had copies of an American magazine which were handed out to them. The issue contained an article on the evils of a free retail price market, it cited the most startling of all price-leaders which had been used by an American retailer. Crisp new dollar bills were put on sale—at 95 cents. The store did a roaring business of course—in selling dollar bills. But its free money had some strings attached to it. Only one sale of a dollar was made to each customer, and telephone and mail orders were not accepted.

The magazine article did not convince a majority of the members of Parliament that the price maintenance bill should not be passed.

NOTES AND COMMENT

"Dead Man Killed While Crossing Street," says a headline. Have motorists no reverence for the dead?

Windsor boasts that it is a healthy city. Some awfully argumentative people live, there, though.

We fully approve of the police advice: If you drink, don't drive, and if you drive, don't drink. But why not be utterly fantastic some night and just stay home, eating an apple?

The Brantford dog-catcher complains that he needs a new uniform, not having had one in four years. And nothing annoys a dog like being hauled out of somebody's garbage can by a shabby public official.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: There has been a big noise south of the border, in the deep South, about offering pelicans to Britain. Why and wherefore?

ANSWER: The last pelican in St. James's Park, London, died some time ago and generous Americans—who are alert to advertise their own state's bounties and beauties—offered to send pelicans to the Park. At Questions and Answers time in the U.K. House of Commons recently, the Minister of Works, Mr. David Eccles, informed the House that offers of pelicans had been accepted from the Governor of Texas, the State of Louisiana, the Ameer of Bahawalpur and a private citizen in Kenya. People the world over have a soft heart for pelican-bereft Britain.

Mr. Eccles was also asked if the pelicans allocated to the Park would include at least one bird of each sex. The Minister: "I am informed that the only sure guide to the sex of a pelican is another pelican. I am awaiting developments" . . . How astonishing, in this day and age when experts can tell the sex of a chick only one day old!

DON'T YOU THINK, ALPH, that Peterborough is sadly lacking in originality and imagination in the naming of its highways and byways? For instance, I travel through other cities full of lovely avenues, boulevards, parkways etc., but what do I find in Peterborough? . . . nothing but streets (and those of the common ordinary every day variety). As far as I know the only thoroughfare in this mid-Victorian neck of the woods toney enough to even bear the name of "road" is Monaghan (pronounced Monahan in the better circles.) Now, sir, I ask you—instead of Park Street, Sherbrooke Street, Bolivar Street, Gilmour Street, etc. etc., wouldn't you prefer Park Lane, Sherbrooke Avenue, Bolivar Boulevard, Gilmour Parkway? Couldn't we be a little more poetic, and not quite so stodgy?

ANSWER: I think it more important that the given name of the street be good than that alternatives for "street"—like parkway, avenue or boulevard—be provided.

In the best American or French sense we have no avenues or boulevards. Nor do we use the word avenue to distinguish thoroughfares which run at right angles to "streets" (as in Calgary). Peterborough is not pretentious, except perhaps about its "avenues" of which it has no fewer than 75—including Fagan Avenue.

Perhaps I shall make my preference clear by this reference. Oxford used to have a small street called Magpie Lane. In the late nineteenth century this vulgar name was changed to "Grove Street". But when the Victorian false notion of vulgarity had spent itself, the Oxford City officials changed the name back to its present old one, "Magpie Lane", which I much prefer. It is a lane rather than a street, and "Magpie" has more tone than "Grove"—although Grove is not bad, when there is no Magpie to make it cheerful.

You are wrong in your assumption that Peterborough has only one "Road"—Monaghan Road (pronounced locally as Monaggan, for which there is no reason except the local practice—which, I suggest, should be followed, rather than the correct pronunciation of Monahan—with the snored 'h'). Peterborough has no fewer than ten 'roads', from Armour Road to Snelgrove Road.

There is really a surprising variety in the designations of streets—as much variety as the city can decently bear. It has, besides 75 avenues and ten roads, six Drives, eight Places, five Crescents (apart from Crescent Street), two boulevards (Edgewater and Sunset), and, I am glad to say, three Lanes. There are even three streets which are indecisively neither streets, avenues, boulevards or anything else—so far, just their names. The Directory refuses to call them anything but Lillian, Herman and Lynch. All seem to be quite new streets, so perhaps the residents or city fathers have not yet decided whether they shall be boulevards, drives, streets, avenues, or merely Lanes.

DEAR ALPHA: I suppose that the phrase God Save the King is as old as kingdoms and Christianity. I am rather curious to know when people began to feel well-disposed enough towards thrones to wish that God would save the King?

ANSWER: The phrase antedates Christianity. As far as I know, it first appears in written language in I Samuel, verse 24, which is about 500 B.C. This is translated in the Vulgate as Vivat Rex.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR ALPHA: Could you, or would you publish information in your column as to what percentage, if any, of Canadian Postage funds is payable to the British Government, or the King?

I believe at one time a percentage was so paid, but do not know whether or not this has been discontinued.

ANSWER: This question came in a month ago and I have been unable to get a specific dollar-and-cents answer. The King never has got, personally or for his household, any cut on Canadian postage, as far as I know. Since 1851, even before Confederation, the Canadian provinces have controlled their own post, for the Imperial postal department transferred its services to the Provinces then. After Confederation, the Dominion Government has controlled the Royal Mail in Canada. In 1875 Canada and the United States agreed to a postal "convention" and since 1878, Canada has been a member of the International Postal Union.

From 1713 to the nineteenth century there was no international system of accountancy for transit mail; but postal treaties were in effect between pairs of countries. In 1875 the International Postal Convention was accepted by 22 states, all of them in Europe. This quickly expanded to include most other nations of the world. The International Postal Union, with headquarters in Berne, Switzerland, acts as a clearing house for the settlement of accounts, and the Convention provides for uniformity of postal rates and units of weight. The Postal Convention and subordinate agreements are revised periodically, usually at intervals of five or six years, when a congress of national members is held.

In the matter of payments, it is assumed that the amount of mail passing directly between two countries—e.g. Italy and Canada—is the same each way, and that therefore the letters which the Canadian Post Office delivers, on which Italian postage has been paid, are compensated by the letters bearing Canadian postage which the Italian Post Office delivers. However, definite payments, agreed to in the Convention, are made by the country that despatches mails by the trains or steamships of another country for the use of these services. For instance, Canada would pay France something for Canadian letters destined for Italy which were carried through France. No payment is made to the country of destination.

According to this method, therefore, no revenue derived from stamps is paid to the British Government at all, since Canada bears the cost of delivering in Canada mail with British postage sent from Britain. The flow of correspondence in each direction is assumed to be approximately equal.

Incidentally, travellers will have noticed that the postage rate in a foreign country on letters to be sent back to Canada is approximately equal to the rate of sending Canadian letters to that country. If the currency of the foreign country is depressed, then the rate in francs or lire rises, to keep it up to the exchange rate of Canadian dollars.

FOR THE RECORD: The original railway route from Montreal to Toronto was via Smiths Falls and Peterborough, and not along the Lake shore. This route is still used by Peterborough passengers to Montreal and the journey is probably as leisurely now as it was ninety years ago. Unless my count is wrong, the train makes 42 scheduled stops between Peterborough and Windsor station.

WINSTON CHURCHILL

"The Greatest Man Alive Today"

HE is probably the greatest man alive today—certainly the greatest living Englishman; yet many still doubt whether he will be a successful peacetime Prime Minister. He has been an outstanding landmark of our public life for more than fifty years; but he is still, at 77, something of an unknown quantity. In the course of a fantastic life, he has done enough to make half-a-dozen famous reputations; yet the final judgement of history on his career is hard to foresee. He is universally admired and genuinely loved by his fellow countrymen, but he has rarely been accorded their complete confidence. Nor is it yet possible to judge whether their long refusal to entrust their destiny—except during one "climacteric" period of supreme danger and stress—to this unique and revered man has been intuitive wisdom or base, ungrateful stupidity.

The refusal cannot be dismissed as the usual (and often justified) reaction of staid mediocrity to genius. For it would be inaccurate to call Mr. Churchill a genius. He has a copious, original and powerful mind, and a wide range of remarkable gifts. But he has not "genius"—if by that is meant the incalculable and erratic intuition which, for example, made Lloyd George pass through British history like an apparition. Compared with Lloyd George, Mr. Churchill is very much one of us, sturdy, native, patriotic, loyal, dependable. Where he transcends ordinary humanity and inspires the awe due to greatness is not in genius, but in two other qualities: vitality and courage.

HIS vitality is of an heroic order and makes one think of pagan demi-gods. Counting his works and deeds—his books, his speeches, his parliamentary career, the offices he has held, his diplomatic conferences, his great political campaigns and his even greater war leadership—one fails to understand how all this could have been done in one life time.

Nor has it been the result of ascetic discipline and strict self-organization. All this enormous activity and productivity has gone side by side with gigantic hobbies—his painting alone would account for a respectable minor existence—and indulgence of a taste for the civilized pleasures of the table and of nocturnal talk, which would spell the ruin of a mere mortal's constitution. But here the great man stands, approaching his eighties in the full splendour of his powers, keen-eyed and indomitable.

His courage is of an equally fabulous kind. It is neither that deliberate conquest of fear that can make a sensitive man fearless, nor, certainly, is it the fearlessness of insensitivity. Rather, it is a preternatural capacity for finding positive happiness in an endless struggle with danger and adversity. That Churchill has been a happy warrior throughout his life is obvious. To call him a "warmonger" is a vulgar distortion of this instinctive enjoyment of struggle.

Moreover, its roots probably lie far from actual war experience. It we recall his stammer, his miserable school career and the fact that he was for long regarded as a stupid boy, we may suspect that he went through some inner crisis in his early days and triumphantly overcome his impediments, thus acquiring a taste for such exultant endeavours that has never left him. In any case, the exercise of courage, fortitude and endurance has always been to him a pleasurable activity, not a painful duty or penance.

Churchill's vitality and courage are superhuman, and inspire feelings of awe-struck admiration. But it is his rich admixture of warmly human virtues and failings that change admiration into love. He has a brilliant and sympathetic sense of humour and boundless generosity; the most complete freedom from cruelty and malice; and a quickness to forgive and general readiness of the emotions that have made him the most devoted of husbands, the most long-suffering of parents, and the ideal of a friend and comrade.

WITH these virtues go his almost equally lovable, or equally amusing, frailties. He sometimes seems unable to lose gracefully, becoming involved in undignified arguments; he is capable of cynicism and of recklessness, and has a cosy tolerance of friends with these defects; he shows the broad contempt for discretion of a 17th century Cavalier, a whiff of the capacity for misjudgement of an 18th century Jacobite, and a trace of the pushfulness of a 19th century American go-getter.

Withal he has a ready wit, an honesty of nature, a full-flooded good conscience and an indulgent self-enjoyment that bring to mind certain characters of Shakespeare—Mercutio, for instance, and even Sir John Falstaff. All this, added to the great and serious facts of Churchill's career, explains why he has, even in his life-time, become a hero of popular legend, the central figure of a thousand anecdotes, and the inspiration of an adjective, Churchillian. Whatever his place in history, his place in folklore is secure. It is safe to say that in a thousand years from now his name will be popularly known; it will surely conjure up a warm glow, a proud smile, and signify what is most bold and generous in human nature.

But in the meantime, this great man is now entrusted, by the narrowest margin of votes, with the sober business of directing British policy at a highly difficult and delicate moment in our fortunes and, indeed, in the fortunes of humanity. He is today arriving for inevitably important talks with the American President. And we are confronted by the strange fact that it is hard to guess even the gist of what he will be asking in our name, that it is harder to sense even the general trend of his policy on key questions than it would be that of less-illustrious figures, such as Mr. Attlee or Mr. Eden.

TO think that Mr. Churchill may seek war is, of course, gross stupidity: no sane British statesman could today do that. It is also a vulgar underestimate of Churchill's artistry in the shaping of his own life: he would not aim at a mere repetition of past glory for his final climax. He has himself said with considerable emphasis that he seeks nothing less than a settled peace as his "last prize." But there are several widely divergent ways of seeking that aim, and no indication which he may choose. It only seems "safe to predict" that the course he will steer will be neither safe nor predictable.

This is, no doubt, one reason why many people who love and admire Mr. Churchill have voted against him in the last three elections. Another, and more delicate one, is a vague unease at feeling that the fortunes of the country might become too closely mixed up with the personal story of even the greatest of her sons. Nobody would suggest for a moment that Mr. Churchill does not see himself as the servant of his country, or that he has not a greater right to do so than practically anyone. But he would also be less than human (and he is anything but that) if he were not interested in what is the greatest individual life-story of this century. In both his books on the two World Wars, he has used a literary form otherwise unknown (except in a work of fiction by Defoe): a mixture of history and autobiography. This suggests that he himself cannot always clearly separate the two. It may, indeed, he doubted whether any Great Man ever quite can.

Any consideration of Mr. Churchill's career as a whole brings one up against the extraordinary fact that, for all its majestic scope, it remains to this day tragically unfulfilled and fragmentary. His political role has certainly not been meteoric and disastrous, like Napoleon's or Hitler's. But neither has it been linked to a definite achievement like Richelieu's or Chatham's, Washington's or Lincoln's, Bismarck's or Lenin's. So far, he leaves no completed work. He leaves glory, tragedy and unfinished business.

IN history, as opposed to legend, Mr. Churchill's reputation will probably depend on his ability during his remaining lifetime to bring some kind of provisional order and stability out of the chaos and unsettlement left by the Second World War; and he is probably aware of this. That supreme moment in 1940, when he staked the existence of Britain on the undoing of Hitler's overwhelming conquest of Europe, made the Second World War in a peculiar sense his war. It is his tragedy that his influence on the political and military conduct of the war diminished with its progress, that from about the middle of 1943 onwards he lost practically every round in the Allied war councils and saw his every proposal turned down, until in the end the Allied victory, by bringing Russia halfway across Europe, concealed a heavy British defeat. Churchill can pled with justification that he, in contrast to Roosevelt, foresaw that such an outcome would in effect mean a defeat—which turned out to be also an American defeat; that this outcome would have been avoided had the policy and strategy which he passionately advocated been accepted in the Allied war councils; and that in this sense the responsibility for the present tragic situation is not his.

But it is doubtful whether in his heart of hearts he can feel satisfied with this. He himself has remarked that in the first world war, during the Gallipoli episode, he learned by bitter experience that one cannot shape grand strategy from a subordinate position. He had then been First Lord of the Admiralty. In the Second World War he was British Prime Minister, but as such he was again in a somewhat inferior position from the moment that the war became an Allied, and therefore primarily an American, war. His personal failure and misfortune was that he lost his influence with President Roosevelt, who was bent on establishing an American-Russian entente and felt that Churchill was out to disturb this for narrowly-conceived British interests.

This feeling Mr. Churchill never managed to dispel; indeed, as far as the published records show, he never tried to; and perhaps he did not do so because he secretly shared it. He could only have convinced Roosevelt of the dangers of his course if he had argued his case from an entirely different premise—from an Anglo-American or, indeed, a frankly American point of view. This he never did. He was content to appear as the upholder of a traditional British balance-of-power policy, which made no appeal to Roosevelt; and this although the idea of a political merging of Britain with America was not alien to his mind, as his Harvard speech of 1944 and again his Fulton speech in 1947 showed.

BUT Mr. Churchill's mind has a peculiar capacity for holding contradictory ideas at the same time. In the years between 1943 and 1945 he entertained at the same time the following concepts as the aims of his policy:—the establishment of an Anglo-American union, of a restored balance of power manipulated by Britain, and of a separate Anglo-Russian understanding; and, on a smaller scale, the concept of a United Europe (presumably including Germany) to be established to check Russia, and of a totally disarmed and dismembered Germany. To consider all these possibilities, before discarding any, shows admirable flexibility of mind; but to follow them all up simultaneously, or waver between them undecidedly, was inevitably self-defeating.

Mr. Churchill's early post-war speeches—especially those at Fulton and Zurich, which may come to be regarded as the most statesmanlike he ever made—show that he felt his responsibility for the 1945 disaster keenly and was trying his hardest to help undo its consequences. He has, in general, shown a greater single-mindedness and clarity of political vision out of office than in it.

Indeed his speeches since he has been returned to power have shown the same tendencies that contributed to his frustration in the years 1943-45: the tendency to try to make a grand world strategy from a secondary and pseudo-independent power position (instead of aiming to gain the greater leverage of commitment to a permanent partnership with one great power or even with a group of secondary powers); and the tendency to hope that a grand solution would come out of tangle of contradictory policies, like a rabbit out of a magician's hat. It is hard to see how this approach can be more successful in 1952 than it was in 1943-45.

YET today most of the same, incompatible conceptions make their appearance again in various parts of a single Churchill speech: the need for America world-leadership based on Anglo-American independence in world affairs; the idea of a peaceful division of the world with Russia; and the conflicting idea of a European unity that might include Eastern Europe; the primacy of the Commonwealth and Empire in British policy, and the contradictory assertion of an equal importance attaching to Britain's relations with both America and Europe.

Perhaps Mr. Churchill's greatest handicap today is his deep understanding of British policy in the 18th and 19th centuries. Yet there are times when he seems to be explaining to us that any continuation of the traditional British policy of being a "balancing" power has become fatally risky, that even an attempt to maintain one or more areas of exclusive British influence has become increasingly absolescent. He has often appeared to realize more clearly than his contemporaries that this is an age of Super-Great Powers, and that we are likely to see an embryonic system of world government formed around one or other of these giants—and has appeared about to recommend his countrymen and their neighbours wholeheartedly to think and act accordingly.

Whatever may be the comparative importance of tradition, historical knowledge and modern observation in Mr. Churchill's great mind, it seems clear from his speeches that a dominant theme of his though is a mistrust of the irrevocable political commitment. He has made bigger and bolder military decisions than any statesman of our age; but in the field of politics, he hesitates to close any door finally. Masterly indecision must confer a sense of sovereign power, for it has tempted many statesmen; more have been ruined by indecision than by their positive commitment to mistakes. It may well be the peculiar blight which has kept Mr. Churchill's statesmanship until now so curiously barren of great results.

Yet if anyone is in time of peace to lift this country's policy out of its historic course—so that we join in the revolutionary process of founding a new political unit capable first of defending Western civilization and then of guaranteeing the peace of the whole world—he will need not only clarity of vision and political decisiveness. He will also need the special Churchillian qualities of vitality and courage. It is conceivable that those very qualities might yet transform the story of Winston Churchill's statecraft. It may yet be said that his final achievement was on as grand a scale as the epic endeavour by which he kept freedom alive in 1940. He might, in 1952, make the titanic wrench with the past needed to lay the foundation of a system of established world peace.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jehoshaphat stood ... the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the Lord, before the new court, and said, O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven? and rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? and in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee?

Art not thou our God, who didst drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham thy friend for ever? And they dwelt therein, and have built thee a sanctuary therein for thy name, saying, If, when evil cometh upon us, as the sword, judgement, or pestilence, or famine, we stand before this house, and in thy presence, (for thy name is in this house), and cry unto thee in our affliction, then thou wilt hear and help. (II Chron. 20: 5-9.)

The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it stand: that I will break the Assyrian in my land, and upon my mountains tread him under foot: then shall his yoke depart from off them, and his burden depart from off their shoulders. (Isa. 14: 24, 25.)

Happy New Year!

(Le Haut Parleur, St. Hyacinthe)

For those who don't know it, there will be no lowering of prices. We are in a period of inflation but we have not come to the end of it. It is the bankers who charge themselves with telling us and putting us on our guard. "Inflation has arrived and will stay" says one bank after another. In these times of buying, temperate and sometimes intemperate, the good public is the first to note that what was worth a dollar formerly is now worth five or more. There will be lowered prices in exceptional cases, which however do not interest the general public. But for Mr. Everyman, things will continue to cost as much, or more. Fluctuations will be rare and sporadic. They will not affect the general price index or that of the cost of living. The public can go into mourning for a return to the good old days. That is one gift which Father Christmas cannot give us and, it will be found in no slipper set close to the fireplace.

Mario Lanza Calls Off Studio Feud

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4 (AP)— Mario Lanza is starting the New Year with a smile—he isn't mad at anybody.

Of course, you might say, "why should he be mad?" The boy with the golden voice earned a mere $1,100,000 in 1951 and his money-making ability is unlimited for this year.

Lanza has called a halt to the feud he had with MGM. The battle was pretty well hushed up, but the tenor reported it was for real, as the comics say.

"I was entirely wrong," he remarked with a candor unusual for a film star. "I was headstrong and unhappy. I acted rashly and now I regret it. From now on, my relations with the studio will be nothing but pleasantness."

However, he intimated that the studio was in the wrong, too.

Broke Promises

"Certain officials of the studio were greedy. I had made a hit in 'The Great Caruso,' and they wanted to cash in on it. They wanted to put me in any kind of picture, just to capitalize on my popularity. They also broke promises which meant very much to me.

"I had been promised time off for a singing tour of Europe. The highlight was to be my singing of the opening day of the opera at La Scala, the first time an American had been accorded that honor. Americans have sung at La Scala, but never on opening day. Because of the studio, I had to pass the engagement up, and another boy sang in my place."

When the time arrived to begin his picture, "Because You're Mine," Lanza was overweight. He trimmed down to filming shape after his difficulties had been ironed out with top officials of the company.

Lanza now has the schedule he has been fighting for. He'll shoot another picture as soon as he finishes "Because You're Mine." Then he'll be out of the United States for 18 months. During that time he'll make two or three pictures in Europe, keep his La Scala date and appear at concerts all over Europe and in South America.

KITCHENER, Jan. 4—(CP) — The Kitchener Auditorium Commission has offered to meet the Kitchener local of the American Federation of Musicians in arbitration as a method of settling a controversy over stand-in bands for the auditorium. The offer expires Jan. 10.

The union has asked that a minimum of 15 local musicians be hired as a stand-in band when outside orchestras play in the auditorium. The commission offers to hire stand-in musicians on a man-for-man basis.

Hear Lisbon Meeting Postponed 3 Weeks

PARIS, Jan. 4—(AP)—Agence France-Presse said Thursday there are rumors that the Feb. 2 meeting of the Atlantic Treaty Council of ministers in Lisbon will be postponed for three weeks. There was no official confirmation.

The news agency said any postponement could be attributed to "decisions of a complex character concerning the organization of the Atlantic Pact and the project of the European army."

Negotiations on pooling the military forces of France, Italy, Western Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg into a European army are snagged on problems of how to finance the army. Foreign, defence and finance ministers of the six countries will meet in Paris late this month to try to work out a solution.

Canada Given Sugar Priority

LONDON, Jan. 4—(Reuters) — British commonwealth sugar producers will give priority to sales to Canada after the end of 1952 when the British Food Ministry will cease selling commonwealth sugar to Canada.

This is stated in the full text of the commonwealth sugar agreement released today. The agreement was made Dec. 22 and became effective the same day.

Commonwealth sugar producers have further agreed subject to market considerations to make sugar available in Canadian refineries "in such quantities and from such sources as they may require."

The agreement which in some respects is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1950, runs to the end of 1959. It can be extended successively year by year.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor

In a recent talk on "Westinghouse Presents" over CBC, John Fisher said: 'What is Canada's national sport, anyway? Some claim it is hockey and they will argue vehemently. Others with equal emphasis contend that lacrosse is Canada's truly national sport for it appears on the books of Parliament, and was started before Canadians ever heard of the word hockey . . . In spite of all these claims, the biggest national sport in Canada is curling. More Canadians curl than play hockey, football, baseball, golf or any organized sport. This will surprise some in Eastern Canada, but it won't on the Prairies, in B.C., or in Northern Ontario." And he went into more detail.

* * * * * *

We won't argue the point with him as Canada has more curlers than any country in the world. Even Scotland where it was started and called 'The Roarin' Game." Of course, it isn't regarded as a spectator sport, since crowds do not pay their way in to see it played. It is pretty popular in Peterborough and district, being among the oldest sports played in our town on outdoor ices back in the 70s and 80s. A big membership of both sexes curl at the Charlotte Street artificial ice arena through a long winter, and our curlers appear regularly in bonspiels of the district and throughout the provinces. It's not an old person's game any more, many youths going in for it —and even school years. Yeah, it's quite a game in this country now.

* * * * * *

Those Eagles And Petes

However, hockey is still the big spectator sport in Canada during the winter, and there's an OHA senior "B" game here tonight. An 8.30 touch in Civic Arena between the two local group rivals, Eagles and Petes. That's all Peterborough puck fandom needs to know to ensure a big crowd of 2,000 or so. Had we a larger arena, there'd be upwards of 3,000 as this is senior "B" hockey at its best. Fast, rugged, close and with plenty of hot rivalry evident every time Petes and Eagles clash on the ice. They love to hand the other side a drubbing, so there's no loitering in these tilts. It's a hurry-hurry-hurry all the way, with a big crowd about evenly divided on support, but noisy.

* * * * * *

Apart from George Steele, who must be on the mend by now, we believe the Petes will trot out the same squad as appeared here last game. The Eagles have the odd injury, too, and they've been experimenting with a few ex-juniors from Oshawa, as well as district and local talent—and they dropped a few puckists. They've looked like comers the last few starts, especially in that overtime game at Kingston last time out, so they may upset the leading Petes in this Friday fray. You can bet your bottom buck they'll be giving it the old college try and they did take the Petes earlier in the season. It might well be a knock-down and drag-out affair.

* * * * * *

Canucks Olympic Bound

Edmonton Mercurys leave for Scotland tonight to represent Canada in the Olympic hockey competition. The game of course will be played in Oslo, Norway, next month, but the Canadians will engage in a 30-game exhibition tour first. This not only puts them in good condition for the main job but helps defray expenses. Can't say how good the Edmontons are but not too many clubs in this country can qualify as amateurs, and amateurism is stressed plenty at the Olympics. Chances are the Mercurys will drop some exhibition tilts, but we hope they're hot when they hit into Olympic competition.

* * * * * *

Quinte columnist has the quaint notion that Oshawa Merchants and the Petes will come crawling back to the COBL this spring, having had a tummy full of the weak Viaduct League. Not unless the COBL shows signs of strengthening up considerably. Weak competition there several years ago decided Oshawa and Peterborough to seek good play elsewhere, though they didn't find it. Their departure just about finished the Central League which dropped to intermediate calibre and then withdrew entirely from the OBA as an outlaw loop. Belleville was a COBL absentee many years—depending on Batawa for "home" games—but was accepted back last year. We'd like to see Kingston in, as well as a bolstered Belleville pack, along with Oshawa and Petes. Then, we'd have an oldtime COBL of senior "A" stature.

One-Sided Wins A Feature Of PMHA Frays

Some convincing victories were hung up at Civic Arena last night in the half a dozen PMHA tussles run off. Lonsberry, Pammett and Doris of their respective teams proved big snipers in the night's heavy shelling.

Otonabee Wolves beat the bantam Trojans 8-2 with Lonsberry scoring five goals, as Heron, Revoy and Chase got one each. For Trojans Dafoe and Dinsdale were the snipers. St. Peter's bantams took Lions 5-3 as Baker got a pair, Atkinson, Forestell and English counting the others. Lions' scorers were O'Connell, Scarfe and Trudeau.

Won Again

In midget play, Martin-Hewitt racked up a 6-1 verdict over St. Peter's. Heffernan hit the twine twice, one each going to Strickland, Chambers, Gardner and Kane, as Lagana scored for SPS. The other midget melee saw Trojans down Snowbirds 6-3. Two goals each were garnered for Trojans by Smith and Whitnell, as Pollard and Brown got the others. Hannon, Chase and Heron hit the mark once each for the loosers.

Oddfellows juves won 6-2 from Lakefield as Doris paced the attack with three markers, Cupoli, Chapman and Hope having one each. For Lakefield, Hunter and Pue were the marksmen. Marines juveniles trimmed Trojans 11-2. Pammett led the way with four goals, two each going to Dodd and McGillen, and singles to Kearns, McCormick and Frizzelle. Trojan tallies were by Dunn and Burgess.

Collins Leads Way

T. Collins rolled high single of 329 and top three of 757 to start off the new year in the Major Bowling League at Playfair. Odeon led teams with pinnage of 3,304 and Cherney's had leading game score of 1,269. Six points were taken by Darling, Kawartha, Herb's, Campbell and Mowry respectively over UEW, Sun Life, Clapper's, Wonder and Selkirk; while 4-2 wins went to Revenoors, Odeon, Crowley, Lillian's, Wood, Plaza and Bickell in order over Brewers, Stud, Champs, E & B, Examiner, McLeod, Cherney and Kingsmen.

Good scores included: H. Correll 740, W. Harris 738, J. Barnes 737, R. Miller 727, A. Caccavella 721, A. Mattucci 713, G. Baird (302) 708, A. Hall 707, F. Wood 702 and singles of J. McPhee 312, E. Rutherford 309, J. Grierson 308 and E. Darling 301.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

With the exception of senior teams, the classification of all Ontario Rural Hockey Association clubs during the 1952 season will depend on their standing in league play.

H. D. Ovenden, secretary of the ORHA, explained the new ruling would automatically send any league's top team into the intermediate A playoffs while the second place team will enter an intermediate B series and the third place team to go on into intermediate C play.

The ORHA will also allow any of its players to play with teams in all other associations with the exception of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Applications for affiliation in the ORHA are being accepted with Jan. 19 as the deadline. Grouping of senior teams is expected to be completed by Jan. 20.

If the results of a basketball referees' exam held Thursday at Guelph are correct, the fans can keep right on booing the officials. Out of a total of 12 officials who wrote examinations at the Ontario Agricultural College, only two passed. Included in the 10 who flunked were referees who have been officiating on district courts for years.

Two Ontario golf pros left for Arizona Thursday to join touring United States professionals on a junket throughout the Southern States. Hal Butler, professional at the Oshawa Golf Club and Al Balding, assistant at the Islington Golf Club, will meet the US group at Phoenix Jan. 24. From there they head for the Tucson open, the second of nine golf tourneys they plan to enter.

A field of 84 entries, headed by three former winners, was announced Thursday for the 106th running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree April 5. Among those nominated were Nickel Coin, Royal Tan and Derrington, which finished in that order in last year's race. These were the only three out of a field of 36 to complete the grind of four miles, 856 yards over Aintree's murderous fences and water jumps.

Golf's winter tournament trail will be officially opened here today for the 1952 season when the leading players in the nation tee off in the rich Los Angeles open. They'll be aiming at a purse of $17,500 this time, $2,500 more than the past few years, and the man most generally picked to win the $4,000 top money is Lloyd Mangrum, the leading coin collector in the game last year.

Cincinnati Mohawks today returned amateur Vic Howe to New York Rovers of the Eastern Hockey League. Howe, 22-year-old amateur right winger, was sent to the Mohawks of the American Hockey League on a three-game trial basis Tuesday.

President Tom Lockhart of the Eastern Hockey League Thursday fined the Johnstown, Pa., club $100 and handed a three-day suspension to Coach Wally Kilrea of Ottawa for refusing to play the overtime period against New Haven Sunday. Johnstown refused to play the required extra period with the score tied 3-3 at the end of the regular three periods. Referee Cliff Thompson then allowed a New Haven player to slap a puck into the unprotected Johnstown cage which gave the Connecticut club a 4-3 triumph.

Chicago White Sox Thursday announced that the signed contract of shortstop Chico Carrasquel had been received from Caracas, Venezuela, Carrasquel's home. This brought to 12 the number of White Sox signed for the 1952 season.

The Cincinnati Reds Thursday traded pitcher Willis (The Knuck) Ramsdell to the Chicago Cubs for pitcher Frank Hiller. Both are right-handed hurlers.

D. Whatman Tops

Deb Whatman took high three of 864 and top single of 371 last night in the Mercantile Bowling League. Good singles included: T. Casey 315, M. Rogers 308, E. Partington 269 and V. McAuliffe 266. Neat triples were: E. Partington 747, V. Kavhanen 690, E. Little 681, B. Vanstone 669 and H. Cawker 666. Whatman's high single and three stand for the first half schedule.

Knox leads the league with 94 points, followed by Austin's and Kesco with 84, Harrison's 77, Mustangs 70, Grant & Loucks 66, J. J. Turner and Cherney's 62, Pet. Express 61, Can. Canoe and A & P with 59, Co-op 58, UCO and Loblaw's 48, Turner's 47, Combines 37, Dom. Stores 27 and Ovaltine 23.

Brazil To Tangle With Layton

Wrestling returns to the Brock next Tuesday after an absence of several weeks. An outstanding card has been arranged to start the new year off in Peterborough. Lord Athol Layton faces popular colored Bobo Brazil in the main event, and the speedy Brazil stands a good chance of offsetting the deadly judo slash of the big Britisher with his all-around mat ability in a wide-open bout.

Powerful Timothy Geohagen comes to grips in the semi-final with Zorra, the French Tarzan, and it will be a case of strength against the whirling "savate" kicking style of the lithe Frenchman.

The preliminary has blond Steve Stanlee tackling big Bill Stack in what should be another grand scrap in a first-class mat card which will attract a big crowd of city and district grapple fans.

Confederation Wins

Confederation took a 7-1 public school intermediate hockey win yesterday at the arena over Queen Elizabeth. R. Tighe tallied the only one for the losers, while the victors' goals were by Casey (2), Patterson, Copping, Ruttan, Moore and Nichols. Teams:

Q.E.: Harrison, Gilders, R. Dorgan, Whitnell, Lymburner, R. Tighe, Perry, J. Dorgan, McConkey, Frise, Gardner, Hobson.

Confederation: Outwater, Woods, Pulkinghorn, Patterson, Casey, Kimball, Warner, Copping, Moffatt, J. Henwood, Moore, Knox, Ruttan, G. Henwood.

Referees Flunk At OAC In Cage Tests

GUELPH, Jan. 4.—Umpires and referees have been hearing for a long time that they're blind, feeble and also a bit stupid. This is the sort of tribute they expect from the paying customers.

Now, as a result of examinations recently held at the Ontario Agricultural College here, these scarlet-faced sports officials are probably wondering if the fans weren't entirely correct all the time.

Out of a total of 12 men who wrote examinations for basketball referees at OAC, only two were successful. Included in the 10 failures were referees who have been officiating for several years. Those writing the exams were from Guelph, Galt, Brantford, Kitchener and Waterford. The two successful candidates were Jack Burnett and Jack Reeves, both of OAC.

Those who failed will have two more chances to pass, with different papers, prepared in Toronto. If successful in the written tests, they must undergo a floor examination during an actual game. If they pass that one, too, they won't tolerate any more abuse from the spectators.

Cobourg Whips Port Hope In Overtime 5-4

COBOURG, Jan. 4.—Doug Fisher's overtime goal made Bob Cooper's debut as Cobourg Comet coach a success here Wednesday night as the Cobourgs whipped Port Redmen 5-4. It was the Comets' first win this season over Port Hope in Lakeshore League action.

The Comets played like a different outfit than the bedraggled one that fell to Bowmanville a week ago. But for a last-minute penalty to Clarke Harnden, Cobourg defenceman, the locals could have won in regulation time. Port Hope's Bill Douglas scored the tying counter with only four seconds left to the final bell, while Harnden sat out a tripping penalty.

Rugged Game

The game was the most rugged of the season between the two teams with fists flying on numerous occasions. The biggest battle came with five minutes left, when Fred McMillan, burly rearguard of the Comets, and Port Hope's Jerry Forster, clashed. They were finally pried apart by referee Lecompte of Trenton who got them into the penalty box where the fight broke out again. Two Redmen taunted McMillan from the ice and when he swung in their direction, the referee ordered him and Forster to the dressing rooms. At the end of the regulation time the arbiter ruled they could play the overtime and each finished it without further incident.

Japper Wilcox led the Cobourg crew with two goals. Ken Wilcox sniped one and Cliff Maundrell who took a rough ride all night, got the other.

Bill Douglas, the Port Hope rearguard, and centre Darch Campbell headed the losers, Douglas scoring twice, Campbell once. McKeen got the other marker.

Give Free Insurance For Boxers In IBC

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP). — The International Boxing Club and its radio-television sponsor plan to provide free insurance for all boxers in IBC matches, the Illinois Athletic Commission said Thursday.

Joseph Triner, IAC chairman, said an insurance program being worked out for Illinois bouts will provide $10,000 for a fighter's heirs if he is killed in the ring, plus full protection against ring-incurred injuries.

Truman Gibson, secretary of the IBC, confirmed the arrangements. He said similar coverage will be provided in other states in which the IBC promotes professional fights.

Buffalo Shades Providence 4-3

By The Canadian Press.

Buffalo Bisons shaded Providence Reds 4-3 in overtime and Indianapolis Caps defeated Syracuse Warriors 6-2, in American Hockey League games Thursday night.

At Buffalo, Cal MacKay's overtime goal gave the Bisons their victory.

An extra puck came into play in the second period while the Bisons' Sam Lavitt was in the penalty box. An unidentified miscreant rang in the second disc, Ray Powell of Providence fired one into the cage.

Referee Walton Russell disallowed the goal; fined Terry Reardon, the Reds' coach, $50 for coming onto the ice; and penalized Harry Dick and Stan Long of Buffalo for slashing.

Both teams finished under protest, the Bisons on the ground that Reardon did not leave the bench after being ordered to, and the Reds on the disallowed goal.

Don Ashbee, Sid McNabney and Dick also scored for the Bisons. Paul Gladu, John Michaluk and Powell tallied for the visitors.

Canadiens Begin To Click Subdue Maple Leafs 3-1

By The Canadian Press

Coach Dick Irvin, who promised a drastic shakeup a few weeks ago if Montreal Canadiens didn't take the lead out of their boots, now is certain his threats were taken to heart.

Hob-nobbing with Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers around the basement of the National Hockey League, Canadiens perked up considerably and Thursday night climaxed a drive with a 3-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs at Montreal.

The decision broke a two-way second-place tie between the two clubs and sent Canadiens only 10 points behind the league-leading Detroit Red Wings. Leafs now are 12 points in arrears.

The triumph was the fourth for Canadiens over the Leafs and marked the ninth win in their last 12 games.

Canadiens delighted a 14,492 home-town crowd with a 2-0 first period lead. They received a small scare in the third when Harry Watson blasted one past goalkeeper Gerry McNeil to put the Leafs into the game. But Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion sewed it up slightly more than a minute later.

Typical Game

It was a typical Toronto-Montreal hard-hitting and bruising game, although referee Red Storey called only seven minor penalties. There was plenty of bounce and body-checking to keep the crowd on the lookout for a free-for-all that threatened temporarily in the second period.

Paul Meger, a star of the game, sent Canadiens into a 1-0 lead at 17:26 of the first period and Floyd Curry made it 2-0 with only 36 seconds remaining of the session.

The second period was scoreless. Watson's counter came at 12:18 of the third.

Four games are on tap for the weekend. It is Chicago at Toronto and Boston at Montreal Saturday and Chicago at New York and Boston at Detroit Sunday.

Badly In Red

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The US government wound up the first half of the current fiscal year $7,467,242,215 in the Red—a deficit about 13 times as big as that for the same period last year the treasury reported Thursday. With defence spending up almost 300 per cent, the deficit was the biggest ever at the half-year point, except for war years.

Truman Causes Some Confusion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—President Truman caused a moment of confusion at his weekly press conference Thursday when he inadvertently read from his stage directions.

Since the President's conference almost always covers a wide range of subjects, he frequently is alerted by his press officers about questions which may arise and given memoranda covering suggested replies.

Asked about a report that J. Howard McGrath had signified to the President his readiness to be relieved as Attorney-General, Truman groped among his papers.

He read: In regard to all questions regarding continued drastic action, including if McGrath resigning, the following is proposed—

At this point reporters began to look puzzled. Then it became apparent that Truman was reading from "cue" notes.

With his eyes still on the paper, the President went on to say he was not going to answer that question. He proceeded for the rest of the conference under his own steam.

Medium Oil Discovered In Saskatchewan

REGINA, Jan. 4 — (CP) — Medium oil in probably commercial quantity has been found in Saskatchewan for the first time.

Resources Minister J. H. Brockelbank, describing himself as "jubilant," Thursday night said a wildcat well in the west-central section of the province produced oil.

The well — Socony Western Prairie Roseray No. 1—is near the village of Fostertown about 35 miles northwest of Swift Current and about 70 miles east of Alberta border.

The well was drilled on the farm of Harry Lowick. Mineral rights on the land are owned by the Crown.

Just a few hours after oil men had suggested that 1952 will be a highly-critical period in the search for light or medium oil in commercial quantities in the province, Mr. Brockelbank reported that oil, probably medium but possibly light, had been found, adding there are definite indications it is of commercial importance.

It was estimated the oil flowing from Socony Western Prairie Roseray No. 1 was of 26 to 30 degrees gravity. Medium oil has a gravity of 20 to 30 degrees. Light oil, like that produced in the Leduc and Redwater fields in Alberta, has a gravity about 30 degrees.

Oil was found in the Lower Cretaceous Blairmore Formation at a depth of 3,070 to 3,100 feet and in a test the oil reached the surface under high pressure.

Fear Chinese Reds Plan Early Indo-China Invasion

By RICK STEVENS

HONG KONG, Jan. 4 (Reuters) —Unofficial reports filtering through this Far East listening post point strongly to a Chinese Communist invasion of French Indo-China early in 1952.

Indication of this came Thursday from a source who claimed to have authentic information that the Chinese Communists were preparing to turn Indo-China into "another Korea" by throwing 250,000 troops into an offensive against the French and Vietnam, in support of the Vietminh rebels.

This man told me that more than 80,000 Chinese troops had already infiltrated into Northern Indo-China during the past 12 months, and nearly 200,000 more are massing along the border in the provinces of Kwangsi and Yunnan to join forces with the Vietminh rebels when invasion preparations are complete. The man must remain anonymous owing to danger of reprisals.

Unconfirmed but persistent reports in the anti-Communist Chinese press here over the last two months support his claim.

These reports mention a force of 100,000 to 300,000 troops, with a likely invasion date within the first three months of this year.

After French Indo-China and Thailand, he said, the Communists have long-range plans for similar invasions of Burma, Malaya and Indonesia.

Chinese newspapers here reported recently that the Communists have completed a 263-mile extension of the Hunan-Kwangsi-Kweichow railway line to Chennankwan, near the Indo-China border. This, they added, now is being used to transport large numbers of troops and supplies of war materials to regions near the "invasion starting point."

6 Bottles Found On Ice In Car, Man Fined $100

Charged with having liquor in a place other than his residence and speeding, Joseph Bishop, 82 St. Patrick St., Lindsay, pleaded guilty to both charges in police court Thursday.

He was fined $100 and $2.50 costs on the liquor charge and $10 and $2.50 costs for speeding.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshow offered no evidence on a third charge against Bishop of having liquor not obtained on his own permit or under Liquor Control Act regulations.

Seven 26 ounce bottles of whiskey which OPP Constable Roy Feeley found in Bishop's car the night of September 23 were ordered confiscated.

Constable Feeley testified that while on patrol on Highway 7, a car passed him while the police cruiser was travelling 50 m.p.h.

After following the car for about a mile, he said he stopped the car and learned that Bishop was driving.

Constable Feeley said he found one 26 ounce bottle of liquor in the glove compartment of Bishop's car, and six more bottles in a wine case, sitting in a bucket of crushed ice in the trunk.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Bradshaw said he was asking for more than the minimum fine, as the amount of liquor and the manner in which it was found, indicated a more serious offence than the usual charges under this section of the Liquor Control Act.

Mr. Bradshaw suggested the $100 fine, which Magistrate Philp imposed.

Peter Gillespie of Keene left on Thursday for Los Angeles, Cal., for the rest of the winter. He plans to return early in April. April.

ON REC. COMMISSION

Charles Huffman, newly elected board of education trustee, was given an appointment at the board's representative for a numday night. He was made their representative to the recreation commission, succeeding Mrs. J. B. Bell.

STILL CHRISTMAS

Enough Christmas spirit is still swirling around the city hall to light the Christmas lights on the spruce tree at the south-west corner of the building. They shine cheerily every night until about 8 o'clock in the morning.

GIVES BLESSING

The Rev. Maurice P. Poole, All Saints' Anglican Church, opened the inaugural meeting of the Peterborough board of education Thursday night. He asked God's blessing on the year's work and read a scriptural passage—St. Paul's epistle to the Ephesians in which he exhorts them to unity.

NEW LIBRARY APPOINTEE

Percy D. Windrim, inspector of public schools, is the 1952 appointee of the board of education on the library board. The appointment was made Thursday night at the inaugural meeting of the board. K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, was the boards representative for a number of years.

APPRECIATE GIFTS

Firemen and police are seen smoking lots of cigarettes and cigars these days. The smokes are part of the stock of gifts that the public, merchants and businessmen give them during the Christmas season as a mark of appreciation for work done throughout the year. Both Chief George Smith and Chief Constable John Thompson appreciate the donors' generosity and say "thank you."

Attention for the moment was focused on "Cuff," the family pet boxer who succeeded, without any trouble, in filling a good portion of the lower foreground. Board Closes With Surplus Of $24,482

$18,437 Reported In Account Of Public Schools

Peterborough's board of education Thursday night reported a total surplus of $24,482.90 on the year's operations.

This includes $18,437.27 public schools, $4,639.68 collegiate academic and $1,405.95 collegiate vocational.

Trustees were elated over the surplus.

"It isn't very often these days that a public body comes up with a surplus like this," said W. B. Gordon, newly-elected chairman for 1952. "A great deal of credit should go to the chairmen of the standing committees, the chairman of finance, and to the secretary-treasurer for putting together the estimates so accurately.

G. Wilson Craw, finance chairman, said he was happy to see the surplus. In fact a short time ago he would have thought it impossible.

Increased Revenue

The $18,437 surplus in public schools was chiefly because a number of receipts were above estimates. At the beginning of the year the board calculated they would spend $558,140 but they actually spent $567,083.

Several expenditures were made that upset the original estimates. There was an extra cost of textbooks and supplies (though these were largely covered by the monthly textbook fee and a special grant of textbooks received this year.)

Purchase of property for a southend school on Cameron St., plus an additional expenditure on the Prince of Wales annex, drained the coffers by another $5,006.

On ordinary accounts expenditures were somewhat below estimates. Balances were $3,000 on salaries, $1,900 on fuel, and $3,400 on repairs.

Offsetting the expenditures not budgeted for were some unexpectedly large receipts. The largest of these was $9,953.30, a special textbook fee from the government. The general grant was up $2,800, special grants more than $1,500, non-resident fees a whopping $5,350, and rentals $1,421.

These receipts along with savings on other accounts, boosted the surplus to $18,437 on public schools.

Collegiate Accounts

The collegiate academic had an expenditure of $158,490, $3,100 less than was estimated. Receipts were about $1,500 above estimates giving a surplus of some $4,600.

Included in the surplus was $5,655 spent on the Kenner collegiate. This had not been budgeted for at the beginning of the year.

Expenditures below estimates: salaries $3,300; fuel $900 and repairs $2,400. The balance on teachers' salaries is caused by a slightly different division between the academic and vocational schools.

There was an over-expenditure of $10,419 on the vocational estimate of $154,070. Principal reason for this is that the $8,899 vocational grant was paid over to the city. (The board receives the department cheque then turns it over to the city who were the public body that issued the debentures.)

Another $1,314 was refunded on night school fees.

Larger night school fees than expected, larger general grant, rentals, and several non-resident accounts helped boost the vocational surplus to $1,405.95.

W. B. GORDON

Board Elects W. B. Gordon 1952 Chairman

W. B. (Pete) Gordon on Thursday was elected chairman of the 1952 board of education on the first ballot. He succeeds the 1951 chairman, Dr. Ralph C. Honey.

Stanley R. Adamson is the new vice-chairman.

The election was at the inaugural meeting of the 1952 board. All 11 members were present, including the three new members—Charles H. Huffman and Arthur Pitchford (elected) and John Kitney (county appointee).

Mr. Gordon is senior member of a Peterborough law firm and a veteran of the Second World War.

He is completing his second term on the board. His first term was 1946-48. He dropped out for two years because of added business responsibilities, but after James Lillico joined the law firm he again saw his way clear to serve on the board and was elected in 1951.

Last year Mr. Gordon was vice chairman of the board, and he was chairman of the supervision committee. He was also active on the finance, health and vocational committees.

After thanking the members for their confidence in him Mr. Gordon said: "I feel that we will again have a heavy year of work on the board, but I think my term of office will be easier because all members have either had past experience or, because of their vocation, have had business experience."

Welcomes New Members

Mr. Gordon welcomed back Arthur Pitchford, a former trustee who was re-elected in 1952, and said he was especially glad to see Mr. Huffman on the board. Because of Mr. Huffman's education, training and work in this city he would add to the efficiency of the board, said Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Pitchford and Mr. Huffman replace Dr. Russell Morgan and Murray Irwin who did not seek office this term.

The chairman also welcomed back Mrs. Paige Rowell, Stanley Adamson, G. Wilson Craw, and M. J. Collins (separate schools appointee).

Messrs. Collins and Kitney, not being elected members of the board, have a vote on secondary school matters only.

Name Committees

The following committees were elected:

Property — Frank H. Jobbitt, chariman, G. Wilson Craw, Stanley R. Adamson, Charles H. Huffman and M. J. Collins.

Supervision—Mrs. Paige Rowell, chairman, Dr. R. C. Honey, Mrs. J. B. Bell, Arthur Pitchford and John Kitney.

Health—Mrs. Bell, chairman, Dr. Honey, Mrs. Rowell, Mr. Pitchford and Mr. Kitney.

Appointments — Dr. Honey, chairman, and all the board members.

6 Boy Scouts Battle Cold For 29 Hours

Try To Reach Camp In Haliburton Through Heavy Snow

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP) — Six Boy Scouts today told of 29 hours without food on the trail in 34-below-zero weather when deep snow prevented them from reaching a camp in the rugged Haliburton area north of Peterborough. None suffered frostbite or any other ill-effects.

Scoutmaster William Shaver said the party set out with 25-pound packs for Camp Kennabi during the New Year's week-end. They plowed through snow 2 feet deep and had to turn back within sight of the camp.

Leaving their packs on the trail, they struggled to a stable where they slept in half-hour shifts, some keeping fires going while others slept. They spent a night in the stable making their way out to the nearest community in the morning and returning home yesterday. The boys average 16 years of age.

Rambling Reporter

CALL ME "TEX,' PARD"

Peterborough recreation director, Alex Sinclair, was honored during a holiday trip to the United States when McLennan county, south of Dallas, Texas, made him a deputy sheriff. He was guest of honor at the "Hub of Texas" square dance where the state's 15 best callers and selected dancers performed. "It was the most colorful sight I have ever seen" he said.

Public Library Closes Year $690.86 Surplus

The Peterborough Public Libarry has a surplus of $690.86. This figure was contained in the report given at the board meeting Thursday night by K. S. Wightman, chairman of the finance committee.

Expenditures for the year totalled $50,428.72 and receipts, $51,119.58.

The largest expense item was salaries totalling $28,425.71. Second in line was book purchases $9,774.24. Maintenance came to $1,575.97 and branch library expenses to $4,619.75.

Library members paid $95.19 in fines during 1951. Of this total $67.29 was adult fines and $12.90 juvenile fines at the main library and $15.00 fines at the branch libarry.

The board asked the city council for a monthly interim grant of $4,000 until the 1952 estimates are passed.

Hugh Waddell New Mayor After Inaugural Meeting

Peterborough's new mayor—Hugh Waddell—technically isn't the mayor yet. He has until Monday at 11 am to wait. At that time the inaugural meeting of the 1952 council starts, and he will replace 1951 mayor Max J. Swanston. For almost 40 years, Hugh Waddell has been a Peterborough boy. Born on January 27, 1912, he has lived nearly all his life in his family's Monaghan Rd. home.

His qualifications for mayor are better than most men's, in one respect particularly—he is able to give almost all the time at his disposal to the job. As well, he has been a member of city council since 1945.

In July, 1937, he started work as a shipping clerk at B. F. Ackerman and Sons, joined the office staff as cashier in 1939, and two years later became secretary-treasurer of the firm.

General Manager

Later he was made vice-president and general manager, which position he retired from in 1949.

In 1945 he ran for city council and was elected during which year he served as chairman of the purchasing committee, a position he held also in 1946. In 1947 and 1949 he was re-elected for his second and third two-year terms.

In his six years on council, he has served as chairman of the purchasing committee, the property, executive, and finance committees. In addition he has been chairman of the site and building committees for the new city hall.

Nominated For Mayor

Mr. Waddell was nominated for mayor at the annual nomination meeting in December, and 1951 mayor Max J. Swanston refused nomination. Mr. Waddell was acclaimed.

Educated in the city's public school system, he attended PCVS, where he starred as a member of the school football team. From high school he went to University of Toronto, graduating in 1937. He also played football at university.

Fond of golf and hunting, he is a member of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, the Peterborough Club, a past president of the Rotary Club, and a director of the YMCA.

A member of St. Andrew's United church, he is married and is the father of two children.

City Firemen Attend School

LINDSAY, Jan. 4 — Lindsay armouries will be the centre for a five-day fire school to be held the week of Jan. 20. Approximately 29 municipal departments including Peterborough in the area from Oshawa to Sutton and Port Hope to Minden are expected to attend.

The school will be officially opened by Premier Leslie M. Frost and W. J. Scott, OBE., Jan. 21.

Fire Services Istructor Clifford J. Campbell, Lindsay, says that six instructors besides himself from the fire marshal's office will conduct the school. The school will take the form of lectures and practical training in fire-ground operations.

One night will be set aside for a class for Lindsay businessmen. They will be shown films and the use and placing of fire extinguishers.

It is not known as yet what firemen from Peterborough will attend the school.

Second Addition Starts At CGE Costs $350,000

The second new building under construction at Canadian General Electric Company will provide 56,000 sq. ft. of extra space for extensions of the punch press and structural steel departments. A third bay will provide additional general accommodation.

Confined to the ground floor, with saw-tooth roof, this unit's dimensions are 225 ft. by 250 ft. It is located between existing buildings, and will fill up that area out to Works Ave. Its type of construction is heavier than the new carpenter shop on Monaghan Road. Estimated cost is $350,000.

Only three months separated the undertaking of these two projects by the contractors of both, A. W. Robertson Company. Total investment is $550,000. The carpentry and woodworking unit is laid out for $200,000. It was begun in September, and the other in December contributing a timely boost to the city's year-end building permits.

New Council Meets Monday

First inaugural meeting of the city council in its new premises will take place Monday at 11 a.m.

The oath of office will be administered to Mayor-elect H. F. Waddell and the newly elected members of the council by City Clerk Outram. The aldermen beginning a two-year term are: John A. Dewart; T. D. Miller, S. J. Black, P. J. Anglesey and H. S. Longhurst.

The incoming members are Mr. Black and Mr. Longhurst. They were new candidates at the municipal election. The other members of the council are: Aldermen James Gillespie, Herbert N. Young, M.D., A. B. Burrows, H. T. Rehill and Norman Graham.

Alderman Waddell has invited the Rev. Charles G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, to offer the customary prayer of invocation of God's blessing on the council.

He has also requested Gordon Monkman to perform a new ceremonial detail of investiture with the mayoral chain of office which Mr. Monkman presented to the city at the official opening of the city hall.

The inaugural will be followed by a meeting of the committee of the whole for the appointment of standing committees and their chairmen.

First business session of the council will be at 7:30 Monday.

Wool Co. Builds Warehouse

Head of the Miller Construction Co., now building a new warehouse for wool storage at the Auburn property of G. Whitaker & Co., Limited, is Alderman T. D. Miller.

Estimated cost of this building is $30,000. It is of cement block and timber-rib construction, and will provide 10,000 sq. ft. on the ground floor and in the basement. This work was begun in December, and has been moving along smoothly through the foundation stage. Main walls are now being erected.

Miller Construction has been branching out into the field of light industrial building from experience in the erection of houses of various types.

Badly Hurt In Fall Condition Said Good

Injured Monday in an 18-foot fall from a store roof, Douglas Graham, 26, 636 Union St., is said to be in good condition by Civic hospital officials.

Graham, a roofer, suffered multiple injuries to his hips, back and left hand. His face was burned when hot pitch spilled from a pail as he fell.

Graham was working on the roof of a store at Braidwood and Lock Sts., slipped, and fell 18 feet to the frozen snow below. He was rushed to Civic hospital.

PLANNING BOARD NOTICE

The City Planning Board, Peterborough, desires to inform the public that Mr. Herb. Payne has applied for a building permit to extend his garage on Lots 12 and 23, Plan 51, being on the north side of Romaine Street and east of Park Street. The building would be approximately 90' x 66' in dimensions and made of concrete block construction, erected at the rear of the property.

This area is at present zoned residential, bordering on a neighborhood commercial district. To grant Mr. Payne permission to erect this building the area would have to be zoned as light industry or a trucking and cartage business area.

Those opposing any change in the zoning of this area should inform the City Clerk, as Secretary of the Planning Board, in writing, on or before Friday, January 11, 1952.

E. A. OUTRAM,
Secretary, City Planning Board, City Hall, Peterborough

COUNTY FARM NOTES

By HARRY THEOBALD

Earl Drope Re-elected President of Northumberland Federation—Forums Resume Sessions Monday Night With Question of Increasing Production—Ontario Federation Convention in Toronto Next Week.

Farm Forums return to their knitting Monday Jan. 7 as the season of Christmas and New Year's departs into the past. The general subject for January is Farm Policy, in three topics. "Should we increase production?" is followed on Jan. 14 by the question—"Is there enough farm credit?", and on Jan. 21: "What is wrong with our farm organizations?" The last Monday of the month ends the series with review night.

Forum audiences will be touching upon political economy when they take to discussing farm production and credit. With only a short time at their disposal each night, they will probably skirt around theoretic aspects of the specific subjects to concentrate on practical phases and factors.

Proved Their Ability

Experience has demonstrated that the farmers of Canada have a big reserve ability of production. Their work in two world wars proved that fact. Give them an assured outlet for their products and a reasonable profit, and they will roll out an amazing volume and variety of foods.

Canada has become a great producing and trading nation. In total value of trade in 1950 Canada stood third, behind the United States and Great Britain. At the same time, Canada ranked third on a per capita basis as shown in recent statistics. The average Canadian spent more on imported goods than the average citizen of any other country except Hong Kong and New Zealand. He sold more good abroad than anyone else except his counterpart in Hong Kong, New Zealand or Venzuela.

Those facts reflect the importance to all Canadians of their continued production and selling of their products because they relate to the county's dependence on international commerce.

Going Far Afield

The idealism which frequently appears in Forum discussions may be noted in the scope of question proposed for Monday: "Do you think increased production of food and manufactured goods in all parts of the world, would be a good thing or not for the Canadian farmer?" And the related question "How do you think the problem of surpluses could be solved?"

The Forum has let its rural members in for solid thinking on two subjects challenging leaders in the countries of high efficiency in industrial and agricultural output.

That phrase above, "in all parts of the world", opens up a vast field. It indicates organized agriculture's interest in raising the economic standards of underdeveloped countries. The International Federation of Agriculture Producers affirmed at their convention last year in Mexico City: "Agricultural producers recognize that low standards of living can be raised only by abundant production".

Technical assistance is one of the means of aiding backward people to help themselves. Canada has sent 26 experts abroad in the last few years. One of them is Dr. E. S. Archibald, formerly director of the Experimental Farm Service, who is in Ethiopia giving advice on agriculture.

Spending Billions

Agencies of the United Nations are engaged in this same kind of aid to countries with millions of people who do not get enough to eat. The British Commonwealth has its own project of helping such countries as India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Burma and Indonesia. Their Colombo plan is a six-year program of spending $5 billion largely in technical help. It is expected that $3 billion of that amount will be raised by Canada, United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand. The remaining $2 billion will be provided by the beneficiary countries. Canada is committed to spend $25 million in this first year (1951-2). It will be divided between India and Pakistan. Of that contribution $10 million worth of wheat is part of Canada's contribution to India this year to relieve famine among its people.

Apparently organized farmers of the world believe that raising economic standards of people by improving their means and skills of production will increase their trade potentials.

The Forum Guide comments that increased production in Britain, Canada and the United States has led to more trade rather than less. On the surface it appears that organized agriculture takes an extremely long view of a universal problem that is desperately complicated by the threat of war.

Farmers might also consider, nearer home and within the family, the plight of Britain struggling against the prolonged economic effects of two great wars, a customer of long standing who helped Canada attain her present high position in volume and value of international trade.

DAIRY SPREAD COMING

A new butter substitute, made wholly of dairy products, will be on the market soon, a dairy farmer predicted today.

It is hoped to sell the product for 50 cents a pound.

J. Clifford Weaver of Owen Sound, president of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League, told the Association that "Before many moons have passed" the dairy spread will be on the market. It has been developed as part of the dairy farmers' "relentless battle" against margarine, he added.

It was learned the butter substitute will contain a lower butterfat content than butter and therefore will be cheaper.

CONVENTION FEATURES

Two panels on "Grass Silage" and "Seed Grain" are included in the program of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association convention which will be held in conjunction with the Retail Farm Equipment Dealers' show at the Coliseum, CNE.

Guest speaker at the banquet Thursday Jan. 24 at the King Edward Hotel will be Dr. W. M. Myers, Beltsville, Maryland.

J. M. Appleton, Wallaceburg, will tell the convention how he produced 600 lbs. of beef per acre on pasture. Prof. Henry Giese, Ames, Iowa, is listed for a talk on farm building construction.

"The Farm Outlook for 1952" will be discussed by W. P. Watson, Ontario Livestock Commissioner.

TERRIFIC RAINSTORMS that swept through the southern U.S. this week created scenes like this throughout the area. The entire business district of Downey, near Los Angeles, was flooded, water standing more than three feet deep in some sections.

Watson Urges Extension Of Warble War

Warble fly control as carried out in 76 Ontario municipalities this year under the Warble Fly Control Act has proven both effective and inexpensive. This statement comes from W. P. Watson, Livestock Commissioner for Ontario.

Where the program has been carried out for several years, there has been a progressive reduction in the number of warbles. In Bruce township, a check on a number of immature animals showed they had an average of about 13 warbles each in the spring of 1948. A check on immature animals in the same area last spring failed to reveal a single warble. This is an exceptional case but Mr. Watson says that the reduction in grub population in all municipalities where treatment is carried out, has been highly satisfactory.

So far as cost to the farmer is concerned, this ranges from 10c to 15c per head per treatment where the spray method is used. Since two treatments per year are necessary this means a cost to the producer of about 30c per head — the cost of one pound of beef on the hoof. Losses from flies chasing the cattle exceed this, and when the loss from grub injury to meat and hide is added, the cost appears very slight for the benefits to be gained.

Mr. Watson feels that the beef producers have been most receptive to this program. All municipalities in the counties of Bruce and Dufferin, and the majority of townships in Huron, Grey, Victoria and Peterborough have engaged in the control program. In addition several township councils in the counties of Ontario, Perth, Renfrew, Simcoe, Wellington and Manitoulin Island have passed bylaws in this regard.

As mentioned already, most of the producers are well satisfied with the job. However, some who live in townships which have carried out the program of warble control, but whose neighbors in an adjoining municipality have taken no action, are not too happy about the failure of these neighbors to stamp out this pest. For this reason, Mr. Watson hopes that appropriate action will be taken in at least the remaining townships of counties where some work is already being done.

While the first treatment of animals for warbles does not take place until early April Mr. Watson suggests it is not too early for cattle owners in municipalities where control measures have not been undertaken to start making plans. Under the Warble Fly Control Act a municipality is obliged to pass a bylaw requiring all cattle to be treated for warble fly, if and when 66 2-3 per cent of all cattle owners petition for such action. Thus, the cattle owners must take the first steps. These include holding meetings for the purpose of explaining why warble fly control is important in efficient livestock production, and getting canvassers to circulate petitions in their communities. He adds that the Ontario Department of Agriculture has prepared a film which portrays the life history of the warble fly and the methods used in its control. This film is available to any group interested in eradicating the pest.

Municipalities which comply with the Act in regard to the type and number of treatments and the appointment of inspectors receive financial assistance from the Livestock Branch. This amounts to 50 per cent of the cost of the warble fly powder used and 50 per cent of the salaries and expenses of the inspectors.

Butter Has Long History Uniform Quality Recent

The original discoverer of the buttermaking process is unknown, but butter is believed to have existed before 2,000 B.C., and numerous references to butter occur in the Old Testament. Strangely enough, some of these references are the basis of controversy. An early historian records that butter was shipped from India to ports on the Red Sea in the early centuries. In the 12th century, German wine was exchanged for Scandinavian butter, and in the 13th and 14th centuries butter was an item of export from Norway and Sweden. From records it would appear that the art of buttermaking in Europe was developed in the Scandinavian countries and was introduced to the rest of Europe, and later, North America.

Up to, and including the early part of the 19th century, factory manufacture of butter was practically unknown in either Europe or North America, and buttermaking on the farms had grown into an extensive industry. However, the lack on uniformity in quality and flavor, coupled with the need for methods that would speed up production led to the construction and use of creaming and buttermaking equipment.

In the later half of the last century much Canadian butter was exported to Great Britain. It is a matter of record that on several occasions the loss of the British market was imminent, chiefly because of poor packing, lack of uniformity of quality, and in one instance a charge that Canadian salt would not do in butter for the English market. This latter case was so serious that an agricultural commission, then sitting, investigated the case and found that the charges could not be substantiated. With the advent of the creamery, Canadian butter quality improved and became more uniform in every respect.

In the early 1920's, cream grading regulations came in effect in the western provinces; Ontario followed in 1926, and the Maritimes and Quebec adopted grading shortly after. Butter standards are now uniform throughout Canada and the butter produced in this country is second to none in the world.

CHANCE FOR JUNIORS

Junior Farmers planning to go to Toronto Tuesday evening are asked to notify R. E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, not later than 5 p.m. Monday.

Special rate can be obtained for a group of at least ten persons, a cost advantage which should appeal to Juniors. This proposed trip by C.P.R. is for the evening session of the Junior Farmers' Conference in the King Edward Hotel. The train leaves here at 5.30 p.m. If they wish a group may go in the morning local.

Mr. Bell said some of the Juniors might wish to attend the evening meeting. The program includes the finals in public speaking; presentation of trophies and prizes; Middlesex Junior Farmers' Choir; Lanark Junior dramatics; Halton amateur features; entertainment and concluding dance at 10:30 p.m.

John Edmison is chairman for the afternoon public speaking competition.

FOR 1953 MATCH

It is still two summers distant, but Northumberland - Durham plowmen are beating the drum for International match at Cobourg in 1953. Past President Len Henderson of Cavan is leading a large delegation to the convention of the Ontario Plowmen's Association in Toronto Feb. 4 and 5. Vice-President Pat Lappin has charge of transportation for the neighboring farm group.

Agricultural Representative Ralph Banbury writes: "It is the custom for the local host to meet plowmen from all over the province and invite them to their match. This event will probably be staged only once in a life time in these counties.

"Counties councils are interested in making the 1953 match one of the best in Association's history."

County Home farm will be the site of the tented city, and the plowing fields will be on adjoining properties.

To stimulate the competitive spirit of united counties farmers, the 1952 match will be held near Grafton.

WORLD MILK RECORD

A Canadian bred Holstein cow developed in the USA has established an official world record for yearly production of milk regardless of times milked daily over all ages and breeds. She is Green Meadow Lily Pabst, bred by Fred W. Goble, Woodstock, Ont., and owned and developed by Merle H. Green, Elsie, Mich. Her production of 42,805 lbs. milk containing 1,246 lbs. butterfat was made in 365 days on three times a day milking and her production was weighed at each milking. She replaces as the world champion yearly milk producer an official test Carnation Ormsby Madcap Fayne, another US Holstein owned by Carnation Milk Farms, Seattle, Washington, with 41,943 lbs. milk.

The previous official world champion for yearly milk production on three times-a-day milking was the Canadian Holstein Re-Echo May Burke, owned by J. E. Houck, Brampton, Ont., with 35,314 lbs. milk containing 1,260 lbs. fat.

Farm Price Support In U.S. May Be Established Policy

The Commodity Credit Corporation, the US agency devised to support farm prices, began its ministrations in October, 1933. Its cumulative report to the end of September, 1951, showed net losses of $1,012,890,536, exclusive of wartime consumer subsidy program which cost in excess of $2 billion.

Pecans, honey, hops, tung oil, grapefruit juice, sweet potatoes, dried fruit, castor beans and turkeys are a few of the little known commodities CCC has supported. Through the years it realized a profit of $268,626,000 in its cotton deals. It also made substantial profits in its stores of tobacco, cottonseed and soybeans.

The big losing commodities, in addition to potatoes and peanuts, have been wheat $72,357,000, corn $52,835,000, eggs $171 million, butter $48 million, dried milk $57 million, and wool $92 million.

The US government has lost $478,233,000 on potatoes since it started buying them for more than they were worth in 1943. That part of the support program has now been suspended. The peanut price-support program began in 1947, and has cost the taxpayer $85 million through the fiscal year 1951.

A news report from Washington recalls that in the first year of peanut-price support, the Commodity Credit Corp. made a profit of $727,000 by the demand for oil and meal made from the surplus goobers.

"But the peanut farmers of the south soon took care of this. They backed their wagons up to CCC barns with more and more peanuts until the CCC reached a loss of $40,593,000 in 1950 alone."

"As of September 30, 1951, the shelves in CCC warehouses and caves all around the country were burdened with items like 43 million pounds of dried milk, 214 million lbs. of linseed oil, 403 million bushels of corn, 144 million lbs. of rosin, 22 million lbs of dried eggs, etc.....".

Linked with this stupendous inventory are certain losses by theft, diversion, or disappearance of the merchandise.

Between 15 and 20 cases of grain shortages are now under investigation. They involve values in millions of dollars. The Denver Post has reported that the Federal government has $290,000,000 worth of farm products stored in five western states with only three inspectors to supervise them.

As to controls and their retention across the border a NY Times reporter recently hinted that while farm organization leaders were deprecating "socialism and bureaucratic controls", the farmer was content to keep price support for his products.

"Despite constant cries from many farm leaders that the government was trying to regiment farmers, the farmers themselves are keeping anyone from tampering with their basic programs. In effect, the measures designed for emergency (in the 1930's) have become part of farmer philosophy that shows little fear of strangulation by the government. Rather, it would appear that farmers believe the government still is trying to aid them."

The NY Times report of the recent convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation (membership 1,150,000) was an interpretation of the dominant sentiment.

"By the late nineteen thirties the worst of the farm depression was over, and parity, which is designed to give the farmers a fixed share of the national income, was at a high level. Farm leaders wanted to knock it down as the war years brought the farmer back to his feet, but those who watched the farm scene over a period of years are inclined to believe that they will never succeed."

HELP ARRIVES—This latest aerial photograph of the crippled U.S. freighter Flying Enterprise shows the vessel with decks awash rolling as much as 80 degrees in the gale-lashed Atlantic. Standing guard in the background is the U.S. destroyer John W. Weeks, ready to take aboard if necessary the damaged vessel's skipper, Capt. Kurt Carlsen, who is determined not to accept rescue unless his ship sinks beneath him. A British sea-going tug arrived Thursday night and is trying to attach a towline to the 6,710-ton freighter before it capsizes.

Moscow Begins 1952 Drive To Gain Ends

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

Moscow appears to have kicked off for its major 1952 drive—aimed at clearing the decks for an all-out economic offensive, with its major theatre in Asia.

In Paris Foreign Minister Andre Vishinsky of Russia proposes a security council meeting to bring about an armistice in Korea. This fits neatly into the pattern of Soviet diplomatic activity in the last few months. It is tied in with such events as Stalin's New Year greetings to the people of Japan, and the forthcoming International Economic Conference in Moscow.

An armistice in Korea at this juncture might help Soviet plans. With the Soviet drive for the present apparently concentrated on Asia, Japan becomes a major target, and that country would be seriously affected by an armistice in Korea.

The Soviet proposal for a Security Council meeting to bring about an armistice, if adopted, could leave Korea in a state of suspension while Communist plans elsewhere proceeded apace. At the same time it could diminish orders from the United States to Japan for goods directly connected with the Korean war.

Economic Threat

With the end of US government aid to Japan in sight even now, Japan already faces an economic threat. Battling inflation, the Japanese islands could become a fertile field for Communist activity.

There was an ominous note today in the Paris remarks of Vishinsky—whose remarks of late have had the quality of veiled prophecy.

He accused the United States of ferrying Nationalist Chinese troops into the Southeast Asia countries—for an attack on the Chinese Communists. Vishinsky said he expected the US would refer to this as a defence activity which could not be countered by Chinese defensive measures.

There is always the possibility that in Southeast Asia some day the Chinese may announce themselves "invaded" and claim justification for a counter-invasion. Vishinsky would want no veto when and if that day arrived.

Lebanese Detain US Air Attache

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Jan. 4 (AP) — Five armed guards forcibly Thursday detained the air attache of the United States Legation, Col. William E. Covington, for an hour before permitting him to take off in a diplomatic plane from Halde Airport.

Covington had been given clearance by theLebanese Foreign Office, but airport authorities insisted his was a military plane for which the Foreign Office could not grant clearance. His clearance papers were taken away and impounded, but then Covington was allowed to take off.

Harold Minor, US minister to Lebanon, lodged a strong protest with authorities.

Plans To Visit Pearson Soon

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP)—Charles M. Spofford, American chairman of the Atlantic Council of Deputies, will visit Ottawa shortly to discuss with External Affairs Minister Pearson plans for the forthcoming meeting in Lisbon of the Atlantic Council of Foreign Ministers. Mr. Pearson is chairman of the Foreign Ministers' Council.

An External Affairs Department spokesman declined to comment on reports from London and Paris that France has asked that the Lisbon meeting, scheduled for Feb. 2, be postponed for two or three weeks. He said that if such a postponement is sought the announcement should come from the French Government.

In confirming the forthcoming visit of Mr. Spofford, the spokesman said it was only natural that the chairman of the council and the chairman of the deputies would want to meet to plan for the next regular meeting.

Need Literacy Against Reds

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP). — Six "working parties" drawn from the more than 400 delegates to the World Christian Mission Assembly convened today to consider practical problems facing Christian missions.

Delegates from 87 mission boards are attending the four-day conference of the foreign mission division of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States.

Two main topics were under consideration at today's sessions—participants in the world Christian mission and the place of the world Christian mission in the ecumenical (world church) movement.

The Rev. Alfred D. Moore of New York, secretary of the committee on world literacy and Christian literature said Thursday that literacy is the best weapon in the democratic fight against Communism.

One of the major considerations in today's session was the confirmation of the 1952 budget of the foreign missions division. The 86 mission boards and societies affiliated with the division spent an estimated $37,000,000 for overseas work in 1951.

Conventions Come To Fore Early In Year

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Two big national conventions are slated for early in the year, the Canadian Construction Association Jan. 20-23, and the Canadian Retail Federation, Feb. 11-15 Both will be in Toronto.

The Construction Association expects some 700 delegates to attend—contractors, road builders, manufacturers and suppliers—and Robert Drummond, president, comments:

"We hope to work out policies that will speed the completion of defence projects, essential housing, roads, power projects and other vital works."

The Retail Federation also expects several hundred delegates from across the country, and its program is especially aimed at "retailing in a defence economy."

Other Association Items

Alex Gray, president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, reports that Canada's exports in the last year will probably show an all-time-high value of $3,700,000,000. However, he adds, a large portion are raw materials, and "we must increasingly endeavour to market our consumer goods abroad.

"There will be a continuing demand for Canada's goods in 1952. Our ability to suply that demand will depend substantially on the extent to which steel and raw materials will be made available to manufacturing exporters—consistent with our defence program.

"It is our opinion that, while 1952 may show a downward trend from 1951 domestically, our exports will be maintained and may even be increased."

Mr. Gray named as welcome features:

Freedom from exchange control which Canadian exporters will be allowed to accept Canadian dollars for goods sold abroad; and the prospect of increased trade with the British West Indies.

Trevor H. Hamill former assistant Ontario manager of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed executive secretary of the recently-organized Ontario Chamber of Commerce, with headquarters in Toronto.

W. R. McCaffrey, general manager of the Canadian Standards Association, reports:

"As a result of increased support, both financial and moral, by industry and government departments, the CSA was able to announce publication of 66 new and revised specifications or codes of practice, in 1951.

"These include standards for building materials, electrical equipment and appliances, mechanical details, ferrous and non-ferrous metallurgy, photography, domestic oil-burning equipment, agricultural implements, as well as new editions of codes of practice in the safety field."

Hopes Taxes Lower

OSHAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—William A. Wecker, president of General Motors of Canada, said Thursday in a year-end review that the Canadian automobile industry hopes that current taxes and credit restrictions may be allowed to restore buying power to Canadians "whose very real need for automotive transportation was denied by severe controls."

Armistice Conference Site Safest Place In Korea

By DON HUTH

PANMUNJOM, Jan. 4 (AP)—This military armistice conference site is the safest place in Korea to watch the war.

There is some battle activity daily only a few miles from Panmunjom where United Nations and Communist negotiators are trying to end the 18-month-old conflict.

Bursting artillery shells and aerial strikes on Red positions echo over their meeting tents.

Allied and Communist correspondents congregate in the muddy fields beside the four abandoned huts called Panmunjom to watch the sideshow.

Panmunjom seems far removed from the war until UN artillery and air forces go to work.

A razor-backed hill to the east has been getting special attention. Allied guns have "walked" phosphorus and high explosive shells from one end to the other and along the slopes.

The white phosphorus plumes skyward to form a marker for the artillerymen to get on their target.

Then the sharp kettle-drum beat of high-explosive shells thumps across the frozen, snow-covered rice paddies.

Sometimes the noise rolls in like a report from a string of loud firecrackers.

The air shows are the most interesting. Planes take over where the artillery left off.

They bank lazily away from the four huge orange balloons that mark the armistice zone boundaries.

Seven planes gave a spectacular performance this week. They circled a short time. Then the leader "peeled off" in a steep dive toward the valley, apparently on a reconnaissance run. In seconds, he was back with the flight.

The fighters moved in for the attack. One by one they swooped down. The sound of bursting bombs, rockets and machine-gun fire was heard.

One plane circled wide to rejoin the formation. Three bursts of Red anti-aircraft fire marred the hazy sky with black puffs of smoke.

DIED IN PLANE CRASH—Mrs. Angus Bruce, 26, wife of a Kingston, Ont., mining engineer and the only Canadian aboard a Miami-to-Buffalo airliner, was one of the 26 who died in the crash Saturday night. Fourteen others survived. The former Dorothy Burman, of Toronto, Mrs. Bruce was going to Buffalo to visit her mother before rejoining her husband in Kingston on New Year's eve.

ICY WINTER gripping most of Canada has its counterpart in the Korean war zone. Clad in the R.C.N.'s winter clothing, Ordinary Seaman James Melnecheck, Vancouver, and Robert Massey, Calgary, chip ice from the deck of HMCS Sioux as the destroyer patrols the frigid seas off the Korean coast, a typical bleak section of which can be seen in the distant background.

Skirt Lengths To Stay Put Sheath Or Full

SAN FRANCISCO—One factor remained constant throughout the resort showings here. That was the stabilization of skirt lengths For day time, the mid-calf hemline continued and evening skirts varied as before from daytime to floor-touching length.

In skirt widths there was enormous variety. Hemlines were narrow, moderately full of extremely so. Suits still favored the slender silhouette, although full skirts appeared here, too.

And in dresses and separate skirts, where the wide hemline was on the upswing, sheaths continued to be shown. When the hemline was wide there was almost certain to be a petticoat.

Nowhere was the "two trend" story more clear than in swim suits. Many were as daintily trimmed as a garden party dress, with flowers, ruffles, button trimming, scallops, pockets, tie-on flared skirts, embroidery, pearls or jewelled accents.

Others, without belonging to the classic category at all, were sleek and trim. Much was made of the tomboy look, with longer boy shorts over concealed romper panties.

BETTER COOKIES DELIGHT EVERYONE. Fill the cookie jar, probably empty after a busy festive season, with these melt-in-the-mouth cookies.

They Will Beat A Path To A Full Cookie Jar

An ever-filled cookie jar—isn't that one of the fond memories cherished from "growing up" days? Yes, coming home from school, or in from play—and dipping into the cookie jar, was one of the distinct pleasures of the then small world. Not that the cookie jar passion diminishes with the years—the older ones in the house, especially the men—feel that the cookie jar is part and parcel of the home.

These butter cookie recipes are bound to be favorites, once tried. Butter gives them superb taste and texture—and gives some of that much needed vitamin A.

The appealing Butter Balls are easy to make and the "dreamy" Apricot Bars are definitely simple and ordinary to make and something special to eat. Brandy Horns are novel to look at and wonderful to indulge in, but there is a little more to making them, naturally.

Butter Balls

1 cup soft butter
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups sifted pastry flour
1 cup finely chopped nuts

Mix butter and sugar until creamy. Add remaining ingredients gradually and blend well. Chill the dough until it's easy to handle. Then shape the dough into one inch balls and place on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F) for 15 to 18 minutes or until delicately browned. While cookies are warm roll them in powdered sugar. (Yield: 4 to 5 dozen.

Note: 1. The nuts may be omitted from the dough. Then before baking, dip balls in chopped nuts. 2. Before baking, garnishes of sliced cherries or nuts may be placed on top of the raw balls.

Apricot Bars

(Yield: 2 dozen bars)
2-3 cup dried apricots
½ cup soft butter
¼ cup sugar
1 cup sifted pastry flour
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1-3 cup sifted pastry flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts

Rinse the dried apricots, then cover with water and boil for 10 minutes. Drain, cool and chop. Blend the butter, sugar and 1 cup flour until smooth. Spread into a greased 8x8x2 inch cake pan. Bake in a moderately slow oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 minutes or until lightly browned.

Meanwhile beat the eggs, and gradualy add the brown sugar. Sift together the 1-3 cup flour, baking powder and salt. Add this flour mixture and mix well. Add the vanilla, nuts and apricots. Spread this over the baked layer and bake in a moderately slow oven (325 deg. F.) for 40 minutes or until done. Cool in the pan, then cut into bars.

Brandy Snap Horns

¾ cup pastry flour
3 tablespoons skim milk powder
2-3 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ginger
½ cup molasses
½ cup butter.

Sift the dry ingredients together. Heat molasses to the boiling point. Add butter. Then gradually add the butter and molasses to the dry ingredients, stirring constantly. Keep mixture warm, but do not boil. Drop by spoonfuls well apart on a greased baking sheet. Bake only a few (4 or 5) at a time. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahr.) for 10 minutes. Cool for a few minutes. Then immediately roll each cookie over a smooth pencil to form a horn or cornucopia shape. (Yields 1½ dozen.)

Note:
1—Cookies may be formed into long thin rolls instead of horns.
2—Fill horns or rolls with sweetened whipped cream mixed with chopped nuts or cherries.
3—If cookies cool too much for rolling, return them to the oven for a few minutes.

Wide Skirts, Tighter Waists Featured In Spring Styles

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON, Jan. 4 — (CP) — A searching good look at the style and design of 1951 shows a notable change in the fashion silhouette.

Twelve months ago, women greeted the year with skirts 15 inches from the ground and so tight you could hardly hobble. Sleeves were narrow with soft shoulderline, collars small and belts wide.

Now, advance spring styles show a definite return to the wide skirts of the old "new look," that shocked the post-war fashion conscious. Skirts have dropped two inches, waist are higher, belts narrow, collars large and imposing— and the latest thing in sleeves is wide raglan shouldered with deep high-wayman cuffs.

In fact we're going back once more —back to the days of padded hips and graceful swinging skirts, back to rustling underskirts, back to shorter hair styles, small tight-fighting hats and cuban heels.

Old Princess Line.

The latest thing in coats is the old princess line with tiny waist, wide skirt, big collar and cuffs. The old tent swagger is back in all its glory with huge sleeves, big collars and swinging fullness.

As the months of the year rolled by, waists became smaller and the latest summer dress style have deep cummerbunds emphasizing the fulness of the flaring skirt.

There are lots of short evening dresses, seven inches from the ground, in spring colors of warm gold and summer sky blues. Newest materials look like softly-woven straw, but strapless tops are as dead as last year's beach wear.

Despite the sudden trend to greater width, however, the straight skirts are hard to kill. They hold their own for combination with tiny bolero jackets and wide penguin jackets, so called because the full design cannot be seen unless the arms are stretched sideways.

Another point in the changing silhouette says London's west-end hairdresser, Rene, is that spring hair styles will go back to the short cuts — high collars mean death to the chignon.

A hat forecast is given by royal milliner, Aage Thaarup, who says that after a year of shallow crowns and non-existent brims, hats will have more depth and brim, with a forward tilt and shorter back.

Avoid Adding Food Costs Follow Recipes Absolutely

A woman blessed with natural talent for producing praise-winning dishes, or who has been cooking for years might get away with using a "pinch of this" or "a dash of that." But the average housewife is strongly advised to follow the directions closely when she uses a recipe, particularly these days when a failure in the kitchen can add worrisome costs to the food budget.

Home economists in the Consumer Section of the Canada Department of Agriculture claim many of the common pitfalls in cooking can be avoided. They stress the absolute necessity of following recipe directions carefully and using level measurements and standard spoons and cups. "A variation in the amount of a single ingredient" they say, "can often mean the difference between a tasty delight or a miserable failure."

They offer these ideas:

Collect all required ingredients together where the mixing is to take place. Measure them carefully. Spoons and cups in recipes mean level spoonsful and cupfuls; do not heap them.

When the recipe calls for a cup of sifted flour, it means to sift the flour first, then measure it. If it is measured first, then sifted, it will actually give more than the required cupful and affect the texture of the finished product.

Two Types of Flour

When measuring flour, bear in mind that there are two main types, "all-purpose" and "pastry". If one is used in place of the other an adjustment in quantity is necessary, because all-purpose flour is heavier. If pastry flour is substituted for all-purpose, use slightly more. For each cup of all-purpose called for, use one cup plus two tablespoons of pastry flour. This also works in reverse if all-purpose is used in place of pastry flour, less is used. For each cup of pastry flour required, use ⅞ cup or one cup minus two tablespoons of all-purpose.

Incidentally, cake flour is pastry flour which has been sifted through a very fine screen.

Sour and Fresh Milk

Frequently a recipe will call for sour milk when only fresh milk is in the refrigerator. This can be overcome by allowing one teaspoon of vinegar or lemon juice and one cup of fresh milk for each cup of sour milk called for. Let the mixture of vinegar or lemon juice and milk stand for about half an hour before using it. If sour milk is used in place of fresh milk in a recipe, add ½ teaspoon of soda to the flour for each cup of sour milk used and reduce the baking powder by one half.

Terms Misunderstood

Some of the cooking terms often misunderstood or misinterpreted are stir cream, beat and fold. Stir means to blend the ingredients together, while cream means to work the ingredients until they are well blended, soft and creamy. The purpose of beating is to incorporate air into the mixture, while folding is a gently under and over movement with the mixing spoon, usually to combine two mixtures, of which one is beaten egg white.

American Measure

So far reference has been to measurements and terms for cakes and pies. When making recipes requiring a large amount of liquid for example bread and pickles, difficulties may arise if an American recipe is used. In Canada the standard liquid measurement is the Imperial pint and quart, while across the border the Wine measure is used. A cup is the same in both countries, but the Imperial pint and quart are equal to two and a half cups and five cups respectively. The Wine pint and quart are equal to two and four cups respectively.

Meat Cookery

Terms in meat cookery not always clearly understood are dredge, roast, pot roast or braise and boil. Dredge means to coat, usually with flour. This helps to brown the meat and to thicken the gravy. Roast applies to dry cooking without a lid, the tender cuts of meat should be cooked by this method. The less tender cuts become more tender if they are pot roasted or braised, that is, cooked with some liquid added to the pan, and covered with a lid. The term boil, which is often used with regard to ham or making stew and also to eggs, is now old-fashioned. The word that should be used is simmer, which will require a longer time at a lower temperature.

FUNNY BUSINESS — By Hershberger

"Okay, okay! Then we'll buy a davenport!"

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Corn Syrup And Butter Preferred To Butter, Sugar

QUESTION: Are corn syrup and butter quite as good as sugar and butter for putting in your tin with nuts for your bread buns? (Note unsigned.)

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I prefer corn syrup and butter because they are not quite so sweet, they do not scorch so easily and the bun stays soft longer if any are left over. I will give you both methods. The rolls I am giving you are for baking powder dough, but the same pan syrup may be used for a yeast dough.

Upside Down Rolls

Two cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, about ½ cup milk, ⅓ cup melted butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons sugar, ½ cup corn syrup, ½ cup chopped nuts, ¼ cup chopped dates. Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt. Cut in the shortening. Add the milk slowly enough to form a soft dough. Roll out on lightly floured board into a rectangle 8 x 2 inches and about ¼ inch thick. Brush with 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with sugar, then roll up like a jelly roll. Cut into rolls 1 inch wide. Mix the corn syrup with the remaining melted butter or margarine, and add the nuts and dates to them. Spread this mixture on bottom of greased 8-inch cake pan or in individual muffin tins. Place rolls, cut side down on top of corn syrup mixture. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes or until risen and brown.

Almond or Pecans Rolls

Grease an iron frying pan with lard then with plenty of butter. Cover bottom with ½ inch layer of brown or brown and white sugar. Dot generously with butter. If desired sprinkle with a layer of nuts which could be blanched or unblanched almonds or pecans or walnuts. Place over this syrup the cut buns (made from either baking powder or yeast dough.) Dust top with cinnamon and a light sprinkling of sugar and bake at 35 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. (for bread buns—hotter for baking powder). If you use the frying pan be very careful not to touch the hot handle when taking it from the oven.

If you should want yeast dough and method of making rolls from it let me know.

QUESTION: Please give a good recipe for mashed lima beans with celery flavor in your column. — Mrs. GAC.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I note the last part of your letter and am writing to you privately too.

I had never heard of mashed lima beans with celery flavor so had to make a dish of it up. This is what I did.

Mashed Limas With Celery

Soak 1 lb. washed, dried lima beans over night in plenty of cold water to cover. Do not drain. Put on to cook with 2 level teaspoons salt, and 3 medium-sized outer celery stalks, cut up fine with some of the leaves attached, and 1 large sliced onion. Cook slowly until tender, seeing that just enough water remains toward the end that it will be soaked up when beans are mashed. Mash with potato masher when tender—the onions and celery will break up too. Add 2 tablespoons butter and pepper to taste. Other flavor additions could be ¼ of a bay leaf, which would have to be removed, and some tomato juice which would be added during last hour of cooking.

QUESTION: What makes a lemon pie go thin after egg yolks are added? Unsigned note.

ANSWER: Over cooking after yolks are added. Cook filling with cornstarch at least 20 minutes. Stir filling into yolks; cook only 2 minutes longer.

DOROTHY DIX

Emphasize Good Points Why Enlarge On Handicap

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a boy of 17 and have a large nose. Everyone laughs and makes fun of me. Would an operation improve it? Where could I go and what would it cost?—MAC.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: Of course, a large nose shouldn't be allowed to dominate your personality and make your miserable. Most people have at least one feature that could be regarded as a slight handicap, but by keeping their good points in the ascendency, rather than the one bad one, they manage to avoid complexes. I'm sure even a casual look around you will emphasize this point. Notice how many of your schoolmates have overcome the drawback of a bad feature.

Plastic surgery is an expensive proposition but is now much more available than it was a few years back. Consult with a plastic surgeon in your local eye, ear and nose hospital for details in your case; but think twice before deciding to change your appearance.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I have been happily married for 18 years. We are now well established and have three boys in school. However, the rising cost of living in our locality is getting beyond us, and we'd like to sell what we have and move to Nevada, where we have friends and can both get jobs. Our problem is that my husband is an only child and his mother is a widow. I know she'l object to our moving. She has never been very friendly to me or the children, and is able to support herself. Would I be selfish in making this move in spite of her feelings?—WESTWARD BOUND—I HOPE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: First of all, are you sure your intended move is motivated by economic reasons and not by a desire to put several hundred miles between your husband and his mother? Secondly, are you perhaps jumping to conclusions in assuming that she will object to the move? She hasn't, after all, ever made demands on you and quite possibly will quietly resign herself to your change of residence. If you and your husband really believe your best interests lie westward, go by all means.

✧ ✧ ✧

Too Young For Dates

DEAR MISS DIX: My 15-year-old daughter is frequently asked, by boys, to go to football games or school dances. Her father says she is too young. She threatens to slip out and go anyway if he doesn't give his permission.—M.T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I'd sympathize with you and your daughter if it were not for her "threats". No 15-year-old girl should be allowed to put herself in the position of terrorizing a parent (as she seems to have you scared) by threats. Whether she (or you) agrees with him or not, her father's rules should be obeyed.

Ordinarily, a high-school girl should be permitted to enjoy such activities as her school sponsors. By the time she has reached high-school age she should be sufficiently responsible to be given these privileges. Your daughter is acting like a spoiled baby and her father knows her limitations.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A year ago I ran away and foolishly married. When I returned home my parents had the marriage annulled. Now I have met a wonderful boy who does not know of my previous mistake. We are deeply in love and he has asked me to marry him. Should I tell him?—ELINOR.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By all means, tell! This is the sort of thing that is bound to come out sooner or later, and a mistake that has been corrected is much easier to forgive than a deliberate attempt to deceive.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two girls aged 16, and very much in love with a man of 30. Our mothers do not approve of our going out with this man. Don't you think they are old-fashioned?—E. AND L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It's a good thing you have "old-fashioned" mothers. Someone in the household needs common sense. What's the matter with you two that you can't find boy friends your own age? Continue your present tactics and you'll never have any. A man almost twice your age is no companion for you; obey your mothers and save a lot of future trouble.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Groceterias Wonderland To Europeans

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's groceterias are a kind of food wonderland to Europeans. Time and again they remark on the big airy stores Canadian women take for granted.

Newcomers to this country are constantly amazed that a housewife can trundle a little wagon from shelf to shelf and choose whatever food she wishes to buy.

Ruth Gylys, now living in Toronto, is one of more than 16,000 Germans who have immigrated here in the last five years. She too was delighted to discover these stores where "you don't have to know much English to be able to get what you want."

After 1½ years in this country this new Canadian is learning to purchase her food in large quantities the way most housewives do. She now buys sugar and potatoes in five and ten-pound bags rather than by the pound or half-pound as women do in her home in Wuerttemberg. In Germany the food always is weighed by the store-keeper at each purchase. And another thing—when German women want meat they go to a butcher-shop. Meat is never sold in grocery stores.

Shares Recipes

Mrs. Gylys came to Canada armed with German cook-books. She says it was a problem at first to follow the old country recipes. All the quantities were given in grams. However, relatives back home heard of her need and sent her the correct utensils. Now she frequently "translates" the quantities in her favorite recipes for the benefit of her Canadian friends.

Mrs. Gylys doesn't think Canadian housewives use much imagination when they cook vegetables. For dinner too often they serve boiled carrots or peas.

German housewives prepare their vegetables in different ways. Mrs. Gylys still cooks spinach as she was taught in the old country.

It must be washed and then cooked in boiling salt water. After draining, it is put through a grinder together with a little white bread which has been soaked in the water.

Cut an onion into pieces and fry in margarine. Mix this with the spinach together with a little flour and either broth or water in which meat has been boiled. Mrs. Gylys sometimes adds a little milk.

In Germany this spinach dish is frequently served with fried eggs and fried potatoes.

Mrs. Gylys has had difficulty getting accustomed to the quantity of vanilla flavoring in Canadian cooking. Lemon peel is the most popular flavoring used in Germany. Whenever vanilla is used it's always vanilla sugar rather than vanilla extract most popular in Canada.

"EVERYBODY HAPPY"
YES WE venture to say the whole family will be thrilled with the many fine features of this sturdy brick residence, near Monaghan Road and Charlotte Street. Attractive entrance hall, spacious living-room, music-room, with open fireplace, family size dining-room, efficient kitchen with built-in sink and cupboards. Upstairs four splendid bedrooms and bath plus a finished den on the third floor. Spotless oak floors throughout. A grand family home or ideal for sub-letting. Asking price only $14,900 — Terms arranged. Telephone 5345 or 8402.
"SANTA WAS HERE"
AND LEFT us this Storey-and-a-half Brick Rome near Homewood and Monaghan Road. Surrounded by beautiful homes in this much-sought-after location, it has a 20' living-room, panelled dining-room with built-in serving bar, modern kitchen and upstairs four good bedrooms and bath. It's oil heated, has excellent garage, and large, well-landscaped grounds. Since the owner cannot give possession until May 1st, this fine home is being sold for $12,500, and terms can be arranged. Telephone 5345 or 8402.
SURE 'NUFF
THIS Six-Room Brick Home, close to C.G.E., can be bought for $6,800, and a low down payment will handle it too. With all good big rooms it makes a dandy home for a family, or a couple could live in part and rent the rest (which is a smart idea). Of course, there's a 3-piece bath and dandy hot air heating. Telephone 8402.
"SHUCKS"
WE JUST sold this Home a short while ago and now the owner has been moved to Lindsay. Well it proves they were satisfied, because they have given us the sale of it exclusively. It's in the north-end, and is situate on a grand lot with 90' frontage. It's a large Frame Home, having 3 rooms down, and four bedrooms and bathroom upstairs. The taxes are only $65.00, the full price is only $6,000, and about $1,400 cash will handle. Telephone 8402 or 5345.
"WHERE'S THE 'PHONE"
I WANT to call Hartshorn. He has a Double House to sell for $5,000. There's four rooms in one and five in the other. I figure we can put $2,500 down, live in one side, and let our tenants supply the payments. Good deal. Operator, give me 8402. I'm going to see this now.

Wine Of Love Chosen As Next Grand Opera

Tickets for the operatic feature at Centre Theatre next Wednesday afternoon and evening, Jan. 9, are moving actively, according to report today, Half the ground floor is already taken, and some of the loges upstairs are gone.

Mr. Harry Yudin, Centre manager, is bringing Donizetti's Wine of Love, (L'Elisir d'Amore). He is also offering a secondary feature, entitled "The Queen of La Scala" which includes the orchestra, choir and ballet of the famous opera house of Milan. The musical score presents numbers from Verdi's Othello; The Girl of the Golden West by Puccini; and the Donizetti ballet in San Sebastiano.

"The Wine of Love" cast of Nelly Corradi, soprano; Italo Tajo, bass; Tito Gobbi, baritone; Gino Sinimberghi, tenor, Loretta Di Lelio, soprano, is supported by the orchestra, chorus and ballet of the Rome Opera House. One of the most popular solos of "L'Elisir," "Una Furtiva Lagrima" (A Furtive Tear) has been a favorite of lovers of grand opera during the century since it was written by Donizetti. This opera held a high place in Caruso's appreciation, and was sung by him in ten seasons at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. The narrator is Milton Cross, commentator on the Metropolitan broadcasts since 1942.

Actress Found Dead In Montreal Home

MONTREAL, Jan. 4 (CP) — Mrs. Julien Major, better known to thousands of French-speaking stage and radio fans as Muriel Guilbault, was found dead in the bathroom of her Park Avenue home Thursday night.

An inquest into the death of the 28-year-old actress will be held today.

Miss Guilbault, a prominent member of the French Montreal Repertory Theatre Players, played a variety of stage and radio roles. However, she gained her greatest acting fame as a featured player in the Fridolin tragi-comedy "Ti-Coq."

Mrs. Major starred in "Ti-Coq" as "Marie-Ange," the jaunty, illegitimate little soldiers's girl friend who while he was overseas married another after being urged by her parents to forget "Ti-Coq."

Store Window Smashed After Cars Hit

After two cars collided at George and Hunter streets at 7 am today, one of the vehicles ran backwards, smashing the plate glass window of a store at the southwest corner of the intersection.

The window which faces on Hunter St., was valued at $400. Damage to the two cars was estimated at $220.

Elmer Danford, Cavan, was driving south on George St., and was about two-thirds of the way across Hunter St., when an eastbound Hunter St. car, driven by Cornelius Driscoll, 700 Ross St., drove through the intersection and the two cars collided.

The impact turned the Danford car around, and caused damage to the front end estimated at $160.

Both drivers told Constable Sherman Keliele who investigated that they entered the intersection on a green light.

The left rear wheel of the Driscoll car which smashed into the store window was torn off, causing damage to the car estimated at $60.

No one was injured but the four vehicles involved in two two-car accidents Thursday were damaged slightly.

Terry O'Leary, 520 Charlotte St., was driving east on Charlotte St., Thursday afternoon. Just past Stewart St., he stopped to allow some pedestrians on the sidewalk to pass, before he turned right into a service station.

A car travelling behind the O'Leary car, driven by Cecil Casey, RR 1, Omemee, was unable to stop before sliding into the rear of O'Leary's car, causing damage to both vehicles.

As he was passing a parked car, Earl Armstrong, 669 Water St., driving south on Rubidge St., slid sideways and was in collision with an oncoming car, at 5:20 Thursday evening near Wolfe St.

The northbound Rubidge St. car was driven by Leonard Watkins, 639 Gilchrist St.

India, England Draw In Third Test Match

CALCUTTA, Jan. 4 (Reuters)— India and England drew in the third test match of the present series here today with the final scoreboard showing India 344 and 102 for 0; England 342 and 252 for five declared.

The two earlier tests, at Delhi and Bombay, also were drawn.

The funereal pace which characterized the match from the start continued throughout England's innings today. Nigel Howard declared at tea leaving India the impossible task of scoring 251 in 90 minutes to win. In reaching 102 without loss they scored at a faster pace than had been seen at any other stage of the game.

Three Newcomers

He succeeded Jeremiah Mahoney who retired at the end of 1949.

Mr. Moloney has been deputy reeve of Douro since 1950, when the township first became eligible for extra representation in the county council. He was a member of the committee on the Foley Estate in 1951.

Norman Wilson, reeve of Burleigh-Anstruther for the last seven years, is returning for an eighth term. This year he was acclaimed but in 1951 he fought one of the closest township contests in many years. He defeated Norman Bolton by a single vote.

He was elected during his first four years as councillor, and first six as reeve, without opposition. Mr. Bolton did not run this year.

Mr. Wilson was warden in 1950; and in 1951 he was chairman of education, and planning and development.

Reeve Of Chandos

Clive Hoard is beginning his second consecutive term as reeve of Chandos township. He entered council in 1950, completing the unexpired portion of Glen Nichols' term.

In 1951 he was chairman of the fish, game and tourist committee.

Peter Pearson, warden of Peterborough county for 1951, was returned by acclamation for his eighth successive term as reeve of Galway-Cavendish. Altogether he has been in municipal life for 19 years.

Another acclamation went to Stewart Clysdale. Mr. Clysdale is beginning his third unopposed term as reeve of Dummer township. He succeeded William Darling in 1950 after Mr. Darling declined to run for reeve.

Mr. Darling was warden of the county in 1949.

During 1950 Mr. Clysdale served on the agriculture and reforestation committees.

Toronto Strike Highlights

TORONTO, Jan. 4 —(CP)— Streams of motor-cars converged on downtown Toronto today as the city's street-car and bus system was tied up by a strike of operators seeking higher wages.

From the north, the east and the west, cars bore thousands of persons to their jobs in the southerly, downtown areas. First estimates were that the traffic flow was five times heavier than on a normal weekday.

Hitch-hiking was the thing to do in the Toronto area today as stranded thousands who normally use street-cars and buses to get to their work got lifts.

But the 5 am strike caught many by surprise. Many automobiles carrying only the driver were seen as hundreds of persons stood at street corners waiting for the street-car that never came.

As the motor traffic grew denser shortly after 7 am, the cars formed three lines of traffic on the main streets toward the centre of the city, leaving only one lane for traffic moving in the other direction. Drivers attempting to get out of the downtown area were forced into a single line, often half snowbank. Many streets still have piles of snow from recent heavy snowfalls.

Taxi companies called in their night drivers, turned off their meters and piled five passengers into a car at $1 a head from residential districts to downtown. Rules against doubling up passengers were ignored and drivers pocketed $5 for what they'd ordinarily charge a single passenger $2.

At 9:30 am, 4½ hours after the strike began, lines of automobiles still were moving bumper to bumper into the city. One line-up on Yonge Street, Toronto's main north-south artery, was a solid three miles.

The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways said they planned no extra commuters trains or even additional coaches on regular trains. They said they did not expect any increase in passenger traffic from the suburban areas as Toronto, unlike Montreal and some other cities, is not a commuters' city.

The railways brought their own workers into the city on special employees' trains.

The strike-bound Toronto Transportation Commission reported all but about 20 of its office workers on the job on time. The TTC days ago had organized its own system of car pools.

Police turned a discreet eye from cars—thousands and thousands of them—parked in areas normally restricted. For the duration of the strike, motorists will be able to park almost anywhere—providing they stay off main arteries which are expected to bear the brunt of the traffic flow.

Toronto's parking lots did a roaring business. One Front Street lot was filled to capacity —400 cars—long before 10 am and the owner had a problem: what to do with cars showing up for the regular Friday meetings of Rotarians who normally use the lot.

Inspector Vernon Page, police traffic department head, was unable to estimate how many extra automobiles came into the downtown area today. He thought the increase over a normal day would be about 30 or 35 per cent.

Police officials met with Mayor Allan Lamport to discuss what parking restrictions would be eased. One inspector said all restrictions could not be lifted or results would be "chaotic."

The Board of Education reported school attendance 'good.' It said most pupils live within walking distance of school and teachers got to work by automobile.

Buses which take crippled children to school were not affected by the transit strike.

One immediate effect of the strike: A sharp drop in business in downtown stores.

Many small shops opened late and by mid-morning, had not finished such early-morning chores as mopping and dusting of shelves.

Big department stores reported business much below normal and the usual throngs of morning shoppers were absent. More persons than usual were on the streets but they were not stepping inside stores to take advantage of the January sales.

Most big firms were ready for the strike and got their employees to work by car pool or by truck. One firm brought 2,000 employees in by using more than 100 vehicles.

The post office warned that city mail deliveries would be late. Mailmen who usually ride street-cars and buses to their routes had to walk or obtain rides in automobiles.

In a statement, Mayor Allan Lamport said:

"There will be no place on our streets for the car with the single occupant . . . Courtesy, common sense and patience on the part of everyone will pay big dividends."

Doors on an east-end car barn were closed today for the first time in 30 years. When supervisor Harry Kennedy tried to lock them, he found the locks rusted. The keys broke. Wooden bars were nailed across the doors.

All radio stations offered emergency transportation announcements free to employers of large strike-stranded staffs.

Plan Ski School With 15 Instructors

The ski school for students of the elementary schools, will be held Saturday morning at Kemp's hill.

To promote skiing among the younger set the school is sponsored by the recreation commission and the Ski club. This year a six-week program has been arranged.

Ski club officials said today the hill is in fine condition with from four to six inches of packed snow making for "fair" skiing.

They added that the 1951 club members will automatically become 1952 members on account of conditions being so poor last year. Any boys and girls wishing to join may register at the hill Saturday.

There will be 15 instructors supplied by the ski club and a patrol in case of injuries. The commission will supply the transportation and other costs.

Three buses have been chartered and will leave all points at 9 a.m. and Kemp's Hill at 11.30.

The buses will leave (a) from the King Street depot, making stops at corner of Murray and Water Sts. and at Parkhill Rd. and Water St.; (b) from Prince of Wales school, stopping at Queen Mary school; (c) from Confederation school stopping at King Edward school.

Stephens, who gave his address as 5508 13th Ave., Rosemount, Montreal, will be taken to Oshawa where he faces three charges of false pretenses.

He was arraigned in police court Thursday on a non support charge and was remanded to appear in family court today.

Three Newcomers To Appear When County Council Meets

Three newcomers will be sworn in when the Peterborough county council holds its inaugural meeting Jan. 15.

Besides these three changes in the composition of the council there will be a veteran reeve returning after a year's absence, and another veteran of county council moving up from deputy reeve to reeve.

Elections unseated William E. Griffith of Belmont-Methuen and William C. Grant, of Lakefield.

One of the newcomers to the county council is Morris Whitney, Oak Lake, who edged Mr. Griffith after a stiff battle in Belmont-Methuen. Mr. Whitney was a 1951 township councillor. It was his first bid for the reeveship.

In 1948 Mr. Whitney was equally successful, heading the poll for the township council on his first try. His father, the late Norris Whitney, was a township councillor for 18 years.

Mr. Griffith, a former warden and veteran of municipal policies since 1906, has been the foremost critic of the new county assessment. And he opposed the county issuing debentures for the new high school in Norwood.

Grant Upset

The biggest upset in the council was the decisive defeat of William C. Grant, reeve of Lakefield since 1946, by Elwood E. Northey.

Mr. Northey, Lakefield druggist, was making his first bid for office, either as councillor or reeve. He defeated Mr. Grant by 342 votes to 241. He has been on village school boards for 26 years and during the Second World War was village clerk and treasurer, replacing Harry Hill.

The third newcomer is Robert McAdam, acclaimed deputy reeve of Smith township. Mr. McAdam is a relative junior in municipal politics. He was on the Smith council for the last two years and was unopposed when he qualified for deputy reeve in 1952.

Gordon Fitzgerald, a veteran of more than 20 years' council experience, this year moves up from deputy reeve to reeve. He was acclaimed to his office when Ross Harrison, reeve for the last four years, decided not to run.

Mr. Fitzgerald was deputy reeve under Mr. Harrison for the last two years but he held that same office a number of years ago. He was chairman of the Old People's Home committee in 1951.

The other elections were in Harvey and Otonabee townships but they caused no change in the county council roster.

Charles Flynn held his reeveship after a tight three-way election battle in Harvey township. He defeated Gale Elliott (reeve in 1950) by four votes—193 to 189. The third candidate, Thomas Gordon, received 111 votes.

Mr. Flynn indicated at the closing meeting of 1951 that he would press during the coming year for work to begin on the proposed Gannon's Narrows causeway. This project fell into abeyance after the spring of 1951 when county council were informed that a shortage of steel would make its approval unlikely. Preliminary plans were discontinued and are only now shaping up again.

Reeve Dick Stewart, Otonabee, is returning to the county council for the second year after fighting as many elections. He was re-elected this year, trouncing former township councillor Norman McConkey by 340 votes—780 to 440.

Mr. Stewart won the reeveship in 1951, after two years as deputy reeve, defeating Harry Reid 627 to 454.

He was chairman of the county roads committee in 1951.

Dave McIntyre, deputy reeve of Otonabee, also had to fight an election but he defeated his opponent, Roy Spears, by a majority of 132 votes. This is his third year in county council.

Back After Year

Another change in council is the return of Ernest J. Leeson as reeve of Havelock village after an absence of a year. He was elected by acclamation when W. E. Seeney, who defeated him at the polls in 1951, decided not to run.

Mr. Leeson has been in Havelock municipal politics since 1927. His record includes six years as reeve and seven years as township councillor.

Messrs. Leeson, Seeney and Griffith were all nominated for reeve at the Havelock ratepayers' meeting, but only Mr. Leeson qualified. Mr. Seeney decided to drop out of municipal politics for a year (he has served 11 years as reeve and seven years as township councillor) and Mr. Griffith withdrew to contest the reeveship of Belmont Methuen.

There were no changes in the nine other municipalities where the encumbents were returned by acclamation.

The senior member in length of service is James Gifford. He is beginning his 19th year as reeve of Ennismore. Altogether he has spent 21 years in municipal politics.

Mr. Gifford was warden of Peterborough county in 1936.

Reeve Of Three

Another veteran county councillor returned by acclamation is Reeve Rork Ferguson of Norwood village. Mr. Ferguson has the unique experience in this county of having been reeve of three municipalities during his career: Dummer, Asphodel and Norwood.

During the last 12 years he has been reeve of Norwood 11 times: the exception was in 1948 when he lost out to William Packenham. Mr. Ferguson was warden of the county in 1934 and Liberal MP for Hastings-Peterborough 1935-40.

During 1951 Mr. Ferguson's main project in the county council was getting council to issue debentures for building the high school that will serve Norwood high school district. Before this was approved he had serveral verbal jousts with Reeve Griffith of Belmont-Methuen who opposed it and contended that the ratepayers opposed it too.

James Humphries, reeve of Asphodel, was returned by acclamation and is beginning his ninth term in county council. Previously he was six years a township councillor.

After the resignation in May of John McColl as chairman of the Peterborough County Forest Reserve Commission, Mr. Humphries was elected to the post.

He was county warden in 1948.

Willard G. Waterman begins his second year as reeve of North Monaghan township. This year he was elected by acclamation. He came out of retirement in 1951 to defeat the veteran Melville Johnston who had an uninterrupted reign of 12 years as reeve.

Previously Mr. Waterman had been in the county council as a deputy reeve. During 1951 he was chairman of the county's standing committee on agriculture and their representative on the board of the Children's Aid Society.

Douro electors returned Reeve Roland Tedford and Deputy Reeve Loyola Moloney by acclamation. Mr. Tedford—1951 chairman of county property, appointments, and legal and legislative committees—is begining his third term.

Milk Producers Choose Formula

TORONTO, Jan. 4—(CP)—A proposed formula to tie the price of fluid milk to month-to-month variations in demand and production costs was approved Thursday by the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League.

W. H. Hoyles, of Nobleton, vice-president of the league and sponsor of the plan, told the league's annual meeting that the formula, if approved by the Ontario government, would work automatically. It would do away with the need for frequent public hearings "with all their adverse publicity and misunderstandings."

Mr. Hoyles said that while in theory the price paid to producers could change monthly, actually it would change probably not oftener than twice a year, depending on changing economic conditions.

"It could be agreed that every time there was a sufficient change in the formula to warrant a retail price increase or decrease of one cent (considering also the distributor's margin) that a change be allowed to take place."

Beaverbrook Urges Pound Be Freed

LONDON, Jan. 4—(Reuters)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express today urges Britain to follow Canada's lead and progressively free the pound sterling.

"Three weeks ago Canada took the wise decision which permitted the Canadian dollar to find its own value through the face operation of the markets," the paper says.

"Today the Canadian dollar has reached its highest point in 12 years and is within one cent of the American dollar.

"The Canadians began their journey towards stability by progressively freeing their dollars.

"The British must begin the same journey in the same way."

Free Student On Bail In Murder Inquiry

MIAMI Beach, Fla., Jan. 4 — (AP). — A college student was released under $1,000 bond on Thursday after being held for investigation in the death of a blonde model whose almost nude body was found on a bed near her baby girl's crib.

Justice of the Peace Kenneth Oka ordered Jerry Sukin, 26, held as a material witness pending the outcome of an inquest into the death of Mrs. Marjorie Heicken.

Police recommended the action after a lie detector test indicated the student was telling the truth when he said he had not killed the young mother.

Police said the student admitted he had a "lover's quarrel" with Mrs. Heicken, 29, after a New Year's Eve party.

Cost Of Living Drops Tenth For First Dip In 23 Months

Declines In Food Prices Reflected In Drop As Index Flattening Out

Decreases Sharp Enough To Overbalance Price Boosts Buyers Felt In Clothing, Home Furnishings, Phone Rates

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP)—The housewife hit pay dirt during November—the cost of living went down for the first time in 23 months. But the decline was so small—a drop of one-tenth of a point in the cost-of-living index—that she probably didn't even notice it. In any case, it was an indication of a trend that appeared to be shaping up during the last few months: a flattening out in the big rise in family budget prices which pushed the index up 20 points in 12 months.

The dip, though small, lowered the index from its peak of 191.2 on Nov. 1 to 191.1 on Dec. 1, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. A year ago on Dec. 1 it stood at 171.1. The index is based on 1935-1939 prices equalling 100.

The previous decline was a half-point during December, 1949, when the index slid to 161. Since then it has remained either stationary or advanced—but there was no retreat. The climax was a record 4.5 point jump in February, 1950. In the last few months, however, the increases began to taper off, amounting only to nine-tenths of a point in August, three-fifths of a point in September and four-fifths of a point in October.

Declines in meat and egg prices were the main factors in holding back the index from a more rapid increase. And it was continued declines in meat and egg prices which brought the general index drop during November.

These decreases were sharp enough to overbalance higher prices for potatoes, other vegetables, milk and butter, and lower the food sub-index—the most important item in the index—by nine-tenths of a point to 249.3 from 250.2.

They were strong enough to overbalance even other price increases in men's wear, notably suits, overcoats and sweaters; home furnishings, floor coverings, hardware, dishes, electrical goods, laundry and telephone rates.

The increase in clothing prices boosted the clothing sub-index to a new high of 215.5 from 214.6. The homefurnishings group climbed to a record 200.6 from 199.9. The miscellaneous and fuel and light columns remained unchanged from their peaks of 144.9 and 105.8, respectively.

Rents were not surveyed and this column also remained unchanged from its peak of 144.8.

Metals, Wood Sales Push Exports To Record Heights

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP)—Canada produced and sold more from her forests, fields and mines to push her exports for the first 11 months of 1951 to a record $3,578,300,000. The big exports splash came in November, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday, when Canada shipped a total of $384,400,000 worth of goods—the highest monthly total in history. With imports previously estimated at $326,600,000, Canada chalked up a monthly surplus of $57,800,000—the highest in two years—and chopped the 11-month deficit to $234,500,000 from $292,300,000.

The big feature in Canada's 1951 exports was the sharp boost in sales of newsprint and other forest products, iron and iron products and non-ferrous metals.

During the first 11 months, the Bureau estimated, shipments of wood and paper products jumped to $1,283,562,000, a $270,000,000 jump from $1,014,956,000 in the same period of 1950.

Metal Sales Jump

Exports of iron ore and iron products, including farm machinery, jumped to $304,855,000—up $70,000,000 from $230,274,000.

In the field of non-ferrous metals, including copper, nickel and lead, shipments scored a $100,000,000 gain from $412,364,000 to $513,114,000.

There were other significant gains, too, such as $200,000,000 jump in agricultural products of $782,230,000 from $569,057,000. But in the animals and animal products category—which includes cattle—there was a slight drop to $322,456,000 from $331,933,000.

US Buying Up

The United States, Canada's leading customer, took $209,262,000 worth of Canada's domestic supplies during November, the Bureau noted, up nine per cent from $191,960,000, boosting the 11-month domestic total to $2,107,735,000, a 15-per-cent gain from $1,829,478,000 in the 1950 11-month period.

But though exports to the US were up, the proportion of domestic exports moved into the American market was down to 55 per cent of the total in November and 60 per cent in the 11 months, compared with 66 per cent for the month and 65 per cent for the 11 months in 1950.

Shipment to the United Kingdom during November continued an upward trend noticeable earlier in the year. Domestic exports to the UK advanced in value to $57,991,000 in November, from $38,580,000 a year earlier and jumped to $568,320,000 for the 11 months—a gain of more than $130,000,0000 from $430,355,000 in 1950.

Main shipments to Britain were wood, paper and non-ferrous metals.

Fire Kills Five As Montreal Apartment Burns

MONTREAL, Jan. 5 (CP). — Five persons died today in a fire in an apartment building block on Hampton Avenue in the west end of Montreal.

All were said to be elderly people.

Two bodies were first found and later three more were recovered.

It was not believed there was further loss of life.

The apartment block is a new one, in the Notre Dame de Grace section of the city.

The two-alarm fire was reported under control after the bodies were recovered.

Firemen had difficulty entering the three-storey block, which contains about 16 apartments.

Origin of the fire was not immediately established but it is believed to have started in the cellar.

Flames were roaring up from the lower part of the block when firemen arrived. Smoke was so dense firemen had to use ladder equipment to reach first-storey windows.

The fire broke out at the height of a snowstorm in moderately cold weather.

The first three bodies found by firemen were those of a man and two women.

It is believed most of the victims died from suffocation.

Jet Duel Ends WithoutDamage

SEOUL, Jan. 5 (AP). —American Sabre jets and Communist MIGs tangled in a 20-minute aerial duel over northwest Korea today but neither side inflicted any damage.

The clash between 21 Allied F-86s and 40 MIG-15s was the first aerial combat since Thursday. Sabre jets were grounded Friday by snow.

On the ground only light probes and patrol contacts were reported along the 145-mile front.

United Nations forces on the western front, an Eighth Army communique said, launched a counteraction west of Korangpo early Saturday "to complete reestablishment of advanced positions" lost to Reds Dec. 28.

Ukrainian Christmas Starts Sunday Night

WINNIPEG, Jan. 5 (CP)— First star in Sunday's twilight will signal the start of Christmas all over again for many Canadians of Ukrainian descent.

In the old Julian calendar, Sunday will be Christmas Eve, and for many Winnipeg families who still follow the customs of their forebears, it marks a season rich with traditional foods, customs, church services and special observances.

The festivities start Sunday evening with a 12-course supper. The legend is that the 12 dishes symbolize the 12 apostles, but there is actually no set limit. One theory is that the master of the house gives thanks for his year's prosperity by exhibiting as many dishes as needed to indicate the fruits of his harvest.

Burglary Suspect Said Member Of Jewel Ring

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—(CP)—A 35-year-old burglarly suspect was described Friday as a member of a jewel and fur-theft ring operating in New York with headquarters in Canada.

The suspect was Barney Aultwerger, being held without bail on a charge of attempted burglary. Assistant District Attorney Aloysius Melian linked Aultwerger with the international ring, saying:

"We have information he is one of a ring operating out of Canada and responsible for a wave of burglaries in hotels in this city."

Churchill Due In US For Parleys

Advisors Optimistic Over Chances For Better Relations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP) Winston Churchill, past master at personal diplomacy, was due in Washington today to renew his close wartime ties with the President of the United States.

President Truman arranged brief, simple welcoming ceremonies at national airport (11:45 am EST). He sent the presidential plane "Independence" to New York where, only three hours earlier, the British prime minister was scheduled to arrive aboard the Queen Mary.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)— Prime Minister Winston Churchill arrived today for conferences in Washington and Ottawa and declared that "the prospects for world peace are solid in 1952."

Four days of conferences on virtually every important problem facing the world were set to begin at Blair House 90 minutes later, after a quick trip by Churchill to the British embassy where the prime minister will stay during his visit.

Agenda Topic

The list of subjects Truman and Churchill are expected to discuss range from atomic weapons to relations with Russia, from the Korean war and armistice talks to the defence of the west.

The visit is Churchill's first in an official capacity since his several trips to talk things over with the late President Roosevelt during the Second World War.

In a recent broadcast to Britain, Churchill said his object in coming here now is to lay the basis for working together with American leaders "easily and intimately . . . as we used to do."

Truman's advisors were generally optimistic that the conferences would lead to a better understanding between the British and American governments. But few believed Truman and Churchill would ever work together as did Churchill and Roosevelt.

It was pointed out that Truman works with and through his staff to a far greater extent than Roosevelt. The wartime President operated much like Churchill and the two handled many great issues on a direct-message or personal-telephone-call basis.

At the same time, Truman is believed ready to assure the British leader he places as high a

Tug Tows Crippled Freighter

Captain, Tug Hand Still Aboard Lamed ed Ship As Weather Calm

By ERNEST AGNEW.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP). — The crippled Flying Enterprise started under tow toward Falmouth harbor at a tedious three knots today. Her skipper, Capt. Kurt Carlsen, who refused stubbornly to abandon his wallowing ship in the face of a wild storm, was jubilant and confident that he is going to win his long fight against the sea.

The commander of the US destroyer Willard Keith, which arrived to watch over the stricken American freighter and her doughty captain, reported: "The tow is riding smoothly."

Capt. Carlsen's nine-day ordeal —nearly seven of them alone in a darkened and sadly listing ship —appeared over, unless the barrel-thick towing hawser breaks or the swelling seas tip the vessel over.

Visibility Good

For the first time since a hurricane cracked the Flying Enterprise across the middle and left her helpless some 300 miles off England's southern tip on Dec. 28 the weather was reported "calm and the visibility is good."

Snaking the helpless Enterprise to port is the powerful British seagoing tug Turmoil, which managed after 30 hours to secure a towline to the freighter's bow. On the deck of the Enterprise—tilting at a perilous 70 to 80 degrees—the stubborn, Danish-born skipper still stands, joined now by the Turmoil's first mate Kenneth Dancy, watching the groaning hawser ease his ship along.

"If the weather continues," said the Keith's captain, "it will take about four days" to take the Flying Enterprise into Falmouth. "If this weather continues, the situation will be in hand."

Carlsen's Danish parents flew to England to be on hand for his arrival in Falmouth. Plans were under way to petition Denmark's sea-loving King Fredrik to decorate Carlsen, a former member of the Association of Danish Merchant Navy Officers, for his heroic one-man stand at sea.

Carlsen's wife and two daughters live in Woodbridge, NJ.

Dancy, who clambered over the freighter's stern rail last night to help Carlsen fix the tow lines, remained aboard with him.

He elected to see things through to a finish with the vessel's 37-year-old skipper so both will be available on the crippled ship to handle a new line if the one now fastened to the Flying Enterprise breaks in the strain of hauling the 6,711-ton ship through rolling seas.

West Asks Council Meeting Only When Success Possible

PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP)—The western powers were reported today to have drawn up a new proposal to counter Russia's plan for a top-level security council meeting on the Korean armistice and other world problems. A high United Nations source said Britain, the United States and some other countries would submit a resolution calling for a high-echelon meeting to ease world tensions, but would specify that the meeting be called only when the council is convinced there is some chance of success.

There will be no reference to Korea in the West's proposal, which apparently is intended to counter growing favorable reaction to the Soviet plan among some Asian and Arab nations.

The new plan will be presented to the UN political committee, which today continued to debate the 11-nation resolution endorsing the UN anti-aggression plan.

Would Free Assembly

The anti-aggression proposal, submitted by the UN collective measures committee, would establish the machinery by which the UN's veto-free assembly could act when the Security Council is hamstrung by the veto.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky violently opposed the program and introduced his own resolution calling for a special Security Council meeting at which the members would be represented by their foreign ministers or chiefs of state. His resolution suggested that this meeting take up the question of the Korean armistice as the first order of business.

United States delegate Benjamin Cohen said yesterday that bringing the question of the Korean truce to the council might well wreck the talks at Panmunjom.

Name UN Group On Segregation

PARIS, Jan. 5—(Reuters)—The United Nations decided today to set up a three-man commission to help India, Pakistan and South Africa settle a dispute over the treatment of Indians in South Africa.

The additional political committee voted for the commission by 41 to two with 13 abstentions after a sharp attack on South Africa's apartheid (racial segregation) policies by R. K. Nehru, Indian delegate.

Nehru accused South Africa of "a vicious policy to reduce all non-whites in South Africa to the status of inferior communities."

Brandished Gun Is Nutcracker

BALTIMORE, Jan. 5 (AP) — A 28-year-old woman walked into a Baltimore bank yesterday, brandished an ominous looking object in her coat pocket and shouted, "All right, everybody stand back."

Manager Shepherd Pearson said there was a turmoil as the woman advanced toward a teller's cage.

The burglar alarm was sounded, police arrived and disarmed the woman of the object in her coat pocket —a nut cracker.

After an investigation by police and federal board of investigation agents, Mrs. Margo Pfetching was charged with disorderly conduct.

Nationalists Say Red Pact Signed

TAIPEH, Formosa, Jan. 5 (AP) —The Chinese Nationalist Defence Ministry said today that Communists from Malaya, Indo-China, India, the Philippines and Burma recently signed a secret pact in Peiping promising payment for aid received from Russia and Red China.

The ministry said its information came from a highly-placed Communist source but did not identify the source.

The ministry said the pact included these clauses:

1—Communists in the five countries should help collect the funds to "liberate" their respective areas.

2—Red China and Russia will supply funds for underground personnel, military training and supplies.

3—Expenses will be refunded when the countries are "liberated."

The ministry said one result of the pact so far had been a heavy increase in supplies sent to Ho Chi-minh, rebel leader in Indo-China.

First Libyan Election

CAIRO, Jan. 5 (AP)—The new kingdom of Libya will hold its first election Feb. 19, the Arab News Agency said Friday.

Dewey Attacks Truman Refusal

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 5—(AP) —Governor Thomas E. Dewey believes the power bills of New York State consumers could be cut $50,000,000 a year by construction of proposed hydro-electric projects on the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers.

In his opening message to the New York State legislature next Wednesday, Dewey will continue his running attack on President Truman's administration for refusing to permit New York to develop new power facilities on the two rivers, it was learned officially yesterday.

Dewey will blame what he will term a stubborn group of Empire builders in the U.S. Interior Department for blocking New York's proposal to develop St. Lawrence power jointly with Ontario.

Canada recently announced plans to develop the $800,000,000 St. Lawrence Seaway project alone. Dewey is reported to feel this has enhanced New York's chances of obtaining Federal permission to build jointly the proposed dams and power houses.

Toronto Ghost Cabs Charge Heavy Fares

TORONTO, Jan. 5 — (CP) — Ghost taxis have appeared on Toronto streets and citizens have raised a storm of protest over the exorbitant fares charged by the drivers.

In ghost cabs—private vehicles with printed "taxi" signs—passengers are charged anywhere form $1 to $5 for short runs. The cars are not licensed as taxis and their owners are liable to fines, Toronto police officials said.

Disclosure of the ghost cabs came when taxi companies began checking after a deluge of phone calls from angry patrons told about high fares charged by drivers.

Saroyans Split

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Jan. 5 (AP) — Writer William Saroyan and his estranged wife, the former Carol Marcus, have reached an amicable property settlement and her lawyer will file a divorce suit for her soon. Saroyan, 43, and his wife, 27, were first married in 1943. They were divorced in 1949. They separated again last Sept. 1 after five months of marriage.

Motorist's Dream In Toronto As Traffic Quiet

TORONTO, Jan. 5—(CP)— Toronto was a motorists' dream today, second day of the "great tie-up".

As a long and costly strike of street-car and bus operators appeared developing—both sides to the wage dispute stood firm—thousands of Saturday workers found it easy to get to their jobs. For the traffic was nothing like that of yesterday when the men struck at 5 am, leaving tens of thousands of persons to get to work on foot or by hitch-hiking.

With many persons normally off work today, the result was a sharp decrease in motor traffic. Trips from northern suburbs that took an hour and 20 minutes yesterday, were completed today in 30 minutes.

Some 4,700 members of the Street Railway Employees Union (AFL-TLC) seek a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase. Affected is Toronto and adjoining municipalities with a total population of 1,300,000.

Business firms put car pool arrangements into operation. Other emergency transport systems included the use by big department stores of company trucks and buses to speed employees to places of employment and, at the day's end, to their homes.

No Immediate Hopes

There was no prospect of immediate settlement of the dispute over the union's demand for a 15-cent-an-hour increase up to a basic hourly rate of $1.50. The Toronto Transportation Commission offered five cents, the offer

New York Cop Hangs One On Sugar Ray

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—(CP)— Inside, Mayor Vincent Impellitteri and Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan were paying tribute yesterday to Sugar Ray Robinson as a leading sports personality of the year.

Outside, an unidentified cop was hanging a parking ticket on the negro middleweight king's salmon-pink Cadillac. There's a traffic drive on.

Sugar Ray found it when he walked out later.

Just Waiting

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 5 (AP)—A pretty 11-year-old came home Friday to mother after nine days of marriage but vowed she will return to her coal miner husband "when I'm old enough." Eva Dean Baggett left Arvill Ott, 23, under pressure from law officials and the Humane Educational Society. The brunette, just over four feet tall, said she will return to her fifth grade classes on Signal Mountain Monday.

Reported Proposal

US Believed Seeking Implied Ultimatum

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP) —The United States is described as believing any truce made with Communist China and Korea should carry with it warning that a violation would bring air-naval punishment upon Red China herself.

The government was reported in well-informed circles to be advising its allies in the Korean war that it thought such an implied ultimatum should bulwark the provisions of any armistice.

In proposing that definite measures be set up to discourage renewed aggression by the Asiatic Communist satellite nations, the United States appears to be making no new demands for the actual truce terms under negotiation at Panmunjom. It seeks only to guarantee their observance.

Ask Supervision

An issue at Panmunjom has been the Allies' contention that some form of supervision and inspection must be established to assure that terms of an armistice are observed. Directly related to this is the objection of the Communists to a ban on building new airdromes in North Korea.

What the United States is reported to be proposing is this:

If, after a truce was agreed to, Communist forces should seek to cross the truce line for a renewed aggressive strike at South Korea punitive measures should be instituted promptly against the present Chinese sanctuary.

There would be no effort to put ground forces ashore for invasion of the Chinese mainland. Nor would atomic weapons be invoked.

But Red China's ports, war goods production centres and sea and land transport would be subjected to bombardment by planes and ships. An airtight blockade of coastwise and river commerce would be clamped upon her.

On Heels of Rejection

News of the American proposals to Allies on the Korean armistice plan came Friday, a few hours after Secretary of State Dean Acheson had turned down a new Soviet peace plan.

The American secretary said Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's talk of a top level UN Security Council meeting to consider a Korean truce and ease "international tensions" was just bait. Acceptance of the Russian proposals would be nothing short of disaster, Acheson told a press conference in commenting on Vishinsky's statement at Paris.

Acheson said the Panmunjom negotiations may be moving slowly but they have made definite progress. A transfer would delay and hamper that progress.

Miners Wait Return To Blast-Wrecked Coal

WEST FRAKFORT, Ill., Jon. 5 — (CP). — The wreckage is still being cleared from Orient No. 2. But the miners are ready to go back.

A cleanup crew is busy repairing the blasted workings of the coal mine where 119 men died in an explosion December 21. Investigators have yet to turn in their report on the cause of the disaster.

But everyone, from the president of the union local down is prepared to go back underground as soon as the mine re-opens.

Sherman Whitlow, head of the United Mine Workers Local, said the miners would not get over the memory of the explosion for a long time.

"But they'll be back," he added. "It's in their blood." Mayor C. Edwin Hair of nearby Beton put it a little stronger. He said: "There will be two applicants for every vacancy created by the explosion."

Whitlow concedes it is hard to explain the stoic attitude of the miners. Perhaps, he said, it's easier to point out it is the only life they know.

A spokesman for management — the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Co. —does not know when the mine will re-open, but he said it won't be until after the investigators' report is completed. That may be next week.

'Only Life They Know' Mine Where 119 Died

'Outrageous Falsehood'

Ford President Denies Union Charge

WINDSOR, Jan. 5 (CP)—Rhys Sale, Ford of Canada president, today termed an "outrageous falsehood" a union accusation that he shared responsibility for damage to the Ford plant during a wildcat strike Dec. 3-14.

George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), made the charge Friday. In a later statement the union leader also held that the Ford president was responsible in part for events leading to the 12-day walkout which followed dismissal of 26 production employees for alleged leadership of a brief work stoppage Nov. 29.

Mr. Sale's statement dealt only with the earlier accusation. He said in part:

'False Statement'

"Among many untruths, it does contain one particularly outrageous falsehood which I cannot permit to go unchallenged. Mr. Burt said: 'Mr. Sale is as much responsible for the continuance of the shutdown of the power house and resultant damage as anyone. When Mr. Reuther (UAW international president), Mr. Mazey (UAW international secretary) and myself met Mr. Sale (Dec. 12) he suggested that the employees stay out until the complete contract be negotiated, at a time when the top leadership of the union was trying to lay the basis for a complete resumption of work.'

"That statement by Mr. Burt is false. I said nothing of the kind. I told Mr. Reuther and his associates that if the employees voted to return to work, the plant would be reopened and work resumed as soon as the plant could be put in shape."

The company broke off grievance procedure talks Friday over the 26 dismissals. However, negotiators met on a second issue—wage rates. Last night Ford officials announced that a further wage negotiation meeting scheduled for today had been postponed until next Tuesday at the union's request.

Lists Stoppages

In his second statement charging Mr. Sale with partial responsibility for events leading to the strike, Mr. Burt said.

"Mr. Sale has listed 34 work stoppages which he said had taken place at Ford's over the (last) 18 months. The key to the whole trouble at Ford's is . . . that Rhys Manly Sale assumed the highest office at the Ford Motor Company of Canada only a few months prior to (the) date (when the work stoppages began)."

He said more than 3,000 grievances are "constantly in the hopper" at the Ford plant, compared with 50 or 60 at other plants where the UAW has contracts. That was "abundant proof that something is wrong at Ford's other than the union."

Mr. Burt said the only time in the history of the Ford local that there has been good labor relations at the plant was during the presidency of D. B. Grieg, whom Mr. Sale succeeded.

Communists Say US Planes Bomb Shanghai

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan 5 (CP)—Communist cease-fire negotiators today accused American pilots of bombing Chinese cities of Shanghai, Mukden and Tsingtao.

The accusation was hurled at the Allies in a verbal rough-house session of the truce supervision subcommittee by Chinese Gen. Hsieh Fang. It was the first time such a charge had been made openly in armistice negotiations—Communist Peiping radio in the past has often accused the United States of bombing Chinese cities.

"You've gone too far with your absurdity and arrogance," declared Hsieh, in a heated exchange which began when the United Nations negotiators again refused to agree to Communist building of military airfields during an armistice.

"You have cast yourself in the role of a bandit," said Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner.

"You have fully exposed your ugly, ferocious features of a bandit . . ." retorted Hsieh.

Using some of the strongest language since the armistice talks began, Turner told the Reds "the United Nations command did not come to Korea to surrender," and "we have no intention of leaving the South Koreans to your tender mercies."

Matching Turner word for word, Hsieh replied "you represent yourselves as angels of peace and continue to interfere in internal affairs."

In a nearby conference tent, UN and Communist negotiators haggled fruitlessly for more than three hours over how prisoners of war should be exchanged.

Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby said "it is obvious they are killing time waiting for instructions."

Libby said the Reds refused to answer another request for an immediate exchange of sick and wounded prisoners.

Sub-committees working on the problems of supervising an armistice and exchanging prisoners were deadlocked when they adjourned, but both scheduled meetings for 11 am Sunday 9 pm EST Saturday) in Panmunjom.

Seven People Overcome By Gas Fumes

Seven people — five of them Peterborough residents — had a narrow brush with death last weekend when they were overcome by carbon monoxide gas while en route from New Brunswick to Peterborough.

The accident occurred in the state of Maine when they stopped to take a nap until visibility improved and were overcome with fumes while they waited.

Affected were William Phillips, 29, and his wife Marion, 22, 509 Wolsley St.

Cecil Crumb, 22; Vance Atkinson, 40; and Gordon Atkinson, 26, all of 561 Patterson St.

Also Roselle Simmons, 19, and Beulah Smith, 22, both of Clark's Harbor, but now living in Peterborough.

Returning To Peterborough

The party had been visiting relatives of Mr. Atkinson in the Maritimes and were returning home through Maine when the heavy rain struck. Mr. Crumb changed places with Mr. Phillips, owner of the car, to let Mr. Phillips drive.

Instead of going on they had a nap, waiting for the rain to clear. First to realize anything was wrong was Mr. Crumb. Miss Simmons woke him and said she was ill and wanted out of the car but she couldn't move.

Mr. Crumb then staggered out of the car and with the help of Vance Atkinson started to drag the others out. A passing motorist noticed their plight and went for aid.

Only Vance Atkinson, Mr. Crumb and Miss Simmons didn't require hospital treatment.

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 5 — (Reuters) — Egyptian terrorists nearly killed Capt. S. M. Anderson of the British Army by hurling a gasoline bomb at his jeep about 11 miles south of here Friday, it was learned today.

Anderson, aide to Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British Middle East Commander, fired two bursts from his tommy gun and chased the bandits for more than a half-mile.

It was the first attempt on the life of a senior British officer following a Cairo left-wing newspaper's offer of $280 a head for dead British officers.

Resolution Cheers Split Republicans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Backers of Senator Robert Taft and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower rejoiced today over a demand by Western Republicans for a presidential hominee "with no strings attached."

Both sides felt the resolution, adopted yesterday by a meeting of state chairmen from 18 midwestern and Rocky Mountain States, favors their candidate.

Supporters of the Ohio Senator pointed to Taft's vigorous denunciation of President Truman's domestic and foreign policies and hinted that Eisenhower, in his support of some of the administration's foreign policy, had "strings" attached to him.

to include incorporation into the wage structure of a 16-cent-an-hour cost-of-living bonus.

The walkout also affected Gray Coach Lines, TTC subsidiary serving a wide area of central Ontario.

The possibility of mediation by Mayor Allan Lamport was virtually eliminated by a statement from H. C. Patten, TTC general manager.

"We are willing to arbitrate on a proper basis, with the findings binding on both parties, but we would not accept the mayor as a mediator," said Mr. Patten. "We are not appealing to any individual who has no authority in the matter. There is nothing the mayor can do."

Three times as many cars as on a normal day entered the downtown area yesterday, creating traffic snarls and making parking problems acute.

KURE, Japan, Jan. 5 (CP) — For the first time in the Far East, Defence Minister Claxton's party today received a workaday welcome.

The crew of the HMCS Athabaskan took the Canadian ministers visit in stride during the process of her periodic maintenance check in dry dock. They lost hardly a minute's work.

CPO. Cyril Sainsbury, Victoria, BC, welcomed the group on arrival at the dry dock. As Claxton crossed the gangway to the propped-up destroyer, on which painters and riveters were noisily busy, he was piped aboard by CPOS. Donald Painton and Oliver Howard, both of Victoria.

value on closest possible Anglo-American co-operation as Churchill does and is ready to do his part in any practical way that will not prejudice close associations with other allied countries, particularly members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Churchill's party includes Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Paymaster-General Lord Cherwell, Britain's atomic energy boss, and Lord Ismay, the Prime Minister's close friend and Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations.

Red China Problem

In connection with definite policies, Mr. Truman is expected to ask Churchill to do something about Britain's continued recognition of Communist China, a sore point in Anglo-American relations.

It is also understood the President feels strongly that the British, although not joining the proposed organization of a European army, should give the project their enthusiastic support and backing to a much greater extent than they have in the past.

Two critical problems in the Middle East may produce some disagreement over the dangers of Communist gains.

These are the British dispute with Egypt over the stationing of troops in defense of the Suez Canal and the British dispute with Iran over the nationalization of that country's oil industry.

In the field of atomic energy, Churchill is expected to ask for a renewal of the wartime partnership, providing unlimited exchanges of information between Britain, the United States and Canada.

Grove Addition Almost Complete

Public school officials hope to have the four-room addition at Grove school ready for occupancy by mid-January. The second-storey addition built by Contractor Walter Mortlock cost $64,700.

Two junior classes that are now being taught in the basement will be moved upstairs, says K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools. Basement accommodation is considered unsuitable and was only used as an emergency measure.

The third room will be reserved for 21 Grade VII pupils now attending Confederation school. They are the pupils who were attending Grove school until June when they were graduated from Grade VI. When the fall term started they were transferred to Confederation.

Now, with the extra accommodation available, they will return to Grove. The transfer will likely be about Feb. 1.

There is now severe crowding at Confederation with 47 and 48 pupils in two of the senior classes and school officials are trying to relieve the situation as best they can.

The fourth room at Grove will be left vacant until summer.

HMCS Sioux Helped Regain Island Held By Communists

ABOARD HMCS SIOUX, At a UN Naval Base in Japan, Jan. 5 — (CP). — This Canadian destroyer recently helped recapture a Communist-held island off the west coast of North Korea and took care of civilians and UN troops wounded in the struggle.

The Sioux had been assigned to an area in which the Reds had been launching attacks on UN-held islands. Stationing herself off an island that had been under assault, the Sioux transferred a party of five to a South Korean minesweeper to find out how the fighting was going.

The party included Lieut. A. T. Henley, Vancouver, CPO C. G. Little, Esmuminac, Que., and Victoria, PO A. G. Olynick, Victoria, AB Bernard Riswold, Olds, Alta., and AB A. W. Lord, Taber, Alta.

Approaching the island under cover of darkness, the minesweeper spotted two junks and, at the base of a cliff, a party of refugees and UN troops awaiting rescue while being covered by a small rearguard at the top of the cliff. The island already had fallen.

One of the junks was loaded with refugees and towed to a nearby friendly island. Then the sweeper returned with four small, shallow-draft sampans which could go right in to the beach

Forty persons were rescued, including eight wounded, two women and a baby. The evacuation did not go unchallenged. The Reds fired on the covering warships and the evacuation party came under mortar fire. There were no casualties, though a British ship was hit and holed.

The following evening, the Korean minesweeper and its Canadian party returned to the island with a new force of South Koreans which succeeded in recapturing it.

A second load of wounded was embarked in the minesweeper and taken to the Sioux, where Surgeon Lieut. Herbert McWilliams of St. Andrews, N.B., and his medical assistant, PO. Derek Whitworth of Ottawa, had set up an improvised hospital.

PO. Robert Cooke, of Victoria, and Lethbridge, Alta., and PO Dale McCoy, iVctoria and Carstairs, Alta., were added to the medical staff to help.

Inauguration Predictions Been Made For Centuries

The chief augur at the civic ceremony of the installation of the 1952 council at the city hall Monday morning will be Mayor Hugh F. Waddell himself. And his reading of the auspices for his administration will be indicated in his inaugural address.

That is a loose application of an ancient rite to a present day ceremony attending the inception in authority of a company of men elected by the democratic ballots of their fellow citizens. Twenty centuries ago the emperors of Rome consulted their college of augurs in seeking the will and approval of the gods by signs and omens, and their interpretation, as pointing to the acceptability and success of various undertakings, government and otherwise.

Peterborough's new Mayor is likely to make cautious mention of the net result of the 1951 financing in terms of surplus or deficit, lacking the audited statement, although he probably has even now a fairly accurate estimate of whether that figure comes up in black or red. Maybe he will make some mention of the prospects for the 1952 tax rate which to many citizens is a foremost element of success in gauging the work of a curent council, irrespective of the legacy of liability from its predecessors.

That is about as far as Mayor Waddell's divinations for his year will go.

Incidentally, the word inaugurate has an interesting history particularly in its specific meaning apart from all the inaugurations of things in every day writing, for which the two-syllable word "begin" would be preferable.

Augurs' Signs

The college of augurs in Caesar's time were bound by traditional rules in their interpretation of signs and portents pertaining to future events. Their stock in trade before the Christian era was superstition of natural occurrences and phenomena such as thunder and lightning, as signs from heaven; the accidental fall of some objects; the creaking of a chair, the gnawing of a mouse; certain flights and cries of birds; and so on as prescribed in the college training of the official augurs.

The root of the word inaugurate may come from the Latin avis meaning a bird. Originally there appears to have been three augurs, but in Caesar's reign their number had been increased to 16, not including his own membership as dictator and high priest. They wore togas of ritual color, and their emblem was a curved rod, the "lituus" for marking the bounds within which they were to observe certain omens.

Duties Varied

The official duties of the augurs extended to the fixing of the dates and periods of movable festivals, the selecting of the sites for new settlements, the dedication of temples and the inauguration of various officials up to the Emperor.

Their functions also included exauguration as when buildings consecrated to one god or another could be reduced to secular purposes, or when priests resigned their offices or desired to marry in cases where celibacy was required.

Such were the augurs of ancient times, their position in the state and particularly in many official ceremonies. So, in easy explanation, the word inaugurate ("in" signifying for, and "augur", an interpreter of omens) meant to "read the signs for" some event. Through the years since omens and signs lost favor and credibility, the word changed in meaning to modern procedure of induction and installation.

So, the modern words, augur, auguries and auspices are closely related, but there is a fine shade of distinction between auguries and auspices.

At any rate, the word installation would suffice in reporting the assumption of office by Mayor Waddell and members of the city council, but at least it lacks the richness of historic background and association of the more rhetoric "inauguratoin".

Slips Showing

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 5 —(AP)—The State Income Tax Division has been caught with it's slip showing.

Several thousand pink slips, carrying the wrong deadline for filing State income tax returns, have been mailed to Massachusetts taxpayers, a tax division spokesman admitted today.

About 30,000 slips were run off the presses before the error was discovered, he said.

The incorrect slip fixes March 1 as the filing deadline. The legislature has moved the deadline to April 15.

TRAVEL—with Jean Stenton

Toss Cheeses Like Balls But No Visitor Beaned

Every Friday after April 28, a juggling show that puts any circus act to shame takes place in Alkmaar, Holland

Here from 9:30 to 11 am, luscious, round 4½ pound cheese cannonballs go hurtling through the air, whizzing by pedestrians' heads with nary a casualty. That is, so long as the pedestrian doesn't halt suddenly or change direction.

The porters at the world-famous cheese market here toss the cheese for export to the truck loaders in swift succesion like a troupe of trained jugglers. You can walk through any of these barrages without being "beaned." The porters judge your pace and course and toss accordingly.

Easy To Reach

Quite apart from this entertaining side of the market, Alkmaar is one of Holland's most colorful spots. It can be reached in 45 minutes by train from the Central Station in Amsterdam. Or you can travel by steamer.

On Fridays the cheese is marketed up to 11 or till noon when trade is good. Cheese porters here are organized into a sort of medieval guild with a Father, 4 headmen and 24 porters divided into four 6-man groups, each with his own color—green, yellow, blue or red. The different groups all wear white drill but are distinguished by vast straw hats in their respective colors.

The cheeses are quite as picturesque as the porters .Those of the Edam variety predominate and are painted scarlet when they are for export. The market, which dates from the 12th century, generally concludes with a carillon concert at noon by one of Holland's leading artists.

Famous Past

The town of Alkmaar has a historic past It was one of the first towns to support William the Silent in the battle to oust the Spaniards.

A garrison of 800 Dutch soldiers were besieged by 16,000 Spaniards of the Duke of Alba who announced he would spare no one. The deadlock continued. It was impossible for the Dutch to communicate with William because the town was so closely surrounded. Finally a volunteer, Peter van der Mey, broke through the Spanish lines with a message hidden in a hollow stick asking the Sea-Beggars (the guerrillas of that day) to destroy the dikes.

After accomplishing his mission, he got back to Alkmaar but on the way lost his paper, which fell into the hands of the enemy. Alkmaar means marshy land and the Spaniards trembled at the thought of the flooding so they raised the siege and went away.

It was the first time the insurgents had beaten the Spaniards. "It is from Alkmaar," the Dutch still say, "victory comes " It was a costly victory, but it gave the Dutch free territory.

Tip Fails Police Nurse Sought In Montreal

KINGSTON, Jan. 5—(CCP)—A tip that 27-year-old Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom had been seen in a Quebec town was revealed Friday to be without foundation as police continued their search for the pretty army nurse who disappeared Christmas Eve.

Meanwhile, army officials at Montreal indicated they believe the girl, a niece of Lieut.-Gen. E. W. Sansom, retired Second World War corps commander, is in the Montreal district.

Reason for this belief was not given, but Major Charles Rochon, Quebec Command Provost Marshal, said the search around Montreal has been ordered intensified.

Miss Sansom, on the staff of Kingston military hospital for a year, was last seen at the Canadian National Railways station here shortly after noon Dec. 24.

Missed Christmas

It was beleived she intended to spend Christmas with an aunt in Sherbrooke, Que. She never arrived there.

Thursday night Montreal police were tipped that the missing girl had been seen in Drummondville, Que. However, investigation proved the tip without foundation.

Both the girl's father, Herbert Sansom, and her brother, FO. Angus D. Sansom, have taken part in the search, both in Kingston and Montreal.

Meanwhile, Gen. Sansom's wife, who lives in Montreal, said the nurse had no known suitors.

"She was friendly with only one man in Kingston," said Mrs. Sansom. "And he is just as shocked as we are."

It was learned the girl's father instructed the RCMP not to release photographs of his missing daughter. Several persons in Montreal said they had turned their photographs of the girl over to the police.

Smuggle Story Out Of Hungary, Trick Censor

PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP)—By dramatically "smuggling" an article into the official Hungarian Communist newspaper, an anti-Communist underground movement in Hungary has published an appeal to the United Nations "to free us from our Russian overlords."

The story of the appeal was brought to light Friday, after the underground declaration was translated and printed in newspapers in Paris and London.

The underground movement printed a fake middle sheet of the newspaper, Szabad Nep (Free People), the official organ of the the Hungarian Communist party.

The sheet included a "Russian language course" in the Cyrillic alphabet which is used in Russia but which differs from the Latin character of the Hungarian language.

The course was in reality the text of the underground movement appeal. The fake sheet then was inserted in copies of the Communist newspaper and mailed to a number of United Nations sources in Paris.

Passed By Censor

It was reported that the Hungarian censor, unable to read Russian, passed the newspaper—which was mailed in envelopes printed clandestinely to resemble envelopes of a Communist workers' union.

Text of the appeal explained that "we are obliged to print this appeal in Russian, because the Hungarian censor would not pass it in any Western European languages."

"This appeal," it continued, "is made by members of a nation at the edge of despair, who clearly see the possible consequences of their act: By taking this step we risk the lives of some of us. Nevertheless, in spite of this danger, we feel obliged to make this appeal to the free peoples of the world, so as to avoid complete destruction of our nation's existence."

"Life has almost lost its meaning in Hungary," the statement said, continuing with an indictment of "inhuman conditions" in the country, exploitation of workers, military training of the teen-agers, and other oppressions.

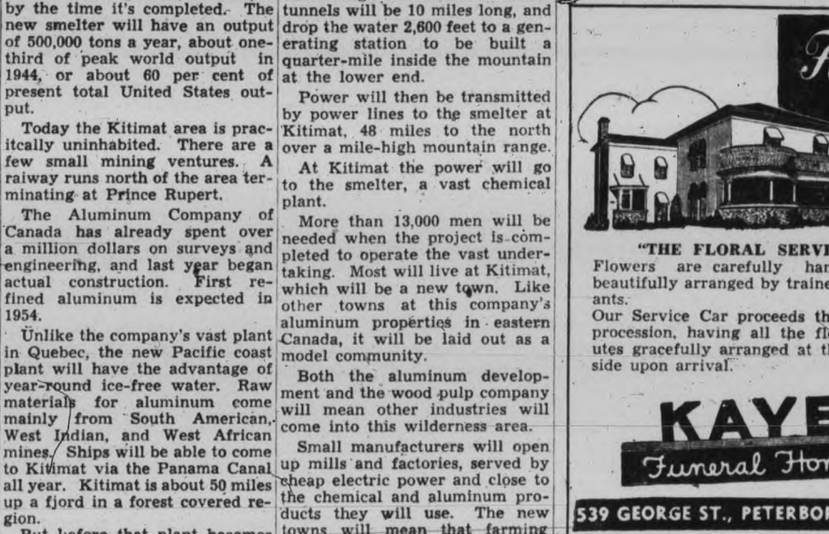
The statement concluded:

"We therefore turn to the United Nations with the humble plea for the free peoples to attempt to free us from our Russian overlords. But, above all, we beg you to find ways and means to stop these mass deportations, for otherwise all those who are still capable of thinking will have been exterminated...."

Murders, Suicides

ELIZABETH, NJ, Jan. 5 (AP)—Lawrence Appel, 56-year-old bricklayer who shot a union official to death Thursday, died late Friday of a self-inflicted bullet wound. Appel killed Albert R. Moy in a lunchroom and then shot himself in the head with a .32-calibre revolver.

Find Holdup Key



TORONTO, Jan. 5 (CP)—Two bandits who staged a $50,000 holdup of a Bank of Commerce branch here Thursday entered by using a duplicate key, police said Friday. In a snowbank near the robbery scene, investigators found a key that fitted a front door of the bank. The gunmen are believed to have spent most of the night hiding in the bank.

NOT A SUDDEN DISCOVERY OF ORE, but an ice-free port and plenty of resources of hydro-electric power, are the reasons for a half-billion dollar aluminum project in the mountainous wilds of Canada's Pacific coast. How water will be piped under the mountains from a flooded valley to make power is shown in this diagramatic photo. Inset map shows where aluminum smelter will be located at Kitimat, 48 miles north of the power plant, and a city of 50,000 will grow in what is now virtually uninhabited forest.

Aluminum Builds New City Of 50,000 In Wilderness

By JAMES MONTAGNES

PRINCE RUPERT, BC (NEA)—In the mountain wilderness of Canada's Pacific coast the first steps towards creating a new city of 50,000 people are now being taken. The town will be Kitimat, 500 miles north of Vancouver; the reason—aluminum.

Biggest of all natural resources developments now underway in Canada, the Kitimat development will run as high of $550 million by the time it's completed. The new smelter will have an output of 500,000 tons a year, about one-third of peak world output in 1944, or about 60 per cent of present total United States output.

Today the Kitimat area is practically uninhabited. There are a few small mining ventures. A raiway runs north of the area terminating at Prince Rupert.

The Aluminum Company of Canada has already spent over a million dollars on surveys and engineering, and last year began actual construction. First refined aluminum is expected in 1954.

Unlike the company's vast plant in Quebec, the new Pacific coast plant will have the advantage of year-round ice-free water. Raw materials for aluminum come mainly from South American, West Indian, and West African mines. Ships will be able to come to Kitimat via the Panama Canal all year. Kitimat is about 50 miles up a fjord in a forest covered region.

But before that plant becomes a realjty, roads have to be built through virgin forest in a mountainous area.

Then an area of 500 square miles has to be flooded. This will be done by damming up the Nechako River in a canyon, and changing the flow of the waters from east to west. An entire chain of small rivers and lakes will be utilized in this development to form a lake 150 miles long.

With the water backed up against the mountains, two tunnels 25 feet in diameter will be cut through the mountain. These tunnels will be 10 miles long, and drop the water 2,600 feet to a generating station to be built a quarter-mile inside the mountain at the lower end.

Power will then be transmitted by power lines to the smelter at Kitimat, 48 miles to the north over a mile-high mountain range.

At Kitimat the power will go to the smelter, a vast chemical plant.

More than 13,000 men will be needed when the project is completed to operate the vast undertaking. Most will live at Kitimat, which will be a new town. Like other towns at this company's aluminum properties in eastern Canada, it will be laid out as a model community.

Both the aluminum development and the wood pulp company will mean other industries will come into this wilderness area.

Small manufacturers will open up mills and factories, served by cheap electric power and close to the chemical and aluminum products they will use. The new towns will mean that farming will have to be done close by.

The flooding of the vast forest area is expected to eliminate to a large extent floods now current every Spring on the Fraser River in British Columbia.

And the adventurous tourist will be able to visit new spots in mountain country as soon as roads are built into the new towns. The Canadian West Coast sees big developments ahead in industrialization because of these pioneer ventures.

Warehouse Fire Does Damage Set At Million

TORONTO, Jan. 5 — (CP) — A three-alarm fire Friday swept through a Canadian General Electric Company warehouse in west-central Toronto, causing damage estimated at about $1,000,000.

The blaze broke out in the huge building shortly after 9 am, roared out of control until shortly after noon and then flared out of control again about 4.30 pm.

Located on Pacific Avenue, the building was used as a storage warehouse for the Canadian General Electric and contained electrical equipment, including television sets.

Moments after the first fire equipment arrived, the building was covered with flames.

At the height of the blaze flames shot 100 feet into the air.

Nearby homes were ordered evacuated, but firemen managed to save them by soaking the houses with streams of water.

Several firemen were injured, but none seriously. A section of one wall collapsed at the height of the blaze and almost hit hosemen who managed to scramble out of the way. A few were overcome by smoke.

Cause of the fire which destroyed the 100 by 200-feet brick structure is still not known.

What Is The State Of The Trans-Canada?

In the apparent urgency of a year's events it is well not to forget perennial matters which may have even greater importance; or which, initiated a couple of years ago in the midst of headlines proclaiming their significance, slip into the backwash of daily events. Such a matter is the Trans-Canada highway. This was agitating the country for many years until, in December, 1949 the Trans-Canada Highway Act was passed, and subsequent conferences worked out practical details of it. The Trans-Canada Highway is the largest Dominion-Provincial joint project to date and is one of the most important measures the Canadian people are taking for their own national development and protection.

* * *

How goes the Trans-Canada? What is being built where? Have all Provinces come to agreement on the routes through their own territory? How much money has been spent to date? Is the schedule of building fixed? How far are the builders towards the goal: a completed Trans-Canada by December 1956? That is the date set in the Trans-Canada Highway Act. What has the Special Projects Branch of the Department of Resources and Development to report? That is the Branch charged with the responsibility for the Trans-Canada from the federal level. What work was done where in the spending of the twenty million dollars provided in the Estimates for 1950-51? What has each Ministry of Highways in the Provinces to report? It is they, the Provinces, that have direct control of the construction of the highway.

* * *

When asking these questions, we take the opportunity of briefly reviewing the Agreement. Under the terms of the Act, contributions may be paid to a Province for new construction up to fifty per cent. of the cost to the Province. Similar contributions up to fifty per cent. of the cost may also be paid the Province for work done between April 1928 and the passing of the Act, if this work is later incorporated into the Trans-Canada Highway. The total Federal contribution is limited to $150,000,000.

* * *

Under the Agreement each province designates the routes of the Highway within its own borders, provided that the routes are the shortest practical east-west routes and adjacent provinces agree where it crosses provincial borders. The standard is a hard-surfaced two-lane highway, with pavement widths of 22 and 24 feet, ample shoulder widths, bridge clearances and sight distances; low gradients and curvature; elimination of railway grade crossings where possible; and a load-bearing capacity of nine tons for one axle.

* * *

If we remember correctly, all Provinces have signed agreements and designated the route, except Nova Scotia and Quebec. Nova Scotia has said it will sign; Quebec has so far declined because it thinks that there is insufficient guarantee for the protection of its rights. The total length of the Highway is estimated to be 4,933 miles.

* * *

Citizens with a continuing interest in the welfare of this country should keep a lively eye on the progress (or lack of it) in the building of the Trans-Canada. It is too important a project to forget; or to believe that since an Act has been passed, the Highway will automatically come into being.

* * *

It is interesting that Toronto is on a side road, as far as the Trans-Canada is concerned. The route does not follow the lake shore. This is wise; Highway 2 has already too preponderant a part of the Province's wheeled traffic to bear. It is well that as much as possible should be diverted from the Lakeshore.

* * *

Peterborough has a special interest in the Trans-Canada, because it is designated to pass through the city—or around it. Which the highway will do has not been determined. There are a lot of Peterborough folk—municipal officials and private citizens—who would like to have this settled soon. They would also be interested in seeing some sign that the Trans-Canada is coming; even literally a sign—road signs on Number 7 saying that this is in truth the route of the Trans-Canada.

A Romanian poet has written a piece which begins "Stalin is my sunshine." This is a sweetly solemn thought, particularly as a lot of what Joe does and says appears to us to be moonshine.

Twelfth Night And Epiphany

Tomorrow will be both Twelfth Night and Epiphany—that is to say, the end of the Twelve Days of Christmas, and also the commemoration of the Baptism of Christ. It is also, traditionally, the day upon which the Magi visited the Infant Jesus, bringing their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh; in Italy, the Christmas gifts for children are not brought by Santa Claus on Christmas Eve, but by the Three Kings on the Eve of Epiphany—that is to say, tonight.

It is an old belief that all Christmas decorations should be taken down on Twelfth Night, but not before it. Like so many Christmas observances, there is nothing clear or certain about this rule, however, for in some countries Candlemas Day, the second of February, is the day to clear away the Christmas wreaths and ornaments. We imagine that modern housekeepers will prefer the Twelfth Night clearance; by February our appetite for Christmas and its sports has long since fled.

It is interesting that in this respect we are so different from our ancestors; they kept up the Twelve Days of Christmas in the liveliest possible fashion, doing no work that was not absolutely necessary and eating and drinking—the evidence is to be found in old records of household expenditure—in the most reckless fashion. Of course, they did not work as hard as we do, they did not live as long, and they had fewer amusements. To an isolated country community the Christmas merry-making was the most exciting thing that would happen before the coming of spring, and they knew that when the Christmas feast was over it would not be long before they were deep in the austerities of Lent. No wonder they feasted and played games as long as possible. But in our day there are fewer people who pay much attention to the Twelve Days, and in most homes Twelfth Night comes and goes without any observance whatever. We should spare a thought for the Magi, however—those prototypes of all whose belief is founded less upon simple faith than upon knowledge and the desire for illumination.

"A Triumph," The Big Paper Says

Only Switzerland and the United States did not impose foreign exchange controls during the war. Canada was the first Allied country to use them, and has become the first to drop them. Mr. Abbott's announcement at the end of the year that foreign exchange restrictions were being abandoned has brought a pretty compliment from the New York Times about Canada's fiscal and monetary program, both during and after the war. It believes it to have been a wise policy, courageously administered.

"In the case of the United States, productive power has availed to sustain the American dollar in the world exchanges despite very serious deficiencies in the handling of our fiscal and monetary affairs. This, however, is a luxury that no other nation can afford. What makes the contribution of Cahada significant is that the Dominion occupies no such position of pre-eminence in the field of production as we do. Canada's ability to throw away the crutches of exchange controls is not, therefore, a triumph of sheer industrial power. It is a triumph for a fiscal and monetary program which has been based, not on political expediency and compromise, but on a courage and integrity that are all too rare in modern governments."

This is a feather for the caps of Mr. Abbott and the senior civil servants in the Department of Finance, whose budgetary policies have been under heavy barrages from Opposition critics for many years, even from the time when Mr. I'sey was in the chair of Finance.

Footloose Toronto

Mayor Allan Lamport has appealed to Torontonians to "keep your heads." Equally sound advice in the city's transportation stand-down would be to keep their feet—moving. We shall not stick our noses into the mess at this stage of the T.T.C. strike, since (a) our feet are not involved and (b) the strike is perfectly legal, even though the T.T.C. is a publicly-owned corporation. It is in fact owned by the people who normally use the street cars, and are denied that use by the strikers. It is up to them to settle the affair. Should Toronto's production, commerce and communications be seriously interrupted the interest of outside Ontario communities would of course be affected, since, whether they like it or not, Toronto is the industrial, financial and commercial hub of Ontario. Then we should feel that outside comment was called for.

Only a fortnight ago Toronto's traffic was brought to a confused stand-still by the weather. Now a strike is having similar effects. Too bad for Toronto that weather and strikers didn't combine and get the thing over and done with in one big blow.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The gossamer of coloured lights over the down-town streets has added brightness and pleasure to the festival season. We are glad that the Utilities Commission decided to let the lights hang beyond New Years' day. After Twelfth Night they can come down. The season of Christmas will then be ended, and, taken down in good time, the lights will not lose their freshness for next Christmas season.

Great Flying Exploit

THE DAM BUSTERS, by Paul Brickhill (Evans Brothers, British Books).

PERHAPS you do not remember the headlines when the Moehne and Eder Dams were smashed one night early in 1943, dams which controlled the source of power for some of the biggest German industries in the Ruhr. But you will remember the name of Wing Commander Guy Gibson, V.C., D.S.O. and Bar, D.F.C. and Bar. You may not recall the headlines about the precision bombing with a ten-ton bomb, but you will remember the name Leonard Cheshire, V.C., D.S.O. and two Bars, D.F.C. This book is the story of such men as these and their squadron, Number 617, R.A.F.

The author is a former R.A.F. man, with a gift for putting the right phrases into the right mouths (there is so much dialogue in this historical and factual account that one might suspect that the writer is putting his imagination too strongly to work, but he had war diaries, logs of wireless messages from cockpits, and conversation with survivors at his disposal). Squadron 617 was the elite squadron of the R.A.F. It was formed to carry out one specific operation, as Lord Tedder notes in his foreword to the book—to breach the Ruhr dams. This job done, it carried on to do other special bombing tasks, and continued to have among its members some of the most daring, brilliant and decorated crews in the R.A.F.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE STORY of the bombing of the dams is fascinating reading: the preparation; the special training; the brilliant scientific work of Barnes Wallis, the great engineer who conceived the big bombs and related bombing tactics to them; and the actual raid.

What great daring and courage these men had. One plane after another went into the attack on the Moehne dam, into a fury of enemy flak. As one went, the others waited their turn. A plane would be brought down; the next plane, its crew knowing of this, would go in:

"'M Mother was past the dam, nose up, straining for heights so the crew could bail out, when the tanks blew up with an orange flare, a wing riped away and the bomber spun to ground in a burning, bouncing piece. The bomb went off near the power house like a brilliant sun. It was all over in a second.

"A voice said over the R/T, 'Poor old Hoppy'.

"Gibson called up: 'Hello "P Popsie". Are you ready?'

"'O.K. Leader. Going in'.

"Martin was turning in from the hills."

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT FINALLY the dam was breached. "The others flew over and were awed into silence. In the moonglow they watched a wall of water rolling down the valley, 25 feet high, moving 20 feet a second." Later reconnaissance photographs showed that "The Moehne and Eder lakes were empty and 330 million tons of water were spreading like a cancer through the western Ruhr valleys, the bones of towns and villages showing lifeless in the wilderness". As the author remarks, next morning in the mess, 56 beardless men out of 133 who took part in the raid were missing, and only three had got out by parachute at a perilous height to spend the rest of the war in prison camp.

The bombing results: 125 factories destroyed or badly damaged, nearly 3,000 hectares of arable land ruined, 25 bridges had vanished, and 21 more were badly damaged. Livestock losses were 6,500 cattle and pigs. Drowned in the floods—mostly civilians—were 1,294 people.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN THE DECORATIONS came through, there were 33 of them. Gibson was awarded a V.C., and the Australian Mickey Martin, one of the great fliers of the war, got a D.S.O. The King and Queen visited the squadron, and thereafter, on a special train, all those decorated attended an investiture at Buckingham Palace (June 22).

The squadron went on to other feats of efficiency and glory under other leaders. Gibson was told he could not fly again. He was followed by S/L George Holden, who was soon killed, then temporarily by Martin, until Leonard Cheshire took command of the "suicide" squadron, reverting in rank to be able to do so. Cheshire, at 25, was the youngest Group Captain in the R.A.F. He asked Sir Ralph Cochrane to drop him back to Wing Commander so that he could take over. The author says: "Cheshire looked more like a theological student thinly disguised as a senior officer; yet he had done two tours and won a D.S.O." That may be true of Cheshire now, but at that time he did not look like a theological student; he looked what he was: an intelligent, rash, erratic, daringly calculating and arrogant young R.A.F. officer. It was Cheshire who led the squadron (and perfected its technique—devising much of it himself) in pin-point bombing of factories, canals, railway tunnels. He was spectacularly successful, and lived a charmed life. His raid on Munich became a classic.

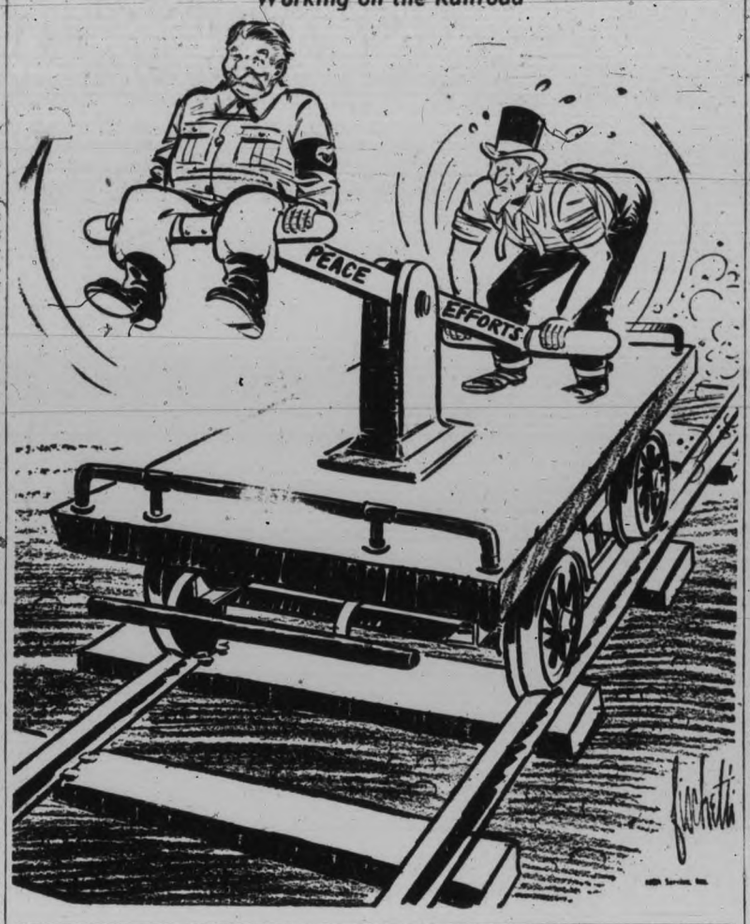
THE AUTHOR remarks on a fact little known; that before Cheshire and the new techniques, the massed bombing raids of hundreds of planes were dramatically fruitless and very wasteful of bombs, planes and lives. Most of the bombs fell on fields or civilian centres; enemy production and communications were not disrupted as much as expected, or as headlines of those days said. It was Cheshire and his squadron who first used the "earthquake bomb" designed by the genius Barnes Wallis.

Following Cheshire's V.C. and his 100 raids, Sir Ralph Cochrane replaced him with Wing Commander "Willie" Tait, who, at the end of his tour with 617, had a record of four D.S.O.'s and two D.F.C.'s. During Tait's command, the German battleship 'Tirpitz', lying low near the Arctic Circle, was sunk. The almost desperate efforts made to reach and sink her by masses of planes (two squadrons were sent to Russian bases for it) by the greatest and costliest of bombs, and the use of the lives of some of the best men in the R.A.F. seems, in reading of it in this account, foolish waste. By this time (1944) the German naval power was insignificant and the Tirpitz of no account as a battle threat. To sink the 'Tirpitz' seems to have been a matter of prestige in the very highest circles of Whitehall, with little relation to the practical purpose of winning the war. (The author does not hint at this, but the evidence lies between the lines.)

✧ ✧ ✧

NEXT FOLLOWING TAIT in command of the notable squadron was "Johnnie" Fauquier. Fauquier was an Air Commodore who dropped in rank to take the command. "A Canadian, and a tough one, a thick-set bush-pilot, who did not smile much (nor say much). With his curt voice he did not have to say much. Ten years older than most of them, he was as forceful as a steam-roller. The night he arrived there was a party.



"To put it mildly, 617's welcome to a new commander was exacting. They were, perhaps, a little above themselves, conscious of their lustre and jealous of trespass on it. It is a trait common to an elect corps, an inseparable if less tractable facet of the unique ardour that leads men to the corps and drives them on to the heights. It is the handmaiden of achievement and often the mainspring of it. You find it among commandos, business tycoons, geniuses, and sometimes in child delinquents." Fauquier met the high standards of his welcome, and under him the squadron was first to deliver the biggest bomb that Wallis had ever invented, or the world seen—the "Grand Slam". Air Commodore J. E. Fauquier, D.S.O. and two Bars, D.F.C. is now head of a company in Toronto, building concrete structures.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS INTERESTING to know the post-war fate of these heroes: Gibson is dead, killed in a Mosquito raid in June, 1944, when he had forced his seniors to release him from a desk job. The great night-fighter Martin won another bar to his D.F.C. and is now flying an R.A.F. desk in Whitehall. Sir Ralph Cochrane, thrice knighted, is Air Chief Marshal. Tait is also in Whitehall. Cheshire became a Roman Catholic, went out to Nagasaki as Attlee's personal observer of this A-bomb attack, came back, resigned from the R.A.F. and set up a communal group of unsettled ex-service men in a house in Hampshire inherited from an aunt, which he called "Vade in Pacem" (May you walk in peace). His health broke down and he spent eight months in the Canadian Rockies recovering, doing odd jobs to pay for his keep. His house in Hampshire became a sort of hospital for incurables. Lately, free of debts from this communal house-hospital," he has joined white-haired Barnes Wallis, still working over his drawing board. Sir Ralph Cochrane found him the job.

Agnostics and the Census

From SATURDAY NIGHT

We feel a certain sympathy with those Canadian agnostics who cannot get themselves enrolled in the census along with their fellow agnostics, because the Canada Bureau of Statistics does not recognize that agnosticism is a religion. As a matter of fact we incline to agree with the Bureau that agnosticism is not a religion; but we think there should be some recognition in the census of the fact that some people prefer to have no religion, and even perhaps some recognition of the different kinds of non-religion that they prefer to have—among which, of course, agnosticism is definitely and by a long chalk the most distinguished and the most highbrow.

According to the census of 1941 there were 20 different kinds of religion practised or believed by Canadians, and two other classes recorded in the figures. These two were "Others" (than the 20) and "Not Stated". Presumably the agnostics and the atheists were one or other of these two last classes; they were certainly not in any of the 20, and the 22 together add up to the entire population of Canada. The "Others", who totalled 120,000 are stated to include those who gave "no religion" as their answer, but they also include Unitarians, Jehovah's Witnesses, and other bodies, and we can readily understand the desire of the agnostics to know whether they are more or less numerous than the atheists, whether they are making converts from atheism or losing converts to it, and in what part of Canada they are likely to find the largest bodies of their fellow-non-believers. About all that the census tells them is that there are 5,680 "Others" in Toronto and only 2,514 in Montreal. This should be brought to the attention of those Torontonians who are accustomed to look upon Montreal as a wicked city.

All of the 20 specific religious classes in the census are Christian and (we believe) Trinitarian except the Jews and a class designated as "Confucian and Buddhist". We once had a friend, a very brilliant Canadian writer now deceased, who succeeded only after great argument in persuading an enumerator to enrol him as a Buddhist on the ground that what he actually believed was closer to Buddhism than to anything else, but we do not think that he ever joined any Buddhist community or sought the services of any Buddhist priest, and he certainly was not Buddhistically married or buried. A less argumentative person in the same conditions whould have gone down in the offical records as Church of England.

Who's An Intellectual?

From EDMONTON JOURNAL

JUST what is the meaning of that word "intellectual" which is so lavishly, indiscriminately and confusingly thrown about now-a-days? It's difficult to pick up a newspaper or magazine without learning that intellectuals are on the warpath somewhere. We are told that Communist revolution in China was led by intellectuals, that the intellectuals in India or Egypt or Madagascar are turning to Communism, that French intellectuals despair about the future of the world, and that Senator McCarthy is going to drive "twisted intellectuals" out of the U.S. state department. But who are they, anyway?

This is one place where the dictionary is not much help. The Oxford Dictionary defines the word as meaning: "an intellectual being; a person having superior powers of intellect." This is all very well, but it hardly seems to apply to the people described as "intellectuals" who are regularly reported as taking part in some riot and having their heads cracked by the police. If they had superior powers of intellect they would surely have taken better care of their skulls.

At one time there was a tendency to classify people who followed the arts and professions as intellectuals, as contrasted with those who followed agriculture, industry and commerce. This snobbish, definition, however, is breaking down; it appears that large classes of professional people are outside the charmed circle.

Thus an item in the Chicago Daily News "Sidelights on the News" informed us that one reason for the downfall of the Czech Communist leader, Rudolf Slansky, was that he was an intellectual and "the regime needs economists, not intellectuals." A few weeks ago, too, a U.S. senator—an eminent lawyer and a former chief justice of his state—was informed by an American magazine, after a stormy clash with some congressional investigation, that he "didn't understand intellectuals." So lawyers, economists, and presumably doctors and engineers are not included.

In actual fact, the word is one of a number—"liberal," "reactionary," "progressive," and possibly "fascist"—which have been so tossed about in party warfare, and used so carelessly as epithets, that all have lost whatever meaning they once possessed. It would be a contribution to clearer thinking if they were all superannuated.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good?

Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is. (Deut. 10: 12-14.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him, Which is the first commandment of all? And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment.

And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these. And the scribe said unto him, Well, Master, thou hast said the truth: for there is one God; and there is none other but he: and to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, is more than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.

And when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God. (Mark 12: 28-34.)

The Canadian French

(Saturday Night)

We fancy that a good many members of the Central Ontario Drama League went away from a recent lecture by Father Emile Legault determined that they would no longer allow their concept of "Canadian theatre" to be cribbed and cabined within the confines of one only of the country's two languages. The Canadian theatre in French is probably stronger and more lively, having regard to the proportions of the population, than the Canadian theatre in English, and both would profit enormously if they could share their efforts and their experiences more freely. To achieve that end there is more need for English-speaking theatre-lovers to learn French than for French theatre-lovers to learn English.

Father Legault is the founder-director of the famous French acting company of Montreal known as Les Compagnons, which has repeatedly distinguished itself in the Dominion Drama Festival. He sees for Canada the destiny, in this troubled world of the twentieth century, of carrying on the great and closely intertwined cultural tradition of the Anglo-Saxon peoples of Great Britain and the Gallic people of France. It is surely not without significance that in Canada alone of all the countries of the New World the descendants of these two related races are combined in a single nation, and are thus set the task of developing in parallel fashion the two most important cultural streams of the Old World. He stressed the fact that the French tradition in Canada has " a certain quality of healthfulness which derives from the older France of pre-Voltairen days". It might perhaps be added that even the English tradition in Canada may owe something to the fact that its transmitters avoided the American Revolution and refused to part with some of the cherished institutions of older times.

"We've abominable robins, [illegible] Santa Clauses at abominable prices—but no snowmen."

Friend Tony Spagoni just informed me that he had "a wunnerful New Yearsa Day." What with roasta turk, with cransberry, some chianti, spaghett, macaron, more chianti, meensa pies and yet more chianti, Tony and his family had quite a feast. And like all the rest of us he "made da revolush:" he probably doesn't intend to keep them, either.

We in the Kawarthas have a few revolush to make, also. We gave some problems lip service in '51. Little more. In the interests of thousands of us, who benefit directly or indirectly from our natural heritage, we had better tackle these things with sound planning and without further delay.

We Resolve . . . .

To get Cedar Lakes Park on its feet.

One year ago today the Provincial patent was granted for the Cedar Lakes Citizens' Park. Since that time there has been a little talk, a lot of bumbling and rumbling, until a class of King Edward School kiddies visited it in the late autumn. Teacher Norman Gainor found he didn't need to whip up any enthusiasm; they were spontaneous in their praise and possibilities of the project. They wrote glowing letters of what could be done about the place for all the children in the city, villages and county to enjoy. Wisdom and pleas out of the mouths of babes fell on deaf adult ears.

Well, citizens, is Cedar Lakes Citizens' Park a dead duck?

We Resolve . . . .

To get to the bottom of this green algae situation.

This slimy condition has raised the greatest ruckus of all. I have covered meetings at which cottage owners, resort owners, private citizens and tourists have ranted and roared. They turned their blast on provincial departments to do away with it. Immediately. They were mad as hornets because the situation was allowed to develop. Same thing as locking the barn door after the horse was stolen. Only worse. Because they were angry, and still are, no attempt has been made so far to get some committees together to study the causes, to recommend a plan of action and to see, without further delay that the ball gets a shove and starts rolling. It is a grave situation of immediate concern. It demands the attention of Federal, Provincial and citizen committees at once. With everyone's tempers buttoned deep down in his hip pocket.

While mere man fumes and twiddles his thumbs Old Mother Nature is quietly going about getting a bumper algae crop ready for the vacation days of 1952.

Little men, what now?

Their aims, so a committeeman told me this week after much humming and hawing and head-scratching, was, ah, to investigate historical records of the district, and er, ah, to preserve and house them, somewhere.

Following more than a year of deep pondering, citizens can expect to hear something startling from the PHS, no doubt.

Of a Book and Music . . . .

Last summer while reporting the findings of a group of archeologists at Lake Scugog, I had an interesting talk with its director, Dr. Kenneth E. Kidd. He told me that he had written a small book for children about CANADIANS OF LONG AGO. A review copy came in the mail the day before Christmas. It is very interesting. Dr. Kidd covers the first arrivals (Indians), the broad groups of natives of the North-West Coast, the Plains, Northern Ontario and Quebec and Southern Ontario. The informative 12-year-old reading pace is broken up with four fine tribal legends and excellent illustrations by Sylvia Hahn. In its preface, the author hopes that it will provide teachers with abundant materials for classroom discussion. In my opinion, it most certainly does just that, and recommend it to teachers and all school librarians.

Guess I am as interested in certain types of music-for-listening as the next fellow. But these Christmas gift player records, Brother!

From dawn till late at night, every quarter hour on the quarter hour, it's "Slow Poke," "Down Yonder," "Tiger Rag," and "It's No Sin." But it IS a sin, all of them. The record labels say they are unbreakable. Oh, I don't know about that . . .

HEALEY'S FALLS IN THE LAST CENTURY, some time after the incident described in the article below.

Sir Richard Bonnycastle, Visiting Son Leapt For Life Across Churning Stream

By MRS. GERALD MARRYAT

In the summer of 1845, Sir Richard Bonnycastle, Lieut. Colonel of Royal Engineers, who had also served during the Rebellion of 1837-38 in the Upper Canadian Militia, visited his son Henry at his farm in Seymour township near the present town of Campbellford.

His idea had been to purchase a light waggon and a team of good horses, drive to the farm and leave them there, and this plan proved satisfactory. His son met him at Brighton and they started at daybreak, ready to "penetrate into the bowels of the land" as he put it in his two-volume account of his experiences, "Canada and the Canadians", published by Henry Colburn, Great Marlborough Street, London, Eng. in 1846.

The sandy road stretched into the forest soon after leaving Brighton and they passed an occasional new farm or log hut on a tolerably good road for a new country, and stopped for breakfast on the muddy banks of Cold Creek. They waggoned on till they came to a surprising new settlement, the village of Percy (Warkworth) and Percy Landing, where flour and saw mills had been established and a thriving population was rising both in numbers and means. There they dined at a new Inn kept by a French Canadian, and then after a few miles of decent road crossed a beautiful stream and plunged into the undisturbed forest where every rut was a canal and every stone as big as a bombshell. Finally, after jolting and walking by turns they came to Myer's Mills (Myersburg) and across the "lively stream" near there, when his son saw that something had gone wrong with the bridge. He was too far advanced upon it to turn back, so with a true woodsman's energy, he pulled his horses up sharp, reined them well up and then, with a tremendous shout, applied the whip and actually leaped horses, waggon and passengers over the chasm. They heard next morning that the whole bridge had fallen in.

That was adventure number one and in recalling it, Sir Richard wrote, reflecting that he had never had a nearer leap for clearing the river Styx than this, excepting one shortly afterwards upon a timber slide on the Trent at Healey's Falls.

"A vast timber canal had been constructed here by the Board of Works to convey timber down a rapids without danger; the slide being alongside of the rapid. It was an interesting work, and, with my young friend (his son) and two Naval Officers settled in Seymour, I went to examine it."

"At the sluice-way or timber dam was a sort of bridge, composed of parallel pieces of heavy square joists and a platform; as we walked along this way—the parallel pieces were about two feet distant from each other, I walked on one and my companions on the other, until a good view of the splendid rapids was attained. Under our feet, at some distance, was the water of the slide running on an inclined plane of woodwork, at a great angle, and with enormous power and velocity into a cauldron far below."

"The day was bright, and the shadow of the parallel logs left beween them no view of the water beneath. They called me suddenly to look at the rapids. I jumped, as I thought, over the space between us; but my jump in dark places, and look before you leap."

Who was the quick-thinking Naval Officer who prevented tragedy? For the Township of Seymour certainly owes him a debt of gratitude for saving a visitor from certain death, a visitor, who, although less well-known locally than the Stricklands, Langtons, Mrs. Stewart and others, has added greatly to the very slender store of anecdote concerning its early history.

In Sir Richard's day that timber slide was brand new. A lower slide for cribs of timber had been constructed as well as the long upper slide where they stood to catch a view of the magnificent turmoil of waters as they rushed downward over the rocks. The slides were 360 and 713 feet respectively, both 33 ft. wide. The dam was 488 ft. by 33 ft. by 10 ft. It was begun in 1837 but not completed till 1845. Much of the material used in the slide came from the Gilchrist mill at Keene while the square timbers were taken out in Asphodel by Henry Fowlds from the Birdsall land and requisitioned by "Mr. Nagle", in charge of construction in 1843. For fifty years it stood the wear and tear of continual drives of logs and timber cribs, but the end of the lumbering industry was in sight during the closing decades of the fifteenth century.

Fifty years ago the slides were in yearly use as Gilmours' and Rathburns' drives went through every spring. There was a bridge built in 1903 to replace an older one and a ferry which was damaged by fire in July 1893. Favourite picnics included a trip to the falls and on one occasion the old North Star was blown by a gale almost to the upper end of the timber slide. Some anxious minutes were spent by the few passengers, ordered to walk hand in hand from one side of the cabin to the other to aid in getting the boat off the ground. It was quite exciting while it lasted and worse still it was impossible to let anyone know what had happened. The homeward journey in the dark through wind and rain and the unmarked channel through the acre of "drowned lands" added up to an adventure for those concerned, but not of such magnitude or such danger as that of Sir Richard Bonnycastle who so nearly lost his life in the summer of 1845.

Egotism

MOST men are afflicted with a coldness, an incuriosity, as soon as any object does not connect with their self-love. Though they talk of the object before them, they are thinking of themselves, and their vanity is laying little traps for your admiration.

NO man is much regarded by the rest of the world. He that considers how little he dwells upon the condition of others, will learn how little the attention of others is attracted by himself. While we see multitudes passing before us, of whom perhaps not one appears to deserve our notice or excite our sympathy, we should remember, that we likewise are lost in the same throng; that the eye which happens to glance upon us is turned in a moment on him that follows us, and that the utmost which we can reasonably hope or fear, is to fill a vacant hour with prattle, and be forgiven.

Your Garden:

Here's What Gardeners Want to Know

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Many letters received by this gardener asking for help in solving problems are of such general interest that they are worthy of inclusion in a complete article.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—I have access to several pounds of used coffee grounds daily from a restaurant. Are they of value to help break up a heavy clay vegetable garden soil?

A—Yes—coffee grounds or any similar organic matter would greatly improve the tilth of the soil. Work them well into the soil, add a fertilizer strong in nitrogen to assist in the decomposition of the grounds. A three-inch layer allowed to remain over winter would be too much.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—What causes a moldy substance to appear on the soil of several of my house plants?

A—A heavy soil, plus overwatering is the usual cause. Be sure the pots have a drainage hole in the bottom, scrape off the mold, cover soil with an eighth-inch of sand, water soil only when dry—but syringe plant tops frequently.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—Where can one secure some information as to how to pronounce plant names properly? This subject arises regularly in our garden club.

A—The various garden dictionaries and encyclopedias invariably provide the proper pronunciation with the information relative to the plant. One of the simplest means of acquiring this information is the inexpensive little booklet, "New Pronouncing Dictionary of Plant Names." It may be secured from the Florists' Publishing Co., 508 S. Dearborn St., Chicago 4, Illinois.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—I have a number of regal lilies which have done well for me. What should I do with the small bulbs which form around the stalk at the surface and when should I plant the seed?

A—The small bulbs should be removed without disturbing the parent bulb. These may be planted by themselves and will attain flowering size in a couple of years under good conditions. It would be wise to plant them two inches deep and to protect them over winter with a mulch of litter until they develop into large bulbs when they may be planted deeper. Seed of the regal lily may be sown in late fall or in spring. A mixture of leaf mould and sand makes a satisfactory compost for growing the seed. When the seedlings come up they may need to be thinned in order to give the plants room to develop properly.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—Will geranium cuttings rooted last August bloom indoors?

A—If geraniums are to bloom indoors this winter, they must have a window which receives direct sunlight all day and where a day temperature of 70 to 75 degrees is the rule. Frequent syringing of the foliage and weekly soaking of the soil is important. Geraniums should not stand in water.

Baseball Giant Quits Game

By KENNETH HARRIS

The holiday season in the United States was somewhat overcast by the announcement that Joe DiMaggio, the star hitter and centre field of the New York Yankee baseball team has retired from baseball and will not take the field again next summer.

DiMaggio will go down as one of the really great ball-players. He was less spectacular than the almost legendary Babe Ruth, but his record of 56 "safe hits" in 56 consecutive games is considered by the connoisseurs to be better than the Babe's record of 60 home runs in one season. DiMaggio, moreover, was a magnificent and graceful runner and catcher, and as a centre field alone he would be assured of immortality.

He was one of the most modest, unassuming and unselfconscious sportsmen I saw play at any game, and his gentle, easy, loping run after he had clouted a fast ball out of the ground was exactly the same as if he were trotting in to the stands after being struck out. His reputation for unselfishness and sportsmanship is a splendid one.

Baseball, though it lends itself easily to satire, is a noble, complex and thrilling game, but I am always prejudiced in favor of it as a result of the first one I saw. DiMaggio's team was playing a match in which they were in some difficulties and Joe himself, was at one of the dips in his seasonal esteem. As he came in to bat, there were some shouts that it was time he retired for good.

"This is the moment that Joe goes for", said the man who had taken me to the match. Next moment, Joe's yellow bat swung lazily but beautifully, the white ball sped almost invisibly in a great arc into the blue, and there was Joe loping round, nonchalantly chewing his gum, and the crowd roaring, frantic with delight. Just to make it clear that he was still in the game, Joe hit two more home runs that day, which added another record to his name. It was a golden feat; a cricketer would class it with the day when a bowler took all ten wickets, or when a batsman topped 400 in a first-class match.

What was so nice this occasion was the fact that the crowd adored the man as much as the feat, and adored a man who seemed a very decent friendly human being. The admiration honored the giver as well as the receiver.

LEARNING

Learning is a name superior to beauty; learning is better than hidden treasure; learning is a companion on a journey to a strange country; learning is strength inexhaustible. A man in this world without learning is a beast of the field.

The Hitopadesa, intro., c. 500

Is Your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will at the beginning of each year. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar values your Estate has probably changed in value

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Births, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now—and if not, make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

It costs no more to have group judgment and financial responsibility.

Eagles Edge Out the Petes By a Score Of 5 To 4 In Speedy Senior "B" Fray

Piling up an early lead and then defending it bitterly the last half, the Eagles pulled a 5-4 upset on the leading Petes in a hot OHA senior "B" fixture here last night. A big crowd thrilled to the hard hockey dished up, players on both sides skating themselves into the ice in the final frame. It threatened to be rough in spots but nothing serious happened. Each side drew six penalties. The showing by Ned Vitarellis' pack was more remarkable because three regulars were absent, Keith Montgomery being out with an injury, and Bill Crowley and Bert Hill having to work. But they swept to a 4-1 lead in the initial innin— held their own in the 1-1 middle heat and kept the driving Ellis crew to two goals in the steaming third stanza. The Petes outplayed them in the last two periods but couldn't get the tying marker.

Nicholls Shone

Brilliant goaltending by the harried Ross Nicholls, and some strong defensive playing by the winners kept the over-anxious Petes at bay, though they whittled the early lead down fast when they got going the last half. Penalties hurt on both sides a few times, but at other times the shorthanded squad rose to heights to withstand a storm of hot rubber.

Rookie Bill Berwick, of the Eagles, scored two goals on passes from his young mate from Oshawa, George Samalenko. Freddy Mortimer and Toodie Greenlaw each had a goal and an assist, George Brabin one marker, and Reg Stewart and Dootch Vitarelli an assist apiece. Arn Dugan tallied twice for Petes. Curly Mason and Bob Wyatt getting the other goals. Jake Wade helped on two, Ron Horton, Chum Fryia and Mason getting an assist each.

Drove Early

Eagles drove from the faceoff and Fred Mortimer counted early from Greenlaw with Harding down after one save. Brabin went over for hooking and Vitarelli followed for high-sticking. Eagles were shy two for nearly a minute but held out the Petes. With both back, Fryia got it for elbowing and it cost two goals. Berwick got in twice fast with Samalenko to sink the disc at close range before Chum returned. Then Brabin pushed the puck past Ray into a net corner at point-blank range with Vitarelli's pass to make it 4-0. Horton served an elbowing penalty in fast stepping and Dugan missed on a breakaway, Mason later hitting the post. Doug Mortimer was off for holding when Wyatt camped at the goal crease edge and cuffed in Wade's forward pass for the Petes.

Petes Begin

Greenlaw got the Eagles' last marker to open the second stanza on a passout play with Stewart and Fred Mortimer inside. Halfway through the speedy period, the Petes began to press and they gave Nicholls a busy time from then on. Dugan tallied a neat one in close from Horton, and then Dugan drew the thumb for slashing. It roughened up considerably and Horton climbed the wall for elbowing to leave them short two men for 50 seconds. Gus Leonard drew a delayed penalty next for holding the puck as Eagles drove in. Berwick of Eagles got it next for holding and, despite some torrid thrusts at either end, there was no scoring during their absence. The Petes did sink one but it was just a split second after a whistle. Nicholls, figuring the Petes were pushing him around, threatened to chop off a head or two.

Nearly Tied It

The Ellis outfit staged a speedy, sustained drive throughout the third that netted two goals and made Eagles work their heads off to stop further scoring. Nicholls had to be good and his defence shone as they checked tirelessly and iced the puck frequently to lift the pressure. Dugan finally got in with a slap shot on a forward pass to score on a play built up by Mason and Fryia, and then Mason got another right away as he slapped in Wade's forward drive near the goal. Wilson served a slashing penalty and it was hot, but they did no more scoring. Collins got the nod later for tripping and he was followed by Doug Mortimer for tripping. With half a minute to go, the Petes pulled their goalie and threatened hard but couldn't get the equalizer as time ran out on them. Teams:

Eagles: Goal, Nicholls; defence, D. Mortimer and Munroe; centre, F. Mortimer; wings, Greenlaw and Stewart; alternates, Samalenko, Berwick, Wilson, Parnall, Vitarelli, Brabin and Wootton.

Norwood Wins 5-3 In Overtime

NORWOOD, Jan. 5 (ENS). — Overtime goals by Payne and Thorpe made the 1951-52 Norwood TVL entry's home debut successful Friday night with a 5-3 win over Havelock.

Havelock took a slim 2-1 score in the first period and held the one-goal lead in the second 3-2. While holding Havelock off the scoresheet, Norwood squeezed in the tying goal in the third forcing the extra 10 minutes when Norwood cashed in for the victory.

Havelock had several opportunities to break the deadlock in the third period when Norwood suffered a rash of penalties once playing two men short. But Havelock couldn't break Norwood's stiff defensive system.

Hamilton, with help from Eakins, scored the first goal for Havelock but Bob Thorpe, assisted by Griffin tied the situation five minutes later. At the 15-minute mark Reed sent Havelock up one.

Not until the 17-minute mark of the second did either team score then Lang sent Havelock up two goals. In the final minute Payne brought Norwood one closer.

With three minutes to go in the third, Creighton caught the netting for Norwood, Thorpe setting up the play, to tie the score three-all.

Norwood lost little time in taking the lead in the overtime when Payne scored again at the two-minute mark, followed up with an assurance goal by Thorpe with only two minutes left to play.

Lineups:

Norwood: Goal, Jones; defence, Kelly-Kennell; centre Griffin; wings, Brydges, Thorpe; alternates, Payne, Thompson, Parsons, Ferguson, Whitnell, Robinson, Thompkins, Creighton.

Havelock: Goal, Aldred; defence, Anderson, Richlark; centre, Reed; wings, Willshaw, Crowder, alternates, Eakins, Hamilton, Caravaggie, Berardi, Pollock, Walling, Smith, Laing.

Mercurys To Play 30 Games, 3 Tournaments

LONDON, Jan. 5 (CP)—Edmonton Mercurys, Canada's hope for the Olympic hockey title, will play more than 30 games in 10 countries and will probably participate in three tournaments after their arrival from Canada, it was announced today.

The Mercurys, scheduled to arrive at Prestwick tomorrow by air from Montreal, will get on their skates almost immediately. They play an exhibition game at Ayr tomorrow night, at Perth next Wednesday, at Falkirk Jan. 11 and at Paisley, Jan. 12.

Then they go to London for a one-game stand before starting on a continental tour which includes six or seven games in Germany, two in France, two in Belgium, two in Holland, three or four in Sweden and three in Italy.

These do not include tournament games. Apart from the Winter Olympics at Oslo starting Feb. 14, there will be two major competitions. The first, to be held in Sweden starting Feb. 26, is a new tournament and will probably involve Canada, the United States, Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

The winner will receive a trophy presented by J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, well-known British hockey official.

Also up for competition will be the Churchill Cup, won last season by Lethbridge Maple Leafs. Dates and details have not been arranged, but this will probably involve a straight two-way struggle between Canada and a British team.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

The semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association opened in Regina today with delegates from all parts of Canada.

Consideration of playoff arrangements and a report on the Canadian Olympic team will be main topics on the agenda.

Manitoba delegates will lead a discussion on the transfer of amateur players by professional clubs through their sponsored teams. Flin Flon Bombers have laid a complaint against Windsor, a Detroit farm team, claiming that a Bomber player was taken to Windsor without permission.

Vern Kaiser, veteran leftwinger for Buffalo Bisons, has been fined $150 by Maurice Podoloff, president of the American Hockey League it was announced Friday in New York. The fine was for deliberately attempting to injure Bob Armstrong of Hershey Bears in an AHL game at Buffalo last Sunday.

Referee Maurice Walsh said in his report to Podoloff that Kaiser, 26-year-old native of Preston, Ont., swung his stick at Armstrong. He was given a match penalty.

Canadian women golfers gathered at Toronto Friday to pay tribute to Mrs. Kathleen Rowe, retired after 25 years as secretary of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union. Ada Mackenzie, nine-time winner of the Ontario ladies' championships, presented Mrs. Rowe with a cheque and a purse on behalf of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union.

At Tampa, Fla., Henri Rochon of Montreal, top-seeded foreign entrant in the Dixie tennis tournament, was eliminated Friday in quarter-final play by Tony Vincent of Miami. The score was 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

At Los Angeles, Maurice (Clipper) Smith, former coach of the Boston Yankees, said Friday he would be interested in any offer Montreal's football Alouettes might make, but so far they have not negotiated with him. He was commenting on published reports that the Als were after him to succeed Lew Hayman as head coach for the Big Four team.

The International Cup Thomas Cup badminton matches between United States and Canada will be held this year in Canada. Dates and the most city will be announced later. Ken Forsythe of Winnipeg publicity chairman for the Canadian Thomas committee, said Friday at Winnipeg he had been informed by J. E. Underhill of Vancouver, committee chairman, that the US and Canadian associations had agreed to hold their zone playoff in Canada.

Plans for the Dominion high school curling championships at Moncton, Feb. 18-21 are well under way, Ken Watson of Winnipeg, committee chairman, said Friday night at Winnipeg. To date, only Manitoba has declared a winner. Ron Gray of Belmont captured the provincial championship Christmas week. Ontario winners are expected to be named Jan. 19.

Roy Campanella, Brooklyn Dodgers' catcher, will undergo an operation Tuesday at Brooklyn for removal of four bone chips from his left elbow. The Negro veteran, voted most valuable player in the National League in 1951, was injured last season in a home plate collision with Whitey Lockman of the New York Giants. X-rays disclosed the chips today.

Maj. Arnold Wilson, at one time Britain's biggest boxing promoter, died in a London hospital Friday. He was 67. Wilson took over big fight promotion when Sir Charles Cochran quit the business.

ROSS RISES TO HEIGHTS—Goalie Ross Nicholls of the Eagles rose to stellar heights here last night as he kept the Petes down to four goals as his mates were racking up five in a thrilling senior "B" puck tussle before nearly 2,000 fans. The veteran netter was at his best.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Pro wrestling returns to this borough Tuesday night with a three-bout card in the Brock Arene. It's topped off by Lord Athol Layton vs. Bobo Brazil, semi-final featuring Timothy Geohagen and Zorra, the French Tarzan. In the prelim, it's Steve Stanless and Bill Stack. A lot of talent from Toronto shows on the program to start off the new year in the grappling game, and no doubt it'll draw another hefty crowd. They flock in from all over the district to see the big guys tangle on the mat. Bobo Brazil ought to hold his own against the big slasher from over 'ome, and he'll get most of the fan support. But that alone won't help him too much as Layton is a powerful hombre.

Prexy Bob Peirson of the Petes' Timbermen — Mann Cup lacrosse champs — informs us that the windup meeting of last season was left over till early this month, due to the rush for everyone in December. It'll be held next week, and the decks cleared for OLA action for this coming campaign. Incidentally, Bob did quite a job as head of the organization which brought Peterborough its first Canadian sports' championship. The club dinner, postponed a month ago, will be held toward the end of January. Then an early reorganization meeting and plans will be underway for the 1952 senior gutted-stick season.

Yes, They Also Serve

Getting back to hockey, we'd like to say a few words in recognition of the timers and trainers of our OHA squads. These teams are fortunate in getting capable chaps to perform these onerous duties, fellows who do a good job but get no appreciation from press or public. A trainer is an important gee on a club, particularly where injuries occur, and he must know his stuff. Rubdowns and all the rest of it keep him busy. Timers, too, must be on their toes, especially in close games where seconds count, or where several penalties are being served at the same time. You can't afford to make mistakes. Equipment managers and even stick-boys are important cogs, as well, in the smooth operation of a hockey club.

* * * * * *

Next OHA senior "B" game at Civic Arena is Monday night when Belleville Hawks, up around the top of the heap now tangle with the local Eagles. It'll be a dandy ice duel. You know, the Hawks actually worry more about the Eagles than they do the Petes, despite the fact that Petes have headed the loop most of the season. Quinte hockey officials point out that Eagles have beaten the Hawks pretty frequently and have given them some mighty tough tussles in losing, while the Doran dudes have done pretty well in games with the Petes. One man's meat is another chap's poison. So, it should add up to quite a senior scrap when Hawks and Eagles clash here Monday.

* * * * * *

Eagles Grabbed A Win

That Eagles-Petes' clash here last eve lived up to advance notices, being a sizzling 5-4 win for the McGillis men. Yeah, Ned's pack were minus ace players like Monty, Crowley and Hill, but they piled up an early lead and then fought off a furious drive in the last half by the classy Ellis outfit to gain the narrow nod. The big crowd saw a dandy, alright. Eagles were best in the first frame, held their own for half the middle chukker, but Petes had a big margin on play the rest of the route. Some sparkling defensive work by Eagles and starry netminding by Ross Nicholls kept them from at least sewing it up. They threw a big batch of burnt biscuits Rossward.

* * * * * *

Arn Dugan, Curly Mason and Jake Wade were each in on two goals for the Petes. Ray Harding made plenty of good saves, too, and his buddies toiled real hard. Both sides did throughout and were dragging near the close. Bill Berwick, George Samalenko, Fred Mortimer and Toodie Greenlaw were each in on a brace for the victors. That young line of Berwick-Samalenko-Wilson looked good. Jim Munroe played a whale of a game on defence, as did the other stalwarts. George Steele labored lustily on his return to the Petes' lineup. Two local refs came in for some panning at times by rival factions but did a fair chore in a tight tilt, we thought. It could have become rough enough at times, but no damage was done. We haven't the result of the Belleville-Kingston game at this writing.

Matman Morgan Tosses Players, Fans About As Donnybrook Halts Lindsay-Cobourg Tilt

LINDSAY, Jan. 5.—A free-for-all riot among players and spectators marred the OMHA Juvenile game between Cobourg and Lindsay Thursday night.

Players started the fight with seven minutes to go and spectators hopped over the boards to participate. Fists and sticks flew until several red noses sprouted.

Referee Perry McIntosh of Lindsay had his sweater almost jerked off his back. No policemen were in sight but Toar Morgan, a professional wrestler, stepped on to the ice and stopped the fight by tossing youthful combatants hither and thither.

A thorough investigation will be launched by the OMHA into the brawl, which broke out with Lindsay leading Cobourg Lions 10-3.

It was reported that the 20-year-old local fan who attacked Lindsay referee Perry McIntosh will be barred from the arena.

Harold Williams paced the strong Lindsay entry with four goals while Art Traux, Bill Williams, Pip Hutton and Jack Graham added single tallies. Neil Cane led the losers with two goals, while Frank McIvor added the other.

Unknowns Pace $17,500 Tourney As Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5 (AP).—Names that weren't on hand made bigger news today than the names that were, as the $17,500 Los Angeles open golf tournament went into its second day.

The field was paced by Jack Burke Jr., whose name would be unfamiliar to many were it not for his father, a great competitor of years gone by.

Young Burke, 29, broke out in birdies on the last nine to finish with 36-33 — 69 over Riviera Country Club's tough 7,020-yard, par 35-36—71 course.

Only two others shaded par in a day short of sensations. The pair, Al Brosh of Garden City, NJ, and John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., also are relative unknowns in the big time. They carded identical 34-36—70s.

Usually this rich tournament, its purse raised $2,500 this year, attracts the best of the winter golf clan. But the list of those who aren't here is headed by the pair who battled it out in a classic play-off for the title two years ago—Sam Snead and Ben Hogan. They announced several weeks ago they wouldn't enter.

Middlecoff Out

Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist, lasted only 11 holes, with severely strained wrist ligaments.

Lawson Little was a late withdrawal, pleading strep throat. What caused raised eyebrows was that only one of the six playing members of the Professional Golf Association's tournament committee was on hand.

He is Horton Smith, PGA president, who shot a 76—not too bad considering some of the other scores.

Eyebrows went up because of a dispute between the PGA and the sponsoring Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce, over which would control the tournament. The Junior Chamber stayed in the driver's seat, but the PGA declined to sanction it, although not forbidding its members to enter.

Of the names that were left, some stayed within striking distance of the $4,000 first prize. Paul Runyan, once a great threat, was alone at par 71.

Tonight the 131 contestants who finished Friday will be cut to 90 for Sunday's play. The final round is scheduled Monday.

Teepees Beat Kitchener 5-2 For 8th Win In Nine Starts; Biltmores Down Galt 11-3

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines Teepees, currently hugging sixth place in the Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" circuit, have had their ups and downs this season, but from their showing over the last two weeks, appear to be finally going places. The kids from St. Kitts are the hottest bunch of boys in the 10-team loop. Friday night in Kitchener they won their eighth game in nine starts when they edged Greenshirts 5-2. The win moved them only three points out of fifth place.

At Guelph, the Biltmores closed to within four points of the league-leading Toronto Marlboros by drubbing Galt Black Hawks 11-3. The only other junior game, played at Barrie, saw the Flyers edge Waterloo Hurricanes 8-6 with two overtime goals.

In senior OHA play, Stratford Indians held their league lead with a 3-2 win over second-place Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen. The Indians were forced to stage a third period rally after the Dutchies took an early-game lead.

Owen Sound Wins

Other senior tussles saw Owen Sound take a firmer grip on fourth place with a 5-2 victory over Hamilton Tigers while Brantford Redmen downed Sarnia Sailors 6-4 and gave Sarnia the cellar position.

Up north, the cellar-dwelling North Bay Black Hawks gained an important Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A win over Sudbury Miners when they clipped the third-place club 8-5. The victory pulled the Hawks to within one game of Miners.

At Kitchener, Brian Cullen and Hank Ciesla scored two goals each for St. Catharines. Buddy Boone garnered the other Teepee tally while Orv Tessier and Joe Ingoldsby were the Greenshirt scorers.

Ron Stewart, Don McKenney, Doug Mohns and Dan MacDonald tallied a pair each for Barrie over Waterloo while Bob Mader was the best for the losers with two. Jack Armstrong, Johnny Wood, Paul Oliver and Gerry Horton each counted two.

Ron Murphy, Ray Ross and Jim Connelly were two-goal men in Guelph's victory over Galt. Harry Howell, Chick Chalmers, Dean Prentice, Chuck Henderson and Aldo Guidolin added singletons. Pete Conacher and Tony Poeta garnered Galt's goals.

In senior play it was a pair of third-period goals by Billy Flick which gave Stratford Indians their win over Kitchener-Waterloo. Mickey Roth added the other while Harvey Jacklin got both of the Dutchies' goals.

A Hat For Mike

Mike Bukacheski lit the red light three times in the first period for Owen Sound at Hamilton. Tommy Burlington added the other two goals while Bill Hammond and Ab Conick scored for the Tigers.

Brantford's victory was sparked by Lloyd Ferguson's four-goal effort. Bill Schill and Don Oberholtzer got the others while Don Emms, with two, and Harry O'Connor and Bill Gardner were the Sarnia marksmen.

Stratford visits Sarnia, Hamilton is at Owen Sound and Brantford goes to Kitchener in tonight's senior OHA play. In junior games tonight, St. Michael's moved into St. Catharines, Kitchener journeys to Waterloo, Barrie plays in Galt, Guelph faces Windsor and Marlboros invade Oshawa. On Sunday, Windsor plays Marlboros and Oshawa meets St. Michael's in a Toronto double bill.

Marines-Clapper's Cagers Combine For Strong Squad

After more than three months of bickering, arguing and fighting Peterborough's two intermediate "B" basketball teams have come to terms; they're amalgamating.

Coach Gord McIntyre, mentor of the undefeated Marines of the Eastern Ontario basketball league, announced today that Clapper's Bruins, last year's intermediate "A" entry and Marines have joined forces.

The new team will be known still as the Marines and will remain in the Eastern Ontario League as an intermediate "B" team for this season.

Early fall cage plans called for three intermediate "B" teams in Peterborough, the Marines in the Eastern Ontario, Clapper's Bruins and the Y-Knots in the lakeshore league. But so far only Marines have been playing basketball.

But No Action

Clappers and the Y-Knots have been waiting since November for the lakeshore league to form, but still no action has been taken along the lakeshore cities.

Clapper's, who were considered strong in the "A" company last year and were defeated only by the strong Hamilton Mormon aggregation, decided a week ago to join with Marines. This decision later was thrown out.

Further action this week between Marines and Clapper's prompted the teams to reconsider.

The amalgamation gives Peterborough one of the strongest intermediate cage teams in the province. The Marines, undefeated in the Eastern Ontario League this year, went to the semi-finals last year but lost out to Toronto. Clapper's, the "A" team, were powerful, losing to Hamilton by only a few points.

Gord Is Coach

Coach Gord McIntyre will continue as head coach of the Marines, assisted by veteran cager, Joe Stewart.

Coach McIntyre explained that the team will be working on the 10-man a game basis, using the two-platoon system which is similar to football.

Marines and Clapper's differ in style of play as much as black and white. The Marines are noted for the fast-break up the floor, hustling the opposition throughout, while the Bruins use the slow, stalling defensive method. Both will be used by the combines.

The new team will be using Hugh Dibben and Joe Stewart as centres, Ab Stewart, Ted Payne, Warren Smith and Jim Thorburn as right forwards, Bill Dadson, Neil Thompson and Al Northcott as left forwards, guards, Harold Grafstein, Doug McPherson, Bill Trimm, Gord Burns, Chum Gillespie. Rocky Kidd will be used when available.

The agreement calls for an all-star team to be selected for the play-offs.

The team will face its first test of strength Tuesday night when Marines play the Belleville Glen Roys in Belleville. So far the Glen Roys have provided the only opposition in the Eastern Ontario League for the Marines.

The Schedule

The remainder of the Eastern Ontario League schedule is:

January 7—Trenton RCAF vs. Picton Athletics.

Bruins, Chihawks Face Tough Weekend Tilts

By The Canadian Press.

Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks, within four points of each other and three points out of the running for the National Hockey League's playoff berths, face some tough opposition during the weekend. Both clubs run headlong into a pair of games.

The faltering Bruins who slipped into fifth place during the last week, move into Montreal tonight for a tussle with Dick Irvin's fast-climbing second-place Canadiens. The last-place Black Hawks will be squaring off against Toronto at the same time.

Tomorrow the Chicagoans journey to New York for a game with the surging Rangers, currently holding down fourth place in the six-team circuit, while Boston rolls into Detroit and faces the Red Wings, 10 points out in front of the NHL field.

At Toronto tonight, the Hawks will ice a team hard hit by injuries while the Leafs will pick and choose among their solid reserves in an effort to hit a winning combination after some disturbing reverses in the last few engagements.

Rudy Migay will be dressed and playing centre, perhaps in Cal Gardner's place, while Hugh Bolton may take Bill Juzda's spot along the blue line.

Chicago fans will be watching Bill Mosienko, the Hawks' veteran centre man who needs only two more goals to reach the select 200-goal circle.

Cougars Break Streak By Beating Edmonton

By The Canadian Press.

Victoria Cougars Friday night broke a winless streak of six home games by defeating Edmonton Flyers 5-3 in a rousing Pacific Coast League hockey game. In the only other league engagement Tacoma Rockets posted a 7-5 win over Vancouver Canucks in the Canadian city.

The Cougars' victory moved them into a fifth-place tie with Flyers. They are both four points behind Tacoma.

Walt Atanas led the Cougars with two goals while playing-coach Roger Leger, Bob Ballance and Reg Abbott added singles. Frank Kubasek, Nels Podolsky and Bill Pettinger counted for the Flyers.

Wingy Johnson with two goals was the top Tacoma marksman. The other goal scorers were Wayne Brown, Mark Marquess, Barton Bradley, Warren Godfrey, and Moe Young. Vancouver's tallies were divided between Ernie Dougherty, Harry Graves, Jim Unger, Hal Tarala and Ray Manson.

Ski Conditions Good, Huntsville Said Tops

TORONTO, Jan. 5 (CP).—Ontario's ski slopes are in generally good condition today with six to 16 inches of snow reported in most areas.

The last week's mild weather has crusted many districts, but last night's snow which was general throughout the province, added inches where they were needed. In most areas, reports vary from "good" to "excellent."

Huntsville boasts the best hills in the province with 10 inches on the tow hill and 16 in the bush. Generally good conditions prevail at Cobourg, Dagmar, Peterborough and Summit while Sundridge, Bolton, Orangeville, Midland and Collingwood are the same.

Owner Rejects $100,000 For Race Horse

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5 (AP). — An offer of $100,000 for Woodchuk, four-year-old colt from the Palatine stable, has been rejected by the owner, Frank Rosen of Philadelphia.

John H. Clark of the Clark Horse Agency, representing an unidentified buyer, said he requested a 24-hour $100,000 purchase option on the colt but the offer was turned down.

J. H. (Slim) Pierce, Palatine trainer, said Rosen felt that if someone is willing to offer that kind of money, Woodchuk is worth that much to him.

"He's the kind of horse that every owner and trainer dreams about and we want to see what we can do with him."

Woodchuk has never won a stake or raced more than six furlongs, but has been a sensation with three victories in the current Tropical Park meeting. He raced the six furlongs twice in 1:10 and in his third win equaled the track record of 1:09 2-5.

He is being readied for the $10,000 inaugural on Hialeah's added Widener Handicap at Hialeah.

Christians Have Advantage Over Those Early Disciples

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

For some time now I shall be writing about the life of Jesus, as He lived it among His early disciples and friends.

Picture the groups and multitudes as they gathered to hear Him. Envision Jesus talking to His disciples as they wandered by flower-strewn byways, or retired to the mountainside.

And through the grace of God, and the pen of St. Matthew, join them on the hillside where Jesus delivers His Sermon on the Mount and describes the Kingdom of God.

A hymn-writer of a generation ago once wrote:

"I think when I read that sweet story of old,
When Jesus was here among men,
How He called little children like lambs to His fold,
I should like to have been with Him then."

It was a pious and a rather beautiful wish, but in a deeper and more real sense than we often realize we can live with Jesus and His friends. And walking with Jesus through the pages of the Gospels, we can enjoy some advantage over those early disciples.

Why do I suggest such a strange thing as that we should have any advantage over them?

Because we may learn from what they learned—but learned late, and not until their Master was about to die, or after His resurrection.

Almost to the very last the chosen Twelve were quarrelling about place and preferment. The mother of Zebede's children, James and John, was asking for special place and honor for her sons.

Even at the Last Supper in the Upper Room Jesus had still to teach them the lesson of humility and service by washing their feet.

It seems remarkable that those, chosen by Jesus, men of initiative, intelligence, and daring, should so seriously have failed to grasp His teaching and understand His mission and purpose.

Their hearts and wills were in the right place, but their minds were blinded by the intensity of their ambition and by their vision of glory in an earthly kingdom. They did not understand Him when He said, "My kingdom is not of this world."

But in the aftermath they understood, as the Comforter brought to their remembrance (John 14:26) all that Jesus, was, and said, and did. Under that spiritual guidance and remembrance they became what Jesus had intended.

It was that same John, whose mother had asked preferment for him and who had thereby aroused the indignation of his brethren, who was to express in glowing words the supreme evidence of the effectiveness and power of the Gospel: "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren."

We have the advantage of knowing the Master as John first knew Him, but also as John came to know Him with the fullness of love and insight.

Death Barrier

CAPE TOWN—(CP)—A stout iron barrier will be erected along the breakwater of the fishing village of Hout Bay to stop people driving their cars into deep water. Two motorists committed suicide in this fashion in recent months.

Four Services Prayer Week

"Week of prayer" services in Peterborough start Tuesday night in George St. United Church. Theme of the four services—one each day from Tuesday to Friday—is prayer and forgiveness.

The opening service will be Tuesday night in George St. United. A double service will be held Wednesday night in Mark St. United church and St. George's Anglican. Thursday's service will be in All Saint's Anglican and the concluding service Friday night will be in Trinity United.

Services during the week of prayer were planned by the Peterborough Ministerial Association, and the subjects each night will deal with some of the practical problems people have with prayer.

Their purpose is to pray for the needs of the world—at the moment most pressing is peace—and to emphasize the world's need of prayer.

Following is the list of services—all to be held at 8 pm—the sermon subjects and the ministers who will speak: Tuesday at George St. United—Sr. Capt. D. Sharp, Salvation Army (The Spirit of Prayer), the Rev. Maurice Poole, All Saint's (How to Pray); Wednesday at Mark St.—the Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon, Trinity (Prayer and Healing), the Rev. C. Muxworthy, Church of the Nazarene (Prayer and Suffering); Wednesday at St. George's—the Rev. C. G. Boyd, St. Paul's Presbyterian (Prayer and its Source), the Rev. H. McCormack, St. James' (Prayer and its Objectives); Thursday at All Saints'—the Rev. Henry Cotton, St. Andrew's (Prayer and Healing), the Rev. H. Kaye, St. Andrew's Lakefield (Prayer and Suffering); Friday at Trinity—the Rev. H. J. Scuse, St. George's (Lord Forgive Us), the Rev. B. S. Morwood, Mark St. (Lord Help Us to Forgive).

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CIV. No. 4 — SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1952

MAIN STREET TOPICS

ATTENDANCE

Total attendance at the story hours held in the boys' and girls' department of the public library during December was 475.

RECORD PURCHASE

A record number of books arrived at the public library during December. New books with a total value of $2,200 came in during the month William Graff, librarian reported today.

FRACTURED ARM

Floyd McLaughlin, 43, 372 Dobbin St., is in Civic hospital with a fractured right arm. Mr. McLaughlin received the injury when he fell while at work at the CGE Friday morning and was admitted to hospital at 10:40 am.

HIGH ATTENDANCE

An indication that attendance at city public schools continues to climb is shown by a comparison of the figures for 1950 and 1951. In Dec. 1950 there were 4,201 children enrolled in public schools; this December there were 4,586, an increase of 385.

WAS IGNORED

Lt.-Col. Ernest Elliott, civil defence director in Woodstock, has resigned. He sent the council a list of requirements for the organization, but received no acknowledgment. So, he assumed that the "matter is not important enough to be dealt with."

DAMAGED ROOMS OPEN

The southwest room of Parkhill Road School, damaged recently by fire, will open Monday. And the southeast room that bore the brunt of the damage should open a few days later, public school officials say. The two back rooms that were only slightly smoked up have been in use all along.

DISPENSED TICKETS

Police put a time check on cars lining both sides of Reid Street in the Knox Church area Friday. Tickets followed. Car folks had conveniently reduced the street to one lane, since the snow was banked on either side. Some of them clocked into position at 7:15 am, and left their cars in the same spot until 5:15 pm. It's a handy accommodation.

NAVAL VOLUNTEER

S. N. Fred Primeau's Christmas card bore the picture of his ship, the U.S.S. Neale on active service. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy three years ago. His father, the late Fred Primeau, was a graduate of the Examiner's composing room, and worked for years with several Detroit papers. "God bless you all" the young sailor wrote his uncle. "Money couldn't buy that kind of a gift," said Arthur Primeau of Ashburnham.

SERVICE FOR PUBLIC

Maintaining service for the public is all very well; say bus men, but if the public does not use it? The buses drew few fares on Christmas and Boxing Days. One driver saw four tickets in four hours; and he was drawing double pay for holiday time. Slim traffic on two days set up a loss that took most of the rest of the week to make it up.

ROCKS CRACK to the accompaniment of the shouts of high school age youths these days as curling is gaining popularity in the collegiate and St. Peter's High School. In the upper left photo, Dave Fanning, a youthful veteran of the game, just releasing a stone. On the right Ted Sanders, skip, who was a finalist in a recent Lindsay bonspiel, signals for a stone. The measuring stick had to be brought out to settle this argument in the lower photo led by skip Bob Hutchinson (with his back to the camera). The boys were playing a game in their regular afternoon schedule.

Breaks Fast

Hugh Waddell will start off his year as mayor at a dizzy pace Monday. At 11 am he and new members of the city council will be installed in an official ceremony. And the new mayor is scheduled to address the council with some predictions for 1952. Little more than an hour later he is due to speak to the Ro[illegible]lub at its weekly luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel.

Boy 6, Slides Off Snowbank Into Path Of Car

A six-year-old boy was slightly injured Friday afternoon when he slid off a snowbank into the path of a car.

The boy, Brian Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Anderson, 198 Braidwood Ave., received a one-inch gash on the righ knee cap that needed four stitches to close.

David T. Leether, 638 Hawley St., told Police Constable Wilfred Perry that he was driving east on Braidwood Ave. about 5:10 pm when young Anderson slid off a snowbank on the south side of the street. He landed directly in front of Mr. Leether's car.

Though Mr. Leether applied his brakes and swerved to the right he was unable to avoid the boy, largely because of the icy surface of the road.

Police took the injured boy to the Clinic where he was treated by Dr. J. T. Stewart. Besides the gash on his right knee cap he was shaken up and bruised.

Three-Inch Fall Freshens Snow

Peterborough's citizens were glad—or were they?—to wake up this morning and find a fresh new three-inch layer of snow on top of the 33¼ that fell last year.

Skiers at least were happy. It looked like a good weekend for the sport. The snow started coming down about 11:30 in thick swirling gusts that promised a lot more than actually fell.

Half an inch of the white stuff fell Jan. 3. Together with what fell last night, it blanketed any hopes people had of the snow disappearing. It still looks like a long hard winter.

Survivor Fine

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Jan. 5 (AP) — Cecil Sanders, lone survivor of the 120 miners trapped in the New Orient Mine explosion, today was in "just fine" condition at home. Sanders, who was released from a hospital Wednesday, was rescued from the mine 58 hours after the Dec. 21 blast, in which 119 miners were killed.

Bound For Arabia

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP) — Wendell Phillips, 30-year-old California explorer, left Friday for Southern Arabia to direct excavations in Areeb, believed to have been the capital city during the reign of the Queen of Sheba.

NOT MUCH FROST

Frost is shallow in the ground, acording to indications this week where excavations for a cellar was in progress.

Unemployed Number 1,598 In Area

Workers Seeking Jobs Steadily Increase Since Summer Low

Mounting unemployment during the fall rose to another new high in December with 1,598 men and women of the city and district drawing unemployment insurance, figures released by the local National Employment Office showed today.

During December unemployed from the district added to the unemployed from the city's factories and stores increased the number on claim from November's 1167 to the 1598-mark. This was the largest monthly increase since the unemployment insurance claims hit a record low in July.

The unemployed in Peterborough and district were 50 per cent. more in December than in December, 1950, when only 1059 were recorded.

More Expected

Unemployment insurance totals in January are expected to increase by at least another 300 people. These men and women are now unemployed and ineligible to draw the insurance but under special legislation passed two years ago are eligible to receive supplementary benefits between the period from January 1 to April 1.

William Mellis, manager, pointed out that the postal claims in December were almost as many as the city people drawing money. This means that conditions in Peterborough county and other areas within the Peterborough office boundaries are poorer than last year when only one-quarter of the claims were sent by mail.

At the end of December 1092 men, 582 from the city, were collecting unemployment insurance as compared with 862 men last year of which 629 were unemployed city men.

Double Year Ago

The number of men from the district drawing funds were more than double last year's count. Mr. Mellis said that 510 men were receiving their unemployment cheques through the mail in December while only 233 district men received payment by the post.

In comparison with the increase in the unemployment the increase in the short time workers in December as compared with last year was small. Only 71 city men and 11 district men were recorded as working a short week while 64 city men and 21 district men were on that type of claim in December, 1950.

Unemployed women accounted largely for the increase in unemployed over last year when in December 506 women were drawing unemployment insurance. Last year only 196 women were obtaining money through the insurance scheme.

The increase in women's unemployment was noticed both in the city and district unemployed. City women on claim numbered 370 as compared with 160 last year while 136 district women were drawing money as compared with only 36 in December, 1950.

Short work week unemployment for women also increased in December over 1950. From the city 83 women were working a short week and from the district 19. Last year only 32 city women were working a forced short-hour week.

Dairy Employees Apply For Certification

The Ontario Labor Relations Board on Wednesday will hear an application by employees of Campbell's Dairy Products Ltd. to become a certified local of—strangely enough—the Textile Workers' Union of America.

This relationship between milk and textiles is not so anomalous when explained by Albert Johnston, TWUA director for the Trent Valley district.

"We have an office right here in Peterborough," explained Mr. Johnston, "and we feel we can service the union better than outside groups that would normally have the jurisdiction."

There are said to be 29 employees eligible and the union claims to have signed 22 of them.

Employees of Silverwoods Dairy are member of Local 251, Peterborough General Workers Union (CCL).

The Campbells' employees applied for certification in the TWUA on Dec. 1.

Disagreement Over School Spark In Douro Election

An election fight has developed between the new and the older residents of Douro township over a school and will be settled Monday by ballots. Two men from the western section of Douro along the Warsaw road, are seeking seats on the Douro board of education of the school area known as No. 2, Douro and Otonabee. Three from the district are seeking seats on the township council. There is an election for school trustees in only one of the school areas. Seats in the other area were not contested.

Asking for election as school trustees are Dr. Eldon Ray, a collegiate teacher, and Leonard Welch, a manager. In a pamphlet sent through the mails, these two men charge "The school board has talked about a new school—and provided a temporary classroom."

Charge Secrecy

They claim that "Silence and secrecy surround the proceedings of the board," and add "Apparently the building of a new school is shelved."

Clinton Hough, one of the trustees on the former council and a candidate to serve as a trustee again, replied in a paid advertisement, "Those making this statement (the charge of silence and secrecy) know this to be wholly untrue as they have been aware of public meetings held by the board and to some extent have taken advantage of these meetings by attending them."

For Mr. Hough the problem facing electors is "Do you want a big new central school, at high cost, and to scrap your present accommodation as recommended by one of my opponents, or do you prefer what my associates and I recommend, that we retain our present accommodation and increase it progressively as required at a cost which is within the means of a small community of this description?"

The problem facing Douro ratepayers is a result of Peterborough's steady growth along roads and highways leading out of the city since the end of the war.

The Warsaw road has many new houses along its edges, including two Veterans' Land Act settlements. Most of the families in these houses are young families with small children that are at the early school age or will be entering school in the next few years.

Of the six men seeking seats on the township council three are from these new families who base their plea to the electors on the statement that "there should be members of the township council from different areas" as they say in their pamphlet sent to homes through the mail.

These men are Dave Friesen, clerk; Kenn Kidd, accountant; and Jack Ryan, civil servant.

They are opposing three former councillors: Fergus Moher, Cletus Sullivan and Bruce Dunford. Two former school trustees of the area being contested are Clinton Hough and Charles Watkins.

High School Boys Take Up Broom and Stone; Organize Curling Club

By DON GRANT

The Roaring Game has gone collegiate. Collegiate and St. Peter's High School boys have discovered that curling really isn't the old mans' game they thought it was. They tried it and they liked it. With a little encouragement, the sport is catching on and fast gaining popularity.

Never before in Peterborough curling history has there been such an elaborate schoolboy organization as planned and operated this season by the Peterborough Curling club.

Future Curlers

Similar to the minor leagues in hockey, lacrosse and baseball, the new curling venture is designed for the same purpose, to promote the sport and to provide future participants in the ice, stone and broom game.

Already the scheme has met with great success, even though there were a few doubtful moments when the project was first started. The first schedule was completed recently and before the second began Thursday, boys who had formed new rinks were asking to join.

The emphasis on schoolboy curling this year in Peterborough is the result of a Ontario Curling Association schoolboy curling committee meeting last year in Guelph. Then the province was divided into sections similar to the senior men's program.

Peterborough was placed in division five with Bobcaygeon, Campbellford, Dunsford, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Haliburton, Lakefield, Little Britain, Oakwood and Sutton. Some of these curling clubs, especially Lindsay, have had organized schoolboy rinks for several years.

Entered Bonspiel

During the Christmas holidays each division in Ontario declared a winner to enter the provincial bonspiel in Kingston, the winner there to enter the Dominion bonspiel in New Brunswick later this year.

Considering the fact that few of the Peterborough boys had ever seen a curling rink before, the results in Lindsay were excellent. Four rinks, one from St. Peter's High School and three from PCVS, attended and each performed well.

In fact a Peterborough rink, skipped by Ted Sanders, a member of PCVS' COSSA champion football team, pushed a rink, skipped by Lindsay's Jack Mosley, to the limit before conceding. The Lindsay rink will represent division five in Kingston.

Few Rinks

Through the years of curling in Peterborough there has been the odd schoolboy rink in the club, but never a large organization.

Older club members recall single rinks of the past which saw Ralph Clark, the Widdis boys and others playing the roarin' game for Peterborough. They were outstanding in several Ontario bonspiels.

Interest among the high school boys died out until three years ago when John Green, now a dental student at the University of Toronto, skipped a rink from Peterborough in the Ontario 'spiel. His rink included Walter Pridham, brother Bob and Dave Fanning.

Green attempted to arouse interest among the boys at PCVS but after several meetings the visits to the curling rink, the venture fell through.

This season with the curling club offering a solid backing with support from the teachers, the PCVS and St. Peter's High boys were sold on the idea of curling after school. Early in December with 12 rinks (48 boys) the schoolboys first club schedule started.

12 Members

Curling club members, 12 in all, such as Thomas Ryan, Fred Stinson, Al Ingram and Fred Green, took an interest in the schoolboys and offered instruction. Interest mounted in both schools as the schedule continued and more boys became interested.

Bob Hutchinson skipped his rink into first place in the opening schedule with a total of 14 points, closely followed by Terry White with 11, Ken Butcher with 10 and Leo Sullivan with nine.

As soon as the schedule ended, other boys asked curling club members to allow them to enter the second round and it started Thursday with 11 rinks from PCVS and three from St. Peter's, a total of 56 boys.

Although many were making their first appearance on the ice lanes, they looked like veterans, indicating that curling is coming on.

Smith Building $393,375 On 100 Permits

During 1951 exactly 100 building permits were issued in Smith township. The estimated cost of this building was $393,375.

The largest number of permits was issued for the erection of cottages.

Here is a breakdown of the figures: dwellings 40, cottages 46, garages 2, service station 1, factory 1, fire hall 1, boathouses 2, additions to cottages 5, and additions to dwellings 3.

Local assessment rose by $138,391. Figures were $2,629,530 in 1951 and $2,727,921 in 1952.

Assessment on new buildings for 1952 is $61,800.

Residents of that area of Smith township who send their children to PCVS have not yet received the bill. The Peterborough board of education have not yet set a figure for the tuition of students from the Peterborough High School area in the academic and vocational schools.

Last complete figures are for 1950. Then it cost 96 cents a day for academic students and $1.58 for vocational, or $172 and $284 a year, respectively.

The jump in daily transportation costs from 1950 to 1951 is from $114.50 to 154.90. And the number of students has increased from 238 to 291.

The provincial government pays 65 per cent subsidy on tuition costs and the approved cost of transportation.

Edwardian Look To Shoes

LONDON—Finger-slim heels and toes with a tapered Edwardian look make shoe news this season. So do new shoe fabrics and novel combinations of old fabrics.

For evening there is white satin underlaid with nylon; there is Venetian-inspired black suede with open hand embroidery; and satin banded toes over nylon mesh. For day there are gabardines with glace trim; two tones of leather; and shoes in the new "street" velvet.

For British women these are the "frills" of the winter shoe wardrobe. The tan or dark brown or black leather shoe with its British welt and punching is still the classic perennial companion for walks in London's parks, round Scottish lakes, or over boulders of foothills to Welsh mountains.

These are the shoes, too, which overseas customers demand from British craftsmen.

Roseneath WI Plans Bazaar

ROSENEATH, Jan. 5—(ENS)—"Diabetes" was the subject of an address given by Dr. Charlotte Horner, of the staff of Northumberland and Durham Health Unit, at the January meeting of Roseneath Women's Institute. Dr. Horner spoke of the cause of diabetes, the discovery of insulin by Sir Frederick Banting in 1921, of the tendency of overweight persons to become diabetic; of diabetes being more common in women than men between the ages of 40-60. In conclusion, the speaker said a recent survey showed there were five times as many cases of diabetes as TB, and advised the necessity of following the diet recommended by physicians.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by the president, Mrs. Harold Taylor. Mrs. J. W. Pacey was hostess.

Included in the correspondence read by the secretary, Mrs. Bart Thackeray, was a letter from Miss Isa Lewis, Baptist Deaconess in England, thanking the society for the large box of Christmas cheer sent to her to be distributed to the needy parishioners in her parish. There were many letters of thanks from recipients of good cheer boxes.

A balance on hand of $183.37 was reported by the treasurer, Mrs. B. Thackeray.

Mrs. Alfred Pringle, good cheer convener, reported 26 boxes had been sent to the ill, the aged and the shutins in the community at Christmas time.

Plans were made for the annual bazaar to be held on February 2 in the township hall. Every member is to contribute candy and an article for the sewing table. The committee in charge of the posters are: Misses June Linton, Yvonne Adams, Donna Pringle, Nelda Brown, Donna McGrath and Betty Carew.

It was decided to make a donation of $10 to the Hospital for Sick Children.

A committee was appointed to choose a play for the Women's Institute to be presented in the spring. The following ladies were named: Mrs. Charlton Grigg, Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. Bart Thackeray and Mrs. Les Tucker.

The travelling apron was presented to Mrs. Bart Thackeray as the person who had placed the largest sum of money under the patches. It had been going the rounds for some months and was the gift of Mrs. Harold George.

The society will sponsor a cooking school in July.

The roll call, "My New Year's Resolution," was well responded to by the members and visitors present.

Mrs. Charles Sandercock, program convener, announced the following numbers: a reading, "My New Year's Resolution," by Mrs. Ernest Burrison; a piano solo by Mrs. Edgar Carew; a humorous reading, "How To Bake a Cake," by Mrs. Alfred Pringle. A quiz by Mrs. Fred Murphy was won by Mrs. R. C. White's group.

An address, "Budgeting Your Budget," by the convener, concluded the program period. The meeting closed with "The King." The hostess served lunch.

Jr. Homemakers Hold Meeting

BETHANY, Jan. 5 (ENS) — The Glad I Canner's Junior Homemakers' Club met at the home of Mrs. Clarence Page on Wednesday afternoon. The topic of the meeting, "General Rules for Meal Planning," was given by Mrs. Mansell Finney. Throughout the year the girls will learn how to make nutritive supper dishes, and proper table setting arrangements. Government-tested recipes were used during the afternoon, and pamphlets were distributed containing further recipes: "Foods in Season" were also discussed and assignments were given for their notebooks to be completed at home. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Mansell Finney.

HAPPY BEDTIME HOUR before retiring is a must in many families. Here the children have some fun with Dad who has been away all day and finally with a gradual letdown in the excitement they are put to bed. But as shown above it is difficult for two same children in adjacent cribs to settle down to sleep.

FOR PARENTS ONLY

Plan Happy Bedtime Hour For Children Every Day

By NANCY CLEAVER

The end of a small child's day should be a happy time. Most parents are convinced of this, but a great many mothers and fathers will honestly confess that this ideal is often not easy to accomplish. In the evening, parents are often fatigued after a busy and sometimes worrying day. Children who have played hard outdoors are tired too, although they will not admit it! Tired parents and weary children are apt to conflict and bedtime becomes a scene of struggle instead of a happy time.

A healthy baby spends more hours asleep than awake, but as a child grows older he has more and more hours awake. There is no one rule which fits all children, but medical authorities agree that a table like the following forms a guide to the parent in judging whether or not his child is getting enough sleep.

One to two years—from fourteen to seventeen hours.

Two to three years—from thirteen to sixteen hours.

Three to four years — from twelve to fifteen hours.

From five to six years—eleven hours at night.

These "sleep hours" include an afternoon nap for the small child and a daytime or a rest period for the school child of four or five. If a mother finds her child unwilling to go to bed in the evening, because he is not sleepy, she may have to to cut down on the length of his nap time.

The evening meal for children should be easily digested and served early enough so that there is no sense of rush and hurry at bedtime. A child should have some time for fun, if possible with father who has been away at work during the day. Strenuous over - exciting "rough house" should be avoided. It is hard for many children to relax and go to sleep after too much stimulation. There should be a gradual letdown of excitement and activity as their day draws to a close. It is also difficult for two small youngsters in adjacent cribs to settle down to sleep.

"I'll put you to bed!" should never be used as an angry threat, or as punishment for misbehavior. Rather bed time associations should be pleasant. In musical families a few minutes to listen to music or to sing is a real treat which children love. Bedtime is picture-book and reading aloud time in countless homes and this is an excellent practice.

During the necessary routine of undressing, and going to the toilet, washing or having a warm bath and getting into night clothes, a child should not be admonished constantly to "hurry-up!" At the same time there should be a definite place on the clock, whether it be seven or seven-thirty or eight for an older child, which is regarded as "bed-time." This can be flexible on special occasions, but a child must understand that as a rule there is a point when his prayers are said, he is tucked in, the light is turned out, and he is left alone. Slumber time has arrived!

Mothers often discover that a child will confide anxieties or unhappiness just before he goes to sleep. A child is helped by being able to tell his troubles to a friendly grown-up. A comfortable mattress, a certain amount of quiet, a proper temperature, a darkened room, light but sufficient covers, are all a help to sound sleep. In spite of careful planning, occasionally a child will wake during the night or find it difficult to get to sleep.

With experience, parents usually discover that their attitude has to be a mixture of patience and firmness. Going to sleep is not a matter of turning off the light—A happy end to a child's day depends on many factors, parents who are not too tired, healthy children who are accustomed to a schedule, satisfactory physical conditions and pleasant bed-time associations.

Happy bedtime doesn't just "happen" but it is a very important goal in child training. There is no moment in the whole day quite so rewarding as the very end of their day when mother and father look at their sleeping child, sound asleep in the perfectly relaxed way a little child sleeps. In their hearts they echo a prayer for the safety of their loved ones.

Says Peace Is Achievable If Pen Can Fend Off Sword

Mayor Moore, whose voice is familiar to Peterborough listeners to CBC, Toronto, was the speaker at the Women's Art Association studio meeting Friday afternoon. His subject was "Can International Communications bring International Understanding?"

The answer was in his closing sentences: "Each of us can help break down the barriers; we can help and force the government to break down the barriers." Because of today's mass method of communications "not a single small voice is crying in the wilderness." Mr. Moore told the ladies it is a fact that more people have viewed a current television show than ever were inside theatres to see a popular play.

His address was opened with an oft-heard quotation "The pen is mightier than the sword." Mr. Moore included the first part of the quotation usually omitted 'Beneath the rule of men entirely great . . . .'

"Small achievements will add up to peace if in the meantime we can fend off war—if we honestly lay aside the sword and give way to the pen," he said.

"While this race between knowledge and understanding against weapons is going on how can we reach an understanding?" he asked. "And, is international understanding a mirage anyway?" Development of international understanding must be done on a firm basis he pointed out. Travel was the first means he listed, and probably the best since there are evident and widely known faults with the other media — newspapers, magazines, radio, documentary film, books, etc.

Newspapers, Mr. Moore said, usually misrepresent what goes on, and he gave as example a nation-wide newspaper report of a brief verbal interchange during a UN meeting which he noted when he was producing UN radio broadcasts last summer. He also pointed out that newspapers are not widely read in translated versions. Precisely the same situation applies to radio and films, and the public suspects and usually gets propaganda through these. Commercial radio advertising has gotten no response from abroad, he said. Governments exporting material send only that complimentary to the country. And it can easily be seen here that books imported are only those that strike at changes in the country written about, and Soviet imports are similarly selected. "Audiences and readers like to have their own prejudices confirmed," he noted. "They also like to maintain the myths of the various countries as these are good talking points."

"Never was there a better time to know and revel in the international differences and similarities" he said. "Our greatest stumbling block has been that we know only the facts we like."

Mr. Moore was introduced by his friend of Toronto University days, Mr. William Graff, and he was thanked by Mrs. F. E. Hooper. The meeting was presided over by vice-president Mrs. Harold R. Scott.

Fete Couple

ROSENEATH, Jan. 5 (ENS)—Upwards of 300 persons attended the presentation and dance for Mr. and Mrs. Keith Crossen, nee Jean Phillips, in the LOL hall, Roseneath, on Wednesday evening. An address was read by Hilton Down, and Arthur Covert made the presentation of a large plate glass mirror from the chari-vari gang and a purse of money from the gathering. Appropriate replies were made by the bride and groom.

Friends and relatives were present from Baltimore, Cobourg, Hastings, Centreton, Burnley, Harwood, Fenella, Gore's Landing and Roseneath.

Narrow Trousers Will Have To Go Over Bare Feet

LONDON, Jan. 5—(Reuters)—The fashionable English gentleman of 1952 will no longer be able to put on his trousers while wearing his shoes.

Tailor and Cutter, the English trade journal in close touch with the leading tailors of London, said today the well-dressed male will wear trousers so narrow he will have to get into them barefoot and with his toes pointed downward.

The journal printed pictures of the new trousers fashioned by leading tailors. One pair had unusually wide cuffs to offset their narrowness.

A jacket to suit the trousers was shown with a long, flared skirt, vented up the back as far as the waist.

Warsaw WMS Plans Party

WARSAW, Jan. 5 (ENS). — The January meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the United church on Thursday afternoon with 12 members present. Mrs. George Dyson, president, presided and opened with call to worship, a hymn and a prayer by the president. Mrs. Harold Ray read the scripture lesson and a hymn closed the worship service. The roll call was answered by a verse of scripture.

It was decided to start an expense fund with Mrs. Dyson as treasurer. Splendid readings on Christian Stewardship and temperance were given by Mrs. Russell and Miss Clara McCracken.

It was decided to make a quilt for the bale and each one is asked to make two blocks 20 inches square. Mrs. George Taylor gave the study book on French protestants of Quebec with Mrs. Harold Payne telling the story of Rev. J. E. Boucher, principal of Pointe aux Trembles school. Mrs. Dyson favored with a solo. Mrs. Dyson consented to be the delegate to the Presbyterial.

Plans were made to hold a crokinole party on January 17. The ladies were asked to bring sandwiches or cookies.

Mr. Dyson installed the officers for 1952. Lunch was served by Miss Clara McCracken, Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Dyson.

Dance At Point On New Year's Eve

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 5—(ENS)—St. Aidan's hall was gaily decorated with green and red banners and multi-colored balloons for the New Year's eve dance sponsored by the athletic club. Dancing got under way early with Mr. J. Jones at the piano, Mr. T. Sullivan playing the violin, and Mr. H. Rath beating out the rhythm on the drums.

Round and square dances were both popular, interspersed with novelty dances. Mr. W. Abbott was caller-off for the "squares", and general master of ceremonies for the evening. Winners of the lucky spot dance were Mr. Fred Abbott and Miss Marilyn Davis, and Mrs. Don. Robinson was winner of the door prize.

As the hands of the clock neared midnight, horns and noise-makers were distributed to the dancing couples, and the rafters rang as the New Year was heralded in with tooting, friendly greetings and the strains of "Auld Lang Syne".

Throughout the evening tickets were sold on an electric teapot, and the winning ticket was held by Mr. Ken Remnant of Lakefield.

Unusual Sleeves In Fashion News

LOS ANGELES—Although this fashion centre still believes in the sleeveless look, there was considerable pre-occupation with unusual sleeves in coats, as well as in dresses and blouses. There were lantern, bell, and circular flaring sleeves in the last fashion parades here.

Colarless necklines made news too, in both coat and suit collections. The barrel cardigan, boxy but with a tapered line, was popular in shorter coats.

Woman Drives 20,000 Miles In Many Lands

By J. C. GRAHAM

WELLINGTON, NZ — (CP) — Mrs. Eunice Rexinger of Toronto and two companions arrived here recently after motoring 20,000 miles from London on a trip that took them through 21 countries.

"In spite of being women drivers we didn't kill a chicken or get a parking ticket on the whole trip," Mrs. Rexinger said.

Mrs. Rexinger, a social worker specializing in child welfare with the International Refugee Organization in Europe, joined up with Miss Josephine Whitehorn, of New Zealand, and Miss Joan Kingsbury, of England, for the trip. They travelled through Europe, the Middle East, India, to Colombo. They shipped their car from there to Singapore and thence to Fremantle, and drove across Australia.

They thought the desert road across Australia not as bad as expected. Less comfortable was the 1,100 miles through Afghanistan at an average speed of 15 miles an hour. There were 200 rivers to cross, many by fords. They travelled at night to avoid the scorching heat and crossed bridges —when there were bridges—with caution. Sometimes the middle span would be missing. When there was no bridge they took it in turns to wade rivers finding a ford.

Mrs. Rexinger plans to seek the most interesting route home to Canada after a stay in New Zealand. After that she will try for a social welfare job in Korea.

Photos Preserve Ontario History

TORONTO, Jan. 5 — (CP) — Historical research in photography is a project with the Women's Institutes and a hobby with its Ontario director, Anna P. Lewis. With the combined effort of Institute members, community history in scrapbook form is being compiled.

Miss Lewis, an inveterate photographer, is always seeking anything of historical interest to snap while travelling from county to county on institute business. As an entertainment feature at her meetings, she occasionally shows her own interesting collection of pictures.

"Ontario is full of these reminders of the horse and buggy days, but no one thinks much about them—we should do something about preserving them while there is yet time," she says. Miss Lewis photographs them.

One of her views of North Yonge Street includes a Quaker meeting house at Newmarket, built in 1809 by the Pennsylvania Quakers who settled there in 1801. At Holland Landing she photographed an old anchor which was drawn by horse and sleigh all the way from Kingston in 1812 for a Man-Of-War which was never built.

First Oil Well

She also has pictures of Canada's first oil well, the first on the North American continent, drilled not far from Sarnia in 1858. The first salt well was opened in 1866 near Goderich. She has a picture of it.

Other shots show a cairn near Bath, a reminder of the days when it was a boom town where the steamship Frontenac was launched; the old coach road from Bath to Adolphustown, built in 1798 under government contract by Isa Danforth; St. Andrew's Catholic Church near Cornwall, built in 1784, whose graveyard contains the remains of John Sandfuld MacDonald, Ontario's first Premier and the explorer Simon Fraser.

Another picture is a shot of Ottawa's first home, a great stone house built by Colonel By, founder of the capital city and builder of the Rideau Canal. One shot is even of a tree, commemorating the discovery of the McIntosh apple in Dundas county.

Keene Couple Married In Peterborough In 1902

KEENE, Jan. 5 — (Staff) — Celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary tonight are Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Farthing, of Keene. They were wed in Peterborough on January 7, 1902.

Mr. Farthing, a short, slight man, has worked in Lindsay and Peterborough since he came to Canada from London when he was 12 years old. During the First World War, he was 41 months in the army, slightly less than half of them spent overseas.

Mrs. Farthing, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Winters, of Lakehurst, has spent her life in the county. She met her husband in Lakehurst where he was working with the late Alex Thompson.

For 11 years, Mr. Farthing worked in Horne Bros. woollen mill in Lindsay, moving from there to Peterborough, where he spent 11 years working nights in the Auburn Woollen Mill. When the strike closed the Auburn in 1938, Mr. Farthing left there to work in A. Wander Ltd.

After three years in the Ovaltine plant, Mr. Farthing worked with the Peterborough Lumber Co. for seven years, retiring last August, when they moved to Keene.

Mr. and Mrs. Farthing were married in a house on College St. by Elder Washington Morris of a Toronto church. Groomsman was George Warren, who died since, and bridesmaid was Mrs. Farthing's sister, Mrs. John Davis, who lives in Ennismore.

Mr. Farthing is 74; his wife will be 65 on April 27.

They have nine children, eight of whom live in Peterborough, The ninth, Mrs. George Stoneburg, lives with them in Keene.

The president, Mrs. Ernie Waldon, presided which opened with the institute ode and the Lord's Prayer. Reports were given by the secretary, Mrs. Fred Kemp and the treasurer, Mrs. Howard Bullock.

It was decided to sell tickets on a quilt which was made by members and to have the draw made at a bingo to be held the latter part of January.

The possible need for help for some families of the village was discussed and it was decided to work in co-operation with the Lakefield Branch of the Red Cross. A gift will also be sent to a former member who is now in hospital.

Members of the institute will make a visit to the House of Refuge in the near future, and present a program for the inmates.

Shelve Romantic Problems When Interfere With School

DEAR MISS DIX: Though I am only 15, I am very much in love with a boy with whom I went steady for nine months. We broke up about five weeks ago, and since nothing has gone right for me. I've failed five subjects on my report; I don't know what to do. I have been told by a mutual friend that Ronnie has been drinking a lot since we disagreed. Other boys don't interest me at all. What can I do to get Ronnie back? I know I'll never forget him.

Dorothy Dix

BETTY L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your first step, Betty, even though you may think it's impossible, is to buckle down to work and improve those school marks. If, at 15, you consider yourself old enough to be in love and to go steady, you are old enough to have learned some of the essentials of self-discipline. You should have sufficient control over your mental and emotional processes to relegate Ronnie to the background during school hours and concentrate on the lessons being taught. By devoting more thought and time to the chief aim of your present—which is acquiring an education—you will not only accomplish the purpose of your schooling, but you will also help yourself to forget Ronnie if that becomes necessary.

You Can Mend Rift

I doubt, however, if it will become necessary. You don't mention the cause of your disagreement, but since you were obviously very good friends, the rift will probably be mended. Were you at fault? If so, don't be afraid to admit your error and apologize. If you feel that Ronnie should seek the peace, be ready to accept the truce when he offers it.

Don't be too obviously heartbroken. It's not the way to win your sweetheart back, and it is definitely a shortcut to driving all your other friends away. Teen-time is the age for fun and laughter—not tears and brooding. And remember, Betty! Improve those marks!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two couples in our early fifties living together due to the high cost of living. We thought this a good idea but have run into a serious upset due to our friends' son. He was going to college when we agreed to pay one-half of all expenses. He was supposed to go from college to a position in another city. Instead he came home here and pays not one cent toward his keep. We have discussed this with his parents with no result but hard feelings. His folks say since he only occupies a bed in our living room and doesn't have a room of his own he need not contribute to the household We feel he has everything a home can offer, with all he can eat including lunches when he does work. Am I wrong in thinking his parents should pay more than half the expenses?

ETHEL

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are most certainly right in your assumption that your friends should shoulder the expenses of their son. The financial arrangement should be 60-40 rather than 50-50. After all, in today's market, food is the big item, and you should not be expected to buy half the food for the boy. You probably will have to overcome some harsh feelings to win your point on this question, but you are in the right so stick to your guns.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am five feet five inches tall, and my fiance is the same height. I never wear heels and wonder if I can get away with wearing low shoes for dress. I suppose I shouldn't let a small thing like this alter my affections, but my friends constantly remark about my fiance's short stature and it upsets me.

V. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you are so easily upset; better think twice before marrying this young man. After all, he won't get any taller.

In your efforts to avoid seeming taller, you are greatly aided by today's styles. Low-heeled or heelless shoes are worn on practically all occasions so there is no need to feel self-conscious over your footwear.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: About 2 or 3 years ago I found in your column a most delicious recipe for turkey stuffing. It contained celery and onions, which were first cooked in broth. The stuffing was moist and very tasty. As my annual luncheon is not too far away I looked for the clipping but in vain. I also mislaid a recipe for macaroons which appeared some weeks ago. They were entirely different using 1 eg gbeaten. Your Meltaway Dreams are very much in favour in my lunchroom. Helene J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

Moist Turkey Stuffing

In broth (meat, chicken or turkey) or boiling water simmer until barely tender, 1 cup finely chopped onion and 3 cups very finely chopped celery. About 5 minutes before they are tender add ½ cup butter or margarine or chicken fat or best quality shortening. For a 12-lb. turkey add 12 cups fine breadcrumbs, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, ½ to 1 tablespoon mixed sage and thyme or poultry seasoning OR omit herbs and add 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind and ¼ cup finely chopped parsley. If desired 1 egg may be beaten until very light then folded in at last.

Macaroons (1 egg)

Beat 1 large egg until so light it is nearly white. Gradually heat in 2/3 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon water. Sift together 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon each salt and baking powder. Sift these over the egg-sugar mixture, and fold them in with spoon. Then fold in 2/3 cup each roasted, unsalted peanuts and firmly packed cocoanut. Drop 2 inches apart on ungreased wrapping paper on baking sheet. Bake until just delicately browned at 325 deg. Fahr. about 14 minutes. Remove from paper at once.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I have high blood pressure. I would appreciate it if you would prescribe me a diet with this in mind. I am overweight.—Mrs. Estella W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I know you have writen me in good faith hoping I could do what you ask, but I am not a doctor.

You should have this high blood pressure diet from him.

I do know that the protein content of most high blood pressure diets is low. I refer to meat, fish, fowl, eggs, cheese. Some doctors will eliminate all of these entirely where there is damage to the kidneys.

Most high blood pressure patients are overweight too, so I will send you my calorie chart and you can watch your calorie intake in your meals.

Salt is usually restricted and there should be no excess of condiments (spicy foods) of any kind.

Your best foods are fresh fruits and vegetables; second best cooked fruit and vegetables.

Avoid all stimulating foods that would stimulate the nervous system.

Your doctor will tell you you can have no alcoholic beverages. Tea and coffee may be cut out or cut to a very limited quantity.

The best overall statement I can make as a dietitian is to say take nothing in excess. Watch the reducing diets I put in the column from time to time, and learn by heart the calorie content of all the foods you normally eat.

What's Right?

You are a house guest in a home where the hostess does all her own work.

WRONG: Tell her you would offer to help with the work, but are afraid you would just be in the way.

RIGHT: Keep your own room straight; make your bed — and help with the general housework whenever you can.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Second-Hand Furs Bring Good Price

LONDON—(CP)—At a Christmas auction of top-grade second-hand furs many husbands solved the Christmas present problem—and the No. 1 sale was a natural Canadian mink that brought £920.

In the chanceliered auction rooms mannequins paraded in coats on which the bids rose £10 a call. Although most of the 13 minks went to trade buyers, housewives found bargains, too.

Mrs. Freda Robson, of Northwood, Middlesex, found herself the proud possessor of a black-dyed Candian squirrel model coat for £155. Part of the price reduction can be explained by the fact that second-hand furs sell in Britain without the crippling 100-per-cent tax effective on new coats.

In ranks beside the auctioneer's dais there were 600 coats, capes, ties, stoles and cloaks, the pick of 2,000 items submitted for sale. Low-priced sales included a muskrat at £30, a Russian ermine coatee that brought £75 and a leopard jacket and muff costing £50.

Although some women had already found bargains they sat through the sale of the minks—just looking. One housewife, Mrs. Ann Kennan, of Bexleyheath, Kent, gave a typical woman's answer to a question about the eternal fascination of mink.

"It would make you feel so good," she replied.

MOVIE COLUMN

Would Alter Method Of Awards

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5 (AP)—The academy awards are still two months off, but already people are complaining.

A chronic complainer is Ronald Reagan, who this week offered a new method of voting on the Oscars for actors. Since he is president of the Screen Actors Guild, his comments might carry some weight. Here are his views:

"I think it is a mistake to let all the academy members vote on the acting awards. I believe that only the actors should be allowed to vote, as in the other crafts. Non-actors, even those who are associated with the picture business, are easily taken in by flashy performances.

"I feel that was evidenced by last year's selections. Jose Ferrer got the Oscar for 'Cyrano De Bargerac'. I'm not saying this because Bill Holden is a friend of mine, but I feel his role in 'Sunset Boulevard' was a far more difficult job.

"Any actor knows that it is easy to do a flamboyant acting job when you have such props as a long nose, a cape, a plumed hat and a sword. But Bill Holden did a fine job with only a crew haircut and an ordinary suit. That takes real craftsmanship . . ."

Around Town

Jerry Lewis was elated when informed that he and Dean Martin placed No. 2 on the list of movie money-makers. When I told him the news on the "Jumping Jacks" set, he kissed the bald head of director Norman Taurog.

"It was bad enough directing you guys when you were No. 10," sighed Taurog. "Now that you're No. 2, you'll be impossible" . . .

Walt Disney offered a stellar attraction for the offspring of the Hollywood correspondents over the holidays. He showed "Snow White," which will be brought back for national release this spring, the first time it has been shown since 1944. The Disney classic is as delightful as ever and may well be the best of his feature films.

His new releases are a nature study of the elk on the Olympic Peninsula in Washington and a cartoon called "Lambert The Lion". Both are sheer delights.

Paris Fashions Just Plain Tame Stress Wearability

PARIS—(AP)—At last Paris designers seem to be worrying about wearability.

Judged by the just-finished mid-season collections, they can no longer be accused of going to foolish extremes. In fact, compared with an ordinary season, the new fashions are just plain tame. Fashion writers looking for sensational new trends got very little to go on. There were no really shocking novelties to report.

In general, the mid-season clothes carry on the trends of the autumn, perhaps best personified by Dior's simple, wearable dresses. His moderately flared skirts have gained influence, though some designers still prefer really voluminous ones. The high, prim and proper neckline has not been held.

Black Favored

The mid-season designs have let necklines dip deeply enough to please lovers of generous decolletage. Black remains the number-one color choice.

In a nutshell, here is what the different-houses showed:

LANVIN—Full skirts; huge bows for trimming, some half-looped in a "riding crop" effect; jeweled corselets for evening; "skylight" triangles cut out below the normal neckline; nearly everything in black.

FATH—Evening sheaths nearly as tight as mummy wrappings; prime jackets over saucy strapless tops; hip drapery; overall simplicity and far fewer details and trimmings than usual with Fath.

SCHAPARELLI—Simple day dresses, hardly trimmed at all; low rounded cocktail necklines; lots of black satin; brilliant accompanying hues; concertina hats and big droopy velvet berets.

MAGGY ROUFF—Gold brocade formal fabrics, and glittering jeweled hats and trimmings; many strapless and ankle-length dancing dresses; drapery gathered to the back; more and more ample skirts; corselet belts.

Carolina Birding Expedition Provides Thrill for Naturalist

Written for The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Back from a birding expedition in South Carolina Richard M. Saunders, professor of history at the University of Toronto and an ardent amateur naturalist, tells of his adventures in a new, beautifully illustrated book, "Carolina Quest."

He describes the mockingbirds singing in every garden; the thrill of finding in an almost impenetrable swamp, two specimens of a bird now on the verge of extinction, the ivory-billed woodpecker, and of the awe he felt at his first sight of North America's most georgeously colored bird, the painted bunting. But every day, in woodland, swamp or sea-fringing wilderness, he found birds of plain or gaudy feather he had never seen before, or heard bird songs that were new to him.

One chapter of the Canadian naturalist's book, published by University of Toronto Press, is devoted to the southern birds that come to Canada and become permanent residents, like the cardinal; to other exotic species like the hooded warbler, vermillion flycatcher, or that curious bird with an enormous tail, the scissor-tailed flycatcher, that literally "blew in" for their Canadian visits on the wings of a storm. It was Prof. Saunders who once found a mockingbird chirping in a Toronto garden.

He is an expert bird caller and his imitations, while leading hikes of amateur birders, often bring the species desired for close inspection. "Too realistic," he told the writer. "Making a warbler call in a suburban wood made a huge hawk think it was lunch time. The big fellow dived to within a few feet of my head, then flew away, disgusted."

9,000,000 Christmas Trees

Approximattely 9,000,000 Christmast trees are harvested in Canada every December. Of these, about 1,000,000 are for the adornment of Canadian homes, the rest are exported to the United States.

Although there is an annual outburst of indignation in the press and elsewhere about the "slaughter" of these young spruce, balsam and pine trees professional foresters for the most part look upon Christmas tree chopping as legitimate business and an item of importance in Canada's export trade.

They say that the young trees suitable for the purpose are low, heavily-branched specimens that would not be of value commercially. Balsams, they add should be cut in prefrence to spruce, not only because they are of less value as timber, but also because they retain their foliage longer in the house.

A rapidly increasing number of Christmas tree "orchards" are now flourishing in Canada, growing Scotch pine for the most part. They are grown by farmers and others as a crop, planted and regulated to give an annual harvest down the years.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Syrup at Home

This well known recipe is used by thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them an effective, dependable medicine for distressing winter coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for effect on throat irritations.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water until dissolved. It's no trouble at all and takes but a moment. No cooking needed. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.)

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle and fill up with your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough syrup, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

FOR EXTRA CONVENIENCE GET NEW, READY-TO-USE, PREPARED PINEX.

Belleville Hawks Tied With Petes

Belleville hockey clubs split even in Friday night's games. The senior "B" won in Kingston and the juniors lost at home.

Doran's Hawks climbed into first place in the senior "B" grouping with the Petes, with a convincing 7-3 victory over the Kingston SAC. Petes' opportunity to stay ahead by one game was ruined when the Eagles whipped them at the Civic arena 5-4.

The Belleville junior "B" entry took second place to the Lindsay juniors, who are currently the strongest junior "B" team in Southern Ontario. The Scugog boys picked up a shallow 4-3 win in the Bay of Quinte rink.

Keene Dumps Warsaw 6-3

The outstanding goal-tending by Jack Mackness gave Keene a resounding 6-3 victory over their arch-rivals from Warsaw, the Flyers, before an enthusiastic crowd in Keene Friday.

Thanks to Mackness' steady stops Keene built up a 4-0 score in the first period, kept building in the second for 6-2 lead and settled in the third for a final 6-3 decision. Keene's lead was never in doubt.

Keene's Close opened the scoring with help from Howie and Gilbert, followed at five-minute intervals with goals by Burns, twice in a row with Whalen, Locke and H. Burns assisting and a final first tally by Gilbert from Houle.

Paterson broke the goose-egg for Warsaw at the four-minute mark of the second, but Keene's Burns rapped in his third tally minut later. E. Payne again brought the Flyers up closer but again Keene stepped away when Kemot scored in the final two minutes.

After a fairly clean first period there was a burst of penalties in the second for roughing, tripping and cross-checking. Keene's Burns and Howie each collected two penalties in the period while Evans of Warsaw received two and Farr one.

Lineups—Warsaw, goal, Darling; defence, Eadie, G. Payne; centre, M. Paterson; wings, L. Lonsberry, Evans; alt., Clements, B. Batten, M. Batten, Watts, S. Lonsberry, E. Paype, Farr, McMillan.

Keene—goal, Mackness; defence, Shearer, Whalen; centre, B. Burns; wings, Locke, H. Burns; alt., Kempt, Gilbert, Howie, Close, Houle.

Sargent Brothers Win Calf Awards

Three Sargent brothers from Ida, Don, Carl and Jack, received awards for completing calf club projects at the annual meeting of the Peterborough District Jersey Breeders Association on Friday.

Herbert Armstrong of Toronto, fieldman of the Ontario Jersey Cattle Club made the presentations after the recipients were introduced by calf club coach Robert Bell of the Department of Agriculture.

The boys rewarded their donors by playing four musical selections at the request of president Harold Young. A friend and violinist, Jim Elliott, completed the musical quartet.

An address was given by Dr. Harold Worton, president of the Ontario Veterinary Association and of the City Health Department. He spoke to the 40 members on prevalent diseases in milk and their control and recommended more good management rather than drug cures continually applied after herds were infected.

Harvey Bamforth was elected president of the association following entertainment and speeches. The new vice-president will be Clarence Johnston; Roger Hambidge, secretary - treasurer; and Bruce Sargent, public relations. Past-president Harry Young was unanimously voted honorary president as well as being appointed director to the Millbrook Spring Fair.

Other directors elected were Haig Kelly (to the Ontario Jersey Club), and Clarence Johnston (to the Federal club). Executive directors appointed were William Bell, Donald Robinson, Howard Bent and Keith Larmer.

Humane Society's Duty Is To Live Animals

That the Humane Society is willing at all times to have its inspector answer calls outside the city in connection with cruelty to animals was the declaration made at the monthly meeting. However in the case of dead animals it is the business of the township officials to see that they are disposed of.

The inspector reported that he had picked up 18 dogs and 14 cats during the month and that he had given attention to 21 stray dogs and 12 stray cats. Homes were found for six cats and 14 were returned to owners. Twenty cats were humanely destroyed and 46 dogs. Three out of town trips were made to investigate cruelty to animals.

Plenty of Space Reauired Between Bathroom Fixtures

Following are some important considerations to keep in mind when planning your bathroom:

Leave enough space between fixtures to move around them and to clean them easily.

In front of the fixtures allow at least: 1½ feet between the front of the lavatory (wash basin) and the front of the water closet. 2 feet between the front of any fixture and the wall across from it. Minimum floor area needed for a person cleaning the tub—30 inches (along the side of the tub) by 20 inches.

At the side of the fixtures allow at least: 2 inches between closet tank and lavatory. 3 inches between closet tank and tub. 4 inches between closet tank and wall at the side of it. 6 inches between lavatory and wall.

All more than the minimum space if you can. Leave room for storage cabinet and towel rods. Re-arrange cut-outs of the fixtures until you have them the way you think is best.

When you have finished, use the following questions to check your plan. Re-arrange your plan until you can answer "yes" to each question.

Have You Planned Your Bathroom So That—

The floors do not get slippery when wet? The bathtub has a flat bottom? There are grab bars at tub and shower? There is a mixer faucet combining hot and cold water at the lavatory and a mixer valve at the shower? The lights are controlled by wall switches and are out of reach of anyone in the bathtub or any one using a water faucet? The heater is shielded and placed so there is no danger of fire or burns? An electric heater is properly grounded? The cabinet provided for medicines is out of the children's reach and can be locked?

Have you provided for light, air, and heat so that—

The room can be heated quickly? There is a window or a ventilator in the room? Light shines on face of person using mirror?

Whether you are building a new house or remodelling an old one, the bathroom must be carefully planned to fit both present and future needs of the family.

Will your bathroom plan meet the special needs of the children or sick or aged members of the household? Will you need bathroom space to bathe and dress baby? Is a morning rush to be expected on the bathroom? Perhaps you need a bathroom that several persons can use at one time and still have privacy.

Plan these things carefully in advance, for once fixtures are in, they are not easy to move.

A good way to plan your bathroom for maximum efficiency is with the use of cut-outs. Draw the outline of your bathroom to scale, ½ inch to the foot, showing location of windows and doors. Cut-outs of the fixtures to the same scale can then be moved around until you find the most efficient arrangement.

UE Calls Rally Discuss Aid 11 Men Fired

A membership meeting has been called by Local 524, UEW, to discuss support for the 11 welders discharged from the CGE.

It will be 2 pm Sunday in the Brock Street Summer Gardens.

There has been no progress made in breaking the deadlock between the company and the structural steel welders. That is, in discussing the pros and cons of the new price on the welding job that caused 22 welders to go on a wildcat strike Dec. 10.

However the company have met with the union to discuss the grievance filed on behalf of the 11 welders who were fired Wednesday. The parties met Friday morning but have issued no statement.

The 11 welders were fired Wednesday "for failure, after repeated warnings, to resume work in a normal manners when they reported to their department on Dec. 27.

James E. Girven, works manager, branded the wildcat strike "an illegal work stoppage."

Procedure Laid Down

Management contend the men have a laid-down grievance procedure and if they feel they have a complaint they can use this procedure while continuing to work. Failure to do so is a breach of the existing union agreement, they say.

Moreover they point out that Local 524, the bargaining agent, has stated that the strike was unauthoried and union officials had repeatedly ordered the men back to work.

The welders reply that the welding price has been in existence for at least two and a half years and it is breaking the company-union agreement for the company to change the price.

Fear More Price Cutting

Some of them have indicated that they regard this issue as a forerunner to "a policy of price-cutting." They say that if they go back to work and file a grievance there is nothing to prevent the company stalling on the grievance for months, meanwhile cutting prices.

At the time he fired the 11 welders, Mr. Girven said: "It is understandable that people will have complaints. It is because of this that we have a clearly established grievance procedure in the company-union agreement. This procedure, which is an essential part of union agreements, is provided so that there may be an orderly review of the complaints of employees while they continue working and not depriving themselves of their wages."

Union officials have given no hint on what action they will urge on the membership Sunday afternoon.

NEED A LIFT—Two Toronto Transportation Commission motormen were among the many thousands forced to thumb a ride Friday when T.T.C. employees called a strike to enforce demands for higher wages and other benefits. The two operators finished their last runs about 5 a.m.—strike deadline—and faced the choice of getting a lift or walking home.

Billy Wants In

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—(AP)—Billy Rose went to court Friday to demand that his estranged wife, Eleanor Holm, open the door of their lavish town house and let him in. The pint-sized theatrical producer has been locked out ever since he and his wife split up over his romance with blonde Joyce Mathews, former wife of Milton Berle.

BC Teachers Oppose Plan For Integration Of Schools

VANCOUVER, Jan. 5 (CP)—The British Columbia Teachers' Federation on Friday announced opposition to a plan put forward by the Roman Catholic Education Association for integration of religious separate schools with the public school system.

The federation also said it opposes expenditure of public funds for the aid or support of religious or other sectarian schools.

The integration plan, first suggested by the Education Association last fall and supported by Roman Catholic Archbishop William Duke of Vancouver, calls for public school boards throughout the province to take over operation of existing separate schools on a rental basis.

"The BCTF reaffirms its support of and belief in the democratic system of the non-sectarian schools as at present established by law in the province and protests the granting of concessions demanded by religious or other sectarian groups seeking integration," federation secretary C. D. Ovans said in a statement.

The statement was endorsed unanimously by the federation executive.

"The action of the executive is based, not on prejudice against any particular religious creed, but on the conviction that a healthy and democratic school system cannot be maintained on other than a secular basis," Mr. Ovans said.

The federation action was the first organized statement of opposit on to the aims expressed by the Roman Catholic Education Asssociation at its inaugural convention here in October.

Asks Free Services

The association also is asking free transportation for pupils and free health services, now received by public school students.

Two Roman Catholic schools in nearby Millardville were closed last spring in protest against what the Catholic school board said was government refusal to supply free bus transportation. One is still closed.

At its October convention, the association advanced this seven-point program for a single school system:

1. Roman Catholic schools receive financial aid and other benefits available to public schools on the basis of full equality.

("What we are asking is that the Education Department take our schools into the public system in such a way that we can retain the religious character," association president Patrick Power said.)

2. Roman Catholic schools would submit to inspection by the Department of Education.

3. Catholic teachers would qualify under the law and be presented for certification by Catholic authorities.

4. Catholics would rent their schools to the department for an agreed rental. Financial aid, when new schools are necessary, would be given by the provincial government as is done in municipalities.

5. Catholic schools would follow the curriculum as laid down by the education department "with necessary consideration, however, for Catholic textbooks on certain subjects, e.g., history."

6. The question of Catholic representation on school boards would have to be "a matter of negotiation."

7. Exemption from taxation on Catholic public schools and Catholic education non-profit institutions, free textbooks, medical and dental care and transportation.

Directors Discuss Date Of Exhibition, Fair Support

Directors of Peterborough Exhibition engaged themselves Friday afternoon in discussion of two fairs, instead of the usual one.

They set the date of the annual meeting of their own association for Thursday, January 17 at 8 pm, in the committee room of the new city hall. Fewer than a quorum of the members of the board, just before adjournment, expressed approval of supporting, within their means, the proposed Quinte Spring Show. Its fate will probably be decided at a meeting of promoters Monday, Jan. 7 at a meeting to be held in the office of the Department of Agriculture.

Quinte Spring Show may emerge from the old Quinte District Seed Fair in permanent establishment at Morrow Park.

G. A. Gillespie, secretary-manager, intimated that the directors would be able to report to the annual meeting of the Exhibition a bank balance of approximately $6,500 to $7,000. The audited financial statement for 1951 has not yet been completed, Mr. Gillespie said.

Retain Insurance

Directors confirmed retention of insurance on its property at $64,000. They approved the action, as explained by Mr. Gillespie, in reducing the insurance on the old drill hall of the military occupation from $25,000 to $20,000, and distributing the $5,000 difference over the new gate office and lean-to sheds.

Principal discussion returned to the proposed change of the Exhibition dates from August to September. It was decided to reconsider this question at a special meeting of the directors Wednesday, Jan. 9, at 8 p.m. in F. C. Paterson's office. This motion by Ross L. Dobbin was seconded by Clarence Bacon.

"I think August would be far better than September," Mr. Dobbin said. "You have to gamble on the weather in either month, but our records show that August is drier than September."

"I think we should leave it as it is, in August," said Mrs. G. K. Fraser.

Manson Cathcart said there were already two motions on the books for the later dates.

Don Milburn, presiding as chairman, said he would not like to see a new motion go through unless there was a larger attendance of the directors.

"I don't think it would be a democratic way of conducting our affairs if another motion were to go through at this time," was his attitude.

Set By Old Board

Mr. Gillespie recalled the established course of recommendation of Exhibition dates in the new year by the retiring directors prior to the annual meeting.

"It is the outgoing board that has always done it," he said.

Changing the dates for this year from Aug. 20-23 to Sept. 10-13 would upset the "whole thing", Mr. Gillespie warned, including the list of display exhibitors, arrangements for the midway, and other factors.

Mr. Gillespie said that the Exhibition had been showing a profit on its operations since its revival after the war.

On the other side of the argument was a report that exhibitors of farm implements were dissatisfied last year with the comparatively small attendance of farmers during the afternoons of the Exhibition. A rejoinder was to the effect that 1951 was an exceptional harvest season, and that farmers were delayed in their work until September.

Mrs. Fraser's suggestion that the directors be called in to a special meeting next week was framed in a motion, and carried.

Those present were: John Kitney, John Edmison, Manson Cathcart, Frank Savigny, Clarence Bacon, Mrs. Fraser, Melville Johnston, R. L. Dobbin, Clayton Sanderson, Charlie Quinlan, Alderman A. B. Burrows, and Mr. Milburn. F. C. Paterson was also present.

Investors Wary At Prospects Of '52's Market

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Investors cocked a somewhat jaundiced eye at 1952's stock market prospects this week and decided to "wait and see."

Failure of the predicted year-end rally to materialize brought guarded pessimism from some observers. Industrial investing, they predicted, would be increasingly selective. The market's action supported these views. Industrial trading was featureless and cautious. Base metal leaders and other 'growth stocks' drew steady support, speculation bounced lower-priced metal and western oil issues irregularly.

Toronto closed the year Monday with a final-hour rally that erased most earlier losses. Industrials, base metals and some golds strengthened slightly but western oils dipped more than a point to the exchange's index. Industrials traded irregularly in Montreal but papers strengthened.

All markets closed Tuesday for New Year's day. In Toronto Wednesday only base metals made headway in spotty trading. Montreal papers and industrials steadied.

Steadily accumulating support in Toronto Thursday pushed industrials sharply higher and checked steadily declining western oils. Industrial dealings broadened slightly. Industrials shared the advance in Montreal but papers weakened.

Prices Move Up

Mild final-hour support in Toronto Friday edged prices upward. Selected western oils drew most benefit as the exchange's index added almost a point. All sections traded steadily in Montreal.

New York prices steadied Monday in slow trading. Rails led a mild upswing Wednesday that spread slowly to other divisions. Rails continued to improve Thursday but the rest of the market turned mixed. Rails again took the lead Wednesday and buoyed other issues.

From Friday the Toronto stock exchange indices showed industrials up 3.48 at 342.56, gold up .99 at 84.85, base metals up 2.79 at 195.91 and western oils down 1.09 at 125.11.

In the Montreal averages banks were up .42 at 30.62, utilities up .8 at 87.3, industrials up 2.1 at 229.8, combined up 1.7 at 182.3, paper up 10.88 at 801.51 and gold up .20 at 68.63.

In New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks climbed $1.60 at $99.60.

Farm Authority, Barton Retires

OTTAWA, Jan. 5—(CP)—One of Canada's best known agricultural experts, both at home and abroad, retired Friday.

He is Dr. G. S. H. Barton, 68-year-old special assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner, one of the fathers of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Orangization and Canadian delegate to FAO.

While he will be retired so far as the Federal Department of Agriculture is concerned, Dr. Barton will continue his association with FAO, which he helped to found at Quebec in 1945, in an advisory capacity.

Friday, several hundred departmental officials and friends met in the agriculture department's big board room to honor Dr. Barton. He received a wrist watch, a combination radio and phonograph and a French-Canadian waist sash for use in curling, his favorite sport.

A native of Vankleek Hill, Dr. Barton received his agricultural education at Ontario Agricultural College and from 1911 to 1932 was a member of the staff of Macdonald Agricultural College at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., serving the last seven years as dean. He joined the federal department in 1932.

Library Circulation Up 15,563 Over 1950

An increase of 15,563 in circulation at the Peterborough public library in 1951 over 1950 was reported by William Graff, librarian, at the library board meeting Thursday night.

Total circulation for 1951 was 221,696 as compared to 206,133 in 1950.

These figures do not include circulation at the summer playgrounds which was estimated at 13,600.

Mr. Graff reported an increase in circulation in both adult and boys' and girls' departments in 1951 over 1950.

The increase in the adult department was 7,062 and in the boys' and girls' department 8,501.

Sold Dope In Ontario Gets 26 To 101 Years

BUFFALO, NY, Jan. 5—(AP)—A convicted dope peddler was sentenced Friday to 26 to 101 years imprisonment.

He was Anthony L. Pasquarello, 37, arrested last summer in connection with a police investigation of dope sales to teen-agers in local dance halls and in nearby Crystal Beach, Ont., Lake Erie resort.

Erie County Judge Carlton A. Fisher sentenced Pasquarello to five to 20 years on each of five counts of selling narcotics, a felony. He also gave him another year on a misdemeanour count charging possession.

Fisher then directed that the terms be served consecutively and declared:

"I have not been able to find one single sign of good in you."

US Food Prices Drop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (CP)—A drop in consumer food prices in the United States was reported yesterday. The bureau of labor statistics said that between Nov. 26 and Dec. 15 the food section of the cost-of-living index dropped 1.2 per cent.

Quits Fishery Board

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 5 (CP)—John T. Chesseman, president of the Newfoundland Progressive Conservative Association, said Friday night he has resigned from the Fisheries Loan Board on the request of Premier Joseph R. Smallwood.

War On Skeeters

WINNIPEG—(CP)—Annual report of the greater Winnipeg anti-mosquito campaign showed more than 11,000 acres of likely breeding grounds were sprayed with oil and insecticide. Fourteen municipalities contributed more than $12,000 to the 1951 campaign.

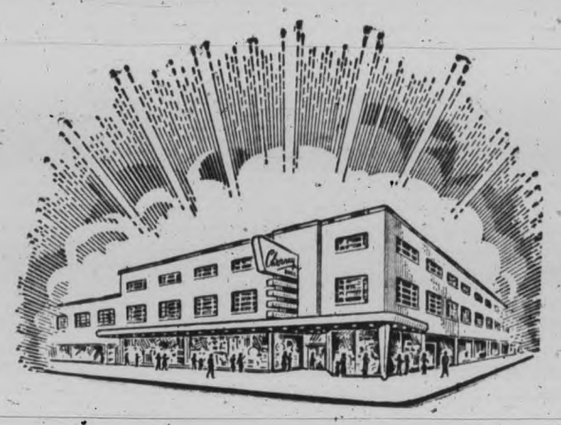
STRIKE IS ON—Toronto, second largest Canadian city, was without public transportation Friday when employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission walked off their jobs about 5 a.m. in support of demands for wage increases. This aerial photo shows one of the large car barns with street cars jamming all available space shortly after the strike began.

United States Agents Snap Giant Trap On 500 Peddlers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP)—United States narcotics agents Friday snapped a giant trap on the drugs underworld and seized more than 500 suspected peddlers. Every big city in the country was involved.

Harry J. Anslinger, narcotics commissioner in the Treasury Department, told reporters the mass operation by 250 agents continued throughout the night. He predicted it will deal a staggering blow to the illicit narcotics traffic.

The roundup of peddlers, Anslinger said, is by far the biggest ever staged.



A few underworld giants were arrested Friday, he added, but more top racket bosses will be captured when a grand jury investigation is completed within three weeks.

Asked where the jury probe is centred, Anslinger told a news conference, "if we even mentioned the name of the city, some of the men who are talking will be killed."

The commissioner said the raids were aimed at peddlers who have supplied narcotics for an alarming increase in teen-age addiction, and as veteran offenders who face stiffened penalties under a new narcotics law which makes prison terms mandatory.

The raids started before dawn in San Antonio, Tex.; and spread throughout the country to more than 18 states. Up to 100 alleged peddlers were seized in Texas alone, 50 in New York, 60 in Philadelphia, and 30 in Washington. One man was seized in Buffalo, NY.

Anslinger said the crackdown is tied to a drive to close down huge European sources for narcotics sent to the United States. He said Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported US underworld king, is under investigation in Italy in connection with the crackdown. He described the campaign as aimed particularly at second and third offenders.

A Word About Prices

The recent publicity given to so-called price maintained goods and the government order banning the enforcement by manufacturers of suggested resale prices has caused a great deal of confusion and it is with the hope of clarifying this situation for our customers that this statement is made.

First of all, the only goods sold by us in the past under maintained retail prices were appliances and a few furniture items.

We believe that no retailer could stay in business if he is offering complete service at a price lower than allowed by the manufacturer in the past and we do not believe that any significant change in price will take place now.

Goods being sold at drastic discounts are being offered at these prices because the goods were not worth the original price asked in most cases.

Inflated trade-in allowances are simply an admission that the price marked on the product is too high to start with.

Our Policy Regarding Prices is as Follows:

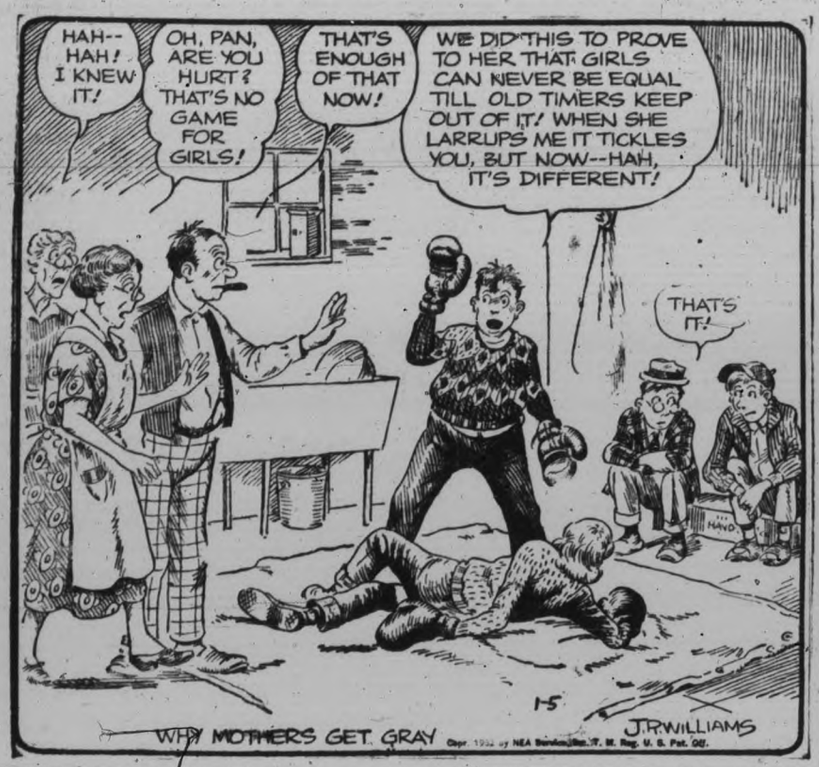
To sell only nationally known products or goods on which we are willing to stake our reputation, at prices that are the lowest possible consistent with the type of service rendered.

Everything we sell is on the basis of "satisfaction or your money back."

Everyday prices are low cash prices. Our policy—if you can buy the same goods anywhere else for less on the same day, we will refund the difference or the entire purchase price. A carrying charge is added to the cash price if budget terms are desired.

Clearance prices—floor samples, end of a line, discontinued lines, will be offered from time to time at reductions from low everyday prices because there is a good reason for such reductions.

Sale Prices—Goods sold by us under a "Sale" label will be offered only when we feel that such merchandise is outstandingly better value than regular everyday prices.



Buying Better—We are members of "Ontario Furniture Buyers Association;" a group of independent merchants, banded together to create purchasing power equal to most chain or department stores and thereby lower prices to the consumer.

In this era of free and active competition a business can only progress if it serves well; and at lowest cost, the needs of its customers.

By adhering to the policies outlined above, we hope to merit your continued confidence.

117 City People Between 65-70 Ask For Pension

One hundred and seventeen old people between 65 and 70 have applied for old age pensions, A. G. Metheral, city welfare officer, said today. These people must pass a means test.

Mr. Metheral said, "some of these were overtaken by misfortune of one kind or another. Sickness led to poverty in quite a number of cases. It took the shirt off their back.

"From my experience in this work, I'd say that insurance against the costs and effects of sickness should get priority over old age pensions. At least, that is what I'd be inclined to say, off hand."

Some Had Means

Some of the 117 applicants from the city who have been listed since last September, and their documents forwarded to the regional pensions office in Toronto, once had means, more or less, Mr. Metheral said today. Sickness of themselves or of members of their families soaked up their savings and in some instances their properties.

Thirty-one of the 117 applicants from within the city were listed on the local welfare roll. Allowance of pensions will remove their names from the relief records.

"They must first bring proof of age," Mr. Metheral said. "Then they must declare their means. Some have money in the bank. It may be a petty sum, $25 or $50; or it may be up to $250 or $500. Some have a little property. And in that company there are a few who have been property poor, hanging on to acres of doubtful value back in the north country somewhere. There were some like that, holding land in the hope that it might increase in value."

Some Received

Mr. Metheral said that eight or ten of the applicants had already received their first pensions.

"Some got the full $40, others less than that maximum. Most of them were people on relief. In some instances they don't get much more than our welfare allowance."

The few exceptions to this necessitous company were rather difficult to explain.

"There was one man, for example, who has $11,000 in bonds; $1960 in the bank; he had several houses; and he is already getting some industrial pension. But, in spite of what is called the means test, which has regard to his personal means, this applicant considered that he was entitled to more or less old age pension."

"I am not expressing any opinion about what he will get, if anything. All we are required to do is to write out the statement and forward it for the applicant."

(There is no means test for people who at Jan. 1 were 70 years old.)

MUSHING THROUGH—Leonard Chouinard, formerly of Peterborough and now a resident of Detroit, solved his transportation problems through Detroit's big snow with a sled and a team of six Samoyed work dogs. What Chouinard likes best about the eager dogs which he raises is that they never get stuck and they're so easy to park.

W. Buttars Dies At Coldsprings

COLDSPRINGS, Jan. 5 (ENS) — One of the oldest residents of the Coldsprings district, 83-year-old William Buttars, died suddenly early Wednesday morning after a heart seizure suffered Tuesday night.

Though in failing health for several years, he had spent New Year's Day with relatives, and was stricken shortly after returning from a neighbor's home.

Mr. Buttars was born in 1868, a son of the late D. Y. Buttars and Mary Elder. Until 1928, he farmed in the vicinity of Coldsprings, then moved into the village, where he worked as a carpenter.

An active member of St. Paul's United Church, he was made an elder in 1904, and in 1907 superintendent of the Sunday school, a position he held for more than 30 years.

Surviving are: his widow, the former Ada Smith, one daughter by a previous marriage, Mrs. Norman McPherson (Anna), of Toronto, four brothers, Charles and Thomas of Bewdley, David and James Buttars of Plainville. A son, Kenneth, died in 1914.

Funeral service was held today at 2.30 p.m. in St. Paul's, with the Rev. P. C. Brown officiating. Burial was in the United church cemetery.

New Alberta Investment Reaching Vast Totals

EDMONTON, Jan. 5—(CP)—Almost one billion dollars' worth of new industrial development is in prospect for Alberta.

It will top the province's prodigious growth since the Leduc discovery less than five years ago marked Alberta as one of the world's great oil-producing areas, and drew attention to its other unexploited natural wealth.

New projects to develop the province's oil, natural gas, forests and mines, and to process the products of its rich soil, will pour nearly $900,000,0000 into Alberta within the next few years.

The figure is from the Alberta Industrial Development Board. Without going into still-confidential detail, director Richard Martland said the sum represents "firm" projects — undertakings "past the inquiry phase" and now in the planning stage.

"Of course," said Mr. Martland, "things could happen to change some of the developments planned, such as a shortage of materials or an outbreak of war." He added that individual projects will be announced by the firms concerned as plans are completed.

Prosperous Year

This indication of future development came as the province wound up its most prosperous year, a year in which Premier E. C. Manning said that if the development of natural resources continues at the present accelerated rate it "is not too visionary" to foresee the day when Alberta will be a debt-free and tax-free province.

The province's oil wells produced an estimated $135,000,000 worth of crude during the 12 months, but still were held in rein because of inadequate means of getting oil to market. At the year end, work was beginning on an $82,000,000 pipeline from Edmonton to the Pacific coast, supplementing the line to the Great Lakes which carries Alberta oil to eastern markets.

Meanwhile, Edmonton shaped up as the centre of a great new chemical industry. First in the field was Canadian Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Celanese Corporation of America. Its $54,000,000 plant, the largest of its type in the world, will turn British Columbia wood pulp into synthetic textiles and by-products of the nearby oil refineries into chemicals including some not at present manufactured in Canada.

Close behind Celanese was Canadian Industries Limited with plans to build a $13,000,000 plant as starter. It will make polythene, a plastic widely used in the electrical, pharmaceutical and packaging industries, and will use 10,000,000 cubic feet a day of Alberta natural gas. A third chemical concern was reported ready to announce its plans.

Another Project

Another CIL plant is under construction in Calgary—a $4,500,000 project to make commercial explosives. An additional chemical project is a $3,000,000 plant for the Lindbergh area, 120 miles northeast of Edmonton, to make caustic soda, chlorine and associated chemicals.

Other major new industries included a $5,000,000 addition to the Canada Cement plant at Exshaw, west of Calgary; a $3,000,000 refinery at Stettler, and a $5,000,000 pulp mill at Yates, 115 miles west of Edmonton. Sheritt-Gordon Mines Ltd. is considering Alberta for a $17,500,000 ore-processing plant, the site of which is expected to be announced soon.

Vast Irrigation

The past year saw the completion of large-scale irrigation works, balancing in the south to some extent the industrial development in the north. Completion of the $7,000,000 St. Mary river dam marked the first big step in a $30,000,000 project which will open up some 4,000 irrigated farms over the next 10 years and free large dry areas from dependence on grain growing and ranching.

This will result in intensified raising of specialty crops. Already a quick-freeze plant in Lethbridge is producing more than one-fifth of all the quick-frozen vegetables marketed in Canada. A cannery at Taber announced a $1,000,000 expansion program and a new $5,000,000 beet-sugar factory, one of the most modern in the world and southern Alberta's third, went into operation.

Agriculture, still the province's basic industry, produced more than half a billion dollars worth of crops last year. Forest products topped $18,000,000. With more than 15 per cent of the world's coal in reserve, the province mined an estimated $37,000,000 worth during 1951.

Industrial activity stimulated all forms of commerce. The year saw tremendous expansion in warehousing, for instance. Retail trade topped three-quarters of a billion dollars, more than three times the turnover of 10 years ago. Bank clearings totalled $2,250,000,000 and bank debits approached the five-billion mark.

LOCAL SCHOOL AREA BOARD ACCUSED OF WORKING IN SECRECY AND SILENCE AS MEMBERS SEEK ELECTION

As a candidate for No. 2 School Area Trustee of Douro and Otonabee in the coming election on January 7th, I am appealing to the electorate for support.

I have always and will continue to support any programme which will tend to give the best possible schooling for our children within the means of this area to support.

It has been said that the past board, of which I was a member, acted in silence and secrecy.

Those making this statement know this to be wholly untrue as they have been aware of public meetings held by the "board," and to some extent have taken advantage of these meetings by attending them.

This is further born out by the fact that the issue with regard to schools in this area is now placed squarely before the electors.

The new school, or schools, mentioned in the propaganda referred to above may cost, in the long run, more than the electors can carry at this time.

Therefore, the question now before you is: Do you want a big new central school, at high cost, and to scrap your present accommodation as recommended by one of my opponents, or do you prefer what my associates and I recommend, that we retain our present accommodation and increase it progressively as required at a cost which is within the means of a small community of this description?

I am, respectfully yours, CLINT A. HOUGH

Canadian Actor Robert Beatty Busy In London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON — (CP) — Effects of United States cuts in film production caused by the popularity of television programs are being felt in London by such well-known and popular actors as Hamilton-born Robert Beatty.

It works like this. Many top American stars, finding fewer opportunities at home, visit Britain and accept lead roles in British films. This often means that actors here, such as Beatty, are relegated to lesser roles.

In two of his most recent productions, for instance, Beatty has taken second place to Zachary Scott and Walter Pidgeon, a veteran Hollywood star formerly of Saint John, NB.

Pidgeon, Beatty and Margaret Leighton were the lead stars in "Calling Bulldog Drummond," an up-to-date remake of the old series. "Wings of Danger" with Scott has not yet been released and is a story of a counterfeiting gang working the racket by air.

CANADIAN ACTOR—Robert Beatty of Hamilton is one of a number of Canadian actors kept busy in London. His rugged good looks and deep voice have won him parts in radio, stage, films and television. He is married and father of a 2½-year-old son nicknamed Chips.

The American invasion has, however, some compensations. Occasionally Beatty lands parts in such American productions as "Captain Hornblower," a technicolor film made in England. This is an adventure film of the sea which reminds Beatty of "San Demetrio, London," the wartime British movie of an oil tanker which marked his first really important part.

Between movies Beatty does radio, television, stage and commentary work. Recently he was on the air in "The Front Page," a well-known newspaper play. After that, Bob as he's known to friends, spent a quiet Christmas at home with his English wife, Dorothy, and 2-year-old Chips, his sturdy, fair-haired son.

Home is a 10-roomed, three-storied house overlooking Hampstead Heath where the 40-year-old Bob loves to relax and indulge in his hobby of "mending things".

"Trouble is," said Beatty, in a voice that goes over big with most of his fans, "by the time I've bought the tools I could buy the article for less."

UK Newsprint Up

LONDON, Jan. 5—(Reuters)—British newspapers will have to pay £1 more per ton for their meagre supplies of newsprint—the second such increase in six months—it was announced Friday night. The newsprint supply company said the price would go up to £66 a ton (2,240 pounds) at once because of increased handling costs.

Fear Treasure Lost In Flight

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—An anthropologist Friday suggested that the 500,000-year-old Peking Man—a Chinese national treasure—may have been ground up unwittingly as "dragon teeth" medicine and eaten by peasants.

Dr. Harry Shapiro of the New York Museum of Natural History offered the possibility in denying Chinese Communists charges that the United States stole the bones.

He told a reported the bones were not in the museum, as the Communists alleged, or even in the United States.

But where the bones are remains a mystery.

They disappeared after US marines shipped them by train from Peiping for safe keeping on Dec. 5, 1941. Shapiro said there was no evidence that the bones ever left China.

Dr. Shapiro said one conjecture was that Japanese troops, not recognizing the scientific value of the bones, threw them aside in their quest for military equipment in the baggage.

From there, the possibility remains that traders found them and ground them up for the "dragon teeth" medicine.

Claim Dismissals Unfair To Two Telephone Operators

BETHANY, Jan. 5 (ENS) — Dismissal of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Pomeroy, operators for the past 10 years of the Manvers Municipal Telephone System, has split company shareholders into two camps and resulted in the resignation of chairman Ernest Cavano.

Last November, the Pomeroys were given a month's notice. Reasons given by the commission were differences over salary and Mr. Pomeroy's acceptance of outside work.

Mr. Cavano resigned because he felt the Pomeroys were being treated unjustly. He has been replaced temporarily by Harry Preston. Other commissioners are Walter Neals and Robert Morton.

A Havelock couple Mr. and Mrs. D. Lucas, were hired to replace the Pomeroys. But the Pomeroys refuse to vacate the house which goes with the job and contains the system's switchboard. They claim, and back their claim with legal advice, that a month's notice was insufficient.

Mr. Lucas is operating the system at present, but the Pomeroys are still living in the house because they have been unable to find accommodation elsewhere.

A petition is being circulated among shareholders of the private system, a number of whom have signed, feeling the Pomeroys have given satisfactory service and were dismissed in an unfair manner.

The situation was this:

The commissioners felt they had hired Mr. Pomeroy to give 24-hour service. He says he was not hired under these conditions, but was to give 24-hour service in case of emergency. He says further that he had to accept outside employment to supplement his salary.

From midnight until 7 am on Monday there was no switchboard service, as Mr. Pomeroy's year had expired and Mr. Lucas had not arrived.

Date of the annual meeting of shareholders of the system has not been set, but it is expected that the problem will be reviewed at the meeting, and some settlement will probably be made.

The system serves 325 subscribers in the district from Janetville south to Pontypool.

Plan Baby Clinic In New City Hall

The regular weekly baby clinic held by the department of health at the Turner house have been discontinued until further notice, Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH said today.

The Turner house was closed last week and the clinics won't be resumed until clinical facilities have been installed in the clinic's new home—the basement rooms in the city hall intended for the separate school board.

Dr. Kelly said that there was a weekly average of 30 at these clinics during 1951.

In addition to this clinic, the department conducts three other weekly clinics at All Saints Parish hall, Tuesdays and Dixon House and DeLaval, Thursdays.

Child 5, Drowned When Ice Breaks By Otonabee Shore

Five-year-old Sharon Littlefair drowned late Sunday afternoon in the icy Otonabee river, less than a hundred yards from her home. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Littlefair, 53 Edgewater Blvd. Sharon had been playing with her sleigh along the river bank and it is believed the thin ice on the partially-frozen Otonabee gave way, plunging her into mist-covered water. Accompanying her was her little dog, Nipper, who may have made an attempt to save his mistress. It was his barking that attracted others to the spot and, when he got back to the Littlefair home he was sheathed in ice.

Police and firemen dragged the narrow channel, between Burnhams' Point and Point St. Charles (where the river empties into Little lake) for nearly an hour, but without success.

They were slated to resume dragging at 7 am today but ice that formed in the night's sub-zero temperature hampered their efforts. After two inspections early today they finally decided to abandon any further attempt to locate the body.

Sharon's parents last saw her alive about 5 pm. Apparently, she then got her sleigh and went over to the river, only partially covered by ice at this point.

Unidentified passersby, believed to be neighbors of the Littlefairs, saw the dog running up and down at the water's edge, barking. They thought they saw something in the water, and noticed the sleigh on the ice, its rope dangling in the river.

Sound Alarm

Running to a nearby house, they telephoned the Littlefairs. Police and firemen were also notified.

Traffic Tie-up In Toronto Reported Bad

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP)—Toronto got to work today—early, with little fuss or bother.

The city of 700,000 came through with flying colors the first big test of emergency transportation arrangements on this, the fourth day of the great transit tie-up.

"Not bad at all!" said Traffic Inspector Vernon Page as he surveyed the heavy first-day-of-the-week movement downtown of Toronto's working tens of thousands.

But Deputy Chief M. M. Mulholland said the traffic tie-up this morning was never worse. Motorists' unfamiliarity with emergency regulations prohibiting left turns at a number of intersections caused many jams, he said.

Police expected the "congested mess" to clear up in a day or two when drivers become accustomed to the new rules.

But on the whole, a survey showed, the unusually heavy motor traffic was handled smoothly.

Thousands of workers who ordinarily rely on street-cars and buses to get to their jobs used their automobiles and in friendly fashion picked up persons standing on street corners waiting for lifts.

Few Hitch-Hikers

But car-pools were so well-organized, a survey showed, that motorists could find few hitch-hikers.

Many persons reported getting to work as much as a half-hour earlier than usual, although they left home at the usual time. Long lines of motor traffic moved swiftly along slushy streets free of lumbering street-cars and buses.

Vishinsky Asks UN Intervention

PARIS, Jan. 7 (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky said today the Korean truce talks at Panmumjom have reached a deadlock. He urged a high-level Security Council meeting to help break it.

Vishinsky told the United Nations political committee "we want these negotiations to be concluded successfully and quickly" and said "let's have a Security Council meeting, consisting of high-level persons, get together and try to help them."

He said the Soviet proposal would not break up the talks at the front but would merely consider ways and means of helping get them out of the rut "in which they have been floundering for six months."

Such a council meeting, attended by Foreign Ministers or Chiefs of State, he said, would not delay the talks at Panmunjom and would not have the effect of shifting the negotiations from Korea to Paris.

Both British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd and US delegate Benjamin Cohen had charged that adoption of the Soviet plan would delay or disrupt the talks and, moreover would probably increase rather than decrease international tension.

Says Nationalist Guards Worse Than Japanese

HONG KONG, Jan. 7 (Reuters) —A British cargo ship limped into port today, freed after six months' detention by Chinese Nationalists in Formosa described by the Canadian skipper as worse than a Japanese war-prisoner camp.

The vessel, the Taikinshan, was halted by a Chiang Kai-shek warship off the Communist port of Swatow last June 25 on charges of trading with the Communists.

The skipper, Capt. W. Wherry of Saint John, NB, said life on board the vessel under the Nationalist guards was a "malignant floating hell" of starvation.

"I am personally well grounded in hardship and would not complain about a mild form of punishment, but in this instance I hesitate to compare the same with the conditions experienced in a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp during the war," he said. He was a war prisoner of the Japanese in Hong Kong for 44 months.

Royal Gypsy Wedding

Bride 15, Meets Her Groom For First Time At Ceremony

ORMOND BEACH, FLA., Jan. 7—(AP)—The 15-year-old bride was shy and tearful—after all, she had never seen the groom before—but she was faultlessly dressed for the big moment.

It was the royal gypsy wedding of the son of Mike Davis, "King of" manian tribes in Florida, and h[illegible]ds of Sunday motorists had a r[illegible]side seat as the tribe wound up two days of celebration with the nuptials.

After the brief ceremony, she retired to the semi-seclusion of a trailer awning while the groom joined other teen-agers at a juke box and apparently forgot about the whole thing.

The marriage between John Davis, 16, and pretty, bespangled Katherine Johnson of Baltimore, had been arranged by their fathers more than 10 years ago.

Gypsy custom, said the bride's father, demands that the bargain be carried out.

The couple met for the first time at the head of a feast table. A few words in dialect, a blessing followed by a burst of laughter, and the ceremony was over.

At the end of the celebration the newlyweds would meet under the roof of the groom's father—also by custom.

Gaily-attired gypsy notables came from all over Florida and other states for the big day.

King Davis holds sway over some 200 tribe members throughout Florida. He was elected by the tribe 10 years ago.

Gypsies, says King Davis, believe "blind" marriages are best. There is no divorce. When a marriage fails, husband and wife return to the homes of their parents and cannot wed again within the tribe.

Eisenhower Will Accept US Republican Nomination

HUGH F. WADDELL WAS INAUGURATED today in a well-attended ceremony at the new City Council Chamber. Gordon Monkman, right, in insert, donor of Peterborough's gold chain of office, placed the emblem around Mr. Waddell's shoulders. The general view of the crowded chamber was shown at the time the Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, gave a scriptural reading for the occasion. —Examiner Staff Photos

General Won't Seek Position Actively, Stays On Army Job

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower proclaimed himself a Republican today, and admitted he will accept the party's presidential nomination if it is offered. But he said he won't actively seek it. In a Paris statement, the 61-year-old general swept away much of the fog of uncertainty that has swirled for the last five years about his place in the picture of presidential possibilities. His statement was prompted by the weekend move from Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts who announced that Eisenhower's name would be entered in the March 11 New Hampshire presidential primary, and that there would be a "finish fight" to win the GOP nomination for the general.

Eisenhower, discussed as both a Democratic and Republican presidential possibility, made these points in his statement:

1. He said Lodge was correct in calling him a Republican.

2. He has no intention of asking that he be relieved of his present assignment as leader of the European defence forces.

3. He will not take part in pre-convention activities of those seeking the nomination for him.

4. He recognizes the right of others to engage in an attempt "to place before me next July (when the Republican convention meets) a duty that would transcend my present responsibility."

Cheers Republicans

Eisenhower's statement tremendously cheered Republicans who worked for his nomination and felt handicapped by the general's long silence.

Some of them were getting restive under the feeling that uncertainty as to Eisenhower's position was letting Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, first to announce as a candidate, get off to a long lead in bidding for support from convention delegates.

The "go-ahead" which Eisenhower in effect gave his backers today will let them press their campaign for him with more assurance.

Two other candidates also are formally in the race—Gov. Earl Warren of California and Harold Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and former Governor of Minnesota.

Another practical effect of today's statement was to pull the rug from under those Democrats who have been beating the drums for the nomination of Eisenhower by their party.

When Lodge announced Sunday that he was entering Eisenhower's name in the primary, he conceded that he had no direct authorization from the General. But he

Ald. T. D. Miller Again Named Head Of Finance

Few changes in the chairmanships of the standing committees of the council were recommended at the meeting of the committee of whole following the adjournment of the inauguration of the new administration today.

Ald. T. D. Miller continues as chairman of the finance committee, composed of all the members; and Ald. J. E. Gillespie remains as chairman of the board of works of which also all the aldermen are members.

The proposals were put forward by Mayor Waddell and were accepted by the committee. Apparently they had been generally approved in caucus Friday.

Ald. A. B. Burrows retains chairmanship of the fire, water and light committee.

Ald. John A. Dewart was appointed chairman of the manufacturers committee, succeeding E. C. Braund; Ald. H. S. Longhurst heads the property committee of which Mayor Waddell was chairman last year.

On the other hand, Ald. Anglesey continues as chairman of parks; Ald. H. N. Young, chairman of legal and reception; Ald. Rehill, chairman of welfare; Ald. Norman G. Graham, as chairman of the sanitation committee, a branch of the board of works.

Mayor Waddell said he was proposing Ald. Longhurst for chairman of property committee because of his experience as an administrator of property, a reference to his year of responsibility as district manager with Wartime Housing Ltd.

Tow Freighter Half Way To Land, Safety

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP) — Unsinkable Capt. Kurt Carlsen and the Flying Enterprise were halfway to haven today.

At 8 a.m. (3 p.m. EST) the tug Turmoil and the gale-crippled American freighter she is towing were reported 152 miles from the Cornish port of Falmouth. The tug hoped to make port sometime Wednesday.

Carlsen's heroic stand with his near-sinking vessel—which he refused to leave—had started some 300 miles west of the English coast where the Flying Enterprise almost capsized in the worst Atlantic storm in 50 years.

The American destroyer Willard Keith, escorting the tug and her charge, reported the little convoy's 8 a.m. position and said "condition of Enterprise unchanged." The message said the weather was cloudy, with a light fog, the sea moderate with westerly swells, and visibility was three to six miles.

Heavier weather earlier had forced the tug to take a zig-zag course to ease the strain on the tow.

Almost Flat

The battered Flying Enterprise today was almost flat on her port side, but still "being towed well," the Turmoil's radio operator said in a radio telephone call to The Associated Press. He reported Carlsen "more confident than ever" that his ship would reach a safe harbor.

The wind was rising slightly and there was more of a swell. The Turmoil said she was "swinging from quarter to quarter (varying her course 90 degrees, then back again) because of the change in weather."

The radio operator said if the weather gets worse, the Turmoil's Capt. Dan Parker will abandon Falmouth as his goal and make

2 In Set Of Triplets Born Week After First

WEST RUNTON, Norfolk, England, Jan. 7 — (AP). — Mrs. Emerald Gual of Cromer, 24, gave birth to the second and third members of a set of triplets on Sunday night—one week after the first arrived.

The baby born in 1951 was a boy weighing four pounds.

Those who made their debut in 1952 were another boy, weighing 4 pounds 5 ounces, and a girl, weighing 3 pounds 11 ounces. They were born within 10 minutes of one another.

"Mother and babies are all doing very well," said a hospital spokesman.

Cheque Clue To Army Nurse

MONTREAL, Jan. 7 (CP)—A cheque "for about $80" believed cashed in Montreal by army nurse Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom figured today as the main clue in the hunt for the 27-year-old woman last seen publicly in Kingstston, on Christmas Eve. Quebec Command Provost Marshal Maj. Charles Rochon said the cheque was cashed at a mid-town Montreal bank Dec. 27. He said also the girl's movements had been traced up to Dec. 29. Beyond that he would not elaborate. "I believe the girl is an amnesia victim," Maj. Rochon said. "That is the only explanation as far as we can see. She's the kind of girl who, if she knew how much we were looking for her, would notify us where she is."

The girl left Kingston intending to spend Christmas in Quebec's eastern townships but Maj. Rochon said it seemed possible she had changed her mind on this.

"After all," he added, "she was on leave until Dec. 28 and wasn't reported missing until the 29th."

In an army statement Saturday the girl was reported to have been located in Montreal.

The army announced Sunday, however, that Saturday's information, believed at that time to be well-founded, later had been proven unsubstantiated. Sunday's army statement said that the search for the 26-year-old Kingston Military Hospital nurse, whose parents live in Stanley, NB was being intensified.

Garson Urges Russians To Use Litvinoff Plan

PARIS, Jan. 7 (CP)—Justice Minister Garson of Canada today urged Russia to return to her former support of world collective security as proposed by the late Maxim Litvinoff when he was Soviet representative of the League of Nations. Making his maiden speech at the United Nations Assembly Garson told the political committee that "the symbol of the tragedy of these times is that the Soviet government no longer speaks to the world organization with the intelligent voice of Mr. Litvinoff, but that of Mr. Vishinsky, his successor today."

Garson made a plea for wider backing of UN measures in the important debate on western proposals for stronger UN collective measures against aggression.

Emphasizing that neither the UN collective measures nor the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are aimed at ganging up on Russia Garson said he hopes that Russia has not given up forever its former ideas of collective security.

Separate Purposes

He said Canada's purposes in NATO and the UN are separate and distinct. Canada was not trying to identify the aims of NATO with those of the UN.

Pleven Cabinet Has Collapsed

PARIS, Jan. 7 (AP).—Premier Rene Pleven's five-month-old cabinet collapsed tonight.

The French National Assembly ousted the coalition government after hearing a final plea from Pleven for a freer hand to deal with the economic situation in this hard-pinched country.

The defeat came on his demand for power to cut the 140,000,000,000 franc ($400,000,000) deficit of the nationalized railway system.

The Socialists, who supported the cabinet on most issues, broke away on this one. Many of the railway workers are Socialists and the party leadership feared economies on the roads would result in large-scale firings, and so decided earlier today to oppose the government demands.

Boardwalk Fire Razes 3 Hotels

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ, Jan. 7—(AP)—A rampaging, wind-whipped fire wiped out three unoccupied hotels, a block of stores and a 300-room section of the big St. Charles hotel on Atlantic City's famed boardwalk today.

Firemen battled the flames for more than 4½ hours before bringing the blaze under control shortly before noon.

The twin-towered, 12-storey St. Charles, closed for the winter season, still burned, however, and firemen concentrated their efforts to save what remained of the 400-room structure.

There were unofficial estimates that the fire damage might run into several million dollars.

Cause of the blaze was not determined immediately.

As flames licked from top to bottom in one tower section of the St. Charles, one hundred guests in the Breakers Hotel, across New Jersey Ave., were ordered evacuated.

Two 150-room frame hotels near the boardwalk were burned to the ground, another was gutted and nine rooming houses were destroyed.

LINERS LINE UP

HALIFAX, Jan. 7 (CP). — The liners were literally lining up here today as Canada's immigration flow continued. Some 2,700 immigrants were arriving aboard the Neptunia, Fairsea and Gripsholm. The Samaria arrived yesterday. The Gripsholm was waiting to dock until the Neptunia sails for New York.

Bell Wants To Increase Local Phone Charges Would Keep Higher Long Distance Tolls

OTTAWA, Jan. 7 (CP)—The Bell Telephone Company of Canada today told the Board of Transport Commissioners it wants to continue recently-increased long distance tolls in Quebec and Ontario in addition to increasing local service charges.

The company last summer asked that it be given increases in local charges only. The board in November granted an interim increase of roughly five per cent, but decided to spread it over both local and long distance calls.

As the board opened final hearings in the application today, the company said it now needs the full amount of the local increases it asked, as well as the existing long distance boosts.

It would have these effects on about 1,800,000 telephones in the two central provinces:

1. Existing residence phone charges would go up between 15 and 60 cents a month, with the heavier increases in the larger centres.

2. For business phones, the rates would rise between 60 cents and $2.75 per month.

The November long distance increases, which Bell proposes to keep in effect, range between five and 25 cents a call.

Opening evidence for the company, Comptroller John Clough said the proposed rates, if they went into effect by March 1, would cost the company's customers $19,130,000 during 1952 but taxes would leave Bell only $8,463,000 of that amount. The company's net income would go to $23,378,000, the equivalent of $2.56 per share of its stock.

Report Cripps Suffers Relapse

ZURICH, Switzerland, Jan. 7 (Reuters)—Ailing Sir Stafford Cripps, Socialist architect of Britain's post-war economy, has suffered a relapse, his wife said today.

The 62-year-old former chancellor of the exchequer is suffering from a recurrence of a tubercular spinal infection which forced his resignation from the Labor government in 1950.

Mrs. Cripps said his general condition is "very good" and that treatment is starting immediately at the Zurich clinic. Cripps returned to Britain a few months ago after doctors described his cure as complete.

Takes Ocean Cruise

South African Holiday Planned For King In Spring

LONDON, Jan. 7 —(AP)—The King will make an ocean health cruise to South Africa in March and April, Buckingham Palace announced today. He will be accompanied by the Queen and Princess Margaret.

The royal family will pay a visit to Dr. Daniel Malan, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, at his country home in southern Natal.

The cruise was suggested by the King's doctors in the hope that sunshine and sea air will speed his recovery from a dangerous lung operation of last September. The timbre of his voice in a Christmas broadcast to his subjects made it plain that the King is still far from well.

The cruise will be made in the 42,500-ton battleship Vanguard, which took the royal family to a tour of South Africa in 1947. The battlewagon, which becomes the flagship of the British Home Fleet in the spring, is now being fitted at Devonport.

The starting date of the cruise and the itinerary are still indefinite.

The Royal party will stay at Botha House on the outskirts of the picturesque Umdoni Park on Natals south coast. Prime Minister Daniel Malan has placed the house at their disposal.

Malan appealed to the public today for co-operation with the authorities to insure that the Royal party will have a rest during its stay.

South Africa will be the first Dominion to play host to two visits from the reigning British Sovereign. Both Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret accompanied their parents on their tour of the Union in 1947.

The Royal visitors will reach Natal at the best time of the year.

Botha House is a spacious brick structure in late Victorian style with six main bedroom suites. It commands wide views of the scenic semi-tropical Natal coastline and has its own private bathing beach.

US Prepared To Make Atom Pledge

Won't Use Weapons Without Consulting British Leaders First

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP) — United States authorities are reported ready to give Prime Minister Churchill assurance that atomic weapons will never be used by the United States without consultation with Britain.

This point is understood to be one of the chief items on the agenda of the Churchill-Truman talks, which began unofficially Saturday and continued on a formal basis today.

Churchill came back to Washington Saturday for the first time as Prime Minister since his historic conferences with President Roosevelt beginning Christmas, 1941, and ending when he was defeated while attending the Potsdam conference in July, 1945, with President Truman and Premier Stalin.

There have been no official statements on the specific points to be discussed at this conference, to which Churchill brought about 35 of his top advisers.

Wants Practical Plans

But it has been made plain that his reason for coming here was to use his own eloquence and capacity for frank and friendly talks to bring reality and practical common sense into the expensive efforts the US and other Western powers—including Canada—have been directing toward maintenance of peace and economic sanity in a troubled world.

It is significant that Churchill included in his group Lord Cherwell, who holds the rather-nominal office of Paymaster-General, but is in fact one of Britain's leading scientists and the Prime Minister's trusted adviser on atomic development.

As a part of his over-all hope to achieve an accord with the most powerful country next to Russia, Churchill is expected to ask that the US will make no warlike use of atomic weapons without consultation with Britain.

Ready To Agree

From an informed source it was learned that such an assurance will be willingly given.

Beyond that is the desire of the British Government that knowledge learned from atomic experiment in the United States will be shared completely with the United Kingdom—and presumably with Canada, which was a party with the other two in development of the atomic bomb—but this may present difficulties.

It may be necessary, if the President feels that such secrets should be shared, that Congress will have to pass special legislation.

Churchill has given himself little time for discussions here, and there is a wide field over which he and Truman must travel.

They will have to talk about their varying views on the sovereignty of the Sudan, the British patrol of the Suez Canal, the Iranian oil issue, the war in Korea, the Indonesian struggle against Communists, and Britain's recognition of Communist China.

Montreal Wife Vanishes On Fishing Trip

Changes Clothes 150 Yards From Her Husband, Then Disappears

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 7 (AP).—The mystery of the Montreal beauty who vanished while fishing in the Florida Keys deepened today and her husband was reported near collapse.

"They've got to find my petite wife," said stocky George Lemay, holding back the tears. "They've got to."

Law enforcement officers were doing everything possible to locate Mrs. Hughuette Lemay, 21-year-old member of a well-known Montreal French-Canadian family.

Her brother — Raymond Daoust, a young Montreal criminal lawyer — and the distraught husband worked closely with Deputy-Sheriff James Barker in an attempt to solve the baffling case.

This was their problem:

Hughuette and her husband, a 26-year-old Montreal real estate dealer, were fishing on the south side of Tom's Harbor Bridge No. 4, about 12 miles north of Marathon Friday night.

At 10:30 pm EST, Hughuette, wearing shorts and halter, left George to go back to their convertible and change into dungarees. The distance was about 150 yards.

Dark Night

The bridge spans deep water on the highway which runs from Miami to Key West. A strong current flowed between the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico and the night was dark and overcast.

Hughuette walked along the narrow, cement strip on the south side of the bridge, and vanished.

Barker and State Attorney J. Lancelot Lester were considering these possibilities:

Hughuette might have fallen or been pushed into the water while returning to her husband: Her shorts were found in the car and a pair of dungarees, a green jacket and a white T shirt were missing, indicating she had changed her clothes.

She might have been picked up or kidnapped by a passing motorist. Her brother and relatives in Montreal said they are convinced she had been kidnapped and possibly taken to Cuba.

Carmen Lemay 24, a sister-in-law of the missing girl, said in Montreal that Hughuette "was very much in love with her husband and would never have left him voluntarily."

Order 93 Juries Check Rackets

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Attorney-General Howard McGrath Saturday ordered 93 special grand juries called into session throughout the United States to investigate "racketeers, gangsters and organized crime syndicates."

In a dramatic move perhaps unprecedented in its scope, McGrath directed that underworld figures and racketeers be brought before the juries. The FBI, secret service, postoffice inspectors and many other federal police agencies are slated to co-operate in the crackdown, McGrath said.

The orders went out to US attorneys, who were told to call grand juries in each of the 93 federal judicial districts as soon as possible and report their findings about organized crime to the Justice Department.

The move comes at a time when McGrath is under fire from critics who assert he has not been vigorous in combatting corruption in government.

Taken in conjunction with last weeks massive raids on narcotics peddlers and the President's plan for an overhaul of the scandal-rocked Internal Revenue Bureau, the McGrath move was widely interpreted as an effort to spike the guns of the administration's critics.

The McGrath action is a direct follow-up to last year's Senate crime committee investigation during which the far-flung activities of the underworld were laid bare in televised hearings.

Tow Freighter

for any port possible, probably the Scilly Isles.

The Turmoil was towing the 6,711-ton Flying Enterprise at an angle of 30 degrees on her starboard bow, using a single steel wire 750 yards long with a breaking strain of only 65 tons.

That was like a fisherman trying to land a heavy salmon on a line meant for small trout. But the Turmoil has heavy manila hausers 20 inches thick in reserve if the wire breaks.

Fog Sunday night, which reduced visibility to almost zero at times, lifted at dawn. It had not cut the Turmoil's steady speed of three knots, an ordinary walking pace.

Aboard the Flying Enterprise, Carlsen shared watches with his only companion, Mate Kenneth Dancy of the Turmoil who jumped from the tug to the freighter early Saturday. While one slept for two hours, the other watched.

As the ships neared land, the Turmoil was going to have to cut across the crowded Atlantic shipping lanes. Because the Flying Enterprise, almost one-half mile back of the Turmoil, was without lights, that increased the danger.

2 Contables Fired By Chief Send Resignations

LINDSAY, Jan. 7.—Two Lindsay constables fired by Police Chief Arthur Webster some weeks ago on a charge of neglect of duty in allowing a former constable to go home after he had been found near the scene of a breakin, today sent their resignations to the town council.

With their resignation they made a statement which follows in part:

"We, Gordon McCartney and Russell Hargrave, hereby notify you that we have on delivery of this notice to you, terminated our services with the Lindsay Police Force and you are to accept this as our resignation.

"It has only been after our serious considerations of the situation that we have concluded that it is to the best interests of all concerned that we sever our relationship, but we wish to state that this must not be interpreted as an admission against us and we say that we did everything that any conscientious police officers would have done under the circumstances.

"We have attempted personally and through our counsel to convey our side of the case to the town council of the town of Lindsay as provided by Subsections 2 and 3 of Section 13 of the regulations made under the Police Act.

"We have been informed that the matter of the finding whether or not we are guilty as charged be left for the new council of 1952 and if this is so there is thus the necessity of a new hearing since the hearing before the 1951 council would be a nullity and since we have been told by the chief of police that there is chance of a compromise with him. Thus, any effort to work with him would be futile.

"We do wish to extend our sincere thanks to His Worship the Mayor and the council of 1951 for the kind consideration they have given this matter and also their efforts in trying to influence the chief of police to take a generous view of this unfortunate matter and to co-operate in a new and better understanding."

Respectfully submitted (signed) Gordon McCartney and Russell Hargrave.

Germans Finish Plan For US-Style Draft

BONN, Germany, Jan. 7—(AP)—Western Germany has secretly completed plans for a draft army modeled on American lines to join the proposed European defense force, Western Allied officials disclosed Sunday.

The top-secret plans—hammered out behind closed doors by former officers from Hitler's Wehrmacht—call for drafting young Germans between the ages of 18 and 21, the officials said. German military planners estimate that youths in these age groups number at least 1,250,000.

Since France and other nations in the proposed European army already draft their military manpower, the Germans intend to adopt a conscription system modeled after the US selective service system.

Key men in drafting the plans were stony-faced Theodor Blank, 45, and two Hitler generals — Adolf Heusinger and Hans Speidel.

3,500 Strike At Port Said, Tie-up Feared

CAIRO, Jan. 7 (AP). — The Suez Canal Company said 3,500 of its Egyptian workers went on strike at Port Said, Suez and Ismailia today. The action threatened to tie up millions of tons in vital shipping.

A company spokesman said the strike stemmed from demands by workers on how certain types of labor should be done. But he added the belief that "political reasons" also motivated the men.

This was a reference to the grave situation in the Suez Canal area caused by Egypt's insistence that British troops get out of the country and Britain's determination to remain. Egypt has repudiated the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty which gives Britain the right to station troops in the strategic Canal Zone.

The company spokesman said the strikers thus far did not include those engaged in actual movement of canal traffic but there were reports these workers might walk out later today.

Dispatches from Port Said — the north end of the canal—said 1,500 workers quit there just as 30 Russian fishing vessels were scheduled to arrive from Odessa enroute to Vladivostok. A British official said he did not believe there was any connection between the strike and the arrival of the Red fleet.

Workers threatened to strike more than two months ago unless the company recognized Egypt's sovereignty over the waterway. This strike was avoided after workers' representatives met with company officials.

Western Oils Lead Afternoon Stocks

TORONTO, Jan. 7 — (CP) — Western oils continued to dominate early afternoon stock market dealings today as strong support pushed the exchange's index to another second high.

Oil stocks opened strongly following strikes and reports of strikes in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Scurry was a standout as it gained about 35 cents while more than 150,000 shares changed hands during the first three hours. Calnorth, Selburn and Western Homestead climbed strongly in active trading.

Trading reached the most active pace in several weeks. Industrial dealings were confined to leading issues. Volume was 1,827,000 shares.

Industrials made little headway. Textiles drew most support to post a scattered list of fractional advances. Steels, liquors and refining held firmly to slight early gains. Utilities and papers weakened.

Base metals traded irregularly. Chromium, Consolidated Smelters, Fenimore Iron, Hudson Bay and International Nickel strengthened but Cassiar, East Sullivan, Golden Manitou and Labrador weakened.

Senior golds were mixed. Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and Lamaque edged upyard while Kerr Addison and Lake Shore eased. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Text of Statement

The text of his statement:

"Senator Lodge's announcement of Sunday as reported in the press gives an accurate account of the general tenor of my political convictions and of my Republican voting record. He was correct also in stating that I would not seek nomination to political office.

"I have frequently and publicly expressed my refusal to do so.

"My convictions in this regard have been reinforced by the character and importance of the duty which I was charged more than a year ago by our country and the other nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. America's enlightened self-interest and the future of western civilization alike demand success in our collective effort to produce security against Communistic threat and to preserve peace.

"Under no circumstances will I ask for relief from this assignment in order to seek nomination to political office and I shall not participate in the pre-convention activities of others who may have such an intention with respect to me.

"Of course there is no question of the right of American citizens to organize in pursuit of their common convictions. I realize that Senator Lodge and his associates are exercising this right in an attempt to place before me next July a duty that would transcend my present responsibility. In the absence however, of a clear-cut call to political duty I shall continue to devote my full attention and energies to the performance of the vital task to which I am assigned."

Garson Urges

"While one is capable of expressing in terms of military planning, the other is capable of expressing only in terms of principles and possible courses of action."

He said Canada learned the hard way that collective strength is necessary to survival in the modern world.

He assured Vishinsky, Russia's Foreign Minister, moreover that Canada is no satellite in Korea, NATO or the UN.

Garson termed the western collective measures resolution a "modest and unprovocative step towards the goal of achieving collective security through the UN."

Korea Milestone

"The example of UN action in Korea will stand as a milestone of the first importance on the road to our goal."

Garson said the best guarantee that collective measures will not be misused is the nature of democracy.

"In times of peace a democracy is notoriously reluctant to face the uncomfortable and unpleasant facts of a growing military threat to its security."

Garson said of Litvinoff, whose death was announced last Wednesday, that his "impassioned plea in favor of collective security might well be taken to heart by his government today."

"Seldom, if ever, has the case been better stated," he said.

Traffic Tie-up

Reporting the morning rush-hour traffic about tripled compared to an ordinary working day, Inspector Page said police efforts to cope with the increased flow of automobiles and trucks depended on the co-operation of the public in putting up with emergency traffic regulations.

To make way for an unusually heavy surge of automobiles, city officials designated three north-south and four east-west roadways as arterial highways along which almost all left turns are prohibited. They limited downtown on-street parking to one hour and enlarged waterfront parking lots for all-day parkers.

Use Detroit Methods

Some of the traffic-handling methods were patterned after those used successfully in Detroit last spring during that city's 50-day transit strike. During that tie-up as in Toronto's, residents shared automobiles and made other arrangements for getting to work. After the strike, the Detroit street railway reported the number of passengers it carried had declined between 20 and 25 per cent.

A similar permanent loss of passengers is expected by H. C. Patten, TTC general manager, if the Toronto strike lasts a month or more, as some persons predict.

"That is definitely what happened in the Detroit strike," he said. "As a further result, many street railway employees lost their jobs."

Fire Kills Seven As Apartment Building Razed

WESTFIELD, Mass., Jan. 7 — (AP) — At least seven persons perished in a $1,000,000 five-storey apartment-business block fire Sunday night.

Firemen poured water into the smouldering ruins more than 12 hours after the blaze, punctuated by three explosions, as they awaited permission to search the debris.

Only a shell—four shaky walls —remainned today after the entire five floors collapsed into the basement of the building.

Fourteen persons were believed to have perished at first, but six later were accounted for.

Fifteen persons were injured, 13 serious enough to be kept at Noble Hospital. The other two were discharged after treatment.

Fire Chief Jeremiah Moriarty said the walls were in danger of collapsing at any time and that no one would be allowed to enter the ruins until an inspection by State Fire Marshall William J. Puzzo and Westfield Building Inspector Ralph Sizer has been completed.

One of the walls collapsed at the height of the blaze and crashed through the roof of an adjoining one-storey block of stores.

Praises Heroism

Moriarty said there would have been many more casualties had it not been for the heroism of several firemen, policemen and onlookers who disregarded personal safety to carry tenants down fire escapes and ladders.

Dr. Harold Beattie said he heard the anguished screams for help from his home three blocks away.

An elderly couple, dressed only in nightclothes, nearly collapsed on the street while waiting for help. Onlookers took off their own shoes and overcoats to protect the couple from the freezing cold.

William Baltrum, proprietor of an inn at the rear of the building, said he saw firemen try to rescue a woman trapped at a fourth-floor window but the ladder was too short. She was rescued, he said, even as flames licked at her back when firemen clambered to an adjoining roof and then extended a ladder from there.

The brick building was the largest business-apartment block in this city of 24,000 population.

Child Drowned

This is what police believe happened:

The girl rode down the riverbank on her sleigh, fairly close to the edge of the ice. When she got off and reached for the rope, the ice gave way and she dropped into the water, probably only a minute or so before the passersby saw the dog, the sleigh, and what they thought was "something in the water."

The dog came back to the house coated with ice. Since then, said Mr. Littlefair, "we just get him in the house and he runs back out. He's probably down by the river now."

Sharon, oldest of the three Littlefair children, was playing alone with the sleigh. A younger sister, Susan, 4, was in the back yard, while Gregory, 3, was sleeping in the house. Both parents were at home at the time of the accident. Mr. Littlefair is an inspector at the CGE.

Rule Umpire Will Decide Fate Of 32 Men

WINDSOR, Jan. 7—(CP)—Despite union hopes for a solution by direct negotiation, an umpire will decide the fate of 32 men fired by Ford of Canada prior to and following the Dec. 3-14 strike.

Six of the 32 have been remanded on charges laid by Windsor police as the result of the forced shutdown on the Ford plant powerhouse Dec. 3.

Grievance procedure talks on the 32 dismissals were broken off Friday by the company. Local 200, the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), applied for the appointment of an umpire. (In such cases, labor minister Daley appoints an "impartial jurist of repute" to give a decision binding both parties.)

Despite the breakdown of grievance talks and strongly-worded statements between Ford president Rhys Sale and George Burt, Canadian director of the U.A.W., wage contract between the company and the union are scheduled to resume Thursday.

Remain Closed

OSHAWA, Jan. 7—(CP)—Walter Reuther, international president of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O), says president Rhys Sale of the Ford Motor Company of Canada told union officials during a 12-day December strike that the big Ford plant in Windsor could remain closed until contract negotiations were completed.

In a telegram read Sunday by George Burt, Canadian director of the union at a meeting of the union's district council Mr. Reuther supported statements made Friday in Windsor by Mr. Burt about what Mr. Sale had said.

Mr. Sale termed the Burt statement false. In Windsor Saturday he said:

"I told Mr. Reuther and his associates that if the employees voted to return to work, the plant would be reopened and work resumed as soon as the plant could be put in shape."

Mr. Reuther said in his telegram, which international secretary Emil Mazey also signed:

"At the meeting in Windsor in which we participated with Mr. Sale, we clearly recall that he did state that as far as he was concerned, the recent strike at the Ford Windsor plant could continue and that the plant could remain closed until the negotiations on a complete new contract were finished."

Campbellford Boys Begin Hockey Play

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7—(ENS)—Campbellford and district youngsters got their hockey season off to a good start here Friday when six teams hit the ice to open the Trent Valley Minor Hockey League. Local organizations are sponsoring teams.

Campbellford has no entry in the TVL this year, and the officials hope to be able to ice a junior team this year that will fill the gap next season. The juniors practise Tuesday evening and it is hoped a good number of boys between the ages of 16 and 21 will turn out, so that Campbellford will be able to put a team into junior OHA hockey this year. A couple of exhibition games are being arranged and these will be announced at a later date.

Campbellford's two provincial police constables have pitched in to assist in the boys' league, and deserve a good deal of credit in the organization of the affair. Constable Donald W. Erskine is coach of the Seymour East team, while Constable George Rose is coaching the team from Seymour West.

Dit Refereed

At Friday"s game, Dit Clapper of Peterborough was on hand to handle the refereeing, helped out by Howard Wilson of Campbellford. The Seymor East team, which is known as the Ontario Provincial Police entry, and proudly display the initials OPP on the front of their red and blue sweaters, were led out onto the ice for the start of their game by Provincial Constable Donald Erskine and Chief Wesley Hall of Havelock. These two men, who are both in the six-foot-plus class, contrasted greatly with the team's tiny three-year-old mascot, Bobby Reid. Dit Clapper took the little fellow for a skate around the ice, much to the delight of the mascot and the crowd.

Nobody bothered to tabulate the scores in the three short exhibition games that were played, because they didn't matter on Friday night. What did matter, is that a number of local men could take time from their own work to organize a hockey league that will give youngsters from 10 to 16 an opportunity that they might otherwise never have had, to learn to play Canada's national game the way it should be played, and to play it before a crowd consisting mainly of their own proud parents.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT—Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine, LEFT, and Chief Constable Wesley Hall of Havelock, RIGHT, with Mosco Bobby Reid, centre, lead the Ontario Provincial team from Seymour East on to the ice in the start of the Trent Valley Minor Hockey League season opening night at the Campbellford Community Centre on Friday night.—(W. Kidnap Manager Then Rob Safe

HULL, Que., Jan. 7 (CP)—Hull police spread a wide search today for two masked gunmen who late Sunday night kidnapped a theatre manager from his home, forced him to open the theatre safe and then escaped with $850 in cash.

In one of the most daring holdups in the Hull area, then men, both masked with handkerchiefs and one carrying a revolver, forced their way into the home of Rene Perrault, 30-year-old manager of the Cinema de Paris Theatre.

They forced Perrault to walk a block to their car, then drove him a mile to the theatre. There he was forced at gunpoint to open the theatre door and the safe containing the money.

Perrault was then tied to a chair with window-sash cord and the thugs departed with the money.

The manager managed to free himself five minutes later and called police.

11 Families Flee Burning Building

GLEN FALLS, NY, Jan. 7 (AP)—Eleven families fled a burning apartment house in their nightclothes in near-zero weather early today.

Many of the tenants were driven into the snowy street in bare feet in five-degree temperature.

Two firemen were injured.

The fast-spreading flames gutted the two upper floors of the three-storey frame building. The fire raged out of control for three hours.

The cause was not determined immediately. There was no estimate of damage.

Irate Nationalists Urge Provost Leave

GLASGOW, Jan. 7 (Reuters)—Irate Scottish Nationalists Sunday told Sir Victor Warren, Lord Provost fo Glasgow, to go to Canada—at their expense.

Latest manoeuvre in the feud with the official, it was their reply to his Liverpool statement of Dec. 22. Just back from a Canadian visit, he had told reporters he would like to see 1,000,000 Britons, half of them Scots, emigrate to new opportunities in Canada in the next two years.

Sunday's letter, from J. Allan McLay, general secretary of the Young Scots National League, said:

"Although we in the league are directly opposed to any scheme of emigration from Scotland, we note your goodwill message of the new year and in the same spirit offer to arrange a free passage (for you) to Canada at the earliest possible moment."

Engineer Dies

OTTAWA, Jan. 7—(CP)—Birger Leon, 65, one of Canada's leading architectural engineers and Chief of the Projects Division of the Department of Resources and Development, died in an Ottawa hospital Saturday. Will Accept Salary

VANCOUVER, Jan. 7 — (CP)—Mayor Fred Hume will no longer serve as Vancouver's chief magistrate at a salary of $1 a year. He said Saturday he will accept his full salary of $7,500 so that he can give it away whenever he sees fit. Mayor Hume last year gave all but $1 of his salary to a chartered fund for charity. But grants from the fund were subject to city council approval and "it ties me down too much," the mayor said.

Former Bishop Dies; Began In Port Hope

Missionary in Japan for 42 years and formerly Bishop of Mid-Japan, Rt. Rev. Heber James Hamilton, 89, died Friday at his home in Toronto. He began his career as a minister in Port Hope.

Born in Collingwood, he received his early education there, and later graduated in Arts from the University of Toronto. Articled to a Toronto law firm for a time, he relinquished law and entered Wycliffe College.

After his ordination in 1887, he was appointed to St. John's Church, Port Hope, and subsequently served as Dean of Residence for Wycliffe College.

To Japan

He joined the Wycliffe Mission and first went to Japan in 1892. In Japan he established a mission school for the blind that was eventually subsidized by the Japanese government, who also copied it later in building other schools for the blind.

As well, he built the first tuberculosis sanatorium in Japan's mountains. Formerly patients had been treated at sea level, and again the Japanese government was so impressed that it later built its own sanatoria in the mountains. Bishop Hamilton also founded the first kindergarten teacher training schools in Japan.

Bishop In 1912

He was first Bishop of Mid-Japan in 1912, when the diocese was formed. He retired in 1934, and saw his greatest wish fulfilled when Bishop Sasaki, a Japanese, succeeded him.

A member of the Church of The Messiah, Bishop Hamilton is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harold D. Warren. His wife died last March. Funeral service was held today at 3 pm in Toronto.

Funeral service was held December 19 in Vancouver and burial was in the family plot in Mountain View cemetery.

US Beef Comes To Canada First Time In 25 Years

TORONTO, Jan. 7—Beef was moving from the United States to Canada for the first time in at least a quarter of a century during the weekend. There were indications the movement will continue this week.

Shipments of both live and dressed beef moved into Toronto from Chicago as Canadian prices for some grades of beef moved above the level on the other side of the border. There were five carloads of live steers, destined for the Ottawa market, and some 20 carloads of dressed beef for Toronto, Hamilton and other Ontario points.

There seemed little likelihood that the importation of American beef would cause any drastic reduction in Canadian beef prices. Since Canadian prices are only slightly higher than those across the border, and since most of the beef brought in was commercial grade, there wasn't much chance of the imported meat underselling Canadian beef to any extent. Some branded beef was also brought in, but this, too, would be competing on a fairly even footing.

Beef Men Surprised

Beef men, buyers, drovers and producers were surprised as the usual beef movement was reversed, but they felt the switch was purely a temporary measure brought about by a number of factors. In a short period, they were certain, conditions would return to normal and beef would again move from Canada to the United States. As a matter of fact, while both beef and steers were being shipped here from Chicago, Canadian steers and beef were being moved to the States.

Light deliveries during the holiday season were given as one of the chief reasons for the change in the direction of cattle movements. Heavy snow in many areas had affected deliveries, prices for some grades of beef moved upward until they passed the price for the corresponding grades in the U.S., and the beef started moving to Canada.

"It's as simple as that," said one beef buyer.

The last time most men connected with the beef industry could remember similar sales of U.S. beef in this country was in the early 20's when American beef was sold on the prairies. The sales lasted about a week during a local scarcity, and the normal trade was resumed with Canada selling to American markets where prices are normally higher than in Canada.

Another slight benefit to be derived from selling to the United States as compared to buying beef from that country is in exchange on currency, although this is now a low figure. There is a duty of three cents per pound on beef going either way.

Temporary Situation

Ontario Livestock Commissioner W. P. Watson, said he expected the situation to be temporary, ending when in one way or another prices got back to their normal relationship.

When they recovered from the original shock of seeing the reversal in across-the-border sales, most men in the trade agreed that the weather and last year's bumper crops on Ontario farms had a lot to do with it.

Storms in rural areas held back the flow of much beef that would have moved to market around the holiday season. This, coupled with the heavy fowl sales, sent marketing of cattle to an all-time low during the latter part of December.

But the heavy crop of hay that Ontario farmers harvested last summer also played its part, as well as heavy crops of mixed grains and corn fodder. Farmers were well supplied with feed for their stock, and would hold out until their steers were well finished and the price was right. The better the finsh, the higher the per-pound return.

Other beef men had bought feeders at high prices in the fall and were waiting for a good price before selling in order to avoid a loss. In almost every instance they had sufficient feed on hand to wait until both the condition of the stock and the price level were right.

Reopen Church After Redecorating

COBOURG, Jan. 7—(ENS)—Refinished at a cost of $13,500, the interior of Calvary Baptist Church was dedicated Sunday night by Dr. N. H. Parker of McMaster University. The renovating of the church began last July. The old pews were taken out and new ones with centre aisling installed. An electric organ was also placed in the church, the front of the church was redesigned in a chancel effect, leaded glass windows were installed. Oaken floors were laid and the walls painted. Dr. N. S. McKechnie, former pastor of the church, presented a hand-made communion table, fashioned by himself. The present pastor, Rev. A. G. McDowell, came here in February of 1949.

Canadian Dollar Worth A Dollar

Canadians have a racial sensitivity about the value of their money. Their dollar can lick anybody's dollar, by gosh, and if it doesn't there is something the matter with the Government or with the United States. When the Canadian dollar has been formally depreciated, as it has been several times, to about 90 cents U.S., they have hung their heads or got angry. Why should the Americans come up here and be given—given, mind you—ten cents extra for every one of their green-backs. Worse, why should a Canadian dollar fetch only 90 cents or less when proferred across a counter in Buffalo?

* * *

This dollar sensitivity was assuaged a little when the Canadian dollar was put into the free market some time ago and the artificial value set by currency manipulators abandoned. But pride was still hurt, for in finding its own value in the face of U.S. dollars, the Canadian dollar rose only to about 95 cents. Canadians can now hold up their heads and stick their chins out. For the first time in twelve years—and actually in the free market without artificial puffing—the Canadian dollar has come so near being worth an American dollar that there is only a shaving's difference between them. Last Friday the Canadian dollar was traded in New York at 99.18¾ cents.

* * *

This is an outward sign of Canada's inward strength, as viewed through the microscopes of the New York Stock Exchange. It is a quotation mark around the good big year just past—the biggest industrially, financially and commercially that this country has ever had—and a direct result of the abolition last December of Canadian foreign exchange controls.

Corruption Issue In The U.S.

The surprising thing about the revelations of influence-peddling and gift-taking, and worse, throughout certain Federal agencies in the United States is that comparatively little action has been taken to clean house. With a Presidential election approaching, drastic action could have been expected, yet nothing on a scale which might counteract the reports of the scandals has yet been undertaken. There are indications, however, that certain Democrats are becoming increasingly alarmed over the effect of the scandals on the party's election fortunes and are pleading for immediate and large-scale action.

Although not officially reported, it is said that one bold move has been suggested by W. Averill Harriman, backed by Charles Murphy. Both men of high integrity, they want Attorney-General Howard McGrath ousted and Senator Estes Kefauver appointed to clean up the entire Department of Justice. The latter, of course, is well known for his highly-publicized crusade against crime in the United States, and he would seem ideally qualified for the task.

Something of this nature would certainly appear a wise course for the Administration to follow. It is highly unlikely that the investigations into the Internal Revenue structure and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will stop with those two bodies. They will probably extend to many other agencies and departments, two of the next most likely candidates being the Alien Property Custodian and Surplus Property. One way to attempt to counteract anything further that might be turned up would be a dramatic and drastic cleanup of the conditions already revealed in the two first-named agencies.

It is hinted that President Truman is not adverse to the appointment of Senator Kefauver—and the fact that the latter is now being mentioned as a possible Presidential candidate may have something to do with that. The only obstacle appears to be Mr. Truman's almost fanatical loyalty to his friends, but this may be in the process of alteration. He is reported to have said privately, not long ago, "I've always been loyal to my friends. But they haven't been fair to me."

Understatement, it seems, is not peculiarly a British characteristic.

Canada Will Lag In Applying Atomic Energy

At an atomic energy plant near Oxford, houses are being heated by controlled throw-offs from the plant. Now comes news from Britain that a two million dollar experimental atomic furnace may be built to produce heat and electrical energy for industrial and even domestic use. It is said that the furnace may take a year to build, and ten to make it work effectively. It will also take a great deal of money. However, the time is assuredly coming when atomic energy will be applied to industrial and domestic work. It may come soon—in a decade or so—in England.

Canada will lag behind Britain in this development, even though she may be in the forefront of atomic research. The reason is this. Canada has fuel and energy readily available. She will have tremendous reservoirs of it when all the work now in progress and projected work on hydro development is completed. Canada does not need to go to the expense of getting the heat and energy from furnaces.

If a man needs a cup of fresh water and can get it from dipping into a handy well, he does so. But if he is surrounded by salt water and can get it only by an expensive process of removing the salt, he is justified in the expense. Britain needs fuel and energy; her present resources are inadequate. So even if these are very costly when elaborately extracted from expensive basic materials, Britain should properly go to the expense of trying to get the power from atoms. Until atomic furnaces and the crude stuff that goes into their melting pots are as cheap and convenient as a Niagara, a St. Lawrence dam, or a Des Joachims, Canada will not elbow her way into the atomic heat and energy market for industrial and domestic uses.

The Leap Year Peril

Every time a Leap Year comes around there is a great deal of heavy facetiousness about the old custom which permits a woman to propose marriage to a man during its duration. This year we determined to track down the origin of the custom, if at all possible, and in our researches we were astonished to find that in 1288 a law was put in the statute books of Scotland which read thus:

> It is statut and ordaint that during the rein of hir maist blissit Megeste, for ilk yeare knowne as lepe yeare, ilk maiden ladys of bothe highe and lowe estait shall hae liberte to bespeke ye man she likes, albeit he refuses to taik hir to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum ane pundis or less, as his estait may be; except and awis gif he can make it appeare that he is betrothit ane ither woman he then shall be free.

A few years later a similar law was passed in France, and later still it was law in the city-states of Florence and Genoa.

Although a great deal is said about this Leap Year custom now, we have never heard of an actual case in which a woman proposed marriage to a man in consequence of it. Cases in which women propose to men are by no means uncommon, of course, and we suggest that they might fittingly become commoner still, but Leap Year never seems to enter into the matter.

We have a theory of our own, which some amateur anthropologists may wish to comment upon: we think that the Leap Year custom may be a very old survival from the earliest civilizations of which we have any knowledge; those civilizations wer matriarchies, ruled by women and worshipping female gods; the change of emphasis which put the male sex into possession of ruling power, and gave rise to male gods, is comparatively recent; may the Leap Year custom be a survival, permitted by men, from the days when all proposals of sexual union were made by women?

Mrs. Green's Recitals

This evening at 9:30 o'clock Agnes Logan Green begins a new series of radio recitals. The broadcasts are sponsored by this newspaper. The Examiner takes pleasure in again being able to present this distinguished Peterborough pianist to local radio audiences. It is the seventh successive year in which The Examiner has brought Mrs. Green's charming and greatly accomplished musicianship to radio audiences. There will be eight Monday evening programs over CHEX, devoted to classical and modern pianoforte music.

It is our belief that discriminating ears appreciate both her repertoire and her command of the instrument; and our expectation that all discerning listeners will be pleased by her sensitive interpretations and thoroughly enjoy the range and richness of her programs. Fine music well played is a delight to any ears, and a cultivation of civilized minds and hearts.

Who's Snooty?

We are amused by a letter which appears in the columns of this week's issue of Time; it is from L. G. Pine, the Managing Editor of Burke's Landed Gentry, an ancient and honourable publication. Mr. Pine objects to an error of fact in some remarks Time made about Burke's L.G.; he also objects to the statement in that magazine that he works in "a rickety office in Fleet Street"; he works, it appears, in an office building about fifty years old.

Our amusement springs from a clash of snobberies. Presumably Time thought it could be nasty about Burke's Landed Gentry because it is a record of distinguished families—something which is, in American eyes, undemocratic and therefore to be scorned. And in its mockery it revealed a typical American snobbery, for it sniffed at a building which was not as new, as glossy, as nervously in the modern mode, as its own place of publication.

When British and American snobberies clash, nations on the sidelines may chuckle.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

ONE of the strangest things in life is the small amount of time that we give to asking ourselves why we do things. Whether we are butchers, bakers, or candle-stick makers we are content for most of the time to plod along at our chosen avocation. In parenthesis I might mention that I use the word "chosen" advisedly: if we do not ourselves choose our life-work it is chosen for us by others. On the rare occasions that we devote to examining the motives for our actions we not infrequently make crude or even false diagnoses, due to lack of practice or else that ineradicable human love of self-deception. Again, our original motives change with the passage of the years and are forgotten and replaced by new ones. This is true also of our pleasures and pastimes. If we cannot even be trusted to explain ourselves, how can we possibly understand the nature of that daemon that was ever goading Schubert into scribbling symbols, whose expression in sound he was fated never to hear?

✧ ✧ ✧

LET us examine our minds about music. If we hold that our pleasure in it is limited to a tickling of the ear it certainly seems odd that many men of brilliant intellect (and not all of them musicians) could think it worth their while to dedicate so much time and attention to such a trivial pursuit. On the other hand, to try and trace meanings and correspondence in music is a task that has resulted in volumes of nonsense and a good deal of more or less inspired speculation. As I see it music is intimately connected with the life of man, his joys and sorrows, his fads and fashions. It is an indispensible part of the complete man. Music has meaning, but the essence of that meaning is too subtle to be expressed in words: that is why music exists. As Mendelssohn said, music begins where words leave off.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT seems that Wagner's fame is still in temporary eclipse amongst the intelligentsia. Admittedly Wagner the man was one of the nastiest pieces of work that ever lived, though nearly everybody who met him came under the spell of his personality. Completely self-centred and self-righteous, he was a liar, a sponger and a hypocrite. He specialized in the art of seducing the wives of his best friends. But what a consummate genius! If the pygmies who criticized his music had a tithe of his gifts they would be world-famous. Before we fall into the vulgar error of condemning Wagner's music on account of the irregularity of his life we would do well to ponder the wise words of Donald Tovey in his book on Beethoven. He says, "To study the lives of great artists is often a positive hindrance to the understanding of their works; for it is usually the study of what they have not mastered, and thus it undermines their authority in the things which they have mastered. To undermine that authority is an injury much more serious than any merely professional technicality. Even if the works of art show characteristics closely resembling the faults of the author, we have always to remember that the business of the work of art is to be itself, whereas neither the science of ethics nor the structure of society can thrive for long on the denial that it is the duty of a man to improve himself. We must not impute it as a defect in Wagner's aesthetic system that his music dramas tend to glorify irresponsibility, or at all events to remove from his heroes and heroines, even by means as crude as magic potions, every hindrance to the attainments of their desires."

✧ ✧ ✧

HAVING disposed of those why try to "get at" Wagner's music by way of his personality as a man we come to those who have a vague idea that Wagner had something to do with the Nazi movement. In view of the fact that Wagner died six years before Hitler was born this is an obvious case of putting the cart before the horse. Wagner was a German nationalist, but so also was Brahms, who wrote a Song of Triumph, consisting of a setting of words from the Revelation of St. John for eight-part chorus, orchestra and organ ad lib. to celebrate the German victory in the Franco-Prussian war. Yet Brahms is cleared of any suspicion of nazification. As for Wagner's anti-semitism there is, I fear, nothing specificially Nazi about it. Anti-semitism has flourished in central Europe and other places ever since the Middle Ages and is still by no means dead. Presumably it will not die out entirely until the last Jew has gone back to Palestine or else become "absorbed" by inter-marriage into the rest of the Gentiles. Strangely enough it is now generally held that Wagner's father was in reality a certain actor named Ludwig Geyer, himself a Jew!

✧ ✧ ✧

THE final criticism of Wagner is levelled at his operatic theories. I will ignore those who primly disapprove of opera altogether as a "bastard art": on the same grounds Shakespeare's plays should be deemed inadmissible because of the numerous songs and musical effects to be found in them. Les chiens aboient, la caravane passe: like other unlawful offspring the opera as an art form is still alive and kicking. We shall therefore disregard the thin-lipped purists. There still remain the Verdists; who in their enthusiasm for Italian opera to refuse to grant any excellence to German opera. They should remember Kipling's dictum to the effect that there are several ways (I forget exactly how many) of composing tribal lays, and every single one of them is right. Where Wagner erred (o felix culpa!) was in shifting the focus of attention from the singers to the orchestra. In order to do this he had to revolutionize the art. Instead of the old recitative and aria he wove the whole opera into one gigantic symphonic conception. Only a Wagner could carry it off. His numerous imitators are all as dead as doornails. Yet opera has never been the same since Wagner. Even Verdi underwent his all-pervading influence in his last operas, though there is no question of him surrendering his own very marked personality.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONCE again here is an opportunity for young composers, though I am somewhat loth to mention it. The outlook for composers in this modern world is pretty bleak, as it has nearly always been, and it would seem to be an act of sheer cruelty to encourage young men and women to take up composition as their life-work. Surely it would be kinder to surround them with almost every form of discouragement. If all these fail it may be that they really have something to say, and their case is hopeless. If any of my readers of either sex under the age of twenty-two happens to nurture ambitions in this direction they should enter the competition sponsored by the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada, Ltd. The closing date is the 31st of March 1952 and the winner is entitled to a scholarship of $750.00. A memorandum of rules and entry form are obtainable from the Association's office, 132 St. George St., Toronto. I also have one copy which I shall be pleased to forward to the first applicant. Whoever goes in for this competition as a result of reading this article, I wish them good luck. If they fail to make a livelihood until they are too old to enjoy it I can only say that I told them so.

Letters To The Editor

HICTORICAL ASPECT OF PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION

Sir: Saturday's editorial on "Progressive Education" would lead one to believe that it is the brain-child of radical psychologists. History does not support such a thesis.

"Progressivism" had its inception in the writings of Rousseau and Frobel, both of whom believed in self-expression and the subordination of the curriculum to the child. Their disciple, Parker, implemented their ideas in the schools of Quincy, Massachusetts by tearing out the partitions in logical organization of the curriculum, abolishing rigid grading, eliminating formal examinations and reports, and by instituting a rather informal discipline. All this occurred before Educational Psychology as such had come into being.

Partly due to the outstanding results when Quincy pupils were tested by traditional-type examinations some years later, and because the movement was promoted by such dynamic philosophers as Dewey and Kilpatrick, expressionism and activism gained impetus and had a great influence on American Education. It was Dewey who asserted that the aim of Education was in the process; that matter and method could not be divorced; and who believed that the "root of all educative activity is in the instructive, impulsive activities of the child, not in the application of external material".

Because the faculty theory of Education, supported by such men as Bagley and Hutchins, would not stand up to rigorous, scientific analysis is no reason to malign psychologists —any more than you would blame the doctor who discovered you had cancer.

OBJECTIVITY.

ED. NOTE: This newspaper has no quarrel with psychologists or advocates of progressive education. It is opposed to fakery disguised as psychology, and to any system of education which produces demonstrably poor results.

EX-PATIENTS NOT UNGRATEFUL

Sir: Will you please give me a little space in your paper to reply to the tired nurse at Civic Hospital.

First I would like to assure the lady on one point, and that is her ex-patients are not ungrateful. I think I speak for a large percentage of patients when I say that we are very appreciative of all that has been done for us by the nursing staff during our enforced stay in hospital. Also I would like to say that we, who have experienced the many kindnesses shown us by the nurses of Civic Hospital, many of them 'beyond the line of duty', do not attach any blame to the nursing staff for the too high cost of operation of our very wonderful hospital.

I have had ten weeks experience in a private room—now $10.00 per day, $70.00 per week and am therefore qualified to speak as an ex-patient, and not merely as a visitor. The following remarks are the result of my own observations.

In the lobby we have a charming lady at a desk to direct visitors to the rooms they wish to visit. This is very efficient, but is it necessary? Why not just a student nurse at this desk for the few hours it is occupied? It would be good training for the student nurses and they could be rotated for this duty. This would save the salary of a receptionist, also a nurse's uniform would be more in keeping with the building and its purpose.

The cleaning staff is far from efficient. A look at the bathrooms and the corners of the rooms is sufficient proof of this. Recently the Board of Managers paid a substantial sum of money to be advised to reduce the housekeeping staff. A reduction of staff without an increase in efficiency will not improve the situation.

It would be interesting to have an analysis and a comparison of the administration staff, say for the year, 1951, with a corresponding year at the old Nicholls Hospital when Mrs. Leeson was superintendent and purchasing agent, and also took a very active part in the training of the nurses. This comparison, by patient hours, or perhaps the average number of patients throughout the year, as compared with the year 1951, might prove quite interesting. A comparison of the number of personnel on the nursing staff, Supervising Staff, Administration and Accounting Staff for the same periods might be enlightening. It seems to me, as a taxpayer and an interested ex-patient that the hospital is top-heavy with people to tell the worker (nurses) what to do and that there are not sufficient of them to do the work as efficiently as it should be done. I can fully agree with the discouraged nurse that the overtime if recorded would surprise many people.

The outstanding accounts seem to be amazingly high. Probably part of it is due to accounts to be paid by Blue Cross and other organizations, but there must be quite a number of private accounts not paid promptly. Otherwise it would not be necessary to appoint (recently) a man whose chief duty—and all I know about this is what I read in the papers—is to collect overdue accounts. This seems to be an unnecessary expense and is quite in addition to an already too high overhead.

I would like to hear someone else express an opinion on this subject.

As a patient I have waited as long as three quarters of an hour for the attention of an orderly, at times there would be only one on the floor. Does this sound like overstaffing?.

I would like to repeat to the correspondent and to the whole nursing staff that they are fully appreciated by their patients and we do wish for them fair treatment, and we also wish them a Very Happy New Year.

GRATEFUL PATIENT.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And he spake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint; saying, There was in a city a judge, which feared not God, neither regarded man: and there was a widow in that city; and she came unto him, saying, Avenge me of mine adversary. And he would not for a while: but afterward he said within himself, Though I fear not God, nor regard man; yet because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me.

And the Lord said, Hear what the unjust judge saith. And shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto him, though he bear long with them? I tell you that he will avenge them speedily. (Luke 18: 1-8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil. And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?...

But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear. (1 Pet. 3: 12, 13, 15.)

Let Us Not Be "Superior"

(Le Canada, Montreal)

When it is thought desirable to undertake a necessary reform in Canada—especially in the province of Quebec—there is generally some mix-up to contend with. To the difficulties inseparable from the nature of things and to existing conditions, an artifcial and most inextricable barrage exists. Yet have not one-tenth the handicaps and other disadvantages of Europe, the divisions and difficulties of which often scandalize us. We are not borne down by the consequences and memories of several wars; we are not smothered on this continent or in this country. Providence has given us what other countries have fought about for centuries; natural wealth so great that if it were necessary we could be self-sufficient; space so great that three-quarters of Canadians die without ever having seen their country; a real political independence and an economic economy broken up by the force of circumstances; the heritage of two of the richest cultures of western civilization. In these circumstances if we cannot manage to understand one another and live in relative happiness why should we turn up our noses at the miseries and divisions of Europe?

According To The Radio!

(Toronto Financial Post)

Davidson Dunton, chairman of CBC, has said that he wants to pipe in fewer programs from the United States. Well he might. Consider what happened the other day over his network on the quiz program "Strike It Rich", brought in from NBC.

A fortune-seeking young lady on the program had just won $195. She decided to risk $190 of it on the next question. If she got the answer she'd win $385. If she muffed it she would still have $5.

Came the question. "Of what country is Nova Scotia a province?"

No answer.

"Come on", coaxed the quiz-master. "This is easy. You know, up there where Halifax is; where the boats sail from."

The contestant took a wild stab at it. "England", she said.

"I'm s-o-r-r-y", oozed the quiz-master. "It's Canada."

Then the mysterious voice that every once in a while breaks in on this program came on the air. "I'm afraid we'll have to give her the $385 because she really was right. After all, Canada is part of England."

Fake Pictures Make Truman True English Gentleman

LONDON, Jan. 7 — (AP) — A British clothing journal has urged President Truman to come on over and get himself properly dressed—like an English gentleman.

The journal even faked some pictures to show how he would look when the London tailors got through with him. And brother, wait'll they see him back home in Independence, Mo.—especially in that outfit with the derby and rolled umbrella.

The journal, Cloth and Clothing, said it would be "quite easy to be rude" about Truman's present taste in haberdashery, and said he was "the worst dressed man in Madame Tussaud's wax works."

One of the journal's composite photographs of the ideal Truman shows him garbed as an English squire, in a sports jacket, breeches and riding boots. The expression on the face is definitely sheepish.

In an accompanying article, British style expert Roger Berkeley admitted that from the American point of view the cut and quality of Truman's present wardrobe are excellent.

"But generally," Berkeley went on, "his jacket sleeves are too long. For a President, he is rather too informal in his choice of dress. Often he wears clothes of too big a contrast—dark overcoat with light sutis and hats, for instance."

And his cravats?

"His neckwear, I feel, is flamboyant, particularly those bow ties, which tend to shorten the neck.

"Mr. Truman's neck," Berkeley concluded, "is rather short already."

Guerrilla Fight Stepped Up

Fighting In Malaya Takes Dangerous Turn

By FRED HAMPSON

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya, Jan. 7 (AP)—Communism's fight for Malaya has been stepped up since the ambush killing of high commissioner Sir Henry Gurney 50 miles north of here Oct. 6.

It took a dangerous turn when Communists terrorized 8,000 workers into staying away from 16 big rubber plantations in the state of Negro Sembilan.

But men who have been fighting the Red teror in Malaya for three years says things look a little worse now than they really are.

Communism is trying to win Malaya by a terrorist war which the Reds themselves divide into three phases.

The first is guerrilla warfare, the second is setting up of "liberated areas," the third is the final capture of the nation and government.

The war still is in the first stage.

Nothing New

There is nothing new in the blueprint. It's the same one the Chinese Communists used. But there are differences here which may make the blueprint harder to follow.

The biggest difference is the lack of any nationalism in this war. In the other wars of Asia the Communists manage to make it look as though the nationalistic and patriotci people are on their side. Even though Malaya still is a colonial country where the white man still rules the local populace are against the Reds.

At least 90 per cent of the Chinese are as much against this rebellion as Britain because law-abiding Chinese are the main victims of the war.

Tied Together

Though they lack a central base, the Red terrorists are tied together. A nucleus of some 3,500 men are rated as members of the 'Malayan Races Liberation Army', an obvious effort to ring in the other races.

Party members are estimated at 4,000 or so, which probably includes most of the army. All told, the 'Activists'—guerrillas, working politicos, soldiers and all—runs upward of 5,000.

Against this slippery enemy the British and Federation forces have fought for more than three years, at present with some 150,000 men for all services.

Air-Sea Rescue Set-Up World's Largest

By H. L. JONES

OTTAWA (CP)—Across broad expanses and along rocky coasts, Canada operates the world's most highly-organized and far-flung air-sea rescue service.

The search and rescue organization can send scores of planes into the air within minutes of an alert. It can send rescue boats to sea. It can bring aid by trained para-rescue teams to victims of a hinterland plane crash or starving miners lost in the bush.

Mercy missions extend anywhere from the frozen north to ships at sea. It is credited with saving many lives, sometimes in dramatic fashion, sometimes in small jobs heard about only locally.

The RCAF provides the planes and communications and co-ordinates the searchers. But search and rescue also can call on the facilities of the navy, the army, the government departments of transport, fisheries, resources and the RCMP.

Search and rescue costs millions a year. In 1949-50 the budget totalled $2,289,688. In 1950-51 it was $3,147,575. For 1951-52 it is $3,860,623 and this figure is expected to be exceeded because this has been a major year in the rescue business.

Recurring aircraft disappearances in the north brought recent proclamation of new regulations. Civil planes will henceforth be required to file flight plans giving complete itinerary details of northern flights and carry survival equipment for each person aboard. The equipment will include food, sleeping bags, tents and the like.

After July 1 next year each such civil plane must have either a two-way radio or a portable emergency transmitter. Changes in flight plans enroute must be reported to the nearest air station.

Incorporated In Act

The reuglations are being embodied in the Aeronautical Act which provides penalties up to a $5,000 fine or a year in jail for breaches.

They will apply to flights by civil planes into areas north of the St. Lawrence River as far as Quebec City, to the north of the Canadian National Railway's line through northern Ontario and to the northerly part of the prairie provinces and the northwest territories. The northern parts of British Columbia and Vancouver island also are included.

Civil plane owners, whether resident or tourist, must purchase their own equipment.

But transport department officials said search and rescue will go into action to search for any lost plane, whether it is properly equipped or not.

In 1949 search and rescue planes flew more than 3,600 hours on 213 operations. They ranged all the way from dropping insulin to an ailing passenger on a snow-bound British Columbia train, to parachute rescue aid for distressed fliers.

The following year mercy planes flew 4,667 hours on 252 operations. In 1951 they logged a total of 7,100 hours, or almost 300 days of flying. When all records are available this promises to be the biggest rescue year since the organization was set up in 1946.

Search and rescue funds came from RCAF appropriations. No dollars-and-cents accounting as such is kept for each search. But on the factors of planes pushed into the air and hou flown, "Operation Mike" probably was the organization's biggest job.

This was the massive hunt for a US Air Force C-54 transport which disappeared on a flight from Alaska to Great Falls, Mont., in January, 1950, with 34 passengers and a crew of eight. It was believed to have crashed in the Yukon and Canadian and American planes spent a combined total of 3,000 hours in the air search. But no trace of the C-54 was found.

Barilko Search

One of the biggest searches involving only RCAF planes was the hunt for Bill Barilko, Toronto Maple Leaf hockey player, and his hunting companion, Dr. Henry Hudson. They went missing on a flight in northern Ontario in August, 1951.

Search and rescue flew six planes including a helicopter, a total of 1,354 hours without result. Some sources estimated this search alone cost $265,000, but air force officials said they could not confirm the figure.

Another extensive search in 1951 was for northern bush pilot Henri Bourassa. He disappeared on a flight in the far northwest between Bathurst Inlet and Yellowknife, NWT, in May. Search planes droned over the forbidding country for 574 hours and finally located Bourassa's plane on a mountain side. There was no trace of the flier.

Another phase of the search was begun, extending for weeks without success. Finally search and rescue gave up with the log-book comment: "No results for search for pilot who had commenced to walk out."

Crash victims who are unhurt should never leave the scene of the crash. Search and rescue officials say their chances of being found are 100-per-cent better if they remain at the scene, sending up whatever signals are possible.

It was also in May that an RCAF Dakota crashed on a cross-country navigation flight out of Goose Bay, Labrador. After a number of search planes had logged 1,263 hours in the hunt, the Dakota was located 60 miles from the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It was a wreck.

Search and rescue's work isn't all just hunting for lost planes. Mercy flights play a big part in operations. The 1951 log book records the evacuation of 13 tuberculosis patients from Frobisher Lake on Baffin Island for hospital treatment. Another entry dated Quesnel, BC, says simply: "Premature baby evacuated to hospital when civilian operators could not handle job."

Aid Ships At Sea

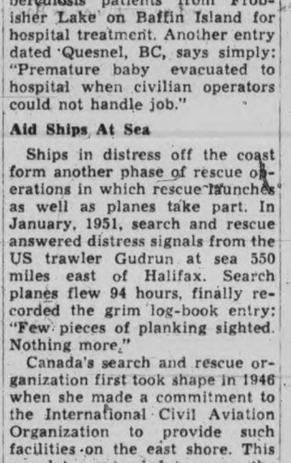
Ships in distress off the coast form another phase of rescue operations in which rescue launches as well as planes take part. In January, 1951, search and rescue answered distress signals from the US trawler Gudrun at sea 550 miles east of Halifax. Search planes flew 94 hours, finally recorded the grim log-book entry: "Few pieces of planking sighted. Nothing more."

Canada's search and rescue organization first took shape in 1946 when she made a commitment to the International Civil Aviation Organization to provide such facilities on the east shore. This was later extended to cover the west coast and Canada herself took on the responsibility of extending the organization across the country.

Search and rescue operates on a 24-hour-a-day basis. It has five rescue co-ordination centres at Halifax, Trenton, Ont., Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver, each responsible for a huge area. Thirty-four planes of various types and 10 high-speed launches specially-equipped for the work are maintained as "primary facilities".

There are 42 specially-trained para-rescue personnel including four nursing sisters and 11 trained ground search and rescue parties of 10 men each. Also available are the facilities of the navy on both coasts as well as inland, the army, the RCAF, the RCMP and government departments which have stations and equipment across the country.

Once a plane is unreported for 30 minutes a "state of uncertainty", is declared and the organization prepares planes and men. This is followed by a "state of alert" after which a search is begun.



Once it starts the real job of the co-ordination centres begins. Reports come from farmers, police and others in the search area and all this information has to be checked and cross-checked.

How long an unsuccessful search is maintained depends on a number of factors. Elapsed time, conditions of the country and chances of survival all are considered.

The guiding rule of search and rescue is that human life cannot by measured in dollars and cents. While there is any hope at all, the search goes on.

Oddfellows Down Kingston By a 7 to 4 Decision In Nifty Junior Puck Game

Oddfellows scored a thrilling 7-4 victory over Kingston Vics Saturday night in the Limestone City to take a firmer hold on third place in the Central Ontario junior "B" hockey standing, three points ahead of the battling Kingston crew. Coach Johnny Godfrey smiled broadly as he plunked a hand over the sweaty mane of Don (Darky) Bigford, who played the game of his life along with Army Armstrong and Don Clapper back of the blueline, in a great defensive showing.

Oddfellows' passing plays were well-nigh perfect as they skated M. Jackson's crew dizzy throughout and save for a slight lapse late in the second frame when Vics tallied thrice on a late spurt, they held command all the way. It was the finest display of the season for Oddfellows, and their first road victory.

Speedy Game

Play opened fast on the large ice surface and Oddfellows clicked as the Lakefield line of Bill Twist, Gord Coyle and Kevin Heffernan, sped down the ice. The latter took a neat pass from Coyle, skated over the blue line and whistled a singer high into the twine from well out to fool Gourdier and give Links a spark. Vics fought back hard and 15 minutes of close competition followed as both goalies turned aside hard drives from all angles. Finally, late in the frame, Don Clapper slapped in a passout near the left crease from Ferguson and Robinson for Links.

Spurting fire in the second period, the flying Godfreyites flew hither and yon, passed like the Rangers of yesteryear, with coolness and precision and by half time had taken a 5-0 lead over the weary but game men of Jackson. Leo Sullivan started it with a close in drive from big Bill Stewart; then Army Armstrong, on possibly the best goal of the night, smacked in a perfect two-way pass from McCracken and Stewart. Bill Stewart, who shared point-honors with Red Robinson at three apiece, next broke clear down the wing to backhand a beauty past Gourdier.

Vics Fight Back

Kingston came to life at this point and by dint of some hard play by Wilson, Reid, Bob Vallur, Don Senior, Ed Birchall and Maurice Chevrefils, managed to tally three in the final minutes of the mid-frame. Vics also tallied early in the third to threaten Links as Senior beat Wasson early on a fast backhander close in. But Oddfellows were not to be denied in the fastest period and they stormed back to further lengthen their margin on brilliant goals by Ferguson from Buckton and Robinson, and a final clincher by the elusive red-head, at the 13-minute mark.

It was a clean, hard-fought game throughout with but six penalties by Referee Barrett, evenly divided. Oddfellows' scoring power was well distributed. Kingston tried hard, but the better team won on the play.

Good Golfers Said To Make Best Curlers

QUEBEC, Jan. 7 (CP).—Good golfers make the best curlers, the experts will tell you.

Quebec district golfers, some well known across Canada, will get a chance to prove this point this week in district playoffs preceding the Quebec Provincial and the International Granite Bonspiels.

Play starts today in the week-long distance playoffs with top-notch golfers on all foursomes.

Rodolphe Huot, Royal Quebec Golf Club pro., and Gaston Amyot, another links expert, will represent the Jacques Cartier Curling Club.

Adjutor Dussault, Herb Hatch, Ray Benoit, Marcel Blouin and other low-handicap golfers will be part of two Quebec winter club quartets.

Run Off Together

Playoffs will be run off simultaneously in 10 provincial districts to select squads for the Quebec 'spiel starting Jan. 23. The competition will be followed by the International Granite Bonspiel which each year attracts hundreds of curlers to this old capital.

Curling experts claim that a golfer's swing is a great asset in placing the granites on the target. Sliding, the rocks is similar to a golf drive, they say.

The international 'spiel will start Jan. 27 with 120 foursomes from all parts of Canada and the United States.

Delay Action On Oshawa Ball Application

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 7 (CP). — Anti-price fixing and threat of a depression hold no fears for the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

Ontario's top amateur baseball group, at its annual meeting on Sunday approved the importation of six American players a club and increased the minimum general admission to each park from 60 to 75 cents.

In a stormy two-day session, delegates spent much time on the pros and cons of joining the Association of Minor Professional Baseball Leagues. Faced with mounting payrolls, team owners decided to seek information on qualification as a Class E (semi-pro) league and Class C affiliation.

Six to Compete

Six of last year's seven teams assured the league they intended to compete again this coming season. St. Thomas, last year's seventh club, so far hasn't made up its mind to operate. Stratford, given a year's leave of absence last year and unrepresented at the meeting, was not expected to operate.

Oshawa Merchants, champions of the Ontario Baseball Association last season, applied for entry. Their application was held in abeyance until the Feb. 1 deadline for entries is passed.

A move to have the quota of American imports cut to three a team was defeated and an amendment, permitting six for each club was carried. If St. Thomas decides to stay in the league it will be permitted to import nine players. In the same motion it was agreed that United States players in the league in previous years would not be considered imports.

Martin Rolls 834

The Men's City Bowling League started off the New Year in swell fashion as Fred Martin of Bassel's served notice of better things to come in the yet young season with a neat triple of 834. Vern Ferguson, of Anthony's, dished up a 348 single that helped his mates take single game honors with 1,294 as McGillis' took pinnage with 3,461. Two shutouts were registered, one by default on failure by Kawartha Garage to put in an appearance. There were 6-0 counts for Madill and Post over Bond's Clothes and Bassel's over Kawartha Garage, besides 4-2 wins racked up by Clapper's, McGillis, Ted Moores, over their opponents Anthony's, Sunocos and De Laval respectively.

Other good scores registered included Vern Ferguson's triple of 831 (348 and 300), George Gimblett, Sr., 819 (343), Tic Caccacella 814 (304) and good single games by Claude Cornwell, 325, Fred Martin, 321, Ches Grant, 322, Ross Hopkins, 309, and Art Pilling, 304.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Hustling Hildy, a Cleveland cartoonist calls Ike Hildebrand of Cleveland Barons in the AHL. We've seen several clippings Bob Peirson has on Ike. The picture adds: "As a prize rookie, Hildebrand is fast gaining the popularity held last season by Wally Hergesheimer, now with Rangers." And the guy goes on to say that as a star in the rugged game of lacrosse, little Ike fears no one. The 155-pound rightwinger recently fired home the winning goal against Pittsburg Hornets, and he has compiled a record of a point a game so far in a stiff schedule. The AHL is just one step below the NHL, and Hildebrand is being given a good chance of copping the Rookie of the Year award, which carries a $600 prize with it.

* * * * * *

Lacrosse fans here will be pleased to learn that Ike is doing so well in the pro puck ranks. He was laboring right lustily with the Petes' Timbermen, on their road to a Mann Cup title, last summer when word came through that Cleveland had bought his hockey contract from the Pacific Coast League. He helped his lacrosse mates a lot toward the end of the season, especially in playoffs, but had to report for hockey training just before the Timbermen flew west to Vancouver for the big series. Don Ashbee had to leave then, also, to report to Buffalo, and Jerry Fitzgerald was called back to college. Ike will line up with the locals again next gutted-stick semester.

Hawks Playing Eagles

Belleville Hawks play the Eagles at 8.30 tonight in Civic Arena, an OHA senior "B" scheduled fixture. Standing now has Belleville tied on top with Petes, while Eagles and Kingston are tied right behind 'em. A swell race. That means that a Quinte win this eve would put Hawks alone in first place. Whereas a victory for Eagles would push Ned Vitarelli's hustlers up ahead of Kingston in the standing and right smack on the leaders' heels. So, they'll be giving it all they have in this one. At full strength, they should tame the Hawks after a tight tilt. They staged a great scrap against Petes to win Friday while shy several regulars, and it looks like it'll take a lot to stop them now. This game rates a big crowd.

* * * * * *

OHA clubs are reminded in a bulletin that they have till Feb. 10 to sign and register player., though all certificates should be sent in right away. It is pointed out that a player is to play for his nearest municipality which has a team entered in the OHA in his own municipality's category, if his own centre is not represented by a team for which he is eligible in the Association. That's why Oshawa boys can commute from there to play here and not be regarded as OHA imports. The bulletin also suggests that refs study up the rule on the delayed penalty and make sure before a game starts that the timers are sure how the rule works.

IOOF-ers Up To Form

Oddfellows strutted their stuff effectively in the Limestone City's large palais d'ice on Saturday to beat the Kingston Vics 7-4 and take a tighter grip on third place in their junior "B" race. The Godfrey gang came up with their best display to date, and especially in a defensive way. That is, goalie, defence and back-checking forwards. Don Bigford was plenty hot as were Army Armstrong and Don Clapper back of the blue line. All the forwards hustled, Bill Stewart and Red Robinson leading the attack. The IOOF-ers have been playing in-and-out hockey this season but lately are showing more "in" during their tussles and will go places yet ere schedule's end. They have the Vics here Friday in a "father and son" night. By the way, the IOOF hockey draw winners were: C. A. Sanders, Douglas Ford, Joan McCaig, Pete Ashby and Jack Worrall.

Trent Valley League pucksters resume action tonight on three fronts. Norwood goes to Stirling, Hastings to Lakefield, and Marmora to Havelock. They see action thrice weekly, the Wednesday tilts being: Stirling at Marmora, Lakefield at Norwood, and Havelock at Hastings. All games listed for 8.15 p.m., with 15 minutes grace allowed, though more time may be granted for unusual circumstances—such as car accidents en route to tussles, etc. Looks like a keen race till the middle of February, when playoffs commence. The TVL schedule will be run tomorrow.

Danny Poland clicked for three of Marlies' Sunday afternoon goals against Windsor and Parker MacDonald added three more. Bill MacFarland counted two and singletons went to Louis Bendo, Ron Ingram and Chuck Lumsden. Johnny Lumley and Bob Brown scored for the losers.

Saturday night Poland's hat-trick led Dukes to their win in Oshawa. Eric Nesterenko garnered two and singles went to Rod McElroy, Louis Bendo and Wally Maxwell. Tommy O'Connor spoiled the Toronto shutout.

CAHA Decides To Retain New Icing Rule

REGINA, Jan. 7—(CP)—The West scored a victory over the East at the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Delegates decided Sunday to retain the icing-the-puck rule passed at the annual meeting in Halifax last May. The vote was 12-11 with the 12 "for" all Westerners and the 11 "against" all Easterners.

This vote wiped out a decision made in an executive vote—13-10—in December to revert to the old rule.

The Halifax rule, the one now in effect, is that the puck must be carried over the defending team's blue line or passed over without reaching the goal-line.

The old rule allowed the puck to be fired into the end zone from just over the centre red line. This rule was in effect in the 1949-50 season and briefly in the east this season after the December executive vote.

To safeguard against recurrence of such reversals as that resulting from the December executive vote, delegates adopted a resolution that any changes in rules made at semi-annual or annual meetings must be retained unless two-thirds of the executive vote in favor of a change.

Can Use Old Rule

However, delegates granted the two major leagues the right to use the old rule. There was no opposition to the request that the old rule be used in the Quebec League and the Maritime League.

The Quebec League initiated opposition to the new rule and it was this action that culminated in the December executive vote.

Delegates also awarded Eddie Louttit to Flin Flon (Man.) Bombers of the Saskatchewan Junior League.

Originally Windsor Spitfires, a farm club of Detroit Red Wings of the National League, sought a transfer for Louttit. The CAHA approved Flin Flons refusal to accept a transfer. But later Louttit turned up as a player for Detroit Hettche in an international senior league.

The United States Amateur Hockey Association asked for a transfer and this, too, was turned down. Louttit refused to return to Flin Flon. The latter club then appealed to the CAHA.

Sunday's vote awarding Louttit to Flin Flon was unanimous.

The meeting also decided:

That no branch be allowed to make changes in the CAHA rules for branch purposes without the consent of the CAHA executive.

That any changes in rules made at the semi-annual or annual meetings be adhered to unless changed by a two-thirds vote of the executive. (This is designed to prevent an occurrence such as the recent change in the icing-the-puck rule.)

Lakefield Triumphs

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 7—(ENS)—In an EPL game here Saturday, Lakefield turned back St. Peter's 10-2. They took a 5-0 lead in the first frame on three goals by Henry and one each by McIlmoyle and Chittick. Henry also had an assist. Lakefield added three more in the second, Wilford scoring twice from Birch, and the latter adding a solo. It was more even in the third as the Saints sank two, Sheehan alone and then Vyse from Alberico. R. Calberry got one for Lakefield from Birch, and Henry tallied from McIlmoyle. Teams:

St. Peter's—Hickson, Bacon, Fairley, Conway, Vyse, Sheehan, Collins, Alberico, Killen, Longo, Crough, Dorsett.

Lakefield — Wasson, Sabatino, P. Calberry, Wanamaker, Birch, R. Calberry, Wilford, Henry, McIlmoyle, J Chittick.

Referees, A. Menzies and R. Chittick.

Bancroft Victors

BANCROFT, Jan. 7 (ENS). — By a score of seven to three Bancroft Pontiacs won a Hastings-Addington Hockey League game from Tweed in Bancroft arena on Friday night.

The game had been scheduled for Tweed but had to be transferred to Bancroft after Tweed's arena collapsed last Saturday night. About 350 fans including a large contingent from Tweed, saw the game.

For two periods it was nip and tuck with the score tied at 2-2 at the end of the first and 4-3 for Pontiacs at the end of the second. Then due to innumerable hefty body checks from Hattin and Stringer, in particular, the visitors weakened and Bancroft ran in three extra goals in the final period.

Scorers for Bancroft were Ted Maxwell (2), Norm Brough (2), Stringer, Delyea and G. Maxwell. Tweed's goals were by Sherry, Reid and McLaughlin. Of the eight minor penalties the Pontiacs collected six. Lineup:

Tweed: Goal, Courneyea; defence, Rupert and Graham; centre, Sherry; wings, Reid and Cole; alternates, Cotton, Rivers, McLaughlin, Robson, Thompson, Mitchell, Waite, Woods, Munley.

Bancroft Pontiacs: Goal, Young; defence, McAlpine and Stringer; centre, E. Brough; wings, Delyea and N. Brough; alternates, Dugald, Hattin, Ted Maxwell, Bruce, G. Maxwell, Stuckey, Green, Hogarth, D. Maxwell.

Referees: Fitzpatrick and Barrett of Belleville.

Harrison's Rink Captures Canada Packers' 'Spiel With Stenson Four Second

By HERB MARTIN

Bert Harrison, with the same rink with which he won the Ontario Colts competition last year, came through on Saturday with three wins to hold the Canada Packers Trophy for one year. President Fred Stenson, playing his district cup rink, was second, two points behind; Dr. R. Clark, with his British Consul rink was third; and G. Gable was the fourth three-game winner. B. White, Oshawa, the only visiting rink to reach the charmed circle, was high for two rinks and Ray Bacon's local rink came in for one-game winner.

From Outside

Augmented by rinks from Oakwood, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Smiths Falls and Oshawa, the Canada Packers bonspiel had a capacity entry.

Chairman Dr. M. McCartney started the boys off shortly after nine am with words of welcome.

The success of the bonspiel, in no small measure was due to the fine co-operation of the Canada Packers Co.. Manager Lionel Browne and his staff went a long way in making this event one of the outstanding bonspiels of the season. The Peterborough Curling Club, and especially the bonspiel committee, are grateful for their consideration and generosity. The trophy and the prizes were displayed in the club's lounge by the Canada Packers representative.

The co-operation of the curlers was all that could be desired and all these things go toward making any bonspiel a success.

Each rink played the usual three 10-end games and after the prizes had been presented the bonspiel came to a close shortly before midnight. Winners:

Peterborough, first (Canada Packers Trophy and each a curling statuette and two hampers of CPC products, donated by Canada Packers Co.)—W. Westsen, F. Allison, R. Whalan, B. Harrison sk.

Peterborough, second (each two hampers CPC products donated by Canada Packers Co.—Dr. H. Worton, F. McGavin, H. Baptie, F. Stenson sk.

Peterborough, third (each two hampers CPC products)—R. Collins, K. Bissett, V. Brown, Dr. R. Clark sk.

Peterborough, fourth (each two hampers CPC products) — D. Smith, P. Moore, L. Moore, G. Gable sk.

Oshawa, fifth (each a CPC ham)—M. Kirkham, O. Crawford, P. Michaels, B. White sk.

Peterborough, fifth (each a CPC ham—R. Buchanan, B. Mortlock, B. Board, R. Bacon sk.

Lindsay Kinsmen Defeat Hawks 4-3

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 7.—Lindsay Kinsmen strengthened their grip on first place in the OHA Junior B group here Saturday night by edging the second place Belleville Hawks 4-3. The loss marked the first setback of the season on home ice for the locals.

The Kinsmen took a 2-1 margin in the first period and each team tallied twice in the middle stanza. The Hawks pressed hard in the final 20 minutes but couldn't get the equalizer.

Gary Copeland, Ken Schenkel, Dave Lucas and Gord Deeth were the mark men for the winners. Hec Lalonde, Duke Doran and Pat Gilmour scored for the Hawks.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

I'm a little late in reporting this, but it happened New Year's eve. Dozing in front of the fireplace over a good but dull book, your agent was startled to see two extraordinary figures emerging from the woodsmoke.

"Something I ate, no doubt", I offered as an excuse to soothe a slightly-agitated mind. "Just couldn't be no such people."

For one was a very decrepit old gent, who looked to be on his last legs, the other a very young little fellow, and they were chatting away.

"Well, things were pretty fine while they lasted," said the Old Gent, who turned out to be 1951, preparing for his midnight departure. "I probably broke all records in my 12 months on earth."

"You broke a lot of people with high prices if that's what you mean" said the little fellow. "Everything was higher than a speculator's idea of a Grey Cup ticket's value."

For a mere child, this little lad seemed to be pretty well informed on sport topics. "I'm 1952" he announced "and I know my stuff" he added, briskly.

"If you're so smart" said the shaky old gentleman, who was plaintly on his last legs, "what are you going to do about things in your span on earth? You have a lot of Augean stables to clean up."

"Why all the emphasis on the cess-pools?" asked the moppet. "After all, if you buy a barrel of apples and find that a couple are rotten, that's to be expected. Everybody, including the boys in the writing business, seems anxious to stress the misdeeds, which are comparatively few, and overlook a lot of the good, clean decent sport, the real amateurism, the play-for-fun, which is the backbone of sport, really."

"What do you see for the future?" enquired the Old Boy, anxiously. "And hurry up. I got a date with a Man with a Scythe."

"There's a few things to which I'd like to devote my time" said the youngster.

"Speaking of time, I'd like to see overtime come back into hockey" quavered the Old Boy. "I think it would add a thrill to the game, and it would still the clamour of a lot of customers, who after all, are entitled to what they want. We might get away from a lot of tie games, that dotted my term."

What's the matter with tie games?" pertly enquired said Kid 1952. "Hockey is presented as a 60-minute game. A boxing match is usually listed for 10 rounds. A soccer game is 90 minutes. A football game is an hour. So is a basketball match. There's no overtime in these so why pick on hockey? With 70 games in the big league, there's hockey enough. I got more important things to attend to. I got to keep an eye on that hockey player Elmer Lach. At the rate he's going when he should be on the shelf, I'll have to hand him over to 1953. I see Rocket Richard breaking Nels Stewart's all-time League scoring record of 324 goals in my span on this round old earth. I'm getting ready to hear a growing clamour to change the Grey Cup playoff so the west too can get a look at this event. Play it in two games one in each of the cities represented is my idea.

I gotta see to it that there's a new heavyweight boxing champion. Jersey Joe Walcott is a nice old pappy-guy, but adds no inspiration to the game. That Rocky Marciano would be a good replacement. It looks like Detroit Wings and Toronto Leafs in the Stanley Cup final. McGill will finally win the Intercollegiate football title. The number of heavyweight wrestling champions will be cut to six. Losing hockey teams will blame television, tie games, and the weather for shrinking gate-receipts. Minor league baseball attendance will decrease again. The United States will win the track-field title at the Olympics at Helsinki, Russia will find an excuse to withdraw its athletes, but will claim that the Olympics were first staged n Russia, anyway, and Stalin will denounce the Games as capitalistic exploitation of the athletes. New York Giants will win the National League. The racing customers will wind up broke."

"You can bet on the last one" came a whisper from the Old Boy, as he vanished into thin air. "That's one bet you might win."

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

FLOYD CURRY'S GOAL late in the first period turned out to be the game winning tally recently as the Montreal Canadiens turned aside Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 and took over sole possession of second place in the National Hockey League race. Chicago Loses Two Games To Leafs, Rangers; Bruins Edge Canadiens 3-2

By The Canadian Press

As the weekend's two busiest National Hockey League clubs, Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins didn't have too much luck in the victory department. In a total of four appearances on foreign ice, the two cellar-dwelling teams managed to gain but one win, a 3-2 Boston Bruin Saturday night decision over second-place Montreal Canadiens. Sunday the fifth-place Bruins bowed to the Red Wings in Detroit while the Hawks blew leads to both Toronto and New York in their two games. The Maple Leafs edged them 2-1 Saturday while the Rangers came through with a 3-2 decision on Sunday.

Toronto's Saturday night victory moved them back into a second-place deadlock with the Canadiens while the Bruins climbed to within one point of fourth with their win over the Habs. However, the Rangers' Sunday night decision against Chicago widened the gap once again.

Jack Stoddard, the Rangers' recently acquired right winger made his first NHL goal an important one Sunday night. It gave the Blueshirts their 3-2 win over the Hawks.

Back In Game

Chicago took a 2-0 first period on goals by Jim Peters and Gus Bodnar. Reggie Sinclair put the Rangers back in the game in the middle session and the third was all New York as Eddie Slowinski opened for the Blues and then Stoddard came through with the winner at 9:36.

The Wings scored three times in the third period for their 4-2 Sunday win over Boston Bruins.

Gordie Howe opened the scoring for Detroit in the second and Dave Creighton evened it at 1-1 a few minutes later.

Ted Lindsay sent Detroit into a 2-1 third-period lead and Vic Stasiuk increased it to 3-1. Jack McIntyre made it 3-2 when he tallied Boston's second goal and with one minute left to play, coach Lynn Patrick pulled goalie Jim Henry, only to have the move backfire and Lindsay pop a loose puck in the empty net.

Saturday night in Montreal, lanky Lorne Ferguson scored twice in Bostons 3-2 decision over the Canadiens.

He opened the scoring in the second period, only to have Maurice Richard even it up five minutes later.

In Front Again

Johnny Peirson put the Bruins out in front once again in the third period and again the Habs tied it up 2-2 on Floyd Curry's goal. Ferguson's second goal broke up the game at 18:15 of the final period.

At Toronto, the Black Hawks took a 1-0 first period lead on Pete Babando's tally, but Harry Watson evened it up midway through the middle session. Danny Lewicki tipped Fernie Flaman's long drive at 12:08 of the final for the winning counter.

Only serious loss was suffered by Canadiens. Elmer Lach twisted his knee in the first period of the Montreal-Boston tussle and may be sidelined for a few games.

Biggest fight occurred in Detroit when Ted Lindsay and Bill Ezinicki began a brawl in the midst of the final period. Two Boston players climbed over the boards to join in.

Lindsay and Ezinicki got majors for fighting one of the boardhoppers—Ed Kryzanowski—was thumbed for a 10-minute misconduct.

There are no games scheduled tonight but Boston plays in Chicago tomorrow evening and Toronto is at New York Wednesday.

Trenton Wins First Game

BRIGHTON, Jan. 7—The RCAF Station Trenton Flyers made their Trent Valley Hockey League debut a winning one when they edged Wellington, 7-6, here Saturday night.

Most of the scoring was crammed into the third period, with the lads in blue tallying four times and the visitors blinking the red light on five occasions.

Chris Bowman with two goals and an assist, linemate Len Beatch, with a goal and three assists, and Nickie Sargent, with a goal and two assists, paced the Airmen to victory.

The line of Joe Lavender, Joe Scott and Austin Scott stood out for Wellington, and tallied five of their six goals.

Playing coach Joe Scott was the top point scorer, with three goals and a pair of assists, all garnered in the final period. Lavender, Austin Scott and Gassira accounted for Wellington's other tallies.

College Sport Code Revised

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7(AP)—Ten United States college presidents today buckled down to the tough chore of writing a strict code of intercollegiate athletics.

They hope to complete their job by tonight. But exactly what they have written down won't be made public immediately.

The report first will go to the executive committee of the American Council of Education. No date has been set for an executive committee meeting, but Dr. John A. Hannah, chairman of the special sports committee, said he hopes a meeting will be called immediately.

In addition to writing the report today, the committee was to hear from Ben Carnevale of the Naval Academy, representing basketball coaches, and Everett Barnes of Colgate, representing the baseball coaches.

At an earlier meeting the college presidents listened to the football coaches, and then decided that footbal games should be confined to the fall.

Their tentative conclusion: no football games after the last Saturday in November or, possibly, the first Saturday in December. Either date it would mean the end of post-season football bowl games if their recommendations are accepted.

Hornets Divide Weekend Tilts

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets continue to set the pace in the American Hockey League's western division although they split their weekend games.

They lost 5-3 to Providence Reds Sunday but won 3-2 over Cleveland Barons Saturday.

Hershey Bears, who downed Buffalo Bisons 7-1 Saturday and were idle Sunday, are tops in the league's eastern section.

In other Sunday games, Buffalo defeated Syracuse Warriors 6-5, Cleveland downed Cincinnati's Mohawks 4-1 and St. Louis Flyers shaded Indianapolis Capitals 3-2.

At Indianapolis, Cliff Simpson's goal in the third period gave St. Louis the decision.

It was the second goal of the evening for the veteran centre. He and Don Morrison had sent the Flyers ahead in the first period.

The Caps tied the score in the second period on goals by Frank O'Grady and Bert Hirschfeld.

BOBBY'S FACE mirrors sadness as playmate's puppy, Vicki, appears to whisper words of encouragement in his ear. Bobby, six-year-old son of Mrs. Mirdza Liepins, of San Francisco, is dying of a malignant brain tumor, doctors say. The youngster is paralyzed from the waist down and his mother says, "It is just a matter of time."

Research Council Expects Covered Wide Field In '51

OTTAWA, Jan. 7 — (CP) — Canada's National Research Council roamed widely through the universe of science in 1951. Its experts reached into fields as varied as analyzing the air of distance planets, producing new atomic materials and developing better anti-freeze for car engines.

The council, government agency for co-ordinating scientific studies, summarized its 1951 work in a year-end statement today, and it indicated defence and defence production were in the forefront of its activities. But the versatile scientists of the council ranged into many other areas.

On the atomic front, the council announced the discovery of two new isotopes—radio-active particles useful in industry and medicine—at the Chalk River pile. These were "Calcium-41" and "Actinium-229," which have a radio-active "half-life" respectively of 120,000 years and 66 minutes.

Whether practical uses have been found for the new isotopes was not indicated.

Concentrate On Research

In its defence work, the council concentrated largely on aeronautical, building and radar research. For supersonic aircraft development, the council put into operation a wind tunnel with air speeds up to five times the speed of sound.

In the field of radar, the council reported progress—without disclosing details—on its application to artillery fire control and in the detection of aircraft. It said a new design of a medium-range radar used in the Second World War now is going into large-scale production.

With the defence of the North growing in importance, the council continued studies on the best means of building in that area. No specific findings were reported but the council said plans are being made for a "permafrost" research station at an unnamed location.

In the field of applied biology, NRC scientists came up with some food discoveries.

One was a new method of making citric acid from sugar-beet molasses. Another was a means of improving the flavor-retaining qualities of some vegetable oils, though the council noted this was at the expense of some of the nutrition value.

Railway shippers of food will benefit from a few other developments. Construction changes in refrigerator cars' ice bunkers and air-circulation systems will drop their temperature by five degrees. The council said the railways have adopted the innovation.

In its chemistry studies, the council brought out a rain-repellant paint for airplane windscreens that already is outselling available production. It worked on fire-resistant paints, moth-proofing of fabrics and the improvement of anti-freeze.

Probing the heavens in the interests of "pure" science, the council's astro-physicists studied, among other things, the atmospheres of the far-off planets Uranus and Neptune. They found hydrogen is abundant in them. Another continuing study was that of the cosmic-ray bombardment of the earth, still largely a mystery to the scientists.

Canadian Doctor Jailed Over 85c Debt

HONG KONG, Jan. 7— (Reuters)—A Canadian mission doctor said Sunday he was sentenced to 10 months' imprisonment in Communist China for evading an 85-cent tax on supplies he sent to missionaries.

The doctor, 52-year-old Stewart Allen of 4508 St. Catherine St., Montreal, was supervisor and surgeon at the United Church of Canada's hospitl at Chungking.

Allen, who has been in China since 1928, said that in December, 1950, he was asked to attend a meeting attacking Warren Austin, US United Nations delegate.

His appearance at the meeting was applauded until the Communists found out he was not there to attack Austin. They then forced him to kneel for four hours while pro-Communist members of his staff hurled accusations at him.

Accused of Spying

Allen was accused of spying, maintaining relations with Chiang Kai-shek's Government, criticizing the Communist regime, oppressing the Chinese people and mistreating patients.

Two days later he was arrested and held in solitary confinement until last August, when he was brought before a Communist court.

There he was charged with concealing hospital supplies and evading taxes. Allen told the court he had tried to see Communist authorities about hospital supply distribution, but was turned down. The failure to pay tax was pure oversight.

He was returned to prison until October, when the court sentenced him to be expelled from China. He was then held under house arrest until the Communists escorted him to the Sino-British border near here Dec. 28.

Hugh F. Waddell Sworn In As New Mayor In Impressive Ceremony

Former Peterborough Mayors Present Among Large Number Attending Inauguration In Chambers

City council entered upon its new duties for 1952 this morning in its full inheritance of new symbolism and atmosphere of dignity suffused by the stately appointments of its chamber. Under the attractively colored heraldic shield above the dais, Mayor Hugh F. Waddell was invested with the golden chain of office by Mr. Gordon Monkman, who presented it to the city and citizens at the formal opening of the city hall last October.

Happily significant and impressive was the large company of citizens filling the gallery into the adjacent space of the mayoral parlor. The attendance was broadly representative of the public, and its numbers indicated an increasing interest in the council and its inauguration.

Mayor Waddell expressed a hearty welcome to the citizens, many of them women, and also his satisfaction in their presence, braving "this cold January morning."

Former Mayors

In its simple details of ceremony, the council assumed its administration under happy auspices of goodwill and rapt attention. His Worship welcomed especially the former mayors and aldermen. Among them were: Max J. Swanston, his immediate predecessor, William G. Ovens, James Hamilton, A. A. McIntyre; Herbert I. Bradburn, Herb. J. McCannan, James Juby, Dick Raine.

The Board of Education was represented by its chairman, W. B. Gordon, and G. W. Craw and C. H. Huffman.

After announcing the results of the municipal elections in December, City Clerk A. A. Outram administered the oath of office to Mayor Waddell, and to the group of five aldermen elected for two years: John A. Dewart, T. D. Miller, S. G. Black, P. J. Anglesey and H. S. Longhurst.

At the opening of the ceremonial, Mayor Waddell was seated with the Rev. C. G. Boyd, president of the Ministerial Association on his right, and Mr. Monkman on his left.

"It gives me much pride and pleasure to invest you with this chain of office," Mr. Monkman said. "It symbolizes the highest form of good, democratic, civic government, which is greatly treasured throughout the British Commonwealth of nations, of which Canada forms a strong and vital link.

"I congratulate Your Worship on being elevated to the important office of Mayor of the city of Peterborough. To you and your Council I extend warmest wishes for a harmonious and successful year."

Mr. Boyd in his address read the civic injunction of St. Paul in an epistle to the Romans, beginning "Let every person be subject to governing authority, for there is no authority except from God. . . ."

Framework For Order

"God originally intended a perfect society for human life, without injustice, wrong and harm, but sin entered into man's world, and life became chaotic. If that condition had continued, human beings would ultimately have destroyed themselves. So God set up a framework for good order in the mission and ordinances of both church and states.

"Your tenure of office is determined by the choice of the electors under the overruling will and wisdom of God," Mr. Boyd said. "You see your commission as coming from the hands of the people, but it is also a commission which comes from the very hand of God."

"God ordained that the people be governed by appointment of men to the judiciary and legislative offices, thereby becoming His ministers in exercising authority in seeing that justice be meted out for the mutual benefit of mankind, and for the maintenance of good order and freedom in municipal and community life."

Mr. Boyd spoke of the responsibility of citizens in their respect and honor and co-operation toward those they place in authority. They should accept all lawful requirements for carrying out the administration of the community, and in such measures as the payment of necessary taxes. As the authority of the state extended into the maintenance of peace and the guarding of the rights of the citizens, leaving to the church due recognition and responsibility for the work of God. Mr. Boyd said the council should find encouragement in the words of St. Paul, and look to God for His leading and counsel.

On behalf of the council Mayor Waddell thanked Mr. Boyd for his inspiring message.

3 Small Fires Cause Homes $700 Damage

Three small fires over the weekend caused nearly $200 damage in three Peterborough homes.

A youngster playing with matches Sunday afternoon started a fire in a bedroom clothes closet at the home of James F. Clark, 403 Dobbin Ave. Damage will probably amount to $100 as there will have to be some repairs to the closet; a quantity of clothing was burned; and the bedroom needs repainting.

About $50 damage was caused Sunday afternoon at the home of Edgar Puttick, 531 Park St., when fire broke out in a drawer under the sink. Cause of the outbreak is not known.

Careless smoking is blamed for a fire that damaged a chesterfield chair at the residence of Keith Gordon, 508 Wolsley St. Firemen used a handpump to extinguish the blaze.

One arm, the back of the chair, and part of the seat were damaged.

Collegiate Students Reading More Books

PCVS students are reading more this term; at least the circulation of the school library is higher than in previous terms for the period from September to December.

During the four-month period between studies and extra-curricular activities the students took time to read 8,689 books as compared with 8,199 during the same period last year. During the 1950-51 term the students read 14,353 books from the library.

Fiction is still the most popular choice, 2,975 books circulated, but its popularity petered out slightly from a high last year of 3,133 during the four months.

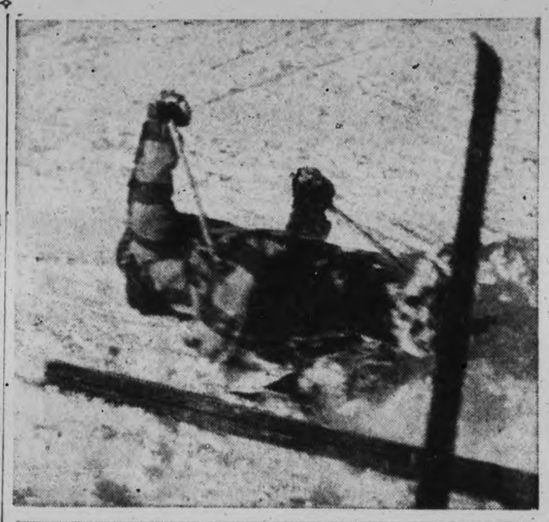
Students this year are more travel-minded for 1,400 books under that classification were read as compared with 1,265 last year. Literature is the third selection with 1,180 circulated, an increase of 79.

Biography and history books were other more favorite selections with books on sociology, natural science, useful and fine arts among the not as widely read variety.

Chatco Steel Co. To Open Plant In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Jan. 7—Chatco Steel Products Ltd. of Tilbury will take over the factory building of the Allen and Tanbury Co., president of the steel company, H. S. Shannon, announced today.

Production is expected to start in February of some of the products of the company. The firm manufactures furnaces, truck bodies, filing cabinets and also engages in contract manufacturing for Hudson passenger cars and Ferguson farm implements.



To begin with, only 25 to 50 workers will be employed, but as conditions demand, this can be increased to 200.

Decentralization

The move to Lindsay is part of a decentralization policy of the company, planned some time ago. Chatco wanted a plant nearer the marketing areas of Toronto and Montreal.

Officials also stated that wage rates in the Tilbury-Chatham area were dominated by Windsor automotive groups so as to put them out of line with wages paid by manufacturers producing lines similar to the Chatco products.

The Lindsay division will be headed by W. J. Williams, who has been with the company 22 years.

Skiers Out In Flocks In Perfect Conditions

Perfect skiing conditions prevailed on all slopes in the Peterborough district over the weekend and the ski enthusiasts jammed all the favorite playgrounds. In fact it was one of the most successful, accident-free skiing weekends in the past several years. A fall of four inches of light, powdery snow early Saturday morning paved the way to the skiers' paradise and helped whip enthusiasm in the ski school's opening day at Kemp's hill on the Warsaw road.

175 Youngsters

More than 175 elementary school children crowded three buses which picked up the ski beginners at various schools throughout the city at 9 am and hustled them out to the hill.

From there the Peterborough Ski Club, which operates the school jointly with the recreation commission, took over for two and a half-hours skiing.

The 12 instructors including such skiers as Mollie and Jim Craig, Rod Reed, Ian Blaiklock, Peter Bowen, Gary Braund, Jane Matthews, Dave Fanning, Bill Richardson and Toby Westbye divided the group into six workable divisions. The children were grouped according to previous experience for elementary and advance training.

Before the boys and girls saw action they received a 10-minute briefing on skiing safety and etiquette. Then they were taught the fundamentals which included instruction on climbing and simple turns.

Kids All Skiing

"One of the most successful school days yet" a ski club member described Saturday morning, adding, "Why the canteen, which is usually full, hardly did any business at all; the kids were all skiing."

The Saturday school will continue for five more weeks.

The Peterborough club reported that ski conditions throughout the district Saturday and Sunday were excellent, with the added emphasis that "it couldn't have been better."

Besides the 175 children zooming down the Kemp's hill slopes Saturday, the tow was kept busy Saturday and Sunday afternoons with the club skiers and visitors. Both days were the busiest so far this year.

The Bethany playground was also busy both days with the two tows being used both Saturday and Sunday to handle the large crowds. Sunday saw a number of visitors from Oshawa, Cobourg, Toronto and Lindsay zipping down the slopes.

Although the Peterborough club has one of the best ski patrol units in the province, club officials were breathing easier today for the week-end was accident-less.

Fire Truck Hit On Way To False Alarm

A fire truck was damaged Sunday night while dashing down Aylmer St. to what later turned out to be a false alarm.

About 11 p.m. a resident near the Utilities building, Aylmer and Dalhousie Sts., saw what he believed to be smoke coming from the new addition to the Utilities. He promptly sent in an alarm.

A ladder truck, answering the call, wheeled out of the fire hall and started south on Aylmer St. The driver had just nosed it out to cross the Charlotte St. intersection when the light changed.

He applied his brakes and a west-bound car, driven by Berdean Garside, 990 Western Ave., struck the left rear fender of the truck. Nobody was injured but the whole front end and radiator of the car were smashed and the left rear fender and platform of the ladder truck were damaged.

The ironic feature is that there was no need for the alarm in the first place.

What the excited resident saw was steam, not smoke. Concrete floors have been newly laid in the new office section and the plastering is just completed. To dry them out the furnace was lit and an opening left for the steam to escape.

Constable Nabs Lad After Chase

Attempting to evade questioning a teen-age boy raced through a maze of shoppers on George St., Saturday afternoon with Constable Douglas Farthing in pursuit.

The boy ducked into a doorway and raced up the stairs only to find himself at a dead end at the top. Constable Farthing saw the boy enter the doorway, followed him up the stairs and took him to the police station.

Constable Farthing saw Harold Dunk, 24, RR 5, Peterborough, handing a bottle to the boy. He began questioning Dunk, and the boy took to his heels.

Leaving Dunk temporarily Constable Farthing ran after the fleeing boy.

Later Dunk was arrested and charged with supplying liquor to a minor.

In police court today, Dunk pleaded guilty.

He was sentenced to one month in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

5 Welders Disobey Order Start Work, Or Be Fired

Despite a warning by the company only one of the six CGE welders obeyed an ultimatum to return to work today or be fired. The men have been out on a wildcat strike since Dec. 10. Eleven other welders were fired by the company last week for failing to "resume work in a normal manner when they reported to their department on Dec. 27."

The company gave six others until today to report. One did so. The company has not said whether the other five are fired.

The dispute is over a change in classifying a welding job in the structural steel department. Welders claim that if the company changes the job from first to second class they stand to lose on an average of 12 cents an hour.

They also say the company is violating the company-union contract by changing the classification. The existing price has been in effect for two and a half years, they say.

Changed In Error

The company claim that the code was changed in error giving the men an increase in the piecework price from $9.35 to $14. Company officials say they corrected the classification but left the increased price in effect. The welders, however, balked at the changed classification.

By their work stoppage the men are violating the contract, say the company. And they point out that the union has stated that the work stoppage was unauthorized.

"The central issue in this dispute is that if we are to have an orderly shop we must use the regular grievance procedure," said J. E. Girven, works manager. "We cannot have unauthorized work stoppages whenever a group of employees believe they have a problem."

Hold Meeting

Sunday afternoon Local 524, UEW, held a membership meeting in the Brock Street Summer Gardens. They decided on a three-point course of action.

1—Throw the full weight of the union behind the move to have the discharged men reinstated. Collections will be taken up every week from employees in the shop so the strikers will have some financial support.

2—Send a letter to Mr. Girven, outlining the union's stand, and suggesting the company meet with union officials to work out a settlement of the dispute.

3—Advise all workers in the plant to "ignore any company provocation" during the week while the grievance on the 11 dismissals is being processed.

No US Beef In City Yet

No United States beef has reached Peterborough so far, but if the price of local cattle doesn't go down, American beef is sure to make its appearance here.

That is the opinion of a local packing house official, who added "If US beef comes into Ontario, it will come to Peterborough too."

Beef came into the province from the United States over the weekend for the first time in 25 years.

Offered Lower

Back of the shipping of US beef here is the price ceiling enforced in the US. With that ceiling, American shippers can sell about 3½ cents a pound lower than Ontario cattle breeders.

There is no shortage of beef in the province—it's a question of price. To meet competition, the Canada Packers in Peterborough will probably have to buy US beef.

The packing house official said Ontario cattle breeders weren't willing to meet American prices.

Temperature Skid Spreads River Fog

That fast sharp dip in temperature Sunday evening raised a fog above the river that traced its course through the city.

Presumably the rate of change was faster in the air than in the water, condensing the moisture in the atmosphere. The entire block east of George St. and north of Sherbrooke St. was almost blotted out of visibility. The same dark gray cloud enveloped the CPR bridge, and hung low over the park at McDonald's Point. Even the creek at Townsend St. had a small vaporous shroud above it.

And it was just as true as ever, that homely saying "A January fog would kill a dog."

Musically Full Operatic Films Here Wednesday

Ninety minutes of the finest in grand opera will be here to enjoy this Wednesday afternoon in matinee and evening presentations at the Centre Theatre. The screen version of Donizetti's "This Wine of Love" (L'Elisir D'Amore) has been happily chosen by manager Yudin as this month's feature for the culture-courting citizens of Peterborough.

Mr. Yudin is receiving praise from all sides for his efforts in bringing to this city music of the great classic operas that so many might never hear otherwise. (His selection for February is "The Marriage of Figaro.")

Most glorious voices of the operatic world today are heard in "This Wine of Love"—Nelly Corradi, soprano, playing delightfully the part of the beguiling village coquette, Gino Sinimberghi tenor, her bashful lover who appears to be a timid soul but actually was a lion tamer before entering this field; Tito Gobbi, baritone, as a presumptuous young soldier who very nearly wins the lady's hand in a few short hours; and Italo Tajo, basso, who is a pompous, fast-talking, tricky quack doctor, dispensing remedies for all ills, to which he quickly adds wine as the "love elixir" when asked for a potion by the suitor.

These stars show that opera singers are not always fat and forty and homely, for Miss Corradi, as beautiful to see as to hear, is still in her early twenties. Gobbi is Italy's youngest concert baritone, and the tenor is a specimen of manhood it would not be difficult to fall in love with. Tajo shows consummate skill as a character actor, and disguises the fact he is in his early thirties.

World-known music will also be heard in the secondary film, "Queen of La Scala," chosen by Mr. Yudin for January 9 showing.

For Healthy '52 Give Family Best Nutrition

How many of your New Year's resolutions are still intact? Here's one you many want to add to your list, even though it's a few days late. And it's one for every day for the very best nutrition and to follow it faithfully. By this time next year you'll be glad you did.

Here's the list: serve some foods from each of these groups every day: leafy, green and yellow vegetables; citrus fruits, tomatoes; potatoes, sweet potatoes; other vetgetables and fruits; milk cheese; meat, poultry, fish; eggs; dry beans and peas, nuts, peanut butter; cereals, bread (whole grain or enriched); fats, oils (including butter or margarine); sweets.

You'll notice four groups of fruits and vegetables. How to serve them all every day so they won't be monotonous. A daily salad is one answer, and those extra vitamins and minerals could be the difference between average and excellent health for your family.

Besides that, salads add so much zest to meals. They're crisp, eye-catching and tasty with the right dressing. And the makings of a variety of salads are always plentiful, so they're good every day of the year. For instance, just now lettuce, cabbage, endive, carrots, apples, pears, bananas, oranges and grapefruit are plentiful.

Remember that leafy green vegetables combine well with fruit. Diced oranges or red apples in slaw, for instance, or green celery with diced fresh pears. Or you might serve cottage cheese with endive salad, or sprinkle chopped nuts in your slaw or banana salad.

It's a challenge and an edventure to serve balanced meals, and the sort of fun that pays one of the finest dividends in the world; a healthy, happy family.

Piano Duo Charm At S. Army's Sunday Musicale

A brilliant and satisfying program comprised this month's musicale at the Salvation Army Temple on Sunday afternoon, enjoyed by a capacity audience of music-loving citizens.

Guest artists were Mrs. Gwen Craw and Mr. Charles Allen who greatly charmed with their personalities and performance in three classic selections on the two pianos. Persons sitting in front seats of the auditorium and gallery derived added pleasure from the finger movements of this accomplished piano duo. They played Bach's "Now Jesus Christ, the Son of God," a "Waltz from the Suite for Two Pianos" by Arensky and "Minuet by Saint Saens."

Chairman Gordon K. Fraser MP had praise for the continuous wonderful work of the Salvation Army, as well as for the musical ability of its members evidenced in the numbers by the Temple Band, the Young People's Band, the Temple Songsters and the Young People's Singing Company.

Young Terry Huffman also delighted with his playing on the vibraharp.

The next musicale will be on February 3rd when Mrs. Dorothy Goldie will be the guest soloist and Mr. E. L. Sackville will act as chairman.

Present 18 Debs To Alexanders In Ottawa Debut

OTTAWA, Jan. 5—(CP)—Government House was filled with glitter and excitement Friday night as 18 young debutantes were presented to the Governor-General and Lady Alexander, thus making their first formal bow to society.

Their white gowns sparkling with diamonds, sequins and gold trim, they went forward, one by one, to courtsy before Their Excellencies in the spacious Government House ball room.

For the occasion, Lady Alexander chose a classic gown of weblike green lace over shimmering satin. A wide band of golden lace encircled the middle of the skirt. The bodice was fashioned with wide lace straps and delicate lime roses, extending from the right shoulder to the waistline on the left. A diamond tiara sparkled in her dark hair.

Hon. Rose Alexander, daughter of Their Excellencies, wore cloud-pink nylon net over rustling taffeta.

Guests at Government House for the occasion were Miss Virginia Seymour of England, Hon. Bridget Westenra of Ireland, Miss Patricia Agnew of Kingston and Miss Mimi Fauteux of Quebec City.

Ottawa Couple Wed In England

CROYDON, England (CP).—It was practically an all-Ottawa affair when hockey player Ross Tyrell married his childhood sweetheart, Joan Hawkins, at St. Gertrude's Church here recently.

As children the 21-year-old Tyrell and his bride, just turned 22, lived in the same neighborhood in Ottawa.

Dave Maguire, of Ottawa, Tyrell's teammate with Wembley Lions of the English National League, was best man and his fiancee, June Brookwell, was maid of honor. Another Ottawa hockey star, Hugh Riopelle, also was present.

Joan flew in from Canada through one of Britain's worst fogs and was taken straight from the airport to Croydon register office, where Tyrell applied for a licence. A few days before Tyrell had been using crutches following a knee injury suffered in a game against Harringay Racers.

Several British newspapers published pictures of the couple exchanging loving looks, one headed "The Eyes Have It." One paper headed an account of the marriage: "She Married a Lion."

January Pick-Up Recipe Fragrance For Everyday

Sparkle, glamour, a zest for living! These are the outward signs of a lovely woman. Are they part of your life now that the excitement of the Holiday Season is past? A bright viewpoint and a lively spirit are within the grasp of all in spite of the usual let-down associated with January.

The party season may be over, but you can make every occasion a special one by your very attitude. Of course the wise woman takes advantage of every help available. Why not make use of those pretty Christmas gifts right now. That gay scarf and the new so-feminine slip do you no good if they are put away in the drawer. And what are you "saving" that perfume for? Now—when you can use a special lift—enjoy your lovely fragrance. Resolve right this minute to make your day-in, day-out living as gracious as possible.

The sparkling tinsel and fragrant pines are gone from the living room, so replace them with the freshness of cologne or toilet water sprayed into the air of the room. Or atomize some scent on the electric bulbs so they may give off a subtle fragrance to the atmosphere. Fill a small bowl with sachet powder and place it in the foyer to give a gracious note of hospitality to all who enter.

Give a festive atmosphere to your closets and bureau drawers, too. Spray toilet water or cologne where you keep clothes and linens, so that each time you open the closet door, you will be greeted with a subtle fragrance. Were you one of the lucky women to be given sachet? Make good use of it by placing it with lingerie, handkerchiefs, gloves. Sweet-smelling clothes give you a sense of feminine loveliness.

Encourage a serene and happy frame of mind with a leisurely fragrant bath. It will aid in banishing the day's worries. Put a tablespoonful of bath softener (it may be oil, salts or bubbles) in the dry tub, and let the water rush in pell mell. The room will be filled with a spirit-lifting fragrance. After a few minutes of "letting-go", cleanse every inch of your body with a quick-lathering, sweet-smelling soap. Then out of the tub and thoroughly dry yourself with a lusciously soft bath towel. Slather toilet water or cologne all over your body, for it serves a double purpose: forms the foundation of your aura of fragrance, and the refreshing liquid helps to close your pores (important when you live in a cold climate because it is one more precaution against colds). Then luxuriate in bath powder so that your skin feels silky smooth. You'll feel like a new woman as you don your freshly scented lingerie.

And now, the final touch of your sense of elegance comes through the use of perfume. Open up that Christmas gift right now. If the ground glass stopper won't budge, use the following method: gently and evenly tap the stopper with another piece of glass or a small wooden mallet, turning the bottle in your hand. Usually this firms (never hard) tapping will cause enough vibration to loosen the stopper. For extremely stubborn cases, hold the neck of the bottle under warm water for a minute or two and tap again. Patience and gentleness will open that bottle without breaking, but no strong arm methods by the man of the house, please.

With your perfume bottle open, use the scent wisely but well. Apply enough to enjoy. The smart woman knows that a drop behind each ear does no one any good. On the other hand, a few drops on the pulse spots and on a piece of cotton tucked in the bra will surround you in a subtle aura of fragrance, giving you pleasure in your own sense of charm, delighting all you meet.

Resolve now to live as charmingly and as graciously in January as you did during the holidays. Let fragrance help you to a happier and more feminine life.

Bar Detonators For Farewells

LONDON (CP).—An official ban has been imposed by British railways on the old custom of exploding railway signal detonators on the line to send-off newly-married couples.

The order comes as a sequel to a head-on collision last summer between two trains near Fishguard, Pembrokeshire. There were no casualties.

Brig. C. A. Langley, inspecting officer of railways, noted in his report on the inquiry that apparently the practice of blowing whistles and exploding detonators at a wedding party send-off is a long-standing custom.

"Everyone would wish to show good-will on such occasions but detonators are expressly supplied to stop or warn trains in emergency and not to speed them on their way," he said.

"Instructions now have been issued to prohibit the light-hearted abuse of these valuable safeguards."

What's Right?

You run into a friend who has been ill and who really looks very bad.

WRONG: Say with false cheerfulness: "You're certainly looking well."

RIGHT: Don't bring up the subject of how the person looks. Talk of something else. Otherwise, he will probably perceive that you are shocked by his appearance and just trying to make him feel better.

English Makeup Giving Warm Glow To Face, Neck

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON (CP)—The latest craze for warm party wear — glamorous evening sweaters, quilted ballerina skits and draped jersey gowns—accentuates the need for a make up that carries the look of warmth to the face and neck.

With summer tans a thing of the past women want a make-up foundation that gives the glowing look of healthy cheeks whipped by frosty air.

One answer may be a new glamor tint by a well-known London firm. This comes in four shades ranging from cream to bronze velvet and is applied by patting in, as with a cream.

An emollient preparation, it eliminates the tendency to "streak" found in most liquid foundations.

The result is what appears to be a natural skin glow, achieved in a few seconds where previously it took much time and care. Women can also, if preferred, leave the foundation unpowdered to give the shiny look that is a fashion fad of the minority.

Fur Necklace

In keeping with the trend towards greater warmth in the "party look" is the practice of wearing a choker necklace of fur. Hair decorations of mink and ermine tails caught by jewelled fastenings strive to create the same effect.

In many cases this is merely an illusion added to gleaming dresses of brocade or floating tulle and lace. Many women, however, choose glamorous sweaters from a selection that is better this year than at any time since the war.

British sweaters now on the home market have stepped right out of the bobby-sox class into the world of women whose jewelry is valued in the four-figure bracket. Among such examples is the pringle sweater in black with long sleeves and off-shoulder neckline trimmed by hand-sewn scalloped edging, worn with deep choker necklace and matching bracelet of diamonds.

Anything is possible in the latest sweater lines from one-shoulder Grecian effects to daring plunge necklines with jewelled bras gleaming under the draped plunge. With strapless sweaters, an illusion of warmth is provided by the use of moonstones and other low-value jewels that give fire and color to embroidered necklines.

FEELING SEEDY?

How often do you feel so sluggish and headachy that you just long for the day to be over? You know those days. You feel tenth-rate from the time you wake up in the morning. Every hour seems like two.

Quite possibly you are suffering unnecessarily. If ordinary constipation and sluggish kidneys are preventing proper waste elimination your system is slowly being poisoned. That's what usually makes you feel all dragged-out.

Kruschen Salts are the answer. Because they offer the same benefits as several famous Mineral Springs, Kruschen Salts are a valuable aid because they act two ways—laxative and diuretic. Kruschen is a gentle yet effective laxative and also stimulates healthy kidney action.

Buy a package today. You'll be repayed a hundred times over in relief from the misery of a sluggish system.

Classic Grecian Dominant In Line and Color

LOS ANGELES—Irene, who always carves a fashion path entirely her own, does particularly fascinating skirt treatments this year. Even her skirts succumb to her preoccupation with what she terms a "more fluid line."

This feeling for motion stems quite logically from the influence of the classic Grecian and Roman period which is the dominant theme of Irene's collection. Done in a very modified manner, it nonetheless reflects itself in many ways, and more noticeably in her masterfully simple dresses than in her suits. Draped bodices, as well as skirts, cowl necklines and "classical colors" are some of the ideas which this designer borrows from the costumes of antiquity.

The colors which have been "derived from the early Roman days and from Greece" have singular importance throughout and include "Cretan green," a true peacock shade, and "Corinthian," a grayed blue, brown, "Pompeian Red" and "Tanagra Pink".

Other newsworthy highlights of this collection were the presentation of styles for shorter women, a new feature with this house; the emphasis on rhinestones which were shown with everything from suits to ball growns; the repeated appearance of fringed ties on woollen dresses; and the liking for a rounder shoulder line.

Of Interest to Women

FIRST 1952 BABY—First baby born in Canada in 1952 was Walker Whitty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitty, Westmount, N.S. The youngster was born at nine minutes after midnight, Jan. 1, at St. Rita's Maternity Hospital, Sydney, N.S., and was accorded the honor because of the different time zone—Atlantic. The nine-pound, two-ounce infant is shown with Pat Campbell, R.N.

onions, 1 very finely chopped clove of garlic, and 1 broken bay leaf. Pour over all 1½ cups canned tomatoes, and dot with 2 tablespoons butter. Cover and bake at 275 deg. Fahr. for 2 to 2½ hours or until tender. Delicious with scalloped potatoes which are baked in the oven along with it.

Top-of-Stove Swiss Steak

One and one-half pound slice of round steak (or skirt or flank steak could be used), 1-3 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 medium chopped onion, 2 tablespoons fat, ¼ cup chopped green pepper (when in season), 1 cu each canned tomatoes and boiling water. Mix the flour, salt and pepper together and when the meat is wiped with a damp cloth pound all of the flour mixture into it with a steak pounder or saucer. Cut the meat into 2-inch squares. Sear the meat with the onions in the fat in a heavy frying pan, turning them all of the time. This takes about 5 or 7 minutes. Add green pepper, tomatoes and water. Cover and simmer until meat is tender—about 2 hours. Add more water if and as it is needed but don't drown it. Lift meat to hot platter and mix together 1 tablespoon flour and 2 tablespoons water to make a paste and stir this into the gravy in pan until thickened and bubbling. Pour over the steak on platter. If the platter is large enough this looks very tempting when bordered with boiling hot mashed potatoes. Sprinkle them with chopped parsley or paprika.

Swiss Steak for Sunday's Dinner

(In Dutch oven—will serve 6 or 8).

You need a 2½ or 3 lb. slice for this—it will be about 1½ inches thick. Mix together 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and ¾ cup flour. Pound this into the surfaces of the meat until all is used up. In Dutch oven (or iron frying pan) melt 3 tablespoons drippings and brown the meat on both sides. Sprinkle over it 1½ cup coarsely chopped onions and 2 carrots chopped into very small dice. Cover with 3 cups canned tomatoes 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce and 2 teaspoons brown sugar. Cover and simmer or bake 1¾ to 2 hours or until tender. If baked temperature is 325 deg. Fahr. This is made especially elegant if bordered with carefully sauted mushrooms. Thicken the gravy as described above and pour over the meat boiling hot. Boiled potatoes in parsley butter are ideal with it.

Husband Objects To Wife Taking On Part-Time Job

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is wonderful to me and we have a darling two-month-old daughter. Now our first serious disagreement has arisen. I would like to take a job Saturday evenings at my profession, which is nursing, and Neil, my husband, objects. I claim a wife is entitled to one night a week for outside interests, otherwise she tends to become stagnant and a hopeless bore. I feel Neil can take care of the baby one night a week, that giving some time to my profession will help people, and that the money I earn will be helpful in obtaining some of the "extras" we could use.

Dorothy Dix

Neil claims that since he works evenings and the weekends are the only time we can all be together, I should prefer to be home then. Who is right? J.W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You presented a very fair and complete picture of both sides of your problem, so it almost seems mean of me to come up with a decision in favor of your husband. My conclusion that you are better off home is based on Neil's working schedule. Since Saturday is the only night he can be home, for the sake of family unity you should take advantage of it to remain with him—not be off on a job. When your baby is older and can be left with a baby-sitter without qualms on your part, you will feel free to take on a nursing assignment.

You Needn't Become Stagnant

The one argument of yours with which I disagree is the assumption that this one night of working will prevent you from becoming stagnant. No wife and mother ever gets into that slump unless she wants to. Our daily lives are so replete with opportunities to observe, to learn, to assimilate, that no one need become dull.

By all means meet new people; your little daughter will aid you there. The most fruitful means by which a young mother acquires friends is through sessions in the park or playground where the small Susies and Jimmies are being aired. If you live in a small town lacking these facilities, the super-market will usually provide the gathering place, but no matter what or where it is, every community has some converging point for baby carriages. Here the mothers gather to exchange not only notes on the latest formulas, or Junior's dental achievements, but also opinions on community projects, local politics and world affairs—much as their men do at various places of business.

Don't ever look upon homemaking as a boring business. If you tackle it with such an attitude, you'll miss the exhilaration of the most exciting job on earth. It has its dull moments, true, but the final achievement of a happy family well fed, well housed and intelligently reared is something to work for.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My trouble is that my boy friend is a mamma's boy. I am 15, he is 16, and he isn't allowed to go out at night. His father thinks he is too young. When he was in the hospital, his mother said he couldn't have visitors. I managed to get in to see him anyway, but his mother didn't like it. He wants to continue going with me without his parents knowing of it. Should I agree? D.J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A miss as possessive are you are at 15 is an oddity. Both you and your boy friend are still children, and in his mother's eyes he certainly isn't old enough to have the freedom you seem to enjoy. His parents are the natural arbiters of his time for dating and are quite right in not permitting him out whenever he wants to go—especially on school nights. His mother was also right in trying to restrict visitors during his illness. Forcing yourself into a sick room was a foolproof method of incurring her dislike.

Your intentions may be good, but your system is all wrong. Stop the clandestine dating, and wait until you are both a little older. The lad's mother may then forget how thoughtless you have been, and welcome you more warmly.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are three college co-eds each interested in the same question: How can we tell if a boy is running after us or our father's money?

X.Y.Z.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Assume it's the money, since your question — certainly not on the college level of intelligence—indicates three shallow, vain females who have nothing much to offer in the personality department.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Preparing Of Swiss Steak Basic Lesson Meat Cookery

Things have quieted down in our house and neighborhood, and I'm glad.

We still have our annual visit from Uncle Bill to look forward to, and a bridge party for eight teen-agers who solemnly have resolved to learn to play bridge. I'm supposed to teach them—and I need someone to teach me. But those are comparatively easy parties when compared to some I've attended and given this past few weeks.

I take it, ladies, that because it is Monday your washing is done? Mine is, and I did part of the ironing too. Do you remember that I said we'd start off the new year with some basic lessons in meat cookery?

I chose Swiss steak for today's subject, simply because I saw such a perfect slice for "Swissing" in the butcher's counter. While the price was 92 cents per pound round steak is a good forthright buy, you know, for what bone it has is right out there in plain sight.

Baked Swiss Steak

Buy one slice of round steak weighing 1½ lbs. Mix together ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and pound this into both sides of the steak, using your steak pounder or "tenderizer" or the edge of a saucer. Place the steak in a greased shallow dish a little too large for it. Sprinkle over the top a mixture of 2 tablespoons each finely chopped parsley (when in season), celery and

Tennis Player Top Woman Athlete For '51

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Energetic Maureen Connolly, the second-youngest player ever to win the national tennis championship, today was chosen female athlete of the year for 1951 in the annual Associated Press poll.

The apple-cheeked, blue-eyed blonde from San Diego, who captured the tennis crown at Forest Hills just 12 days before her 17th birthday, beat out Florence Chadwick, the English Channel swimmer, and golfer Mildred (Babe) Didrikson Zaharias, a five-time winner in these yearly polls.

Maureen received 81 first place votes of the 206 cast by sports writers and sportscasters from coast to coast and a total of 366 points. Miss Chadwick, the attractive ex-steno from San Diego who now is the swimming pro at the Grossinger, NY, Country Club, got 287 points and 57 first place nominations.

Mrs. Zaharias, leading money-winner among the female golf swingers and named woman golfer of the year, was third with 258 points and 47 first placers.

Far behind the big three came golfers Patty Berg and Betsy Rawls, diving champion Pat McCormick, bowling champion Marion, Ladewig, and tennis aces Doris Hart and Nancy Chaffee.

Another golfer, Marlene Bauer, who was voted female athlete of the year in 1949 when she was 15, the youngest ever to win the award, finished far back with 10 first-place ballots.

Winner of the national girls' championship in 1949 and 1950, Little Mo was considered to be a year away from the tennis title by her court advisers. She surprised them all by sweeping to the finals without the loss of a set and then defeated tested Shirley Fry of Akron, O., an experienced internationalist, in the three-set final, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

That made her the youngest champion since May Sutton took the title in 1904 at the age of 17 years, nine months.

The San Diego sensation won 12 of 15 major tournaments during the year, was brilliant in the Wightman Cup matches with England, and appears on the way to even a longer reign that the fabulous Wills.

Workers Stage Walkout Over Estates

VIENNA, Jan. 7 (Reuters)—Work stopped in Vienna this morning as thousands of workers streamed to a protest rally against a court decision to return vast family estates to ex-Prince Ernst Ruediger Starhemberg.

Starhemberg, 52, living in Argentina since the war, was founder-leader of the Hitler-style Heimwehr which gave armed support to Austria's pre-Hitler dictator, Chancellor Dollfuss.

After a long legal fight, Austria's highest administrative court decided to return to him under the restitution laws all of his 72 family estates throughout Austria which the Nazis confiscated in 1938.

Socialist and Communist parties called for a protest strike against the decision. Some experts believe the political turmoil might break the People's-Socialist coalition which has given Austria a more or less stable government for more than six years.

Effective Protest

The protest, designed to shut down almost all Austria industry for an hour, was reported most effective in the Communist-controlled outer suburbs of the city.

Thousands of people gathered before the parliament buildings carrying banners saying: "No money for Fascists."

Demonstrations broke up four hours after they started. Police guards were withdrawn from public buildings and Vienna's life returned to normal.

Reports from the Tyrol, Salzburg and Styria provinces said protest actions there went without incident.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Mercurys, unphased by a rough restless Transatlantic plane flight, bounced into their pre-world championship hockey tour Saturday by handing Ayr (Scotland) Raiders a 6-3 trouncing.

Canada's choice for next month's world hockey championships, the Mercurys hit the ice barely an hour after their Trans-Canada Air Lines plane touched down at Prestwick, Scotland.

Their flight had been delayed by engine trouble for four hours at Gander, Nfld., but if the defending world champions were tired they showed little sign of it.

After the game, a Scottish sportsman predicted that no north-of-the-border club would touch them. The Canadians plan three games in Scotland before going on to England and later through Europe to the Oslo finals starting Feb. 13.

Edmonton will be the site of 1952's Canadian ladies' golf championships. The Canadian Ladies' Golf Union announced Sunday in Toronto that the open and close championships will be held with the inter-provincial team match at the Mayfair Golf and Country Club in August.

Teams in the inter-provincial match will consist of five players instead of the usual four, the additional player being the provincial union title holder. The four best scoring for 36 holes will count in the team match.

Frank Sedgman, Australian Davis Cup ace, said Saturday "it seems pretty certain now I will remain an amateur for life." Writing in Sydney's Sunday Telegraph, the 24-year-old tennis ace said: "I will try to establish myself in the business world in the next half-dozen years while tapering off my international tennis career."

The 1950 world chamoion skier, Karl Martitisch, sailed to a jump of 106 feet as Sault Ste. Marie's first ski jump competitions were officially opened Sunday. More than 2,000 people turned out to watch representatives from Austria, Norway, the United States, and Northern Ontario compete for jumping honors.

Deciding that he is not getting anywhere despite a yearly income of $12,000 as a professional golfer on the tournament trail, Ed. Furgol of Royal Oaks, Mich., in Los Angeles Sunday announced he will quit in March.

Furgol, something of a marvel in golf because he plays under the handicap of a left arm withered since youth, said he has accepted a job as club pro at the Westwood Country Club in St. Louis.

Boston Red Sox announced on Saturday night in Boston that centrefielder Dom DiMaggio has signed his 1952 contract. The 33-year-old fly-hawk, with the Sox since 1940, batted .296 last year and led the American League in runs with 113.

At a meeting Thursday night the league executive decided not to enter a team in the OMHA provincial playdowns. The league winners take possession of the trophy that Wiggins' Garage has up for annual competition. In 1950-51 this award was won by Bancroft bantams, handled by John Bleecker and Lawrence Leedy.

However, Bancroft will be represented in the OMHA playdowns as it was announced that Bancroft Public School would enter a team in bantam "C." The players of this team will be picked from the Saturday morning league the organization operates in the local arena. All pupils registered in the local public schools are eligible to play in this league that competes for the Jack Hood trophy and a squad of bantam age players will be chosen from the four teams before playoff time.

Charges Spain Persecuting Its Protestant

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP)—The Rev. Howard Schomer of Geneva, European representative of the Congregational Christian Church, said Saturday night that economic aid to Spain is fruitless as long as the Spanish government follows what he termed "the inhuman and bigoted views" of the Roman Catholic church.

Dr. Schomer, one of the principal speakers at the current conference of the foreign missions divisions of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States, said Spain is the only country where Christians "are persecuted in the name of faith in their own master."

He reported that Protestants had petitioned the Franco government in 1939, 1940, 1944 and 1950 to redress injustices to Protestants. The response to the final petition, he said, was a letter from Franco's chief counsellor on civilian affairs stating that "any Protestant meetings for worship outside of licensed church buildings are strictly forbidden."

Spanish Protestants, Dr. Schomer said, are frequently defamed as being "renegades, ignoramuses or lewd persons." Such attacks in print had resulted in outbursts of violence which brought about destruction of Protestant churches, Bibles and hymnals.

The four-day conference, which drew some 400 delegates from mission boards and societies of 37 Protestant denominations, closes today with services in Metropolitan United Church.

Former Mayor Dies In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Jan. 7— A former mayor and alderman of Lindsay, Arthur T. Claxton, died at his home here at the age of 73.

A resident of the town for 40 years, he was owner of a department store, past president of the Lindsay Progressive (Literary) Club, a past president of the Kiwanis Club and past lieutenant-governor of the Kiwanis.

He was a member of the board of stewards of Cambridge St. United church, a past master of the Masonic Lodge, and a member of the IOOF.

He leaves a son, Ronald Claxton of Lindsay.

Price Of Milk Up Two Cents In Durham

DURHAM, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP): — The price of milk here will increase by two cents next month to 20 cents a quart.

The increase, to become effective Feb. 1, has been approved by the Ontario Milk Control Board. One-half of the increase will go to the producers, the other half to the dairies.

Durham is 28 miles south of Owen Sound.

Sulky Driver Hurt

TORONTO, Jan. 7 — (CP) — Hospital authorities today described sulky driver Romeo Morency as "seriously ill" following an operation after a spill at Dufferin race track Saturday.

Morency suffered head injuries when his horse, Cindy's Majesty, spilled in the first heat of the third race. Cindy's Majesty later won the second heat.

Foul Play Suspected In Trapper's Death

SAULT STE. MARIE, Jan. 7 (CP)—Coroner Dr. J. E. Gimby said today evidence indicated that a body found Wednesday in a burned-out trapper's cabin 122 miles northwest of here was probably that of William Joki, 36-year-old trapper missing since before Christmas.

An inquest has been called for tonight to establish identity of the body, burned beyond recognition. It was found lying in a bunk in the burned cabin by William Knuttila, trapper and life-long friend of Joki.

Neighbors of Joki in the village of Searchmont, 17 miles north of here, said they believed Joki was too wise in the ways of the bush to have been caught by fire.

If the body is Joki's, they said they would suspect foul play.

Joki's father, also a trapper, was murdered about 30 years ago in a trap-line dispute.

Joki had promised his family to spend Christmas with them at Searchmont. Ordinarily, his failure to appear on time would have caused no undue anxiety. He had been frequently delayed before.

Deplore Naming Vatican Envoy

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP)—Missions conference delegates Saturday passed a resolution protesting the appointment of a United States ambassador to the Vatican.

Delegates said they viewed such an appointment with "deep concern," and said it would have adverse effect on mission work "particularly in the Latin American countries which are dominated by the Roman Catholic church."

(President Truman last October named Gen. Clark to the Vatican post. However, the Senate has not yet acted on the nomination.)

The resolution was passed at the conference of the foreign missions division of the National Council of the Church of Christ in the United States.

The resolution continued:

"There is also widespread fear among the Protestant churches in Latin America that the unprecedented recognition which would be involved in the appointment of an ambassador to the Vatican will strengthen the forces of clericalism, or priestly domination, and, at the same time, impair the growth and development of religious freedom and democratic life in these countries."

Board Confident Be No Steel Strike

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(CP)—Confidence that there will be no steel strike in the United States was expressed today by the chairman of the wage stabilization board.

Nathan P. Feinsinger made the statement as the board began drafting a program for hearings to start Thursday in an attempt to avoid a steel strike by bringing union and industry together.

"The board is placing its confidence in the capacity of the United Steelworkers of America and the steel industry to meet the needs of our times," he said. "I am sure our confidence will prove not to have been misplaced."

The steelworkers originally fixed Jan. 1 for the start of a strike in support of demands for an 18½-cent-an-hour wage increase. But the strike was put off, following an appeal by President Truman.

The cases directly at issue involved 650,000 workers in companies whose wage contract expired Jan. 1 but wage rates throughout the industry—and in much of the aluminum industry are riding on the outcome of the steel dispute.

Claxton Lauds Canadian Troops In Korea

By BILL BOSS

TOKYO, Jan. 7 (CP)—Canadian troops in Korea are "just as good as they were said to be — fine fighting soldiers," Defence Minister Claxton said today.

At a press conference before leaving for Canada after visiting the Korean front, Claxton said the men are fighting under conditions "a lot better than the worst of the First and Second (World) Wars, but putting up with them well."

The minister said he and Veteran Affairs Minister Lapointe had found a number of minor improvements possible in the recreational and welfare provisions for the forces in Korea. He indicated that they involved speed of mail deliveries and the flow of Canadian news to the troops and possibly revamping the Tokyo leave set-up.

Approves Leave Centre

Of the Commonwealth Leave Centre in Tokyo, Claxton said it was the "kind of thing I would have liked to have had when on leave in the First World War. The minister was a guunner in that conflict.

He told Japanese newspapermen questioning him regarding the possibility of an administrative agreement between Canada and Japan covering the forces here after ratification of the peace treaty that "some sort of agreement is already provided for in notes exchanged."

He said Canadian troops would be here "no longer than necessary to see that the United Nations' job is done in Korea."

Claxton and Lapointe today met the staff of the Canadian Chancellery and saw Lt.-Gen. William Bridgeford, Commander-in-chief of Commonwealth forces, and Sir Esler Denning, British Ambassador to Japan.

Fifth Archbishop Will Be Installed

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, Bishop of Buffalo, successor to the late Denis Cardinal Dougherty, will be installed as the fifth Roman Catholic Archbishop of Philadelphia Wednesday. More than 70 archbishops, bisohps and abbots have accepted invitations to attend the installation ceremony in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul.

Precarious State

TORONTO, Jan. 7 — (CP) — Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, said Sunday night that the position of the State of Israel today is as precarious as when the State was formed. He told the 31st National Convention of the Zionist organization of Canada that Israel is "a beleaguered fortress in a hostile Arab world."

Spain's Greed Depleting Haddock Stocks

OTTAWA, Jan. 7 (CP).—Excessive fishing by foreign vessels, notably from Spain, is depleting haddock stocks on the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, Dr. W. Templeman, director of the Newfoundland fisheries research station, reported today.

He told the annual meeting of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada that large numbers of Spanish vessels, dragging in pairs, began to appear in 1950, with as many as 128 operating on the Bank in 1951.

The Spanish trawlers continue to fish in the haddock areas after the large fish have dispersed, salting down small haddock and fishing immature haddock which concentrate on the southeast shoal of the Bank. They catch great quantities of small haddock several years before they reach the size utilized by Newfoundland fishermen.

Also Careless

Dr. Templeman said Newfoundland fishermen, though on a smaller scale, also contribute to destruction of young haddock by discarding as too small for commercial use about 50 per cent of their catch.

The poor survival of the 1943, 1944 and 1945 broods of haddock now is producing a scarcity of larger fish to replace those taken by the commercial fishery from earlier-year brood stocks.

Not only was the size of haddock greatly reduced in 1951, but the landed quantities also declined. Newfoundland's haddock exports for the first six months of 1951 totalled 1,300,000 pounds against 5,700,000 in the corresponding period of 1950.

However, Newfoundland trawlers turned to the catching of rosefish, plaice and cod in 1951 when they found haddock scarce and small.

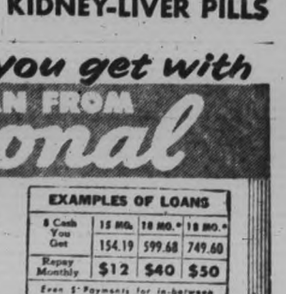
Modern Juliet Now Denies She Ever Loved Cretan Romeo

ATHENS Jan. 7—(CP) — The Juliet of Crete's modern storybook romance said today she was never in love with Romeo.

Sultry Tassoula Petracogeorgi denied the assertion of her husband Costa Kephaloyannis that they parted by agreement.

She stayed with him only to prevent reprisals against her family, she said, adding that she never loved him and never wanted him.

They were wed after he kidnapped her in August, 1950, and carried her away into the mountains of Crete.



Their romance turned sour last week. Now they are feuding from afar by hurling statements at each other through the newspapers.

Tassoula said she fled in secret last Thursday without taking anything but her dressing gown—and even left her wedding ring behind. Her father says he is going to try to have the wedding annulled.

Costa said he and his family, feuding with Tassoula's family for years, were relieved to find her gone.

"I only feel very sorry for having loved so much a woman without heart, without feelings—a selfish creature," he lamented.

"This adventure cost my family no less than 500,000,000 drachmas ($5,000)," he said, declaring that the reason his wife left him was that she wanted to live in the gay life of Athens while he insisted they would have to return to Crete so he could look after his family estate.

Citizenship Inspired With Community Spirit Asked By Mayor Hugh Waddell At Inaugural

Mayor Hugh F. Waddell appealed to the citizens for their considerate support, "inspired with real community spirit," in his address at the formal opening of the new municipal year and administration this morning.

He declared that the council would take the public into its confidence, and at the outset he predicted that "this will be a difficult year". Increased payrolls of the 250 civic employees, plus the charges on the capital works which had been carried on through the postwar period, improving Peterborough services and facilities, would be of foremost concern in the budgeting for 1952.

In reference to the chilly word "difficult", Mayor Waddell also said Peterborough could not stand still in a sense of satisfaction, but should endeavor to secure as much advantage as possible for the citizens from their investments of recent years.

"The time of the passing of the gavel is a significant one in the life of any city, not merely because of our regret at the passing of a well tried and well loved leadership, not even because of the problem which a new and untried man always presents, but because the moment points to a wholesome truth—which your new Council will do well always to keep in mind—that no one man is essential to the life of this citl, that Peterborough is bigger than any one man. Mayors and Councils may come and go, but Peterborough goes on, always a bigger, finer, more splendid city.

"I say that sincerely. Yet I cannot let this opportunity pass without expressing the regret which I share with you that Mr. Maxwell J. Swanston's term has expired. His leadership I have admired, respected and gladly followed; and to his faithful, always fine, spirited and sometimes self-sacrificing service to Peterborough I bear witness from working with him as close as anyone."

Tribute To E. C. Braund

"I should be failing in a pleasant duty also if I did not pay tribute to the valued Alderman whose term has now expired. We recognize the wisdom of an election once a year and we welcome the two new Aldermen gladly, but we are reconciled to the passing of Mr. Ernest Braund from the Council only because we know we shall always have his loyal friendship and co-operation.

"The city of Peteborough consists not of a City Council merely, but of all of its 37,000 citizens.

You have as responsible directors of the city's activities ten men of your own choosing, and over 250 employees on the city payroll. They will give you the best they have. In return, they ask the full, whole-hearted cooperation of the entire city. We take office deeply conscious that this will be a difficult year in the life of our city, during which success or failure will depend, not upon what the Council does or does not do, but upon the spirit, interest and activity of every man, woman and child in the city."

Hard To Go Forward

"I said a 'difficult year'. During the past five or six years Peterborough, keeping step with the national movement, has grown apace; in numbers certainly, in municipal undertakings definitely. We have reached that point in which many cities find themselves today, a point to which—but not beyond which—a city can be carried by planning enthusiasm; a point from which it is hard to go forward but very, very easy to go back. You must understand that we must either go forward or back.

"There is no such thing as standing still; when a city ceases to grow it begins to die. When I speak of growth I have in mind not merely numbers. While I believe there can and ought to be another 10-12,000 people here. I hold numbers as unimportant. I speak rather of growth in consolidating our present facilities.

"Undertakings such as: Civic Hospital, Sewage Disposal Plant, a new Collegiate in the south-end and enlargement of several schools, sewers, pavements, and expanded Public Utilities Services —all these have meant the issuing of some six million dollars of debentures during the last five years. These moneys were properly authorized by your past Councils and it means that today our facilities are second to none for a city of its size, and it is up to the present and succeeding Councils to use them and make them work to the very fullest advantage for this fine city's benefit."

Reference To W. G. Morrow

"I would be remiss if I did not make reference to this fine new building in which we find ourselves this morning—and pay tribute to the generosity of one man who made it possible—a former Mayor and Alderman, the late W. G. Morrow.

"Unfortunately, to date we have not had a final accounting from the trustees so it is not possible to say what balance the city's share will be to completely pay for this magnificent structure. As it is one, and possibly the only one in Canada, I feel it unique in the history of Peterborough that we should have been so fortunate to commence the second half of this century in these comfortable and yet usable quarters. Peterborough, I know, is proud, as well it should be.

"When I mentioned earlier, 'difficult times', it was not without having in mind, with these large undertakings and increased city payrolls, that fixing a tax rate is going to cause no little concern to your Council. You can be assured though that the estimates will be audited with greatest care and no unnecessary expense will be undertaken, that is not absolutely essential. The contraction of credit by Federal Government controls will practically preclude any but the most essential capital outlays. This is exemplified by the rise in interest rates till today we find ourselves, so far as money is concerned, back with the same rates municipalities were paying in the mid thirties."

Industrial Growth

"Since we have now ample facilities in some of our most essential services it might seem that an effort be made to increase the number of our industries. Councils of the past were authorized, with your approval, to purchase a large tract of industrial land in the southwest portion of the city. At the moment $70,000 is tied up in this venture. Your 1952 Council, at an early date, might give some serious thought to moving this property, or a portion of it, and so get some of our taxpayers' money back from this investment. Past Councils have considered with favor the appoint of a part-time Industrial Commissioner, and as such a man may presently be available this should be an early question to be taken up.

"On the other hand, while I agree with those who subscribe to the foregoing, I feel very definitely that we here in Peterborough should not forget what we owe to our present industries. In business it's a fine thing to be getting good new customers. It is most essential to also take good care of our old customers. I think of our present industries as good old customers. They have grown, and as they grow Peterborough grows. As a general rule our old industries have taken up all the increased employment which has been available in this area—so while selective new industry ought to be included in our plans for 1952, I say, don't forget our old friends."

Bring Additional Problems

"Naturally, any increase in our industrial growth will bring acute problems to our housing, utilities, and schools. As a matter of fact, some of these departments are strained now to the limit, and are causing no little concern to those responsible. Yet Peterborough cannot stand still. It is absolutely necessary to plan that more land for housing development, at minimum cost, be serviced by the city. This problem is already being dealt with and a progress report will be made in the immediate future.

"It will be the desire of the 1952 Council, the various Boards and Commissions, and your 250 employees on the city payrolls, to make Peterborough such that many men will want to come and share this gracious city with us. I say that, knowing this has been the thing we have fallen heir to from those who served Peterborough so well in the past. But, I repeat, your 1952 Council cannot do this alone, we need the help of the entire city, and so we ask your whole-hearted support.

"We ask the support of your faithful, intelligent service on all Commission, Boards, etc., appointed by us. Those Committees are designed not as empty honors, but to round out the life of Peterborough.

"But especially we ask the support of your interest and friendly understanding. Your new Council is going to give, as your Councils in the past have done, the best it has. What we do you shall know, and it will be done having in view the interest and desire of the city as a whole, as we know it. Now, no Council can please all the citizens all the time. It is scarcely probable, but it is at least theoretically possible, that your Council some time may make a mistake, in which case we confidently expect to hear about it.

"Criticism is a fine thing, that is only too true, provided the criticism be well considered from the point of view of the city as a whole, and provided it be made first to the object of the criticism, in good temper and with a friendly manner. Where criticism is merely the result or voice of personal bad feeling, then it does harm to the city and no good to the critic. We want your suggestions, as well as the support of your activity. But, while we do not expect immunity from criticism, we do ask you to believe that, where responsibility of decision rests with the Council, it is moved only by the thought of what is good for Peterborough.

"What I say now to the Council might be well repeated to all in Peterborough: 'Be strong in mutual confidence, inspired with a real community spirit'.

"I take this opportunity of wishing each and every one of you a Very Happy and Prosperous New Year."

Former Viceroy Of India Lord Linlithgow Dies

LINLITHGOW, Scotland, Jan. 7 (Reuters).—The Marquess of Linlithgow, Viceroy of India from 1936 to 1943, collapsed and died Saturday while out with a shooting party on his estate here. He was 64.

Victor Alexander John Hope, second Marquess of Linlithgow, was Viceroy of India for 7½ turbulent years—just before and during the Second World War and toward the close of the Indian Nationalists' campaign for independence from British rule.

Before the outbreak of war in 1939, his energies were primarily directed to the attempt to introduce federation in India. In his first 18 months he completed preparations for and introduced provincial autonomy with elections and representative ministries in every province.

He impressed on the ruling Indian princes in language more forceful than they were accustomed to, that they must improve administrative standards in their states and associate their peoples more directly with the government.

During the war he organized and maintained India's war potential and her contribution to the Allied cause.

Early Nickel Named After Satan

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Nickel, strategic metal in peace and war, was not always highly regarded—in fact, it's named after Satan himself.

It was eus dni natural alloys as early as 200 BC, but it was not isolated and named until 1751, by Axel F. Cronstedt, Swedish scientist.

Previous to that, when Saxony miners could not smelt their nickel-bearing copper ores, they called the tough metal "kupfernickel" or "Old Nick's copper." So when Cronstedt isolated a new metal from these copper ores, he called it "nickel."

This explanation is given in a 32-page brochure on the International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., producer of about 75 per cent of the world's nickel, published by "Nickel Information Service."

First Discovery

First discovery of the present company's nickel-copper deposits at Sudbury came in 1856, but there was little development until construction operations of the Canadian Pacific Railway unearthed new ore bodies in 1883.

Still, the nickel part was regarded in much the same way as the old Saxony miners—chiefly as an obstruction to obtaining copper.

Discovery of the "Orford" process for separating the ores in 1890, and research into possible uses for nickel, opened new fields which have grown ever since. It now is used in more than 3,000 alloys in use in thousands of items of daily use in industry and home. In Canada, the United States and Britain, steel mills take about one-third of total production.

Europe For Tools

The Wall Street Journal says that American industrialists are finding Europe a good source for scarce machine tools. It says Wright Aeronauntical Corporation of Wood-Ridge, NJ, recently bought 1,150 precision tools for $10,000,000, and quotes another American industrialist as saying.

"We get tools faster in Europe; a lot of their stuff is top-notch, and it's cheaper."

Another Journal story says that American producers of zinc and lead have joined the copper mining industry in taking exception to "scare talk" of continued shortages of these metals, by US defence administration officials. The Journal adds:

"Producers concede non-ferrous metals are not in free supply right now, but they assert there appears to be an over-all narrowing faster than most people realize."

Rich Minerals Discovered In Kashmir Hills

By SELIG S. HARRISON

NEW DEHLI, Jan. 7—(AP)—India has discovered a rich strategic minerals prize in the mountains of disputed Kashmir.

Near the border of Comunist-held Tibet, Indian Government mining engineers have located an estimated 400,000 tons of sulphur, by far the largest concentration of the mineral on record in the Indo-Pakistan sub-continent.

As the basic ingredient of sulphuric acid, a primary industrial chemical, sulphur has great strategic importance.

An investigating party led by Natural Resources Ministry staff member S. S. Malhotra visited the deposits in July.

Official sources refuse comment on the matter. "We have been instructed to treat this as secret," said Malhotra.

The deposits are in remote, mountain country which includes Mount Chalung, a 21,477-foot peak.

So wild is the terrain and so difficult the transportation problem, in fact, the geologists here say it is not certain when adequate transport facilities for working the deposits will be possible.

Harried Election Officials Have Tough Job In India

By SELIG S. HARRISON

NEW DELHI, Jan. 7 (AP) — India's first general elections are under way, but 2,000 years of Empire still inger in the air.

Harried officials trying to put 170,000,000 "first voters" through the pages of democracy find that self-government takes a lot of teaching in this land of high illiteracy and low diet.

Many Indian languages have no word which means "election." On his campaign tour in the back country, Prime Minister Nehru hears peasants hail him as "Raja" or King.

Balloting for 490 central parliament seats and 3,393 seats in 22 state assemblies began in six states in December. Most states picked January to avoid conflict with the winter harvest work.

Polling teams in each state travel from village to village on a set schedule which calls for announcement of final results by Feb. 28.

Tough Proposition

Picture the plight of election authorities, confronted with a country of 700,000 villages, 23 regional tongues and eight out of every 10 persons unable to read or write in any of them.

For the sake of illiterates, election commissioner Sukumar Sen devised a plan that does away with marking ballots. Voters drop blank ballots into boxes bearing symbols for parties and candidates such as a hut or a tree.

More than 20,000 candidates are campaigning feverishly. At least one-third are Independents. The others represent 18 major national and regional parties and a score of mushrooming election growths.

Nehru goes to the people frankly, confiding the problems and failures of his Congress party regime but offering assurance that great progress has been made in the four years of independence from Britain. He stresses the unity of India and attacks "Communalism," the extremist religious separatism of fanatics in the ranks of Hindu, Moslem and Sikh communities.

Domestic issues, however, dominate the campaign. Jaya Prakash Narayan's Socialist party condemns the Nehru Congress as capitalist-controlled and demands land reform faster than the gradual congress way. The Kisan Mazdoor Praja party, or workers, peasants, and peoples party, formed by Congress seceders, claims increasing corruption will bring revolution in India.

13 Escape Injury

DRYDEN, Ont., Jan .7—(CP)—Thirteen persons escaped injury Friday when they fled a blazing home in the Rice Lake district, 10 miles north of here. One of the older members of the family then walked a mile and a half through frigid weather in his underwear and socks to get help while the rest of the family huddled in a shed. The 13 were members of the Bellideau family.

Ava Tells All, Admits Shyness Domesticity

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7 (AP)—Bet you didn't know that Ava Gardner is shy. And domestic, too.

These fascinating facts were uncovered in a chat with the glamor queen. I discovered that beneath that shapely and well-composed exterior lurks a shrinking violet.

Ava was talking about her recent trip to England, where she met members of the Royal family. She remarked that Princess Elizabeth was very shy, "just like me".

Ava shy?

"Absolutely," she replied. "People frighten me. You should see me in a crowd; I get terrified. Why, if I had to do all the things that Princess Elizabeth does, it would kill me."

How?

If she is so shy, how did she get in the acting business?

"That's a good question," she replied. "I've never been able to figure it out myself. I'm completely miscast. I'm much better equipped for having babies."

Wah this a hint? Columnists have already been rumoring that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sinatra will be welcoming the stork.

"No, it's not true yet," she replied, adding "unfortunately". She remarked that she would like to have two or three children.

Along with other performers, the Sinatras went to England recently to appear at a benefit under the sponsorship of the Duke of Edinburgh. Ava was enthusiastic about him.

"He's the most charming man I ever met," she remarked. "We did a samba together and he's a delightful dancer."

Will Cut Jail Terms In Princess' Honor

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Jan. 7—(Reuters)—The visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Ceylon next February is to be marked by an amnesty for several hundred prisoners.

Many prisoners serving long terms will have sentences reduced and others with short sentences will likely be freed.

Princess Elizabeth and her husband will stay in Ceylon for seven days on their way to Australia.

Omemee WMS Installs Officers

OMEMEE, Jan. 7—(ENS)—Installation of officers and annual reports were the chief items of business at the January meeting of Omemee Trinity United Church WMS.

The installation was conducted by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt. Mr. Zufelt also advised the auxiliary of the necessity of appointing a representative to a local committee who will deal with the raising of money for the erection of a new Church Training School for young women preparing for full-time church work. The newly elected president, Mrs. J. A. McConnell, was appointed as representative.

Mrs. McConnell entered on her new role as president by expressing her appreciation of the honor conferred upon her, and her realization of its importance. Though it was a new experience for her, she said, with God's help and the co-operation of the members she would do her utmost to make the year's work a success.

The financial report, as given by treasurer Mrs. R. E. Brooks, showed $407.50 to forward to the presbyterial treasurer, which exceeds the allocation by $37.50. It was raised from members' fees, Easter and autumn thankofferings, systematic giving and a gift.

In addition, Mrs. G. Overholt reported $43.57 from collections for the expense fund, making the total amount raised $451.07.

The secretary's records showed 33 annual members, eight life members, and an average attendance of 25. The Friendship Committee report, given by Mrs. Overholt, accounted for 57 visits to sick, shutins and newcomers. Associate helper secretary Mrs. V. Lang reported only three members left, the others having become active WMS members. Mrs. S. Moyer, reporting for the supply committee, said a bale had been sent valued at $163.54. The Mission Band report, given by Mrs. S. D. Vaughan, showed an average attendance of 12, and $25.59 sent to the presbyterial treasurer. Mrs. H. Deyell's Baby Band had a membership of 50, ten of whom were promoted to Mission Band, and $15 was sent.

Mrs. V. Lang, leader of the group in charge of the program, conducted the worship, assisted by Mrs. Moyer and Mrs. R. E. Brooks. The study, based on Chapter 13 of "From Lakes to Northern Lights," was presented by the question and answer method by the leader, Mrs. Moyer, and Mrs. Zufelt, and dealt with French Canadian Evangelism. Protestant churches are concerned, they said, about two classes of people in Quebec province—French Protestants who are in scattered minority groups without separate educational and religious privileges, and some former French Roman Catholics who are drifting into atheism. The Protestant churches feel their responsibility toward these groups.

Storms Whip Up Business For Laurentians

By HARRY WEST

ST. JOVITE, PQ — (CP). — Canada's winter wonderland — the Laurentians—where Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh rested during the Royal tour—is enjoying one of its greatest seasons.

Resort owners, who during the last two or three years shook their heads in despair at the sight of the bare hills and scarcely-used ski-tows, now are smiling happily as snowstorms lash the district.

The resorts have united this year to hold a carnival which will make everything in previous years suffer by comparison.

The festivities started in mid-December when Miss Micheline Thibaudeau, a pert 20-year-old miss of Ste. Adele was crowned "Miss Laurentide."

Fifteen fresh-cheeked, wholesome beauties representing as many villages in the north, competed for the title. The representatives were chosen at carnivals held in their municipalities, all building up for the mammoth affair at Ste. Agathe, when the international dog-sled derby will be held the second week of February.

On January 24, the St. Jovite Queen will be honored by the re sort and town officials. Miss Michelle Normandeau, 20, won this title in a recent competition.

An airplane hangar of Wheeler Airlines will be converted into a huge reception hall for the crowning of Miss Laurentide the following day. Some 1,000 guests will be accommodated.

An orchid will be presented to every woman attending the party, which will feature modern and square dancing to old-time folk tunes.

A special masquerade party for children will be held the following day, and on Sunday, Jan. 27, the annual Taschereau ski meet will hold the spotlight.

On Jan. 28, sleigh-rides will be the feature, and the following night "an old-time soiree" will be held with a mustache contest planned.

The Laurentian committee handling events has adopted the slogan "Old times, old customs," as the theme of the festivities.

Jerusalem Guarded After 340 Injured In Reparations Riot

JERUSALEM, Jan. 8 (Reuters)—Authorities moved reinforcements into Jerusalem today to bring order after more than 340 persons were injured Monday night in street fighting between police and extremist Jews demonstrating against negotiating with Germany. Authorities announced today that 140 police and an estimated 200 civilians were hurt. They reported no deaths. An estimated 10,000 persons marched on the government buildings Monday night to break up a debate on the amount of money Germany must pay Israel in reparations for the damages done by the Nazis.

They shouted such slogans as "no truck with Hitler's heirs."

Police flooded roads with gasoline and set them ablaze to keep the marchers back.

They arrested about 400 of the rioters, most of them members of the Israeli "Freedom Movement."

Guard Legislature

Strong units of police and troops were rushed into town to guard the Knesset (legislature) when the reparations debate resumes later today. It broke up in uproar Monday night. A vote is not expected until late tonight or Wednesday morning.

Today's reinforcements arrived while the debris was being cleared off the streets after the fighting, in which Jews opposed to direct reparations talks with Germany broke through ranks of steel-helmeted police who retaliated with tear gas.

Inside the chamber ministers and members listened to Premier Ben Gurion with streaming eyes as the gas filtered into the windows. Outside, Freedom Movement men threw rocks at the windows.

Carlsen Only Day Away From UK Port

ON THE ATLANTIC WITH THE FLYING ENTERPRISE, Jan. 8 — (CP). — Capt. Kurt Carlsen, scanning the horizon from his crippled cargo ship, was close enough to land tonight to see the beacon from the lighthouse marking the southwest tip of England.

Zigzagging at the end of a 750-yard tow line, he was about 50 miles from Falmouth, but near land at the lighthouse point.

Awaiting him at this seaport is a welcome fit for the hero of the great sea saga. Topping the honors list is a decoration — Knight of the Danneborg— from King Frederick of Denmark, Carlsen's birthplace.

At the present rate, if the weather holds Carlsen should bring his Flying Enterprise in about noon Wednesday.

And tonight, he and Ken Dancy the English mate of the tug Turmoil, who clambered aboard to join Carlsen last weekend, should see the Lizard Lighthouse beacon if the fog holds off.

The sea was rougher—but it was still good weather for a January day.

"There is nothing to worry about," Carlsen shouted to the Associated Press tug Englishman riding along 10 to 15 yards away from the crippled freighter.

As he spoke the Atlantic leaped onto the sloping maindeck. Carlsen ignored the sloshing water.

Looks Fit

Carlsen wore a thick beard and looked surprisingly fit.

Ten days had elapsed since the worst Atlantic storm in 50 years wrecked his 6,711-ton ship, forced him to evacuate 40 crew members and 10 passengers into the churning sea and waiting rescue vessels, and started him on his valiant effort to keep the Enterprise from becoming a prize of the sea.

The ship, tilted almost flat on its port side, thrashed out to the side as the two cables slackened periodically. She was not believed in any danger.

The slow procession now includes four ships boxing the Flying Enterpise in a diamond quadrille, with the Turmoil in front.

On the left, abeam with the crippled ship, was the escorting United States destroyer Willard Keith. Off to the right was the Cabinet Crisis May Drag On

PARIS, Jan. 8 — (AP). — President Vincent Auriol worked today at the task of finding a Prime Minister for France. It appeared as if the country would be unable to act decisively on grave international questions for a month or more.

Premier Rene Pleven and his Centre-Coalition Cabinet resigned Monday night after a 341-243 defeat in the National Assembly on their 1952 budget proposals. The Cabinet remained as a caretaker government until Auriol could find successors.

Most political observers thought the crisis might be a long one, leaving France virtually voiceless and without a government able to make decisions.

One important international question that might be delayed is the formation of a European army, which would put the Germans in uniform again as partners in Western European defence.

Suez Canal Workers End Two-Day Strike

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 8 — (Reuters)—Egyptian workers on the Suez Canal went back to work tonight after a two-day strike which threatened to shut down the vital world waterway.

Canal company officals had feared the stoppage would result in closing the canal.

More than 1,500 men quit Monday in protest over an alleged insult to a union official during labor negotiations. They charged he was turned out of the room.

Twenty ships moved through the canal tonight and berthing and refueling operations were begun on many more waiting their turn.

The strikes were accompanied by demonstration parades against the British here Monday night.

Reject Red Demand To Abolish Committee

PARIS, Jan. 8 (AP). — The United Nations political committee tonight rejected a Russian demand that it abolish the UN collective measures committee.

The committee is working on a veto-free system to combat aggression.

The vote was five in favor (Soviet bloc), 52 against and two abstentions.

The committee then began to vote on the western-backed program itself and a Russian resolution which would have the effect of transferring the Korean peace talks to a security council meeting attended by member foreign ministers.

The two resolutions included amendments which had to be voted on separately, leading to prolonged balloting.

Snow, Freezing Rain Striking Ontario

TORONTO, Jan. 8 — (CP).— Snow began falling today in Southern Ontario, but the weatherman said the fall would not be as heavy as the storms which hit the province in December. Two to three inches was the forecast.

The weatherman said a storm centre near Chicago would move into Ontario by nightfall, bringing two to three inches of snow during the evening and freezing rain later. The rain would end by Wednesday morning.

GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER Monday proclaimed himself a Republican and admitted he will accept that party's presidential nomination if it is offered. But he said he won't actively seek it.

Middle East Troubles Discussed

Churchill, Truman Tackle Problems, Make No Statement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP) —Middle Eastern affairs were discussed today in talks between President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill. It was considered possible that Truman took up the question of compromises in the critical areas of Egypt and Iran.

Gen. Omar Bradley, head of the US joint chiefs of staff, sat in on the conference, presumably to give the leaders a briefing on the slow progress in forming a Middle East Command. Egypt has refused to join such a command.

There was no official report on what went on behind locked doors at the White House, but the fact that Bradley was present along with Burton Y. Berry, Acting Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern, South Asian, and African Affairs, spotlighted a discussion about the Middle East.

As Churchill left the White House at the conclusion of the morning session, he told reporters "everybody is happy" and everything "goes well."

The two leaders will confer again at 5 pm.

Something of what they have said to each other and the conclusions reached may be in a communique they have promised for tonight or Wednesday when the talks will be interrupted by Churchill's departure for New York and Ottawa.

Canadian Dollar Nearly At Par

LONDON, Jan. 8 (Reuters)— The Canadian dollar rose here today to the United States dollar parity of $2.80 to the pound sterling for the first time since its value was unpegged 15 months ago.

However, the American dollar actually is still worth a little more than the Canadian dollar because it now stands a fraction above parity—the limit fixed by the Bank of England.

Value of Canadian currency increased to almost level with American money in the middle of last month when the Canadian government abolished all exchange controls.

In United States trading, the Canadian dollar today was at a discount of three-quarters of a cent in terms of US currency. Before it was unpegged in 1950 it was at a discount of about 10 per cent.

FIVE DIE IN FIRE—Five elderly persons were asphyxiated Saturday when fire swept a Montreal apartment block operated as a private home for the aged. The five, two of them nearly blind, were unable to escape from their third floor dwellings because flames blocked the stairway. The bodies of four women and one man were found by firemen.

UN Soldiers Win, Lose Two Objectives

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 8 (AP).— United Nations infantrymen won then lost two important objectives today in the battle of Sasi bulge, a bitter fight to recapture ground taken by the Reds Dec. 28.

The United States Eighth Army communique, reporting this, did not identify the western front objectives.

UN elements took one after a 15-minute fight with an enemy company and the other after a 10-minute engagement with a Red force of undetermined size.

However, the communique said two Communist battalions supported by two tanks or self-propelled guns recaptured the first objective in a one-hour and 20-minute clash and a single Red battalion retook the second in a one-hour and 30-minute fray.

UN troops just missed recapturing the ground, a small, bald hill west of Korangpo, Monday. They fought through heavy Red fire to within 30 yards of the position before they were thrown back.

The battle—the only major action along the ground front—has featured tanks and self-propelled guns, heavy artillery exchanges, bitter hand-to-hand fighting and at least one Allied air strike.

Allied jet fighters tangled briefly with Communist MIG-15's on Tuesday but the Air Force said no damage was suffered by either side.

The Sasi bulge fight centres four miles west of Korangpo and only six miles northeast of Panmunjom. The Allies are trying to straighten out a dent in the United States Eighth Army's forward line.

Think Malenkov Stalin Successor

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

Moscow's press left little doubt today that the successor to Joseph Stalin has been chosen and that he is a glowering member of the Politburo, Georgi Maxmilianovitch Malenkov.

Extravagant praise was heaped on him on his birthday. It is comparable only to the praise accorded to Stalin himself. The greeting to him from the Communist party and the council of ministers hails him as "co-adviser of Stalin" — the highest possible praise in the USSR. It also credited him with having "forged victory for our homeland in the great war of the fatherland against the enemies of humanity."

This is a development of extreme importance for the Western world, with broad implications for the future of international relations.

If there has been a struggle for power in the Politburo — and many in the West believe such a struggle has been taking place— Vyacheslav M. Molotov seemingly has lost to the brilliant, ruthless youngster brought up in the isolation of Soviet Communism as Stalin's protege.

Boy Kept Chained To Bed 2 Months By Kidnapper

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 8 (AP)—A 12-year-old boy, missing since last October, today was found chained to a bed in a filthy home here. Police said a man held on a bank robbery charge admitted kidnapping the lad. Except for bruises over much of his body, Richard (Ricky) Henrickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Henrickson was reported in fair physical condition.

In jail on federal bank robbing charges was John D. Billett, 24-year-old Salt Lake City man.

Ricky disappeared Oct. 20. Officers had questioned many persons, including Billett, but had been unable to run down a tangible clue.

The break came suddenly. Billett was arraigned on the robbery charge shortly before midnight, then returned to his jail cell.

He was accused of stealing $20,915 in a daring daylight robbery Monday.

Early this morning Billett called the jailer and told him he wanted to tell officers his story.

Strange Tale

Deputy Sheriff T. A. Callicott said the strange tale unfolded like this:

Billett said he abducted the Henricksen boy and agreed to lead officers to the hideout where the lad was held.

Billett and two carloads of officers drove to a southeastern Salt Lake City residential area. They entered a house, some distance back from the street.

Billett called out: "Rick." The officers were led into another room where a light flashed on.

Blinking in the sudden light was the boy, lying on a bed, a chain around his ankle and fastened to the foot of the bedstead. The lad was taken to a hospital for examination.

Describes Abduction

Later Ricky told of his abduction. Both he and Billett were employed at a used car lot, the boy serving as car washer.

On October 20 Ricky said Billett told him he was a special police officer. The lad said he was accused of various thefts and was informed he would have to go with Billett for questioning.

"I really thought he was a policeman," Ricky said. "Johnny told me to stay away from the windows and not try to run away. He had a pair of handcuffs and used them to fasten me to the bed.

"He had a chain, too, and some of the time he fastened the chain around one or both my ankles and locked me to the bed with a padlock."

Ricky told of a series of beatings, which he said were described as "tests to see if I would confess to stealing all that stuff."

RCMP Starts Inquiry In Immigration Racket

MONTREAL, Jan. 8 (CP)—The RCMP today reported they are investigating a racket involving illegal entry of immigrants into Canada.

But a spokesman denied rumors that Lucky Luciano, former United States vice lord, is believed to be connected with the probe.

"It is too early to comment on the course of the investigation," the spokesman said. "We are investigating illegal entry of immigrants but we have no indication that Luciano is involved.

"A number of articles have appeared recently linking him with the investigation but they contained mostly erroneous information."

The spokesman could not say whether many immigrants are slipping into Canada but he forecast a long investigation.

Looting, Robbery Follow Night Of Flaming Terror

SEPT ILES, Que., Jan. 8 (CP)—Looting and robbery followed today as an aftermath of a $1,000,000 fire that stabbed at the heart of ths town, center of Ungava iron ore development. Four looters caught in the ruins of a department store were arrested. Another man made an early morning attempt —at the height of the fire—to break into a branch of La Banque Canadienne Nationale. The flames which levelled the city hall, three huge warehouses and a department store also swept up the town jail.

The prisoners were shackled with leg irons and locked to double-deck bunks in a hut, Mayor Jack Layden said.

Fast work by bulldozer crews is credited with saving the town.

The bulldozer men, from the Iron Ore Company of Canada, flattened smaller buildings to create fire-breaks and smother the ruins with 17-foot snowbanks.

The last bid of the fire in early-morning darkness was a spectacular outburst of flames 100 feet high when 30 oxygen tanks exploded. They were stored in the warehouse of the Quebec-Newfoundland Equipment Company and a smouldering fire set them off.

For a time Monday night the whole town of 3,600 residents appeared domed by the raging fire that started in a garage in the centre of town.

A 15-below-zero temperature meant a frozen St. Lawrence bay here, 275 miles northeast of Quebec City, and that meant that pumps could not be used. Then bulldozers were called into play to level buildings untouched by the fire and thus check it.

At midnight these bulldozing efforts appeared to have been successful.

The giant machines barricaded the fire with 17-foot drifts of snow around the large centre-town garage which was a storage place for spare parts of the many construction vehicles used in the business of building a centre here which will one day be the sea base for dispatch to consumer points of northern Quebec's iron ore.

At midnight Mayor Jack Layden announced the blaze was under control. People went to their homes. But one point smouldered. It was a construction shed filled with blankets and with oxygen tanks.

Then came the second scare. The blankets ignited the oxygen and for a time it appeared townspeople in this settlement at a spot where explorer Jacques Cartier stopped in 1535 must be evacuated for fear oil storage tanks would go.

LOOTING, ROBBERY

Flying Jewelry Brings Arrests

WELLAND, Jan. 8 (CP)—The automobile looked suspicious. So, too, were the watches and jewelry flying out the window.

As a result, Welland's policemen Monday night spent most of the evening digging in snowbanks looking for loot taken from a store at Dunnville, 22 miles north of here. Today, four men and a woman were being held on robbery charges.

Police Chief Thomas Gee had stopped the car, found that the driver had no licence and ordered it to the police station. He followed—and couldn't help but see the watches and rings being tossed on the roadside.

Officers searched snowbanks until after midnight and recovered a number of watches and jewelry, allegedly taken from C. W. Perry's jewelry store in Dunnville.

Arrested were Douglas Roy Robert, 37, Niagara Falls; Wilfred Brown; Beverly Robinson, 35, Niagara Falls; William H. Greene, Hamilton, and his wife, Mrs. Leone Greene.

Police were still picking up jewelry and watches on Welland streets this morning.

Firemen piloted a boat through an open space of water on the Welland canal to retrieve two watches and a watch case which landed on ice after being tossed over the Main street bridge railing.

Bell Declares Construction Costs Up 65 PC

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP)—Telephone construction costs for labor and materials have jumped 65 per cent since 1939, the Bell Telephone Company today told the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The company was continuing its submission in support of its request for rate increases on its 1,800,000 phones in Ontario and Quebec.

A. G. Lester, Bell's supervisor of plant extension, said that the cost of the company's plant facilities per telephone had increased to $317 in 1951 from $236 in 1946. It was expected to reach $346 by the end of 1953.

Must Meet Demands

Mr. Lester said that in the face of these costs, the company has to go ahead with an expansion program to meet demands for service. At present, there were about 80,000 applications on file.

Evidence Monday was that the 1952-53 expansion program would cost $90,000,000 a year.

Forecasting heavy construction beyond 1953, Mr. Lester said that estimates of long-term growth indicate an annual increase of 60,000 to 80,000 phones per year.

Long-distance facilities were being improved. When the toll-dialing system was complete—in a matter of years—an operator would be able to dial directly to practically any telephone in Canada or the United States.

Over a period of years, Mr. Lester said, that would "result in substantial economies and service benefits."

Ontario Loans Bridge To Help Nova Scotia

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP).—The Ontario Department of Highways today lent a bridge to Nova Scotia.

It is a 140-foot Bailey bridge which the eastern province will use to span the Gaspereau river.

The bridge will keep traffic moving between Wolfville, home of Acadia University, and the village of Grand Pre. The Ontario bridge replaces an old covered bridge erected in 1867 and will prevent several communities from being cut off while a new bridge is being constructed.

Ontario has invested heavily in surplus Bailey bridges, more than 80 of them being used in Northern Ontario to span streams for timber salvage operations.

Canadian Farms Suggested Model

PARIS, Jan. 8 — (CP). — Canada today urged the United Nations to press for land reform in under-developed countries and offered the Canadian system where farmers are "kings of the land" as a goal.

Jean Lesage, Parliamentary Assistant to Canada's External Affairs Minister, told the Economic Committee that the economic development of backward areas cannot be boosted without a good basic agrarian system.

He expressed support for a resolution which calls for a reform to bring family ownership of land, moderate rentals, equitable taxes and diversification of production.

Lesage pointed to Canada and said "peaceful free agricultural economy is the surest answer to achievement of a high standard of living."

"I would make so bold as to say that Canada possesses one of the most highly developed agricultural systems in the world and that the standard of living of its farm population is second to none."

Bulldozers Save Blazing Quebec Town

Pile Up Snowbanks Around Burning Buildings To Check Flames

By CLAUDE TOUZEL
As Told To The Canadian Press

SEPT ILES, Que., Jan. 8 (CP)— I think it can be said—bulldozers saved this town.

That is not just because I'm a bulldozer operator but because I've lived through these last 12 hours which saw our town of Sept Iles lying seemingly unprotected in 15-below zero weather against the threat of obliteration by flames.

As it is—and the embers still smoulder this morning—the fire caused damage of $1,000,000 to this community which is girded for the spring and the big push which will be part of the jamming forward of the railroad surge into Ungava to get iron ore out to this port by 1954.

To us, who live here, this, and life in Sept Iles is important.

So when fire, which I'm told started in the big garage in the centre of the town, threatened our community of 3,600 the bulldozer crews were ready.

Couldn't Use Pumps

Firefighters, most of them volunteers, couldn't use the pumps that might bring water from the bay, because the bay was frozen. People huddled around watching the flames work their way out from the big Quebec-Newfoundland Equipment Company garage. There was fear for homes, for the safety of Sept. Iles.

That was when the bulldozers fired up. You could hear their roar through the whole community, even above the roar of the flames. As we moved in then and knocked down buildings that stood in the path of the flames, that might serve to spread the flames' fury.

Then the bulls moved in to bank towering snowbanks around the blaze, to form a dike, as it were, around the inferno which threatened to demolish Sept. Iles.

We pushed down the sides of buildings that were on fire first. Then we pushed down little buildings the fire might have spread to. After that, in our own ponderous fashion we built up a snow-fort, as it were, around the fire. When it melted we piled more snow.

It looked bad for a while. I would say our work was dangerous enough, but I think it saved Sept Iles.

Wyse Hanged For Murder Of Killaloe Man

PEMBROKE, Jan. 8 (CP). — A man who protested his innocence when he was sentenced to death for murder, walked stoically to the gallows without a word early today and paid the supreme penalty.

Lloyd Robert Wyse, 35-year-old plumber from Golden Lake, Ont., had no last words as he mounted the scaffold in the Pembroke county jail to be hanged for the April, 1951, murder of Lloyd Barber, 55, councillor and taxi driver of Killaloe. His face was expressionless.

The trap was sprung at 12:16 am EST. Seven minutes later Lloyd Robert Wyse was pronounced dead.

It was the first hanging in this Ottawa valley town since 1887.

Wyse was found guilty Oct. 23 by a Supreme Court jury of the murder of Barber in the latter's home at Killaloe. Police said he fled the scene in Barber's car.

Asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed, Wyse stood before Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven and replied in a steady, quiet voice:

Denies Killing Cabbie

"I did not kill Lloyd Barber."

The judge then passed the death sentence.

A subsequent appeal of the case was rejected.

Barber's body, with 13 wounds on the head and neck, was found in the second-floor bathroom of his home. Police said he had been brutally beaten. The councillor's 1950 sedan was missing and authorities sent out an alert to watch for it.

The car was located in a used car lot at Niagara Falls, where it had been sold. The Golden Lake plumber was picked up by police next day at Hamilton, where he had gone to visit his brother, James Wyse.

Industrial Prices Dip Sharply On Market

TORONTO, Jan. 8 — (CP) — Early afternoon industrial prices dipped sharply today but other stock market sections steadied after early weakness.

Textiles and industrials attracted firm support while agricultures, constructions, steels, foods and manufacturing companies held gains and losses in balance. Utilities, however, weakened while papers, refining oils and banks dipped sharply.

Western oils, yesterday's feature, opened irregularly, turned sharply lower during the first hour and weakened steadily until firmer mid-session support checked the decline. Scurry was an exception as it climbed strongly in active trading following reports of a second strike on the company's Alberta property. The stock climbed 25 cents in a turnover of about 135,000 shares by 1 p.m.

Base metals showed losses outnumbering gains by about three to one. Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, Quemont, United Keno Hill and Waite Amulet slipped fractions.

In senior golds Dome, Hollinger, Lamaque, Malartic and McIntyre posted declines ranging to 50 cents. Secondary issues eased.

Butter Production Down

TORONTO, Jan. 8 — (CP) — Production of both creamery butter and cheddar cheese was down in Ontario during November, compared with the same month in 1950. The cumulative output of the two products between January and the end of November also showed a decrease.

LEAD HOBBY

It has been estimated that stamp collectors outnumber the followers of any other hobby in the world.

Old Trustees Returned

Disagreement over school accommodation in Douro was settled on Monday for a year at least when both 1951 trustees were returned, as well as the 1951 council.

Former trustees Clinton Hough and Charles J. Watkins were returned with substantial margins over Eldon P. Ray and Leonard W. J. Welch.

Council members in 1951, Bruce Dunsford, Fergus Moher and Cletus Sullivan, were returned. All had clear-cut margins over the nearest of the three other candidates—David R. Friesen, Kenneth Kidd, and John Ryan.

5 Men Defeated

The five men who were nominated from the west section of the township were defeated in their first tries for council and the board of School Area No. 2.

During the campaign, both sides sent out pamphlets. Dr. Ray and Mr. Welch asked approval of their suggestion for a new six-room school. Mr. Hough and Mr. Watkins argued that school accommodation should be increased as it was needed, and that the township should not be overburdened with debt.

Voting for council was as follows:

Poll	1	2	3	4	5	Total
Dunsford	97	69	72	89	44	371
Friesen	6	1	2	28	81	118

Canadians Able To Get More Lobsters

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP).—Canadians in the central parts of the country with a yen for live lobsters may soon be able to get more of these snappy crustaceans. Fishery scientists have discovered they can be kept alive in artificial sea water for a week or more.

The big problem in the past has been the long railway haul. Many lobsters just couldn't stand it. However, Dr. A. W. H. Needler, director of the Atlantic biological station, St. Andrews, NB, reported to the Fisheries Research Board of Canada today that lobsters can be kept alive with artificial sea water.

One experiment, undertaken by Dr. D. G. Wilder at the St. Andrews station, showed that vigorous lobsters lived for three weeks in a wooden tank containing the special sea-water solution, made of five salts: sodium chloride, potassium chloride, magnesium chloride, calcium chloride and magnesium sulphate. Compressed air provides oxygen.

Can Improve Yield

Many other investigations were undertaken by the station particularly to show how restrictions on fishing can improve the lobster yield.

"There is reason to believe," said Dr. Needler, "that it would pay in many Maritime areas to let lobsters grow to a larger size before catching them."

The entire world's supply of canned lobster comes from Canada, which sells fresh lobsters on both the domestic and export markets. In 1950 the market value of the more than 45,000,000 pounds of lobster caught in the Maritimes totalled $19,500,000.

Have New Spokesman For Small Industries

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP). — A new spokesman for small industries seeking defence contracts has been appointed in the defence production department, it was learned today.

T. Norbert Beaupre, 34-year-old special assistant to Deputy Minister Max Mackenzie, succeeds G. D. Mallory as head of the department's small industries division.

Mr. Mallory, 57, returns to the Trade Department to his old job as head of the industrial development branch.

Mr. Beaupre, the new small industries director in the Defence Production Department, is a native of Montreal. He joined the trade department's trade commissioner service in 1945.

The small industries branch has been set up to help the little business man get a greater share in the three-year, $3,500,000,000 defence production program.

But authorities dynamited the shed and the threat to Sept Iles vanished.

Residents this morning crowded the town's two small churches giving thanks that flames were halted before they destroyed the entire community.

The blaze, which broke out at 7:30 pm EST was under control four hours and fifteen minutes later.

Nightmare For Town

Those four hours were a nightmare for the community, spelling disaster during a temporary power shortage and lack of firefighting equipment.

Bulldozers saved Sept Iles.

The fire is believed to have started in a garage of the Quebec-Newfoundland Equipment Company. It spread and destroyed half of the town hall and a new Sept Iles department store. From there it spread to a huge pile of automobile tires.

Black smoke poured over the snow-covered town in the flickering lights as a power shortage resulted. Tires—many of them for bulldozers, tractors and other construction vehicles—were estimated to be worth $250,000. An early suggestion was made that an overheated electric pump caused the outbreak.

Only family left homeless was that of George Brown which occupied an apartment above the store.

Evacuation Planned

For a time it appeared that the entire town would burn and organization was made to evacuate women and children.

Canadian Pacific Airlines furnished firefighters from their airport nearby, a port of call for the air freighting which goes on night and day in the probe of the northland for ore.

With iron came people and construction material and what was previously a centre of perhaps 1,500 made up of commercial fishermen, pulpwood cutters and paper workers became a bustling centre.

2 Men Charged After Fight In Lakefield

Two men involved in a fracas in Lakefield shortly after midnight Sunday morning appeared in police court today, charged with assault occasioning bodily harm.

Raymond McIlmoyle, RR 2, Bethany, was remanded until January 15 on bail of $500.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw asked bail of $1,000 for William Edwards, George St., Lakefield, charged with assaulting McIlmoyle, whose head was swathed completely in bandages when he appeared in court today.

W. C. Grant represented Edwards and said he could assure Magistrate W. R. Philp that the man would appear when this case was called. Mr. Grant asked for an adjournment so Edwards could continue working and support his large family.

Mr. Bradshaw said that if Magistrate Philp felt the circumstances merited an adjournment he would consent and the charge against Edwards was also adjourned until January 15.

Reported Man Hunt

Two Peterborough men called at the home of Lakefield Police Chief Garnet Samis at 1 am Sunday, and told him there was a man in a car parked nearby who had been badly injured in an accident.

Chief Samis said the man, Raymond McIlmoyle, was bleeding badly and he learned that McIlmoyle had not been injured in an accident but had been involved in a disturbance at the home of William Edwards.

McIlmoyle is charged with assaulting Mrs. Cecil Darling, a housekeeper at the Edwards' home. Edwards is charged with assaulting McIlmoyle, after McIlmoyle allegedly struck Mrs. Darling at the door of the Edwards home.

McIlmoyle was taken to the office of Dr. H. E. Gastle, where his injuries were diagnosed as a fractured nose and a possible fractured skull along with numerous bruises and cuts about the head and face.

He was later taken to hospital in Peterborough where it was found that he had a slight skull fracture and a double fracture of the nose.

A claw hammer and the bone of the front leg of a deer were found by Chief Samis at the scene of the fight.

Three-Level System For Toronto Schools

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP) — Board of education trustees today received plans for a city-wide three-level school system. If the plan is adopted, it will be the most sweeping innovation in Toronto's educational history.

The plan calls for junior public schools (up to Grade 6), senior public schools (Grades 7 and 8) and high schools as they are at present.

Cost of the plan is estimated at close to $1,000,000 extended over a period of five or more years.

Dr. Goldring said he was convinced that educationally the three-level system was superior to the present two-level system. A separate school for children entering adolescence—"the difficult age"—is desirable, he said.

New Zealand Meat Sent To Canada-US

WELLINGTON, NZ, Jan. 8 — (Reuters).—New Zealand will ship 5,000 tons of meat, mostly lamb, to the United States and Canada as an experiment, J. J. Evans, general manager of the New Zealand Meat Producers' Board, announced today.

New Zealand is exploring the possibility of developing a North American market as an alternative to Britain, now its main buyer, he said.

Evans said the decision followed agreement between the British and New Zealand governments.

New Zealand farmers have been complaining lately that the prices Britain pays for food imports is below world standards.

New Zealand Meat Sent To Canada-US

WELLINGTON, NZ, Jan. 8 — (Reuters).—New Zealand will ship 5,000 tons of meat, mostly lamb, to the United States and Canada as an experiment, J. J. Evans, general manager of the New Zealand Meat Producers' Board, announced today.

New Zealand is exploring the possibility of developing a North American market as an alternative to Britain, now its main buyer, he said.

Evans said the decision followed agreement between the British and New Zealand governments.

New Zealand farmers have been complaining lately that the prices Britain pays for food imports is below world standards.

Goes To Ottawa

The Prime Minister plans to fly to Ottawa from New York on Friday. But he will return next Tuesday for other engagements here including his address to a joint session of Congress January 17.

Meanwhile Churchill has been trying to recreate with Truman and his colleagues the comradely, intimate relations and understanding he had with President Roosevelt during the Second World War when their frequent meetings were top news events and of great significance to the whole world.

He may be succeeding, but the circumstances are somewhat different. Then the two countries were in a war to the finish and the two leaders were much the same in temperament and background.

Churchill used to stay at the White House and wander around in his pyjamas or his famous zippered blitz suit and talk to Roosevelt at all hours.

Stays At Embassy

Now he is at the British Embassy. Truman and his family have been living for nearly three years at Blair House, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House which now is approaching completion of an entire renovation. There is no room for guests at Blair House.

But Monday night there was something of the glamor of the old wartime conferences. Churchill and his chief aides were hosts to the President and members of his Cabinet at an Embassy dinner.

They had a good time at the dinner and afterwards Truman played Chopin on the Embassy piano and did not get back to Blair House until 11:15 pm — a late hour for the early-rising President.

An Embassy spokesman came down to the White House afterwards and briefed reporters on the dinner, but added little to the non-committal reports brought by spokesmen from the two daytime conferences. He said the talks at the Embassy had been informal and casual but the spirit of complete friendliness was the keynote.

Churchill and 11 of his advisers went to the White House Monday morning and sat down with Truman and a similar number of his colleagues in the Cabinet Room of the executive wing.

They talked about raw materials and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and set up a joint working committee to report on these matters late today. It is reported unofficially that the Britons asked for large allocations of United States steel, but there was nothing official.

Iron Development Moves Quickly

MARMORA, Jan. 8 (ENS) — A visit to the mining area of the Marmoraton Mining Company Limited in Marmora reveals much progress in the past few months. The 40 by 200-foot quonset hut to be used as a temporary shop and garage is being erected by a Tweed contractor.

The McFarland Construction Company have done much of the levelling of the ground north of the hut whereon the general office and other buildings will be erected and their surfacing of the road allowance between the mine property and Highway 7 is nearing completion.

The augmented section gang of the CNR whose Trenton-to-Bancroft line skirts the property on the east is making good progress with the siding, the ground for which has already been levelled.

A large new truck silently advertises the company's presence in the local industrial sphere. Also a road grader was unloaded shortly before Christmas. The coming of spring with the increased activity in the mine area is keenly awaited by residents of this district which has had such changing fortunes in the last century and a quarter.

Report New Clue In Disappearance Of French Girl

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP)—New developments were promised today in the disappearance of Mrs. Hughuette Lemay, 21-year-old Canadian beauty missing since Friday while on a fishing trip in the Florida Keys.

Sheriff's Deputy James O. Barker of Monroe county leading the investigation, predicted a "new development which may change our whole concept of the case," but said it might be 24 hours before matters came to a head.

He declined to elaborate. He added that a "pocket full of clues" developed nothing during a five-hour search Monday night.

Raymond Daoust, brother of the missing girl, reported he and Hughuette's husband, 26-year-old George Lemay, found evidence that the young woman was seen Saturday afternoon about 28 miles west of Miami on the Tamiami Trail.

Spotted Near Camp

Daoust arrived Sunday from Montreal to aid in the search. He said "Smokey" Morris, operator of a fishing camp at Frog City, told him the girl and a young couple in a jeep station wagon stopped at his camp Saturday afternoon and spent an hour there.

Morris said the group went for a short boat ride and then drove west toward Fort Myers. He said the girl could not speak English well and the other woman translated for her.

Daoust said that when Morris was shown a picture of Hughuette, he was positive it was she.

This report brought encouragement to Lemay, who had been near collapse since his wife left him fishing on a bridge Friday night.

The Lemays were married in Montreal last May and honeymooned in Miami. They returned to this area last week for a vacation.

AUTOMOBILE TRAFFIC was estimated to have increased three-fold in Toronto as the result of the Toronto transportation Commission strike. Downtown streets became clogged and parking space was at a premium. This aerial picture of a downtown section shows cars parked on a roof (upper left) and filling the nooks and crannies on building lots.

Underground Work Continues For TTC

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP).—Not a street car or bus of the Toronto Transportation Commission has moved since last Friday, but the commission's "underground" work continues as rapidly as ever.

More than 600 men were at work Monday on the Yonge Street subway — Canada's first rapid transit system—as preparations were made to begin construction of the mammoth Eglinton terminal at the north end of the 4.6 mile project.

The ground for the station and the last section of the big ditch is expected to be broken next week. The two remaining houses in the subway's path will be demolished soon.

Malenkov Gains More Prestige

MOSCOW, Jan. 8 — (AP) — Georgi M. Malenkov, deputy-premier of the Soviet Union, became 55 years old to-day — and the government, Communist Party and press marked his anniversary with a warmth that set him aside as something special in the Russian heirarchy.

Newspapers published big pictures of him on their front pages. The government awarded him the Order of Lenin, the Soviet Union's highest decoration. The Central Committee of the Communist Party and the government's council of ministers sent greetings praising him as a "true pupil of Lenin" and lifelong fighter for Communism.

(Malenkov is a protege of Premier Joseph Stalin. He bosses the party machinery, which Stalin also controlled in his rise to power. He appeared on Stalin's right at the 1951 May Day celebrations, adding to speculation among western experts on Russian politics that the aging Stalin was handing over some of the active control of the Soviet Union to Malenkov and Lavrenty P. Beria, who controls the police.)

Besides being a deputy-premier Malenkov is one of the secretaries of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party and is a member of the Politburo, top policy-making organ of the Soviet Union.

Bank Head Warns Of Dangers In Midst Of Present Prosperity

MONTREAL, Jan. 8 — (CP)—Charles St. Pierre, President of La Banque Canadienne Nationale (National Canadian Bank), today coupled some warning signals with a review of a prosperous year in Canada.

Addressing the bank's annual meeting, he saw vulnerable spots in the large proportion of Canadian exports which go to the United States: in high costs of production: in the amount of present prosperity as a result of rearmament, and from inflation.

Ulric Roberge, general manager, added the following cautionary note:

"It is perhaps timely to warn the heads of businesses against the risks entailed by an excessive accumulation of materials or goods. In various lines of industry and commerce, inventories show an important increase in comparison with the previous year."

Mr. St. Pierre noted that Canada is doing more than two-thirds of her foreign business with one country —the United States. Although exports to that country were growing, imports from the US were growing even faster.

Too Quick Pace.

In this situation, said Mr. St. Pierre, "It is, to a very great extent, American investments in Canada which have prevented a serious depletion of our gold and exchange reserves." and:

"It is obvious that the influx of US capital cannot be maintained indefinitely at this accelerated pace." Further:

"The satisfatcion which we feel in the face of the remarkable development of trade with the US should not make us lose sight of the fact that its stability is always at the mercy of economic fluctuations which the neighboring cuntry (Canada) may experience and even of a rewriting of its customs tariff, under the pressure of political influence.

Need New Markets.

"It would, therefore, be most advisable to extend our outlets and to find new markets in South America, Central Amercia, Europe Asia and Africa.

"The day when the requirements of re-arming cease to contribute such an important element to trade among the United Nations as they do now, a serious problem may arise in Canada as well as the United States. . .

"Canada will always find markets for products which the world cannot do without —such as grain, wood and minerals. But the outlets for various manufactured goods might well prove difficult to find, if we are not successful in reducing our costs in order to face the competition of countries whose production is less costly . . .

Mr. St. Pierre said it would be dangerous to assume that inflation now has passed the acute stage.

He said the tremendous costs of rearmament should be compensated for, in some measure, by a curtailment of other public expenditures.

"Up to the present, the Federal Government, the Provinces and the municipalites, far from reducing their budgets, have increased them at an ever growing rate . . . It would be in the general interest to postpone all undertakings which are not urgent."

Millions Of Chinese Still Paying Extortion Money

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG, Jan. 8—(AP)—The Chinese Communist extortion racket, leveled at millions of Chinese living overseas, is still yielding a golden harvest of millions of dollars, despite world-wide exposure of the practice.

Chinese merchants and tradesmen scattered in populous communities throughout Southeast Asia probably are the chief financial victims, an Associated Press survey indicated Monday.

The Reds force Chinese living at home to write relatives abroad for money under threat of dispossession of their property and even death for the writer if the payments aren't made.

Overseas Chinese call this extortion. The Reds call it patriotic contributions to the motherland.

Most of the money extracted from abroad goes through Hong Kong on its way to Red China's coffers—hungry for foreign exchange. There are no limitations on remittances into China from this British Crown colony. Many countries prohibit sending money directly to China, but there is no such ban on funds sent to Hong Kong.

Associated Press correspondents have questioned Chinese throughout Southeast Asia. Most of them said that in spite of wide publicity, the racket was still going on.

Stop Sending It

However, many have stopped sending money, because they find that one remittance merely brings a request for another and seldom saves the folks at home from Red vengeance.

In Indio-China, Larry Allen said that 600,000 Chinese in Saigon and Cholon, many of whom are wealthy rice dealers, have paid demands from 1,000 to 1,000,000 piastres.

Many letters bear local postmarks, indicating they are sent through Communist agents in Indo-China. The recipient gets eight days to pay. Some who don't meet the deadline were informed later that a relative in China was in jail or had disappeared.

In Indonesia, which recognizes Red China, Bob Kroon learned that requests for funds were usually transmitted through contacts in Hong Kong.

In Singapore, Jack Macbeth learned that the Teochew Chinese community, which includes many owners of land in China, received demands totalling 58,000,000 Hong Kong dollars ($8,924,000), during 1951. Macbeth said many Chinese were ignoring the demands now, realizing that payments bring no immunity to relatives.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8 (AP)—A partial inventory listing assets of $16,070,225 in the estate of the late publisher William Randolph Hearst was filed in Superior court here Monday. It included $13,600,000 in stocks of Hearst publishing Corporations.

The largest other item was $1,650,691 in antiques, art objects, silver and other articles stored in five warehouses at the Hearst ranch at San Simeon, Calif., and in the vaults and rooms of the castle-like residence there.

Find Roaches Like TV Sets

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 — (AP).—Your television set may have some mechanical "bugs" in it, but, then again, your troubles may be due to a real bug with an affinity for TV.

It's the brown-banded cockroach, the National Pest Control Association said today, and it's a real menace to owners of vido sets.

"Shortly after people started buying TV sets, they would complain of seeing this pest," said J. J. Wineburgh of Washington, former director of rodent control for the District of Columbia.

"The roach got in between the picture tube and the window of the cabinet," Wineburgh added. "One person saw Eddie Cantor dancing, with a roach keeping time."

The heat from the vacuum tubes keeps the roaches warm. They feast happily on glue that holds the cabinets together. They also like grease, crumbs, and dirt.

Dr. Ralph E. Heal, the association's technical director, said: "This roach does not harm the TV set."

Prize-Winning Speech Given To Rotary Club

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 8 — (ENS).—Rotarians heard a prize-winning address by a 13-year-old school girl at their luncheon here on Monday. Sandra McDonald, daughter of R. D. McDonald, who won honors in the oratorical contest held for the Campbellford public and separate schools as well as for schools for Northumberland county and the district finals where winners from six counties were finalists, gave the address that won her top honors.

The theme of Sandra's talk was "Teamwork." She told of a husky pup in the far north, who wandered away from the comparative safety of the pack and started investigating the world on his own. The pup was finally rescued from a pack of hungry wolves by the rest of the dogs in the pack, when they found him cold and hungry, and about to become the main dish in a meal for a pack of hungry wolves.

President Franklin thanked Sandra on behalf of the club. She was introduced by her father.

Find Sheep Farmer Innocent In Appeal

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP)—John McGibbon, a sheep farmer near Merickville, Monday was found innocent in an appeal to the Ontario Supreme Court of wilfully damaging his neighbor's tractor by putting corn syrup in the crankcase.

McGibbon was convicted at Smiths Falls Sept. 24 by Magistrate D. C. Smith and sentenced to three months in jail.

Ruling on the appeal, Mr. Justice Wilfred D. Roach said the crown evidence was circumstantial and lacked "that quality that would enable this court to say with moral certainty that he was guilty."

Acquit Driver In Death Of School Boy

LINDSAY, Jan. 8—Donald Baston, 30, Head Lake, was acquitted of a dangerous driving charge in Lindsay police court by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

The charge was laid following the death of seven-year-old Wayne Winterburne, also of Head Lake, on Nov. 16.

The boy died from injuries received when he was struck by a truck alleged to be driven by Baston after leaving the school bus near his home.

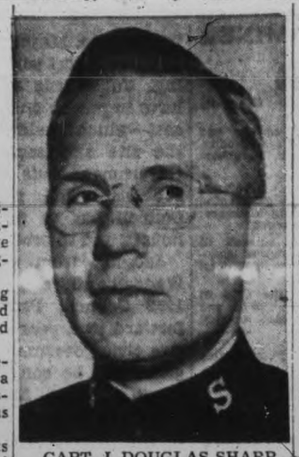
Fred Halliday, driver of the bus told the court that he had stopped the bus on the south side of the road near Head Lake to allow four children to leave the vehicle. After the four had stepped down from the bus he closed the door and then saw a truck coming over the hill. This truck was travelling about 30 mph, he said. He did not see the Winterburne boy being struck.

The boy's mother testified that she was standing at the front window of her mother's home and watched her son leaving the bus. She said two girls ran across the road first and then the two boys appeared at the rear of the bus. She then saw the truck approaching from the top of the hill, and the truck's fender appeared to strike her son and threw him up in the air to be struck by the roof of the truck's cab. She also said that the driver of the truck drove on 580 feet before stopping.

Provincial Constable Fred Rawlings of the Fenelon Falls detachment outlined the boy's injuries and intimated that the truck wheels may have passed over his body. He said that the only mark on the truck was a "brush mark" on the front left corner of the dump box.

The driver of the truck, Baston, said that he had been hauling gravel that day and had come over the top of the hill to see the school bus below. He said he did not see the doors open and thought the children had left the bus before he came over the hill. He said he slowed the truck to 25 mph, and when about 60 yards away blew the horn. He testified that he saw the lad dart towards the truck, but didn't see him hit. Because of the contour of the road it was impossible for him to stop immediately and for that reason he went on ahead to park. He said he did not think that the front of the truck hit the boy.

Takeoff Stalled Until Wednesday



COBOURG, Jan. 8 (ENS)—Donald Lymburner of the Sanderson Aircraft Co., Malton, in charge of the take-off preparations of the C-46 airliner which landed safely here with 44 passengers on December 20, said Monday night that due to a delay, it was doubtful if the big aircraft would be able to take off on Tuesday of this week. It is expected everything will be ready for a take-off Wednesday providing the weather is right.

Scheduled to arrive this morning or early in the afternoon were the new propellers to replace the ones bent in landing. As they are being brought down by truck from Malton, their transportation presented a traffic problem and the trip had to be arranged by daylight in view of the extent to which they overhung the traffic lane. Provincial Constable C. Meadows of Cobourg is to escort the truck bearing the propellers from Malton to Cobourg.

It had been hoped that the propellers would be here first thing Tuesday morning but they would not be leaving Toronto until eight am. After arrival it will take some hours to install the new propellers and then will follow a careful test of the two engines. All day yesterday a bulldozer worked at the job of clearing the snow from a 2,000-foot improvised airstrip on the Wilson farm, where the plane landed.

Fined For Smuggling

CORNWALL, Jan. 8 (CP)—Leo Bernard of Grandmere, Que., Monday was fined $100 and costs for smuggling 17 cartons of American cigarettes into Canada Sunday at the customs port on Cornwall Island.

Award Withers Sludge Contract

Contract for the removal of sludge from the sewage disposal plant was let by the council Monday night to Leonard Withers, as recommended by the finance committee.

The report of the committee, read by the chairman, Ald. T. D. Miller, authorized Mayor Waddell and City Clerk Outram to sign the agreement.

Preceding this action, the council heard Nelson Martin, who became an applicant for the removal job subsequent to the opening of discussions with Mr. Withers. Mr. Martin was present when the report of the committee was adopted.

As the only citizen making request to the council at its first business session of the year, Mr. Martin said he would have liked to apply for the work of sludge removal if he had known about it. He said he was a property owner in the city and taxpyaer, that he was a war vetern, and as a consequence of that service he was unable to do factory work.

Ald. A. B. Burrows told the council he knew Mr. Martin and his background, and would like to get more of the circumstances of his claim for consideration.

Mayor Waddell told Mr. Martin that his case would be discussed at the first meeting of the committee of the whole council.

Subsequently, the report of the finance committee was submitted by Ald. Miller, who raised the question of deleting the clause awarding the contract to Mr. Withers.

Mayor Waddell said that in committee of the whole the council might consider some alternative for Mr. Martin.

Bought Truck Body

The council's difficulty has already been explained. It was dealt with in December when the petition from Mr. Martin was received at an advanced stage of negotiations with Mr. Withers. The council of last year undertook to buy a special body of tank form to be set on a Withers truck. The cost of the body in Brantford is some $1,300.

It has already been reported that City Engineer Chalmers had been facing the prospect of the city doing the sludge removal job. At the time, the only person they knew to be interested in it was Leonard Withers, and it was felt at one stage that he might back out.

Since Mr. Martin became interested he informed the council that he and his brother could make a suitable truck body for $400.

Truman Accepts Resignation W. S. Symington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP)—President Truman Monday accepted the resignation of W. Stuart Symington as administrator of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and named Harry A. McDonald, now chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, to succeed him.

The White House said no successor has been chosen for McDonald in the SEC post.

Symington's resignation was made effective Jan. 15.

In his letter of resignation, Symington told the President:

"This agency is in good shape. It has a fine organization and is functioning properly.

"For personal reasons I now think it best to return to private business as soon as that would be convenient to you."

In a letter, addressed to "Dear Stu," the President expressed his regret over the difficult task of severing official bonds "formed during my first months in the White House."

McDonald, a Republican and a Detroit broker, has headed the SEC since 1949, and has been a member since 1947.

More Money For The Legislature

In 1950 an all-party committee of the Ontario Legislature was appointed to look into the question of increased remuneration for the members of that body; the committee made its report last year and recommended that the matter be debated at the beginning of the 1952 session; that session will open late in February, and we may expect that the matter of a salary increase for the Legislature will arise. It is rumored, however, that the present government feels some reluctance to bring the matter up, because of its large majority; it does not wish to appear grabby to the electors. We do not know whether the rumor has any foundation in fact; if it has, we think that the government may set its fears aside. Most Ontario citizens will agree that the matter is one which may fittingly be debated.

* * *

The present annual fee of the members of the Legislature is $2,000, a sum decided upon in 1925; in 1947 an expense allowance of $1,000 was added to it, bringing the total to $3,000. Cabinet members receive $8,000, although their salaries are fixed at $10,000 by statute. The Speaker receives $5,500. The recommendation of the committee is that the members' pay be raised by $600 and the allowance by $300, giving them a total of $3,900. The committee recommends that the cabinet members should draw their full $10,000 and that the Speaker receive $8,900—the equivalent of a member's pay with $5,000 for particularly onerous duties.

* * *

These recommendations do not seem out of line. Things are very different in the Legislature from what they were in 1925, and expenses are certainly greater than in 1947. The sessions have grown longer, and the business of the province has increased. Furthermore, when the provincial surpluses are considered, it should be possible to raise the pay of the Members of the Legslature without asking for any more money from the taxpayers. Certainly the matter should be debated when the session opens.

Tasks Before The Council

Mayor Waddell, in his inaugural address yesterday, told the council and public of two special tasks which face the city this year. He noted that municipal undertakings in the last five years have brought Peterborough into good physical shape to meet not only postwar requirements of expansion but also to provide for future growth. The new Civic Hospital, the sewage disposal plant, a new Collegiate and enlargement of other schools, the new City Hall, extension of sewers, pavements and public utilities; these have been undertaken at very considerable cost. The city has had to issue debentures of some six million dollars for them. The Mayor remarked that today Peterborough's facilities "are second to none for a city of its size, and it is up to the present and succeeding councils to use them and make them work to the very fullest advantage."

The two specific tasks which Mayor Waddell put before the Council are intended to take advantage of the present facilities. The first which he mentioned is to attract new industries to the city; the second is to provide more houses. The Mayor is not looking towards any spectacular increase in population, but rather to consolidate the present position and continue the present rate of growth steadily. "We have reached that point in which many cities find themselves today, a point to which—but not beyond which—a city can be carried by planning enthusiasm; a point from which it is hard to go forward but very, very easy to go back. You must understand that we must either go forward or back. There is no such thing as standing still; when a city ceases to grow it begins to die."

The city owns an extensive industrial property at the south-west boundary. It is undeveloped, and was bought at an investment of $70,000, so that Peterborough would be in a position to offer good industrial sites to prospective new industries. The mayor has suggested that active steps be taken to get industries established on this property. He revived the idea of securing an Industrial Commissioner, on a part-time basis.

Hand in hand with the project "to move this property or a portion of it" is the plan to develop new housing areas. Expansion of the city's present industries, and the prospect of new industry, require that there be more houses available at minimum cost. Last year's council made preliminary plans to take advantage of the Federal-Provincial housing scheme. Mayor Waddell said that a progress report will shortly be forthcoming. Under this scheme, the city will have to put up only 7½ per cent. of the cost—which would amount to the cost of the site and servicing. (The Federal Government puts up 75 per cent. the Provincial 17½ per cent.) What the Council has to decide is: how many houses, and where?

Judging from the tenor of Mayor Waddell's address, and the calibre of the 1952 Council, Peterborough can look forward to a year of carefully progressive civic government, in which present gains will be consolidated and advantages exploited. No new large building projects which would be a further load to the present debenture schedule are contemplated, other than school buildings already drafted.

Canadians Growing Richer

It is rash to assume that the savings accounts people have in banks are sure guides to their wealth. Many people keep their surplus money in stocks and bonds or on the top shelf in the pantry in the vegetable dish. However, now that banks are considered more reliable places than old socks to deposit money, the amounts of savings deposits in the chartered banks do indicate something about people's financial umbrellas for rainy days.

By October 31st of the year just ended (the latest figures at our hand) the chartered banks had savings 'notice' deposits totalling $4,575,000,000. That was $329.30 for every man, woman and child in the country. It is a slightly lower figure than that for the end of 1950, when the total, though less ($4,558,417,000) was spread over fewer people; an average deposit of $329.82.

These two figures are the highest average savings, as recorded by the banks, in Canada's history. Forty years ago, at the end of 1911, the per capita average deposit was $82.01. The average has risen fairly constantly. Here are samplings: 1941—$145.27; 1931—$131.08; 1921—$141.19; 1911—$82.01; 1901—$43.46; 1899—$18.65.

The very large increases in savings deposits in banks is due, first, to greater use of banking facilities by more people, secondly, to more money in circulation and in family incomes; and, third, to the depreciated value of the dollar. It is perhaps comforting to realize that despite the high cost of living and the great effort many thousands of Canadians are making to buy homes, educate and clothe their children and at the same time to make more of holidays and less of work; that the average savings in banks are the highest they have ever been.

The Heroism Of The Sea

It is with the keenest satisfaction that we greet the news that the American freighter, Flying Enterprise, and its heroic and stubborn Captain Kurt Carlsen, is being towed toward Falmouth. No landsman, we are sure, would have blamed Carlsen if he had abandoned his ship long since, for it looked as though at any moment it might drag him down to death. But a combination of sea heroism and sea law kept Carlsen aboard. If he left his ship it would become a free prize of the sea to anybody who could take possession of it, and in the neighbourhood of Cornwall there are plenty of daring men who would be ready to have a try. It is part of a captain's duty to protect the property of the shipowners who employ him so long as there seems to be any hope of saving it. That is what Carlsen has done.

Carlsen was doing his duty under circumstances which raise that course to heroism. And the people of Britain, who have a keen appreciation of heroism at sea, have made a hero of him. Now that the danger of death is greatly diminished, there can be little doubt that Carlsen will arrive in England to receive a hero's welcome—not least from those descendants of Cornish smugglers who would have been the first to make a rush for his ship if he had left it.

Christmas Tree Spiv

In magistrate's court held in Haliburton last week, a Toronto man was reprimanded for cutting down 45 trees on a Dysart township reforestation lot and ordered to pay $90 for the trees and court costs of $21. The convicted man told the court that he was always in the habit of cutting a stock of Christmas trees and then looking around for the owner, so as to pay for them.

It is a bad habit. For one thing, the man might not always be successful in finding the owner and then would go away with the load of trees and a bad conscience. For another, the owner might not want his trees cut down. In this case the owner—the township—found the man. We approve the sentiments of Reeve Harold Black of Dysart township who was glad that the case came to court and said: "People are taking trees from the project without permission every year. They seem to think they can pull up in a truck and start chopping down trees wherever they find them." Just so. Our forests, township and county plantings, and farmers' woodlots are not free-for-all, even at Christmas time. Trespassers on them should be prosecuted, especially trespassers armed with axes and a Christmas-tree stealy glint in their eyes.

Americans Have Steadier Gaze

By KENNETH HARRIS

NEW YEAR'S DAY 1951 was a bright, dry sunny day, and the 500-foot column of the Washington Monument rose confident, clear, and strong into the hard blue sky.

New Year's Day 1952 was damp and soft. The Monument rose a hundred feet or so through the gloom and then vanished into a thick mist.

◇ ◇ ◇

AS a symbol of the American people's attitude to the year ahead, both days were quite inappropriate, though if they could have been transposed they would have served the purpose perfectly. It is at the opening of this New Year that the Americans exude a sense of knowing roughly where they are going. It was last year that they seemed to have no vision into the immediate future, and no confidence that they could make it liveable.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE change in mood, which is quite striking when one takes stock of it from one year's end to the other, is clearest when one looks at it in relation to international affairs. The year 1951 opened with a profound sense of depression at what seemed the failure of the United Nations to stand firmly together in condemning Chinese aggression in Korea, and with a series of shocks as the Chinese sent the U.N. forces into swift retreat. There was great doubt as to what America's role in the world should be, doubt caused—but at that time also symbolized—by ex-President Herbert Hoover's plea that the Western Hemisphere should make itself into a bastion of defence, and not adventure outside it. There was a real feeling, which assumed quite alarming features in the press and in private conversation, that 1951 would be America's last year of peace.

This mood persisted until the sacking of MacArthur in April. That event was like the lancing of a boil in which poisons from all the system had accumulated. From then the mood changed, gradually but steadily. Now the feeling that a global catastrophe is imminent has subsided. The great debates of 1951, about troops for Europe, the extension of the Korean war, about compelling America's allies to break off every dollar's worth of trade with the Soviet satellites, have rallied most Americans behind a more mature and fairly stable policy of collective security.

THE economy gives the impression of being capable of being converted even to the direst needs of war in a short time. The production of armaments is moving into high gear. The shift of the balance of power between the free world and Soviet bloc, though it has not yet brought a guarantee of security, is moving swiftly in that direction and seems already to have impressed the men in the Kremlin.

It might be going too far to say that the American people view the international prospect for 1952 with optimism, and even if that were true it would be misleading to say so without also noting their capacity for swinging rapidly into pessimism. That the American people look on this New Year with a steadier gaze and a stouter heart, however, seems from here to be indisputable.

◇ ◇ ◇

ON the domestic front, too, the Americans are looking forward with more confidence than they did last year. They have been told that the main burden of rearmament is still ahead of them, and they know that this will mean reduced supplies of civilian goods, and possibly increased taxation, but unlike this time last year they feel that they know what they are in for.

Most of them have good grounds for hoping that even with the increase of rearmament pressures on the economy, they are not going to lose much.

◇ ◇ ◇

BUSINESSMEN, for instance, know that they will pay about half their profits in taxes, some of them paying 70 cents in every dollar in Federal taxation alone. Higher prices for materials and reduced supplies of steel, copper and aluminium, will hit them at least in the early half of the year. Unions will press for higher pay, longer holidays, and more pensions; and the Government, which depends heavily on the labour vote to win the 1952 elections, will not want to restrict their demands too curtly. But prices, too, will rise. After the middle of the year materials are expected to flow more freely into industry. The Government, if only for political purposes, will let up on controls as soon as it dares, and the still mounting purchasing power of the community makes the year look more than tolerable.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE farmer can expect a year at least as good as the last one. Higher prices for fertilizers, machinery, and a shortage of labour attracted to rearmament industries will give him trouble, but he, too, hopes to make up for this by selling more goods to a public which is spending more and more than ever before on food.

The wage-earner hopes that prices will not rise any higher, and he has good ground for expecting the Government to be really tough about this, as the Government will be pressed by powerful unions. He can put in as much overtime as he likes, and with the Government mobilization chiefs trying to add two million workers to the 61 million now employed, he has no need to worry about finding work. Here and there he will meet temporary unemployment as industries lay off to meet a shortage in materials or to convert from civilian to defence production—there are over 100,000 workers now unemployed in and around Detroit. "White collared" workers, engineers and chemists, are in great demand—the Government needs them, so does private industry. Increased taxation alone gives lawyers and accountants extra work and doctors are living as they never lived before.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE average family is expecting to do well. The cost of living, now 88 per cent. above the 1951 level, is expected to rise by only four more per cent, this year. Government estimates say that costs of clothing and furniture should not rise perceptibly, and though the price of food will rise slightly it will not do so disproportionately with income. The housewife need not worry about unemployment. If she has to move to a new location with her husband she may find difficulty in finding accommodation, but 800,000 new dwellings will go up this year, and though private building has been cut, public authorities building will increase, and there are heavy priorities for areas where defence plants are recruiting outside labour.

If she has not already lost a loved one among the 100,000 Korean casualties, her chances of losing one in 1952 are negligible. No more than 500,000 lads—most of them 19-year-olds—will be called up in 1952, and the sense that they will be called up to go to Korea, rather than to do a period of training in reserve, has disappeared. A record crop of American babies is expected.

◇ ◇ ◇

TO those people in other parts of the world whose geographical position makes them feel less optimistic about chances of avoiding violence and bloodshed, or whose economies make another year of deprivation almost inevitable, the comparative self-contentment of the Americans may be disagreeable, but perhaps it is better even for them that the Americans should feel contented. If the Americans did not they would be far more critical of the rearmament efforts of European countries than they are at present. Over and above this, domestic discontent could cause political strife which, by bringing into the limelight adventurous figures who would capitalize domestic discontent to launch into adventurous policies abroad, might cause instability in American foreign policy.

A minor slump, for example, which might destroy confidence in the general line of American policy might go much farther to bring about the bombing of China than twenty speeches by MacArthur.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE really disagreeable—and dangerous—feature of this domestic and international contentment is that it could make the Americans so confident about the world in general that they should enter into this year's Presidential elections with a partisan enthusiasm untempered by regard for international and domestic implications. This is unlikely to happen if the Republicans set up General Eisenhower as their champion against the Democrats. It could well happen if the Republicans set up Senator Taft. This possibility is in itself the strongest ground for hoping that American contentment and sense of well-being continues, for the high standard of living, and the feeling that much is being gained abroad, are Senator Taft's main enemies.

The Honest Lawyer Is No More

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

FOR more than one hundred and fifty years, The Honest Lawyer House operated as a hotel in Hamilton. It was a direct link with the days of the American Revolution, when Loyalists fled to Canada, and when Henry Upton left all his property in charge of a lawyer named MacKay. Mr. Upton heard nothing about it for years, and then Mr. MacKay turned up one day with all the property turned into gilt-edged securities. Mr. Upton was then operating a hotel, but he built a new one and, because his daughter insisted, named it "The Honest Lawyer".

The name, however, will now be changed. The old hotel will become the Colonial House—a name which reeks unpleasantly of mediocrity in contrast with colorful original. And this change is being made, according to the owner of the hotel, at the suggestion of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario. No reason for the board suggesting the change has been given, as far as we have seen.

We may possibly be doing the board an injustice, but we think this suggestion is fully in accordance with a number of other stuffy and asinine regulations it has foisted upon the people of Ontario. It is apparently guided by stern determination that if people must drink in public, it is the unswerving duty of the board to weed out any pleasantry that may be connected with the process. A few grudging concessions have been made; entertainers may be allowed in some drinking places—one to so many head of customers—and food may be served in certain drinking places. As a general rule, however, public drinking is cheerless. And the board apparently now feels that a hotel should not even be allowed the possession of an historic and picturesque name; it might lend a semblance of romance and respectability to the hotel's drinking rooms, and that would never do.

If it is contended that the name should be changed because The Honest Lawyer implies that there could be such a thing as a dishonest lawyer, the contention could be laughed out of court. There have been, and no doubt there still are, dishonest lawyers.

The integrity of the legal profession in this country, however, is such that we are sure its members would readily concede the implication—if they ever bothered to think about it. The great majority, we think, would be inclined to respect the name because of its connection with an honourable member of their profession and with the stirring days when this continent was divided by the stubbornness of a British King.

The Liquor Control Board, however, really hasn't shown much ingenuity in its wiping out of an historic name. It missed a great opportunity. It should have "suggested"—not, of course, that the suggestion would carry weight because of the board's power to license—that The Honest Lawyer be renamed "Licensed Premises No. 1". It could have gone on from there all over Ontario, compiling a bureaucratically ideal listing on which names would be replaced by numbers.

Irritants By Mail

(Windsor Star)

Nothing is so irritating to people who pay their bills as the dunning letter—unless it's a schoolmasterish reminder from the income tax collector to please be more accurate in future.

This latter situation has turned up in the United States, where that tax official has sent a form letter to all taxpayers advising them to be more careful in making out their returns. Many Americans just glanced at it, recalled the current scandal involving internal revenue officials, then gave expression to their feelings.

They took pen in hand to blast the internal revenue department, throw its record of deficiencies into its face, and in general behave like outraged taxpayers.

The department, of course, was within its rights in cautioning against sloppy preparation of returns, since this can lead to costly checking and rechecking. But if the questions on those returns are as studiously ambiguous as the ones Canadians must answer, a ready-made resentment awaited the letter.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And he entered into a ship, and passed over, and came into his own city. And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith, said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. And behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

And Jesus knowing their thoughts said Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house.

And he arose, and departed to his house. But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men. (Matt. 9: 1-8.)

◇ ◇ ◇

To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the Lord: I am full of burnt offerings of rams, and that the fat of fed beasts; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he goats.

Bring no more vain oblations; incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting.

Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well.

Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. (Isa. 1: 11, 13, 16, 17, 18.)

Find Toronto Smoothing Out Transportation

TORONTO, Jan. 8—(CP)—The kinks still are being ironed out of Toronto's emergency transportation arrangements but, with no break in sight in the street car and bus strike, most residents of the city and its suburbs by now have found ways that will get them to work if the tie-up lasts indefinitely.

The private automobile owner who is wiling to share his car is keeping life in Canada's second-largest city close to normal.

He drives his car to and from work, signs up for car pools and picks up hitch-hikers. Largely through his efforts, industries and business houses operate with full staffs and other activities go on, almost as usual, across the city's 35 square miles.

Other means, too, speed the 700,000 Toronto residents and the 600,000 citiens of the suburbs to and from their jobs. Company buses and trucks carry many. Trains take others. Some persons walk all or part of the way to work.

Once the Toronto area recovered from the initial shock of the walkout by 4,700 members of the Street Railway Employees Union (AFL-TLC) at 5 am last Friday, the emergency transportation schemes took up most of the burden hither-to borne by the publicly-owned transit service.

No Left Turns

The police traffic division clamped a no-left turn regulation on main arteries and restricted downtown parking to an hour. It won a promise from the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario that its drivers will try to keep trucks out of rush-hour traffic. It expanded waterfront parking-lot facilities but reported that drivers were slow to take full advantage of the lots. It considered setting up a system of one-way streets.

A suggestion that staggered hours be introduced by downtown firms was coolly received by the large department stores and other retail outlets.

Mayor Allan Lamport said he had received legal advice that it was impossible for the city to establish any substitute transportation facilities. An act of the provincial legislature that established the Toronto Transportation Commission in 1920 gave the commission a transit monopoly and prohibited interference by city council. There were reports of behind-the-scenes efforts to break the deadlock in the dispute between the union and the TTC over union demands for a 15-cent-an-hour pay raise to bring the basic rate to $1.55. The TTC has offered a five-cent increase.

Meanwhile, the union put finishfing touches on arrangements for picketing TTC property and bus terminals of the subsidiary Gray Coach Lines in various communities of Central Ontario. Strikers will receive $15 a week strike pay if the walkout lasts two weeks or more.

The wife of Montreal real estate dealer, George Lemay, left her husband on the bridge, where they were fishing, to return to their car to change her clothes. She never returned. Florida Police are considering the possibility that Huguette might have fallen or been pushed into the water on her return to her husband.

Drank Anti-Freeze Prisoner Loses Life

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 — (CP) — A drink of alcoholic anti-freeze on New Year's Eve resulted in the death last Saturday of Raymond Brown, 20, Ottawa, an inmate of Collins Bay Penitentiary, Kingston, a federal penitentiary official here said Monday night.

Thomas Douglas, of Owen Sound, who shared the potion, is in critical condition in the penitentiary hospital.

The two men were employed in the penitentiary garage. They are believed to have secreted a small quantity of anti-freeze from the radiator of one of the prison cars. Apparently, the officials said, they consumed their drink on New Year's Eve. Tuesday morning they were found violently sick in their cells.

India's Top Film Romances Getting Closer To Clinches

By SELIG S. HARRISON

BOMBAY, Jan. 8 — (AP) — They're not clinching yet, but India's top film romancers are making love like they never did before.

Dark-eyed Nargis and leading man Rap Kapoor come within an inch of embracing in their new hit, "Awara". That's revolutionary for the Indian screen, which fights a running battle with religious orthodoxy and stiff censorship.

"Kissing in public is just not an Indian custom," says the Indian government censor chief, Sir Clifford Agarwala.

"There's a great deal of local feeling against sexy pictures. But the producers are constantly pressuring us and we aren't as severe as we ought to be."

Same All Over

Nargis, shapely 23-year-old whose name means "Narcissus", says "It may take time, (but) it's inevitable that our films will get closer to real life. After all, when you're in love you don't stay 10 feet apart—in any country".

Indian producers complain that the kissing, drinking and crime of American movies find their way past the Indian censors who inflict the blue pencil on their own countrymen's product. Despite the heavy output of Indian studios—second only to Hollywood—India imports 15,000,000 feet of foreign film annually.

"The line we take is that Indian audience reaction to the antics of people who are obviously foreigners indulging in foreign habits is not the same as to their own people", Agarwala explained.

Mate Rescues Norwegian Sailor

LEITH, Scotland, Jan. 8 (Reuters).—The mate of the Swedish steamer Bertil dived fully clothed into a North Sea hurricane to rescue a Norwegian seaman trying to reach the ship with a lifeline, it was reported Monday.

The crew of the listing 967-ton Bertil came ashore today to describe their battle with the gale and their eventual rescue by another Swedish ship, the Musko.

Mate Anders Mattison, 32, swam 200 yards with a rope around his waist to pick up the Norwegian and drag him aboard, they said.

He was one of three men from the Musko thrown into the sea from a lifeboat. The other two managed to return to the Musko.

The Musko, 3,607 tons, got a line to the Bertil on the third attempt and towed her into Leith with her rudder useless.

Missionaries Honored By Roseneath Friends

ROSENEATH, Jan. 8—(ENS)—Prior to leaving for missionary work in South America, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cole, nee Betty Atkinson, were feted by more than 100 friends and neighbors Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Cole's father, Mr. Warren Atkinson, Roseneath.

The Rev. H. G. Lester was chairman and announced the following numbers on the program: vocal duets by Miss Ida Honey and John Coggins; a reading by Mrs. Arthur Ward; a vocal duet by Marlene Wartman and Mary Moffat; a sing-song of Christmas carols and hymns; a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. Cole.

Mrs. Charles Honey then read an address and the presentation of a purse of money was made to Mr. and Mrs. Cole on behalf of the gathering, including the neighbors, members of Dartford WMS, and Warkworth Free Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole with their two sons, David, 18 months and Donald, three months, are sailing from New York on January 24, to do missionary work in La Grita, a mountain town in Venezuela, South America. They are being supported by two churches, Cobourg Fellowship Baptist Church and the People's Church, Toronto, and are under the appointment of the Evangelical Alliance Mission, Chicago.

Mrs. Cole is following the example of her mother, the late Mrs. Warren Atkinson who was a missionary in Tokyo and Yokohama, Japan, for several years.

Mrs. Cole's sister, Miss Clarice Atkinson is taking a language study course in Paris, prior to going to French West Africa, as a missionary.

Britain Suffers Biggest Dollar Loss

LONDON, Jan. 8 (Reuters)—The Treasury disclosed Monday night that Britain plunged $934,000,000 deeper into the red during the last three months of 1951—the biggest dollar loss ever recorded.

The losses — meaning Britain spent that many more US dollars than she earned—put the country and the whole sterling area in the deepest financial hole yet.

The bills were paid from the national reserves—slashing them to almost a third in only three months.

How to keep that reserve, now standing at $2,305,000,000, from running dry is the country's No. 1 financial problem.

A team of almost 50 financial experts from the Treasury and from the various Commonwealth nations will get down to studying ways and means of meeting it here today. They will begin laying groundwork for a full-scale conference of Commonwealth finance ministers due to open Jan. 25.

Canadian officials attending the discussions, preliminary to the sterling area financial conference opening a week from today, will be J. J. Deutsch and S. Fullerton, of the Finance Department, and W. F. Bull, assistant deputy minister of trade and commerce.

Not Much Leeway

At the present rate the reserve would be down to danger level within another three months and Britain would be back to where she was when the pound sterling was devalued to $2.80 in September 1949. At that time the reserves hit a postwar low of $1,340,000,000.

The figure announced by the Treasury Monday should actually have been $6,000,000 higher—a total loss of $940,000,000—but a late Marshall aid payment arrived from the US in time.

A large item in Britain's dollar spending for the period was $176,000,000 payment on account Dec. 31 to the US and Canada for loans.

But even allowing for that, the figure shows that British dollar earning against dollar spending capacities are hitting an all-time low.

The dollar loss for the previous three months—July, August, September—for example, was $598,000,000, and that was the worst peace time balance to date.

Even in wartime the record dollar deficit was $673,000,000 in the third quarter of 1940 when Britain and the Commonwealth were fighting and financing the war almost singlehanded.

Troubles Multiply

Britain's drift on to the financial rocks has quickened suddenly since the outbreak of the Korean War—rearmament and the accompanying rises in costs of raw materials.

Up until then, the national economy had been on the mend since the immediate postwar slump. Just a year ago, in the last three months of 1950, for example, Britain lost no dollars and, in fact, earned a net profit of $554,000,000.

Treasury officials are making no effort to hide the fact that the problems facing the whole sterling area at the Jan. 15 conference are blacker than ever before in history.

Wanger Makes Insanity Plea

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Jan 8 (AP).—Walter Wanger entered a firm "Not guilty, your honor," to a shooting charge Monday, and his lawyer added: "Not guilty by reason of temporary insanity."

Feb. 26, at 10 am, was set for the trial of the grey-haired producer accused of shooting Jennings Lang, agent for Wanger's wife, actress Joan Bennett, last Dec. 13.

Wanger was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

Defence counsel Jerry Giesler cited a California Supreme Court ruling that temporary insanity is as fully recognized as a defence as is permanent insanity.

Giesler issued a statement to newspapermen saying that the shooting was "the climax of many unfortunate facts and circumstances over a period of time.

"(It was) the closing of a vicious circle of deception culminating in a bluish flash through a violet haze, in the shadows of early evening in the parking lot where his wife's car was parked.

Reporter Says Israel Now Democratic State

TORONTO, Jan. 8 — (CP) — Among the things Hal Lehrman has discovered about Israel is that "here is a brand new state which from its birth has been a democratic state."

The 41-year-old United States reporter who in the last 10 years has covered the political fronts in Europe and the Middle East said at a press conference Monday that rules of the Israeli parliament were "made up as you go along." There has been no written constitution. Israeli leader David Ben-Gurion believed in a constitution developed organically just as in Britain.

New Drug Helps Save Patient

TORONTO, Jan. 8 — (CP) — Use of a new drug, bacitracin, has helped Abe Klaeysen win a 26-day fight for life.

The 19-year-old immigrant from the Netherlands suffered a smashed spine when the hopper of a cement mixer fell on his back while he was working on a construction job at Wallaceburg.

Now doctors face the task of trying to repair his spine, fitting him with special braces and giving him special training.

Bacitracin, still the subject of research at New York's Columbia University, is unavailable for regular use anywhere. In the few times it has been used experimentally, it has revealed a dangerous tendency to destroy the kidneys.

On the 12th day of Klaeysen's treatment, his condition seemed hopeless and doctors decided to gamble, on gradually increasing the dosage obtained from Columbia, from the reported dangerous 10,000 units, it went up to 25,000 units and Klaeysen began to recover.

Hawks Defeat Eagles 8-6 In Senior Shinny Tilt To Take Over First Place

In a streamlined OHA senior "B" shinny game here last night, Belleville Hawks beat the Eagles by an 8-6 count to take over undisputed possession of first place in the group race. While it was speedy throughout and saw some flashes of good hockey, generally the joust was a slambang affair of the pond variety, with the Hawks proving better opportunists in the helter-skelter hockey served up to a slim crowd. The visitors earned the duke on an early drive that gave them a 4-1 margin in the first frame. Eagles outscored their opponents 4-3 in the middle chukker, and it was even at 1-1 in the lively third. Play was quite clean, each side drawing but three penalties, though Vern Goyer had a misconduct tacked onto his minor for throwing his stick angrily to the ice to irritate Referee Jim Crombie. Moon Wootton retired in the first stanza with an injured leg, and Jim Milne replaced Ross Nicholls in the home net during the third heat.

SCORED THREE — Toodie Greenlaw notched three markers for Eagles here last night but they still went down to defeat by an 8-6 score before Belleville Hawks.

Led Snipers

Top sniper for the Doran dudes was Keith MacDonald with two markers, as singles were notched by Jerry Moher, Doug Day, Red Doran, Jack Wardhaugh, Jud Semark and Pete Jones. Wardhaugh and Day each had two assists, one apiece going to Semark, Doug Bastedo, Huck Reeves and Don Barrett. Toodie Greenlaw led the losers with three markers, as Dootch Vitarelli, Jim Munroe and Jed Wilson tallied one each. Reg Stewart and Bert Hill helped on a pair apiece, and Fred Mortimer, Keith Montgomery, Munroe and Bill Berwick one each.

A Hill-Vitarelli thrust came close early in the first ragged frame, but the Quinte puckists soon began boring in. MacDonald hit the twine first as he got through defence on a play started by Day and Semark. Then Moher took a standing pass from Bastedo inside to net the disc. Day later made it 3-0 from Barrett and Reeves' on fine stickhandling in close to finish it off. Wootton went off hurt, and Vitarelli counted for Eagles with a backhander on Hill's passout. MacDonald went off for boarding but Doran banged home Wardhaugh's rebound on a breakaway. Reeves left then for tripping.

Eagles Drive

Montgomery drew a high-sticking sentence to open the second but was back when Greenlaw steered in Monty's forward heave. Greenlaw added another fast one on Stewart's rebound and Eagles peppered Leforte for a space. But Wardhaugh got one back when he skipped neatly around the net to push home the cookie. Goyer was gated for slashing and had a misconduct tossed at him, too, for tossing his stick. It cost a goal as Greenlaw banged the rubber home on a ganging play with Stewart and Fred Mortimer. Montgomery hit the trail again for high-sticking, and Semark took advantage by cuffing it into the hemp in a scramble. Munroe got a neat one with a hot backhander, aided further down the ice by Hill and Crowley. Then Munroe went over for interference and Jones waltzed in with Wardhaugh's pass to score.

Milne was in goal in the lively third chukker, one that saw Eagles press considerably, but Belleville also having some of the play. Barrett almost tallied on a breakaway and then MacDonald made it 8-5 right in close from Day. Play was fast and not quite so scrambly, besides being clean. The Hawks fought a delaying action effectively and at times iced the puck to relieve pressure. Eagles missed numerous chances but were checked closely, too, and Leforte came up with some swell goaltending in this heat. Wilson finally sank one from Berwick and Munroe after Leforte had made two stops as they slapped rubber at him from all angles. It was still speedy at the final gong. Teams:

Belleville — Goal, Leforte; defence, Semark and Bastedo; centre, Goyer; wings, MacDonald and Moher; alternates, Doran, Jones, Wardhaugh, Barrett, Day and Reeves.

Eagles — Goal, Nicholls; defence, D. Mortimer and Munroe; centre, Hill; wings, Crowley and Vitarelli; aternates, F. Mortimer, Greenlaw, Stewart, Samalenko Berwick, Wilson, Wootton, Montgomery and Milne.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Looking at the sports page of the Oshawa Times-Gazette yesterday we thought we saw an ad for Aunt Melinda's Flapjacks. However, a closer glance told us that it was a new heading over the double sports column. It has a chef complete with white kitchen cap and kerchef smiling and pointing toward a sign saying: "Sports Menu by Geo. H. Campbell. Everything from soups to nuts." Yeah, we got it — soup for George and nuts for Campbell. And no doubt steam ladled out for the customers. Or maybe bologna, pronounced baloney. Nope, we're not jealous, George, and it is a good head. The printed one, we mean.

* * * * * *

Sports' columnists are always on the prowl for a new heading, a different slant, an original phrase. They feel that sports pages should be breezy and they, like editorial and political writers, are allowed a certain latitude which straight news reported aren't. Some fantasy as well as fact creeps into their columns. Many sports scribes are content to head a column: "Sport, by John Doe," or maybe "Mike Rodden Says," or some such. Others are more fanciful, like the late Lou Marsh, whose column was titled "With Pick and Shovel." Some even show their faces, like Jim Coleman —though his has the mournful appearance of a betting man whose dog came in seventh. But it's often hard to look perk and write breezily at two a.m. with a pile of copy and a box of aspirin on the desk.

Kingston Plays Petes

Kingston Sacs play the Petes at 8.30 tomorrow eve in Civic Arena, an OHA senior "B" fixture. The K's are always tough but the classy Ellis outfit should take 'em here, we feel. The Petes aren't atop the loop (or tied for top place) all season without reason. They have a crack crew from the goalie out, and should be a shoo-in for group playoffs. After that, anything can happen. Anyway, we expect a fast, keen contest, with some fine hockey served up, a game that ought to draw a hefty midweek crowd of fans. It's the last senior struggle here this week, the juniors being at home on Friday to Kingston Vics.

* * * * * *

Large Vern Goyer and playing coach Red Doran of the Belleville Hawks have accepted an invitation to play with the Kingston senior "B" crew in Kingston on Thursday. The team tackles no less a squad than Montreal Canadiens of the NHL in an exhibition game. Proceeds of which go to the building fund of the Hockey Hall of Fame. While there is much doubt as to Kingston first having hockey played in Canada, that city was selected to have the Hockey Hall of Fame, and plans are ready for erection of same when funds are available. Haven't heard of any Peterborough pucksters being invited to participate in the game. The Canadiens should draw a whopping crowd in the Limestone City.

Just Tossin' Horseshoes

While the Eagles tried hard enough here last night, they didn't dish up good hockey, and so Belleville Hawks roost alone on the top rung today. They won 8-6 to grab off first place in the senior "B" group scramble. Nor did they flash any great hockey, but they proved better opportunists. Some good hockey was seen during the joust, but a whole lot more was just speedy shinny on both sides. Junior Jim Milne has recovered from a lengthy injury and he played goal one period for the Vitarelli pack. Toodie Greenlaw was in fine form to tally three goals for the losers, as Bert Hill and Reg Stewart aided on a pair. The Quinte counters were well spread, around. Moon Wootton suffered a charley-horse and had to retire.

Girls' YW tussles Friday p.m. are: Nurses vs. Lindsay, and Neill's vs. CGE. Other Peterborough male and female high school basketeers will be heard from shortly, too.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The teen-ager who took the tennis world by storm in 1951 and became the United States female athlete of the year Monday in San Diego, Calif., disclosed a 1952 ambition: to become Maureen Connolly, cub reporter.

Maureen talked about her newspaper career plans as she learned that she had been named the top female athlete of 1951 in the annual Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

"I'm very happy about it—who wouldn't be?" declared the youngster whose charm remains unspoiled by honors heaped upon her since she won the US women's tennis championship last Sept. 5—12 days before she was 17.

The energetic miss, who has already served her apprenticeship as a newspaper copy girl, disclosed that she is taking private instructions in journalism along with her training for the 1952 tennis campaigns.

Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's outstanding catcher, changed his mind Monday and decided not to undergo an operation for the removal of bone chips in his left elbow.

The National League's most valuable player for 1951 had his elbow X-rayed last week and the pictures showed four bone chips. Campanella was all set to enter hospital in Brooklyn Monday, but he decided he "had a good year last season and I feel I'll be better off without the operation. After all, it's not my throwing arm."

Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League Monday recalled forward Enio Sclisizzi of Milton, from their Indianapolis club. The Wings said they shipped Fred Glover of Toronto to Indianapolis, an American Hockey League team, as a replacement for Sclisizzi, who was pacing the club in scoring with 17 goals.

The National Boxing Association announced in Washington on Monday that a successful substitute has been found for resin, which may cause a boxer trouble if he gets it in his eyes. The NBA said tests of precipitated calcium carbonate, a chalk-like substance, show that it can replace resin.

General Manager Alex Sinclair of Cincinnati Mohawks of the American Hockey League, announced Monday night in Cincinnati that Frank Eddols, veteran defenceman from Lachine, is being sent to Mohawks of New York Rangers. Eddolls who played five years in the National League, is due to join the slumping Mohawks in Buffalo Wednesday night.

Roosevelt Raceway officials on Monday in Westbury, NY, announced 24 stake engagements for the 108-night harness racing season next summer. A total of $305,000 in purses has been set aside for stake races alone in the four-month season running from May 26 to Sept. 27.

It was pay day Monday for members of Moncton Hawks. Members of the Maritime Major Hockey League team received their first pay in two weeks from the Moncton Community Hockey Association, a new organization formed to take over operation of the club from Moncton Hawks Club Ltd.

Bob Walker, 23, former centre with Vancouver's Canadian champion junior football team four seasons ago, yesterday became the first player to sign a Toronto Argonaut football contract for the 1952 season. Argo president Bob Moran said in Toronto that the 295-pound Walker is the versatile type of lineman that all coaches like.

AHL Overrules Two Protests In Last Week

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8 (AP). — Maurice Podoloff, president of the American Hockey League, Monday night overruled two protests filed after games within the last week.

Rejected by Podoloff after a meeting of the league's board of governors were protests posted by Cleveland Barons after they lost to Pittsburgh 3-2 Saturday and by Providence after it lost 4-3 to Buffalo Thursday.

Providence disputed Buffalo's victory because one of its goals was not allowed on the grounds there were two pucks on the ice.

With one member of the Buffalo club already in the penalty box, referee Walton Russell called penalties on two other Bisons.

Murph Chamberlain—new Buffalo coach—then threw a puck across the rink and hit the referee on the back, trying to attract his attention.

Russell, when he saw there were two pucks going, blew his whistle just as Ray Powell fired a goal for Providence that Russell did not allow.

The other protest was by Jim Hendy, Cleveland general manager, who contended Pittsburgh scored the winning goal during a fight which should have halted play.

Referee Maurice Walsh did not stop play. While Ken Schultz of Cleveland and Tim Horton of Pittsburgh were fighting, another member of the Pittsburgh club scored the goal.

Athletic Officials Stunned By Proposals

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 8 (AP) —American colleges apparently aren't ready to bite off the strong de-emphasis diet recommended by a special committee of college presidents.

National Collegiate Athletic Association officials, gathered here for their annual convention, were plainly stunned at the extent of the presidents' program which calls for abolishment of bowl games, athletic scholarships and out-of-season practices.

Coaches were sharply critical and skeptical.

All seemed agreed on one point: there's no hope of the presidents pushing through their program at this year's CAA convention and many doubted it ever could be put into effect.

Canadiens Still Dominate Goal Scoring Race In NHL

MONTREAL, Jan. 8 (CP)—Detroit Red Wings still lead the National Hockey League, 12 points ahead of their nearest rivals, but Montreal Canadiens have been showing them a thing or two in the individual scoring race, with seven Canadiens among the top 25 scorers. Detroit has 52 points in 37 games, followed by Montreal and Toronto Maple Leafs with 40 points each.

In the individual scoring race, Detroit has five players among the leading 25, Toronto and Chicago four each, New York three and Boston two.

Elmer Lach's name leads all the rest with 28 assists and nine tallies for 37 points, closely followed by teammate Maurice (the Rocket) Richard with 36 points, made up of 21 goals and 15 assists. Lach leads the league in assists and Richard in goals.

Gordie Howe of Detroit is breathing hard down the Rocket's neck for goal-getting honors with 20 tallies, one less than Richard, and has the same number of assists, 15, to put him in third place with a 35-point total.

In Fourth Spot

Don Raleigh of New York is in fourth spot, with 13 goals and 20 assists for 33 points, with Sid Smith of Toronto in fifth with 13 and 18 for 31.

Goalie Terry Sawchuk of Detroit is still top shutout man with seven to his credit. Al Rollins of Toronto with three is his closest rival.

Gus Kyle added another two minutes to his time in the sin-bin during the week, confirming him as the league's most penalized player with 87 minutes off the ice.

The Hong Kong cricket club, oldest in Asia, celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1951.

Powell Takes Over AHL Scoring Lead

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP). — Ray Powell, veteran centre of Providence Reds, has forged to the top in the American Hockey League's individual scoring parade today.

Powell moved to the head of the class following the sale of his lanky linemate, Jack Stoddard, to New York Rangers. Powell has collected 19 goals and 31 assists for 50 points.

Stoddard, the leader a week ago, is tied for the runner-up slot with Hershey's Real Chevrefils at 48 points apiece.

Johnny Bower, veteran goalie of Cleveland Barons, sports the best netminding record. Bower has allowed 93 goals in 36 games for an average of 2.58. Goalies Gordie Henry of Hershey, Ralph Almas of St. Louis and Emile Francis of Cincinnati are tied for the lead in shutouts at two each.

Would Abolish Athletic Scholarships

By ARTHUR EDSON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP)—A special sports committee of college presidents recommended Monday night that all athletic scholarships be abolished and that football practice and games be limited to the period from Sept. 1 to the first Saturday in December.

In a sweeping list of proposals which would change completely many practices now common in college sports, the presidents also recommended:

1.—That all post-season games of any kind be abolished.

2.—That basketball games and practice be confined to the period between Dec. 1 and March 15.

3.—That baseball games and practice be confined to the period between March 1 and commencement.

4.—That not only should no freshman be allowed to play on a varsity team, but also that any transfer from a junior college should put in a year of residence before being allowed to play.

5.—That scholarships should be given strictly on the basis of the student's educational ability and his needs.

6.—That in no case should any scholarship be for more than the educational expenses at an institution.

Dr. John Nannah, president of Michigan State College and chairman of the special committee set up by the American Council of Education, disclosed the plans at a news conference.

Court Dismisses Theft Charge Against Youth

Ruling there was no evidence that the radio had been in possession of the accused, Magistrate W. R. Philp, dismissed a charge of theft against Frank Vandenberg, 20, 650 Brown St., in police court Monday.

Vandenberg was charged with stealing a portable radio valued at more than $25 from the home of Dr. Stanley Stacey, 624 Romaine St.

Vandenberg pleaded not guilty and elected summary trial before Magistrate W. R. Philp December 24. He was defended by Trevor Clarke.

Identifies Radio

Dr. Stacey testified that the radio, a portable American type which he valued at $35 disappeared from his home two or three days before October 26 when he reported it to police. Dr. Stacey identified the radio by his initials, which he had scratched on the plastic cabinet on the inside of the back.

Acting on information received from a local radio store, Detective Sergeant Bud Clarke said he went to the home of Vandenberg's parents, where he found the radio on top of a refrigerator.

When it was not possible to serve Vandenberg with a summons, Detective Clarke said a warrant was issued for his arrest.

November 12, Detective Clarke said he went to Warsaw in a provincial police cruiser driven by an OPP officer and saw Vandenberg coming out of a woods with his father.

When he saw the cruiser, Detective Clarke said, Vandenberg sneaked down along the side of the road, then ran off through the bush when he called to him. Vandenberg was later arrested.

On completion of the crown's case, Magistrate W. R. Philp asked crown attorney John A. Bradshaw what evidence there was of the radio having been in Vandenberg's possession.

"I presume the inference can be drawn from his running," replied Mr. Bradshaw.

"There is no evidence the radio was in the possession of the accused," said Magistrate Philp, and dismissed the charge.

Quadruplets Born To Brooklyn Mother

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Quadruplets—three girls and a boy—were born Monday to Mrs. Fannie Graber, 38, in Bushwick hospital, Brooklyn.

The father, Joseph, 38, was surprised and overjoyed at the news.

He then began to study how the family could re-arrange their five-room apartment to accommodate the four new arrivals and the Grabers' three other children, Sheldon, five; Beverly, four, and Sandra, three.

"It's going to be hard for us because we are so crowded," he said. "Maybe we will turn the living room into a nursery."

The father owns a liquor store.

Subtle Danger

KINGSTON, Jan. 8 (CP)—Prof. Herbert Butterfield, of Cambridge University, said here Monday the argument that soceity should control the individual and "prescribe his purpose in life" is a particularly subtle danger to civilization. Professor of modern history at Cambridge, he discussed religion and the rise of individualism in the first 1952 Charles A. Dunning Trust lecture at Queen's University.

Won't Tell Story

WINNIPEG, Jan. 8 (CP)—Two Roman Catholic nuns who recently reached here from Hong Kong will not reveal what suffering they endured at the hands of the Chinese Communists, a church official said Monday. "They are afraid they might say something which could be used against other sisters still held by the Reds," he said.

CHESS MASTER — George Berner, winner of chess tournaments in Europe and chess master of the ancient city of Salsburg, has settled in Hamilton. He will attend McMaster University to complete his medical studies and teach the finer points of chess to interested students.

Howard McGrath (left) tells newsmen that no change in his status is contemplated. "Things are not always what they appear to be on the surface," said the derby-hatted McGrath.

50,000 Deer Killed In 1951 Dept. Says Plenty Left

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP)—More deer were shot in last fall's hunting season than in any other in Ontario's history. More than half the hunters came back with a deer.

The Ontario Lands Department reported today that some 100,000 hunters drilled more than 50,000 deer. The year before, 96,820 hunters bagged 32,300 deer.

Department officials are not unhappy at the slaughter.

Dr. C. H. D. Clarke, Ontario's Supervisor of Wildlife Management, said the deer population had been increasing, aided by mild winters and plenty of forage. If the deer increase beyond the forage to feed them, they are likely to be struck by disease, he said.

With 50,000 killed last fall, there are still plenty left.

In Southern Ontario in 1951 the deer were so plentiful the department decided to have an open season. But many municipalities were afraid more than deer would be shot so the department called off the season.

As it was, districts with open seasons saw six deer hunters killed in hunting accidents — a relatively low accident rate.

Road Checks Help

Department officials get much of their deer information from road checks on returning hunters. Last season, biologists and department officials were stationed at the check points.

Contrary to general belief, Dr. Clarke said, the age of a deer cannot be judged from the number of points on its antlers. Department officials judge age by the teeth.

Antlers grow only when the food supply is good. Does normally have no antlers but two were taken in 1951 with fine sets.

"They're the deer equivalent of the bearded lady," said Dr. Clarke.

Every year some Albino deer—white animals — are taken by hunters.

The most popular area with Southern Ontario deer hunters is just north of a line between Midland and Ottawa. But thousands of hunters head for the area north and west of North Bay.

Hunters from outside Ontario numbered 12,440 in 1950 and about the same number came last year.

Memory Refreshed Admits Conviction

Arrested on a bench warrant when he failed to appear on a drunk charge after being granted several adjournments, Earl Keller, 262 Bethune St., asked for a further adjournment in police court Monday.

When his request was refused, Keller pleaded guilty but denied a previous conviction on the same charge on November 2.

After proof was filed that Keller had been convicted being drunk on the date alleged, he said he remembered the offence and was fined $50 and $2.50 costs or one month in jail.

Business Costs Big Problem For Merchants

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(CP)—Edgar G. Burton, president of Robert Simpson Co. Ltd., of Toronto, said Monday night the most difficult job facing the Canadian merchant is the cost of doing business.

Speaking before the 41st convention of the National Retail Drygoods Association, Burton said the Canadian retailer has suffered heavily from most government anti-inflationary legislation which has tended to sharply reduce his net profit.

"In what is a booming economy everywhere else, Canadian retailers have to compete for staff and pay high wage rates while their sales are held down in one way or another," he said. "The result is a sharp narrowing of profit."

Burton noted, however, that even if there were some real hardships for the retailers, "we must all admit they are perhaps a small price to pay for equipping ourselves and assisting to equip others in the defence of freedom."

Payrolls Problem

One of the most difficult problems to solve was the rising cost of doing business, with bigger payrolls "perhaps the most important factor."

"...The only real danger, of course, is to make those adjustments which will tend to increase the productivity of all retail employees."

He suggested selection of personnel, incentive to selling or greater work output, and a first-class training program.

He warned against a trend in Canada and the US to replace "initiative and work with some form of a dole, the less effective way of raising the standard of living".

Burton headed a delegation of Canadian retailers attending the convention.

A bass trio composed of Howard Mitchell, Gordon Platt and Edward Thompson contributed an anthem "Make Straight His Pathway." A ladies' chorus of 20 voices sang "The Vision of the Shepherd." A men's chorus followed by a ladies' chorus and a full choir sang "Following the Star." A chorus by the altos and tenors concluded the program.

Mrs. Douglas Knight, organist and choir leader was in charge of the music. The Rev. R. C. White conducted the service, assisted by the Rev. H. G. Lester.

Following the service the members of Warkworth choir were entertained by the Roseneath choir at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Sherwin.

City Sells $811,767 Bonds On Market At Small Premium

Peterborough received the exceptionally favorable price of $100.06 for an issue of debentures amounting to $811,767.29 this morning. "A month and a half ago that would have been considered extraordinary," was the commending comment of a local authority on the bond market. To the council the opening of the tenders today had the happy effect of a belated Christmas present. Mayor Waddell was beaming when he remarked, "That's a great start for the new year. We were hoping to get par, but we did better than that with a premium. I feel that is one of the best strokes of financial business we'll do this year."

The yield works out at 4.4973 per cent, or practically 4½%.

Council in a brief special session at 11 o'clock accepted the highest of 10 bids. It was received from a syndicate composed of Bankers Bond Corporation, Equitable Securities of Canada and J. L. Graham & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The 10 bids were from similar syndicates comprising 28 financial firms. They were opened at a preliminary meeting by Mayor Waddell, Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman of the finance committee, and City Treasurer A. S. Couper.

The major items in the present issue were sold for the Board of Education and the Utilities Commission.

Expenses

Peterborough's offering a month ago was as follows:

For the council: to pay for street sweeper and roller for the board of works department, $23,639.47, 5-year debenture at 4¼%.

To pay the cost of a pumping station at Burnham's Point, $38,127.82, 15-year debentures at 4¼%.

Board of Education: for the Kenner Collegiate Institute on Monaghan Road, $585,000, 20-year debentures at 4½%.

Utilities Commission, cost of various works undertaken, 20-year debentures at 4½%.

The specifications included this clause: "Only the last year to be callable in each case. Interest payable in annual instalments Dec. 31 each year, at the office of the secretary of the Peterborough City Trust."

The council was called to approve the recommendation of the special committee accepting the highest bid of $100.06. Incidentally, the lowest was $98.55.

Some Sold In US

It was recalled today that the market for municipal bonds has been rising during the last nine months in the interest charges which have been moving up from fractionally above 2%. Some Canadian municipal issues had to be disposed of in the United States. In the uncertainty of the trend, brokers were hesitant about going into new issues at home. It was mentioned that Oshawa did not get a bid in November, and finally accepted a firm bid on part of their debentures, with an option on the balance, indicating the attitude of the brokers in securities.

It was thought that apparently the market was showing evidence of levelling off. Apart from that, the council members believed that Peterborough's sale had been well timed.

The satisfaction expressed by the council will be obviously shared by the members of the Board of Education and the Utilities Commission.

The pumping station mentioned above was built at Burnham's Point to boost the flow of sewage from Ashburnham across the river to the main sewer on George St.

Just Be Patient Christmas Card May Yet Come

Is your neighbor speaking to you? If not, perhaps he hasn't received his customary Christmas card from you yet.

But don't give up, he'll likely be speaking to you again shortly, for most of the "dead" Christmas cards at the post office are gradually being delivered. It's a long process.

More wrongly-addressed, misspelled Christmas cards flowed into the post office this year than in previous years' rushes. Postmaster Harry White and Assistant Postmaster Claire Stuart explained that Peterborough has grown rapidly and many people have not kept track of their neighbors. In many cases these people have moved and have been replaced by other new families.

The mistakes varied this year from wrong street numbers to mis-spelled names to no streets at all to imaginary streets and to wrong cities. These the letter carriers and sorters must attempt to correct and send on their way.

During the rush, the cards and letters, even though there is a definite mistake, are sent to probable destinations. Sometimes the card will be handled no less than 12 times and still not reach its proper destination.

Finally if the cards can't be delivered without extra special attention they're thrown into the dead letter box until the rush is over.

Immediately after Christmas the sorters and carriers during their leisure moments begin to divide all the cards and letters alphabetically. The carriers then sort through the 2,000 to 3,000 cards and from their knowledge of streets, names and addresses attempt to recognize the destination intended.

This procedure is now being followed at the post office and will likely continue for several more days in an effort to deliver more of the remaining 1,500 poorly addressed cards.

"They're not all sorted and checked but they all will be," Mr. Stuart guaranteed. "We usually deliver at least 60 per cent of the left-overs".

Despite the increase in parcels this year which set a record also for the number handled, a second record was set when only one parcel could not be delivered. Several other articles fell out of parcels which were poorly wrapped.

"Usually we have 12 to 15 parcels a year to send on to the dead letter office", said Mr. Stuart.

After every effort has been made by post office workers to deliver the cards and parcels, but in vain, they are sent to the dead letter office. There they are opened in a final attempt to determine the right destination.

If your neighbor isn't speaking in a week's time, plan to send him a Valentine's card to square things, but make sure its addressed properly.

Normal Students Teaching In Rural Schools

Normal school students went back to school Monday after a 17-day Christmas holiday but they didn't return to the Normal school.

During this week the 127 students will be practising teaching in the urban schools of the Peterborough district for their third week of continuous teaching this term. It's the second week in the urban schools.

This year the teachers-to-be will have more continuous teaching in both the rural and urban schoolrooms than in previous years. This new policy provides the half-hour practice lessons only in October, the remainder of the year is spent in continuous weekly teaching and periods at the Normal school.

The students taught their first week of continuous teaching in the rural schools nearest their homes in November and followed up two weeks later with their first week of urban teaching.

During that week the students taught in Peterborough public and separate schools. This week they are teaching in urban schools nearest their homes in an area bounded by Kingston on the east, Bowmanville and Orillia on the west, the lakeshore on the south and Bancroft on the north.

More than one-fifth of the teachers are practising in Peterborough school classrooms at Prince of Wales, King George, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, St. Alphonsus, St. John's and St. Mary's schools.

The remainder of the weeks of teaching in urban and rural schools, about five are left, will follow during the next three months.

During this week the Normal school masters will be touring the district, visiting each classroom where a student teacher is working. These visits have two purposes, first to see the quality of work done by the students and secondly to see the quality of students who have graduated from the Normal school and now teaching.

Six Governors Appointed Civic Hospital

City council appointed six governors of Civic Hospital Monday night.

For three year terms: Max J. Swanston, T. T. Rodger and Ald. T. D. Miller.

For two year terms: John R. Marshall, Dr. G. S. Cameron and J. L. Welsh.

Appointed to the Board of Health for this year were: Ald. J. A. Dewart, Ald. P. J. Anglesey, and Mr. Wm. Tinker.

A letter from Mr. Tinker requested the council to accept his resignation from the city planning board on account of consideration of his health. He wrote that he had enjoyed the work on that board more than words could say.

However, it was reported that if it was the wish of the council, Mr. Tinker would accept re-appointment to the Board of Health.

"We are very sorry that Mr. Tinker has felt that he should retire from the city planning board" Mayor Waddell commented.

Community Chest Target For 1952 Set At $85,000

Aiming at the same target as last year's objective of $85,000, Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund will launch its 1952 campaign February 29. Preliminary plans for the drive were discussed at an organization meeting of the funds' campaign committee Monday afternoon.

Committee Chairman Alex L. Elliott conducted the meeting which was attended by 14 representatives of local business and industrial firms.

The drive will open with a dinner at the CGE cafeteria Friday, February 29, and wind up with a closing dinner on Friday March 7. A luncheon is being planned for Wednesday March 4, so the various sections can report on the progress of the campaign.

The campaign committee hopes to obtain a well known out-of-town speaker to address the opening dinner.

Should Be Trained

Several members stressed the importance of canvassers doing "a good selling job" when they make their calls and Mr. Elliott emphasized this point when he said "good canvassers have to be trained." The committee discussed the setting up of a school for canvassers but no definite decision was made.

No new organizations have been added since last year. The objectives in the four canvassing sections are also the same as for the 1951 campaign; industrial $38,000; Special Names, $25,000; Retail, $17,000 and Women, $5,000.

Committee chairmen appointed are: S. J. Whitehouse, Special Names; Thomas Glover, Industrial Division; Mrs. J. P. Watts, Women's Division and W. Roberts and Ford M. Warren, co-chairmen of the Retail Division.

H. L. Garner was re-appointed chairman of the Advertising and Publicity Committee. Clare Collins will again be in charge of the penny drive in schools.

Office Manager

A motion was passed appointing fund treasurer, Thomas Mackay, office manager to supervise volunteer workers at fund headquarters during the campaign.

The annual campaign provides funds to assist the 10 social and welfare organizations included in the Red Cross and Community Fund in carrying on their work in the city and gives everyone an opportunity to contribute.

The organizations participating in the combined fund are: the Canadian Red Cross Society; Humane Society; Navy League; Salvation Army; St. Vincent's Orphanage; Children's Aid Society; YMCA; YWCA; Canadian National Institute for the Blind; Victorian Order of Nurses, and other agencies, officially included by the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund executive.

Anyone who desires their donation to go to a particular agency can specify the organization they wish to receive it.

Mayor Offers To Mediate

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP). — Mayor Allan Lamport said today he had vainly offered again to mediate Toronto's transit strike.

But he was "not going to be stodgy about this," the Mayor said as he told of unsuccessful attempts to intervene in the strike, now in its fifth day. He was to meet union leaders and if "I can get anything to offer, I'll take it to the TTC."

The Toronto Transportation Commission twice has rejected the mayor's attempts at intervention in the wage dispute which has tied up street car and bus transportation in the greater Toronto area. The TTC has expressed willingness to arbitrate, with the findings binding on both sides, and says the mayor would have no power to make his recommendations stick.

Civic and police officials, meanwhile, reported continued smooth going—on the whole—as the city adjusted itself to life without public transportation. Traffic was said to be moving with little hindrance although a bad spot was in the east end where many bottlenecks led to lengthy tie-ups.

NAMED CHIEF OF POLICE

DURHAM, Jan. 8 (CP) — The inaugural meeting of the 1952 Durham Town Council last night appointed Major A. T. T. Dickens of Atherly to the position of Chief of Police. He succeeds F. W. Illingworth who resigned to become Police Chief in Hanover.

Police, Firemen Resume Search For Child's Body

Police and firemen today resumed their search for the body of five-year-old Sharon Littlefair who drowned Sunday afternoon in the Otonabee river, a short distance from her Ashburnham home.

She was last seen about 5 pm Sunday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Littlefair, 53 Edgewater Blvd. At that time she was playing in the snow with her sleigh and she was accompanied by her dog, Nipper.

Less than half an hour later passersby were attracted to the shoreline at Burnham's Point where the dog was barking furiously and running up and down the water's edge. The sleigh was sitting on the river ice and its rope was dangling in the water.

In Open Water

Police and firemen dragged for nearly an hour Sunday but had to abandon operations Monday morning. They resumed Monday afternoon working up and down the 200 or so feet of clear water in the channel between Burnham's Point and Point St. Charles (where the Otonabee empties into Little lake).

They also broke away the ice on the east shoreline for a distance of more than 50 feet south of where the tot is believed to have fallen in. And they dragged that area of the river without success.

Early today they were out again. First of all they tried chopping holes in the ice at regular intervals and Fireman Clarence (Soup) Campbell would lie down prone on the ice with a dark coat over his head.

In this way he could peer down into the water and see the bottom for a radius of 10 feet around the hole. Then the operation would be repeated further on.

When this too was unsuccessful they started cutting sections of ice away from the east shoreline, further south of where the dragging ended Monday afternoon. Finding this method slow they planned later today to use blasting power on the ice which varies in thickness between half an inch and four inches.

While the men were engaged on their cold, grim job, a nearby housewife offered them coffee to warm them up.

A JOINT SEARCH by firemen and police has continued intermittently since Sunday afternoon for five-year-old Sharon Littlefair who fell through the ice and drowned off Burnham's Point. Later today they plan to break up the ice with blasting powder in an effort to locate the body. Photo shows Fireman Clarence (Soup) Campbell looking through a hole in the ice. With the dark coat over his head, being handled by Assistant Fire Chief Virgil Carr, he can see the bottom for a radius of 10 feet. Behind Campbell, in the boat, is Fireman Chris. Cummiskey; Constable Jack Wilson is partly hidden behind Assistant Chief Carr; and others in the photo are Constable Reg. McMillan and Acting Sgt. Gordon Trennum. When this visual search proved unsuccessful the police and firemen resumed dragging.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Switch Breaks South Lights Out

Cold dinners in flickering candle light greeted husbands in two sections of the south end of the city when they arrived home from work monday evening.

Just after 5 o'clock, a broken transformer switch threw the areas around Lansdowne St., and Braidwood Ave., and New Romaine St., and Monaghan Rd., into darkness.

It took utilities men nearly two hours to track down the trouble and repair the switch.

Utilities Manager Ross Dobbin said today it only took a few minutes to repair the switch, once the source of the trouble was located.

6—In Memoriam

BALL—In loving memory of Harold Ball, who passed away Jan. 8, 1950.
You're not forgotten, Brother dear,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
—Lovingly remembered by brothers and sisters.

BALL—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harold Ball, who passed away Jan. 8, 1950.
We lost a husband and dad with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold,
Without a farewell he fell asleep,
With only happy memories for us to keep.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife, Loretta, and children, Don, Shirley and Nancy.

PAYNE—In loving memory of two dear parents, Mother, who passed away Jan. 8, 1950, and Dad, who passed away August 19, 1939.
A tribute of love and remembrance
To dear ones, we will never forget,
Your memory to us is a treasure,
Your loss a lifetime regret.
—Always with us, Doris Crawford, Cherylene and Grahame.

PAYNE—In memory of mother, Mrs. David W. Payne, who passed away January 8, 1950, and Dad, Mr. David W. Payne, who passed away August 19, 1939.
Gone from us, but leaving memories
Death can never take away,
Memories that will always linger
While upon this earth we stay.
—Always remembered by Walter, Doris

PAYNE—In loving memory of dear mother, Mrs. David Payne, who passed away Jan. 8, 1950.
Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by Sherwood, Irene and boys.

PRICE—In loving memory of our dear parents, Mrs. Thomas Price who passed away Jan. 8, 1941 and Thomas Price who passed away Jan. 5, 1943.
Sometimes its hard to understand
Why some things have to be,
But in His wisdom, God has planned
Beyond our power to see.
—Sadly missed by daughters and granddaughters.

Now retired from hockey, he was chosen Canada's outstanding athlete of 1937.

Realtor's Charge To Be Paid

Payment of a W. H. Bosley account raised a question by Ald. P. J. Anglesey at the council meeting last night.

The following clause was in the report of the property committee: "That the account of the W. H. Bosley Company (Toronto) for services rend[illegible] the city, be placed in the hands of the chairman of this committee for consideration and action."

Ald. H. S. Longhurst is the new chairman of the property committee.

W. H. Bosley is head of the realty company in Toronto who was first consulted by the council about values of properties in the Charlotte, George, Simcoe Streets block.

There appeared to be a prospect of sale of some of that property several years ago. Loblaws were interested in the Water-Charlotte corner, but were reported to have balked at certain tax terms.

Mr. Bosley was later called into action when the city was buying the properties comprising the site of the city hall.

The authority of the chairman "to act" was the vital word in the committee report which recommended from last year.

Mayor Waddell said the clause referred to only one Bosley account and that it would receive consideration before any action was taken, and that it did not cover all Mr. Bosley's services.

Bits Of Business At City Council

That was a light session of the council Monday night with only a handful of persons in the public seats, as compared with the overflow assembly in the morning. It was a re-organizing meeting as the council named assisting committees and generally arranged matters for the new year.

City's maximum borrowing limit was set at $1,709,306 until taxes begin to flow in as determined in a bylaw by Aldermen T. D. Miller and S. J. Black. Council may borrow up to that amount, if necessary. Bounds have to be set in providing for temporary municipal financing. It is not suggested that the city's interim needs will be anything like that amount.

Authority to lay concrete sidewalks on a rather long list of streets will be set out in a bylaw the council ordered last night for drafting.

City Engineer Chalmers remarked to the Examiner: "Those streets add up to more sidewalk mileage than we did last year".

The work will be laid down for the approaching season.

Ald. H. T. Rehill was appointed to the committee in charge of the disbursement of the charitable funds under the will of Almira Grover Foley. This is an annual appointment of a representative of the city.

Thanks of the council to Mr. William Tinker for his service as a member of the city planning board was made a minute of the meeting Monday night recording the motion by Ald. J. E. Gillespie and Ald. J. A. Dewart instructing City Clerk Outram to write Mr. Tinker, conveying official appreciation.

Reds Reorganize Old Tibetan Army

LAIMPONG, India, Jan. 8 — (Reuters) — Chinese Communist authorities have disbanded the 9,000-strong, old-fashioned Tibetan Army and raised a small armed force of specially trained young Tibetans, latet reports from Tibet said.

Last year's Sino-Tibetan agreement provided for the reorganization of the Tibetan Army and the newly-raised force will presumably serve as the nucleus of a reorganized army.

In recent years, he had written agricultural and poultry articles for Canadian magazines. He was secretary of the Ontario Approved Hatcheries Association.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS —By Merrill Blosser

Officials Worry About 3 Nuns

HONG KONG, Jan. 8 —(AP)— Roman Catholic sources here said today they are worried about three Canadian nuns who were ordered deported from Communist China Dec. 2 but who have not arrived in Hong Kong.

Normally Red deportations are carried out promptly.

The three were identified as Imelda Laperriere of Pont Rouge, Portneuf County, Que.; Elizabeth Lemire of La Baie Du Febvre, Yamashua County, Que.; and Germaine Tanguay, a Canadian citizen born in Nashua, N.H.

They were tried with two other nuns of the Sacred Heart Orphanage at Canton on charges of murdering 2,116 orphans. The other two were sentenced to five years in prison. They are Sister Superior Antoinette Couvrette, 28, Ste. Dorothee, Laval County, Que., and Germaine Gravel, 43, St. Pasteur, Champlain County, Que.

Some reports said all five still are in jail. Other reports said all were ill, and that the Reds are "doctoring and feeding them" before deportation.

City Council Receives Luncheon Invitations

Luncheon invitations for Thursday Jan. 17 were received by the council Monday night from the Kiwanis Club and the Local Council of Women. They had been filed in that order.

Ald. Herbert Young suggested that as the Kiwanis Club met weekly, and the Local Council of Women invitation was to their annual dinner meeting, it might be arranged with Kiwanis to avoid the conflict in acceptance.

Ald. Harold Rehill said it might be acceptable to the Kiwanis Club to innvite the council in the week following Jan. 17. He undertook to make enquiry on that point, and if the Kiwanis were agreeable, then the council would accept the invitation of the Local Council of Women.

Otherwise, it was understood that the Kiwanis date would be approved, as first in order of receipt by mail.

15 Miners Killed In Norway Explosions

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 8 (Reuters)—Fifteen men were killed in two coal-mine explosions in Spitsbergen, Norway, Monday, according to reports reaching here today.

The first explosion was in the Longyear city mine of the Store Norske Coal Company. Six men were killed and three seriously injured. Rescue workers, wearing oxygen masks because of gas in the mine, took five hours to reach the victims.

The other explosion was in the King's Bay Coal Company's mine at New Aalesund. Nine men were killed.

One Of Oldest Pastors Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP)—Rev. Alexander McDonald Haig, 96, probably the oldest United Church minister in Canada, died Monday.

He was one of the first persons to talk over Alexander Graham Bell's first telephone. He was also a member of the first University of Toronto football team.

Born at Baltimore, Ont., he served as a Presbyterian minister in Smithville, Jarrat, West Lorne and Ashburn, Ont., and Glenboro, Man.

Man Lived Long Enough To Make Family Safe

HALIFAX, Jan. 8 (CP) — George Anton lived most of his 78 years in ravaged Estonia, so he knew the end of the road was near. But he wanted to get his family to Canada before he died.

Yesterday, the Anton family arrived here aboard the liner Neptunia. Today he died in hospital, his mission completed.

His widow, daughter, granddaughter and one grandson will continue their journey to Toronto.

He is believed to have suffered a heart attack.

Frost Urges All Levels Government Trim Spending

LINDSAY, Jan. 8.—Premier Leslie M. Frost called for reduction of spending on all governmental levels in his remarks at the inaugural meeting of the 1952 Lindsay council.

The Premier said that reduction of spending was the only way to lower the cost of living in Canada. This reduction should be carried out in municipal governments as well as the provincial and federal governments.

Mr. Frost was among the spectators in the council chamber and was asked to occupy the seat at the mayor's left.

He related the problems facing the council to his problems as head of tht Ontario government, and stated that the greatest factor to be taken into consideration was the present cost-of-living.

Increased Grants

He said that since he had been appointed provincial treasurer in 1943 grants from the province to municipalities had increased some five times. In 1949 such grants totalled $18,000,000 and in 1951 the grants were more than $100,000,000.

He attributed this rise to demands for increased fire and police protection and educational facilities. Assistance in road building projects in those same years had leaped from $3,000,000 to 10 times that figure.

He claimed that money to pay for these services had to come from sources that had been hemmed in by "the impact of federal taxation" and all 10 provinces were faced with raising their necessary funds from present sources.

Must Economize

In order that the country grow and develop, it must also economize, he said. There was no hope for any change in conditions for the next few years and the only thing that could be done was for all government bodies to make certain they were getting the best value for their dollars spent.

He explained that any increased levy taken from the taxpayer would result only in increasing the cost of living and stated that the only way to keep this from increasing was for governments at all levels to hold their spending to a reasonable line.

Staggered Classes

SARNIA, Jan. 8 (CP) — Dr. Gordon L. Anderson was elected president by acclamation of the Sarnia Board of Education at last night's inaugural meeting. He succeeds H. E. Corey whose unexpired term he completed last year. Dr. Anderson was a former vice-chairman.

Overcrowding and staggered classes at Sarnia Collegiate Institute were forecast by Alex Sinclair, superintendent of secondary education.

Anticipated enrolment for the school next year is 1,577, he said, compared with 1,338 pupils this year.

Japanese Reporters Walk Out On Yoshida

TOKYO, Jan. 8 — (AP) — The Japanese press walked out on Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida today— en masse.

The newspapermen handed Yoshida a 14-point questionnaire on foreign and domestic isssue, Monday.

Today about 100 of them appeared at Yoshida's press conference hoping for a better-than-usual story.

Yoshida kept them waiting an hour. Then he ignored the questionnaire and cut the conference to 10 minutes. At the end he said "this is the New Year; let's have a drink."

The miffed newspaper men stalked out.

Tighten Security

LONDON, Jan. 8—(Reuters)—The government Monday night announced it is going to tighten security checks on atomic energy employees and workers on other secret jobs. Communists and Fascists already are supposed to be barred from such jobs. The government said it will institute special checks to make sure the rule is observed.

Garson Rouses Vishinsky Ire With Kind Word For Litvinoff

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Jan. 8—(CP)—Justice Minister Stuart Garson's maiden speech to the UN General Assembly Monday aroused Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to an unusual amount of ire against the Canadian minister.

Garson apparently got under the Soviet minister's skin with his appeal to Russia to return to the policies enunciated at the League of Nations in the 1930's by Litvinoff, whose death was announced last Wednesday.

Garson told the political committee "a symbol of the tragedy of these times is that the Soviet Government no longer speaks to a world organization with the intelligent voice of Litvinoff, but with that of Vishinsky, his successor today."

Later, Vishinsky, continuing the debate on western proposals for stronger UN collective measures took time off to refer to Garson by name in denouncing his interpretation of the Soviet policy as being divided into the Litvinoff and Vishinsky periods.

Vishinsky said the Russian policy has been consistent.

The Soviet minister dug at Garson in referring to Canada's minister as "Pearson or Garson—there isn't much difference, is there?"

Then he made a pun on Garson's name.

"Garson—Garcon—that means boy in French, doesn't it? Well, his arguments are as boyish as his name."

Vishinsky, in his tirade against the Canadian minister, recalled his tiffs in previous assemblies with Pearson and Health Minister Paul Martin. But, today, the Soviet minister oudid his slams at the other Canadians.

Garson told the committee in the morning session that Litvinoff's plea for collective security before the League of Nations seldom, if ever, has been better stated.

In the afternoon, Vishinsky went to great lengths to explain that Litvinoff was speaking only for the Soviet Government and not for himself and that Molotov was a greater Soviet foreign minister than Litvinoff.

Actor Philip Loeb Dropped From Cast

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP) — Actor Philip Loeb, once television's "Papa Goldberg," says he has been dropped from "The Goldbergs" program because he is named in "Red Channels," a publication listing alleged connections of show people with Communist groups.

Mrs. Gertrude Berg, who produces the show and plays "Mama Goldberg," says she was unable to find a sponsor who would pay for the show with Loeb in the cast.

Loeb denied ever having been a Communist or Communist sympathizer. He said he would fight his "blacklisting."

It was not disclosed who will replace Loeb, who has played in 'The Goldbergs" on radio as well as television for several years. He also appeared in film and stage versions of the show.

DIGGING DEEP

All oil drilling in Alberta between 1947 and 1951 would have stretched 3,781 miles if concentrated on one hole.

Ask Support For Reparations

TORONTO, Jan. 8—(CP)—The Zionist Organization of Canada Monday urged the Canadian government to suport Israel's claims for reparations from Germany.

A resolution passed by the 31st Zionist convention said that Israel has received "the largest number of Jews whose lives have been broken by the Nazi regime" and should receive reparations to assist in absorbing them.

The 700 delegates to the convention added: "that such a settlement would in no way expiate the moral crimes involved in the killing of 6,000,000 Jews."

Earlier, Jacques Torczymer, vice-president of the Zionist Organization of America, told the convention that reparations were on a par with blood money and would be equivalent to forgiveness of Germany's wartime acts.

Edward E. Gelber, of Toronto, was elected president of the Zionist sessions Monday.

Mona Freeman To Leave Studio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8 (AP)— Mona Freeman has arranged a parting with Paramount, her studio for eight years. One of her reasons: she can't grow up there.

Mona is all of 25 years and the mother of a four-year-old girl, but she claims that the studio hasn't been able to think of her as a grown-up.

"In my latest picture, I played a 14-year-old," she said. "I did three pictures as the teen-aged trouble-maker in the 'Dear Ruth' series. Yet when other studios borrow me for pictures, it has always been for grown-up roles."

Mona said she discussed her decision with another player who will soon depart after a long association with Paramount — Alan Ladd.

Same Trouble

"Alan had the same trouble," she commented. "He made a hit in a picture called 'This Gun for Hire.' Since then, he has been thrown into just about everything that comes along."

Mona's plans for the future are undecided. She has had several offers, including one of a term contract at M-G-M. "But that wouldn't help me any," she added. "M-G-M has every type of girl you can imagine. I would simply get lost in the shuffle."

Captain To Be Decorated

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 8 (AP) — Capt. Kurt Carlsen will be appointed Knight of the Most Excellent Order of the Dannish Dannebrog when his ship Flying Enterprise reaches Falmouth harbour. The Danish embassy in London has been instructed to have the order ready when Danish-born Carlsen reaches port.

Christmas Trees Make Last Journey To Dump

A month ago truckloads of Christmas trees were pouring into the city from the forests to the north. On Wednesday the trees will journey again, this time on their [illegible] to the dump in North Monaghan township.

At 7 am Operation Christmas Tree, an annual exercise by the sanitation department, will begin as a fleet of trucks and men will fan out through the city collecting the used, needle-less Christmas trees. The work will continue throughout the day until every tree is collected.

The department will have eight trucks, two on loan from the parks department, and 24 men circulating through the city collecting an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 trees from Peterborough's 9,670 dwellings.

As the trucks are loaded, they will drive to the North Monaghan dump where all the trees will be burned.

Ordinarily Wednesday is a fairly free day for the sanitation department. Only garbage collection then is from the hotels and restaurants. There is no general garbage collection in any part of the city.

Clean Up All

"In choosing Wednesday, a special day for the Christmas tree collection, we hope to clean up all the old trees and be done with them for this season," a department official said.

He explained that if the trees were collected during the regular garbage collection, "the trees would fill the trucks in no time and we couldn't collect the garbage."

Mayor Urges Avoid Unnecessary Spending

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 8—Need for avoiding unnecessary financial commitments in 1952 was stressed by Mayor McLean Haig of Belleville in his inaugural address Monday.

Urging that the city's financial position be consolidated, Mayor Haig pointed out at the same time that certain expenditures were necessary—new equipment for the public works department, expansion of Belleville General hospital facilities, and increased fire department staff.

Improvements for Belleville harbor should also be considered, he said.

Eighteen persons were slightly injured. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

Science progresses . . . for 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetysalicylic acid—for relief of pain. Today this familiar pain killer is available in a new form without the disadvantages of acidity, insolubility and bitter taste. It is called DISPRIN and is sold at druggists everywhere.

DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

DISPRIN is now available at your druggist. Bottles of 26 tablets or Handy Pocket Folders of 8.

Legion Auxiliary Officers Installed At Banquet

Installing the 1952 officers of her own Auxiliary was the duty performed Monday evening by newly-appointed zone commander of the Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary Mrs. A. Parrington. The ceremony is an impressive one in which each officer is presented under the flag borne by the standard bearer, Mrs. J. Gray.

Mrs. Albert Mason will serve again as president, with Mrs. G. Stevens and Mrs. A. Wade her vice-presidents. Also re-elected are secretary Mrs. C. S. Windsor and treasurer Mrs. R. Ritchie. Executive advisors are Mrs. E. Graham, Mrs. E. Dormer and Mrs. A. Duvall.

A delicious dinner was enjoyed prior to the installation, served in the Orange Hall by members of the Lodge. The tables and the dining hall were festively decorated for this occasion and the menu consisted of turkey with a variety of trimmings and Christmas pudding and sauce for dessert.

Special guests for dinner were Lt.-Col. M. E. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke, the Rev. (Major) A. E. Larke from Springville, now actively associated with Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion, Mr. Cy Hopkins of Lakefield, zone commander of the men's branch, who assisted with the installation, Mr. Albert Mason, representing Branch 52, and Mr. Hurrell Dodds, secretary of the Legion.

Replying to a toast to the men's branch, proposed by Mrs. Parrington Mr. Mason outlined the three classes of members, as found in any organization, poor, average and good. He urged the 75 lady members present to be good members of their Auxiliary.

Though the original purpose of the Ladies' Auxiliary is to assist the men's branch with dinners and other social affairs, it has taken on service of its own. Most of its work never becomes public knowledge for it is helping anyone unable to help themselves because of war service of themselves or a member of the family. Mrs. F. J. Parsons was honored with presentation of a corsage recognizing the fact she has done most of the knitting of babies' clothes the past year and also a great deal in former years.

Each of the men present spoke briefly to the ladies, commenting on their fine work. The expected guest speaker from Provincial Command did not arrive.

Gift favors were at each place setting and there were two draw prizes for dinner guests, won by Mrs. F. Fraper and Mrs. A. Hope.

The evening was spent playing cards, following which there was a draw for prizes. Winners were Mrs. O. Dawson, Mrs. S. Sarginson, Mrs. A. Kent, Mrs. J. Gray, Mrs. E. Beresford, Miss A. Jenkinson, Mrs. E. McWilliams and Mrs. R. Lynch.

RCMP Officer Says Parents Big Cause Of Delinquency

Corporal C. C. Holman of Toronto, RCMP officer in charge of the youth and police program, was guest speaker at Central Home and School Association meeting Monday evening.

Corporal Holman spoke on Canadian citizenship and juvenile delinquency. He reminded his audience that as parents they should not think fondly of the "good old days." Today's stream - lined mode of living demands streamlined methods in raising children. Too often this very important job is done by parents with too little training.

"Parents are the big cause of juvenile delinquency. They may be too strict or not strict enough, too demanding or not demanding enough." The speaker suggested some fine organizations ready to help parents with their job.

He mentioned the many service clubs, Sunday school teachers and police youth programs. "All these programs cost money but nothing comparable with the cost of keeping up prisons," he pointed out. "It costs $25,000 to keep a prisoner serving an eight year term in penitentiary, $3.50 a day to keep a boy or girl in one of the Ontario training schools and the infamous Red Ryan cost the citizens of Canada an estimated $1,000,000."

He stressed the value of education in contributing toward good citizenship and pointed out that such organizations as Home and School Associations should at every opportunity encourage education through scholarships and other means within their power.

In closing his very fine address he raised the thought-provoking question: "Do you think you are doing enough for our Canadian youngsters?"

Principal D. T. Crawford expressed the appreciation of the audience to Corporal Holman. He was introduced by Mr. L. Bird.

President Mrs. L. Horning presided for the business of the meeting and attendance prizes were won by Miss S. Palmer's and Mr. L. Bird's classrooms.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Barber and her committee.

Mrs. Warren was chairman of the board of directors of the company for 35 years.

Hospital Needs Assistance Women's Auxiliary Gives

The Women's Auxiliary to the Civic Hospital was assured that there is need for the work it is doing by superintendent John Hornal, speaking at the annual meeting Monday afternoon. To maintain the powerful place it has achieved it will be necessary to continue growing, he reminded. In the past year the Auxiliary, as in previous years, has made purchases and worked toward further comfort and welfare of the patients. An iceless oxygen tent, most modern obtainable, costing $750, was given the hospital last May. This was similar to one presented in 1950, and the hospital is now adequately fitted to handle cases needing this type of equipment.

Major project of the year was furnishing the recreation room in the nurses' residence for which $1,000 was allocated at time of opening the new hospital. The work has included a new tile floor, painting walls, new drapes, chesterfield upholstered, ping pong table, table tennis set, coffee table, new lamps, easy chairs and some small tables. Assistance of hospital maintenance and sewing staffs and having hospital buying channels made available has resulted in considerable saving to the Auxiliary and extended the use of the money.

A new field of service was found in the pediatrics department where a need for means to amuse sick children existed. Good quality toys of educational value were purchased by the Auxiliary and a donation of toys was received from the Major Bennett Chapter, IODE. In addition, seven children in hospital at Christmas were each given gifts.

The Auxiliary's funds are derived from two main sources—a 25c membership canvas of the city in the fall and a penny sale in the spring. Membership was increased over last year by 142, resulting in 4,892 members and collection of $1,204. The penny sale netted $1,942.16. The treasurer's statement showed that the balance on hand at close of 1951 was $7,322.

The occupational therapy committee organized last year was reported by Mrs. K. Pilkington. This committee has been very active and did contact 171 patients. It has been handicapped however by lack of workers and the guidance of a person trained in occupational therapy. It was found too often that the patient was not hospitalized long enough for the small group of workers to visit frequently and give the instruction necessary.

Members have let down somewhat on their bootee knitting, the total number turned in falling 276 short of the previous year, but a balance of 271 pair on hand was reported. Last year Mrs. J. R. Marshall donated 206 pair, making 1,000 she has given in three years. Other donations totalled 171 and 459 pairs were knitted from wool supplied by the Auxiliary.

Visiting the patients with gifts of fruit was carried on in all months except March during the closure due to the flu epidemic. There was increased circulation by the travelling library with 3,656 adult contacts and 11 juvenile reported. The travelling tuck shop carried on its self-paying business in the wards and contributed as well a shopping service for the patients.

Another committee made up favors for the patients' trays at Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas and put decorated trees in the hospital rotunda last month.

Another branch of the Auxiliary work is for the entertainment and education of nurses-in-training and there is in conjunction a transportation committee which arranged for third students to be at the opening of the new Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto last fall.

It was also reported to the meeting that a collapsible door has been installed so that the Auxiliary's library and tuck shop supplies can be locked in. Proper shelving is being installed for the books.

Mr. Hornal asked the ladies to give citizens an example by their enthusiasm and faith in the fundamental purpose of the hospital. He said it must be realized that a hospital for the future will be too great for the present and this is the cause of many difficulties faced since opening the new hospital 17 months ago. The superintendent then predicted the hospital will be too small in three years time at present rate of growth in the city. He also referred to the part the hospital will play in civil defence in the coming year.

Retiring president Mrs. Charles Huffman presided for the meeting.

ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION OF NEW OFFICERS of the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary was held Monday afternoon. The 1952 slate is shown above: Mrs. Frank Barrie, treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Fanning, president, Mrs. C. A. Craig, recording secretary, Mrs. Charles Forsyth, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Charles Huffman, past-president. Standing are: Mrs. J. H. Matthews, 2nd vice-president, and Mrs. E. Chambers, 1st vice-president.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

DOROTHY DIX

Infinite Patience Essential In Role Of Minister's Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is a pastor in a small town where the exemplary life of the minister and his family is a must. There are some women in this church who claim to love us, yet make our lives utterly miserable. They are fine people in many ways, but inconsiderate to a great extent. For instance, they call my husband on the flimsiest excuse, and expect him to drop everything to listen to their petty troubles. Two women in particular are continually vying with each other for his sympathy and attention. They are, as such people usually are, unhappy wives or women frustrated in their ambitions. They keep me busy protecting my husband against petty gossip.

Dorothy Dix

Now, no minister's wife resents the help her husband extends in a distressing situation, or to people really deserving of his time. She does, however, resent the time taken away from her and the children to be spent soothing another woman's injured feelings.

MARIANNE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Few roles in contemporary life require the assortment of perfections that are needed by the woman who presides over a parsonage. She must achieve the happy medium in all things, maintain the proper demeanour toward each person in the congregation, run a perfectly ordered home yet have limitless time to spend on parish activities. It would seem utterly impossible for one woman to accomplish so much—yet every minister's wife I have ever known achieves this perfection.

Most parishioners appreciate fully the difficulties encompassing the life of their pastor's family, but always there are a few who ignore them.

Some Parishioners Difficult

A handful of women—usually frustrated in one way or another, as you suggest—feel that their minister's time and attention belong entirely to them. They are hurt if he refuses an invitation to tea or lunch; if said invitation conflicts with plans of his own, why naturally he should disregard previous commitments and accept their bids.

Of course, the very nature of his work precludes very much personal life for a minister, but it shouldn't deprive him altogether of time with his family.

However, no matter how irritated you become, Marianne, at the intrusion of others into your family life, it is something you must face with unfailing good humor. Never, never, can you show annoyance or impatience, and above all, the very human fault of jealousy is one you must particularly eschew. You are not supposed to have human frailties, so at least don't let them show!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Some time ago, after a quarrel with my boy friend, I moved to another city. He doesn't know my address, the quarrel was silly and I would like very much to make up with him. I feel he would like to renew our friendship, too. Should I call or write him, or would it be best to wait and hope that someday we will meet? PAT

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Nothing ventured, nothing gained, Pat! Why not send a friendly holiday or birthday card, putting your new address on the envelope? If that produces no results, your cause is lost. If you were at fault, a note of apology might do the trick. A friendly note is never amiss, and is in much better taste than a telephone call in this case.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 14 with a comfortable home in which I like to etntertain my friends. The drawback is my grandmother who lives with us. She is so sarcastic that I am afraid to bring my friends home for fear she will insult them. My mother and sisters also suffer from this problem. How can we work something out? SANDY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is most unfair for an older member of the family to drive guests away, and it's a very difficult problem to solve. Presumably, since the other members of the family also suffer from grandmother's caustic wit, they have tried to curb it. Firmness is the only tactic to use. She should be asked to hold her tongue when guests are present or to stay in her room. Her feelings won't be hurt as much as you might think; sarcastic people have amazingly thick skin, though they like to pretend otherwise.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Are Canadians Becoming Connoisseurs of Cookies?

Your wish is my command ladies.

Mrs. Arthur F.'s husband inadvertently burned her recipes for Springerle and Pfeffernusse which she had clipped from this column, and Mrs. Ivan B. asks me to give recipes for Gingerbread cookies and soft molasses cookies.

I've heard it said that Canada has no cooking traditions. If my mail shows a trend I would say that in the flood of it which has been poured onto my desk in the past two months every third letter that I opened contained a request for cookies—fancy ones. Still entertaining no doubt?—or could we be showing signs of becoming cookie connoisseurs?

For Springerle, Mrs. Arthur F. you should have a Springerle board or roller to give the cookies their characteristic markings. I have seen these in three places in my life: (1) in Garny's kitchen in Watervliet Michigan (2) in a huge department store in Cleveland and (3) in Lewis and Conger's Hardware store in New York. They may be made without the board or roller but it gives them the embossing which distinguishes them.

Springerle

Four eggs, 1 teaspoon aniseed, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons milk, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon shortening, 2 cups fine sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat yolks until very thick and light, then add the sugar slowly while beating. Mix and sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Add the milk to the egg mixture, then add the flour mixture ½ cup at a time, beating well between additions.

Work in the Aniseed and shortening which should be melted. Roll with the Springerle roller after dough has been patted out on floured board, or press into Springerle board. Let stand in cold place overnight. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. until light yellow.

Pfeffernusse (Pepper Nuts)

Two cups sugar, 4 cups sifted flour, grated rind 1 lemon, ½ cup finely chopped citron peel, 5 eggs, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, ½ tablespoon each cloves and mace, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ to 1 cup finely chopped almonds. Mix and sift flour, sugar, baking powder and spices. Add the grated rind, peel and nuts. Add the beaten eggs. Cover and let dough stand overnight. In the morning work the dough with just enough flour to handle into roll 1 inch wide by 2 feet long. Cut these into pieces 1 inch long. Roll these little bits of dough into balls between palms and roll in egg white and bake on buttered and floured pans at 350 deg. Fahr. until golden yellow.

Gingerbread Cookies

(To make these into cut-outs for gingerbread boys etc add 1 more cup sifted flour)

One-third cup shortening at room temperature, 1 cup brown sugar, 1½ cups light or dark molasses, 6 cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon each salt, allspice, ginger, cloves and cinnamon, 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in 3 tablespoons cold water, ½ cup cold water. Cream together the shortening and sugar, then stir in the molasses and water. Sift together and stir in all of the dry ingredients. Stir in soda and water. Chill dough. Roll out thick between ⅜ and ½ inch. Cut out in desired shapes. Bake well spread out on cookie sheet at 350. deg Fahr. about 15 minutes.

Note to Mrs. Ivan B.: The above cookies will fill both requirements for gingerbread and soft molasses cookies. If you still want something different describe them in more detail in your next letter.

Gold Reserves Up 169 Million At End Of Year

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP)—Canada's official reserves of gold and United States dollars jumped $169,000,000 to $1,779,000,000 at Dec. 31 from $1,610,000,000 at Sept. 30, the finance department announced Monday.

At Dec. 31 a year ago, the holdings were $1,742,000,000.

The reserves, announced quarterly, rose steadily during the fall period. From $1,610,000,000 at Sept. 30, they went to $1,678,000,000 at Oct. 31, $1,749,000,000 at Nov. 30 and $1,779,000,000 at Dec. 31.

All totals are in US dollars.

Less than a month ago, Finance Minister Abbott announced the abolition of foreign exchange control and attributed that decision to the progressive improvement in exchange holdings.

At High Level

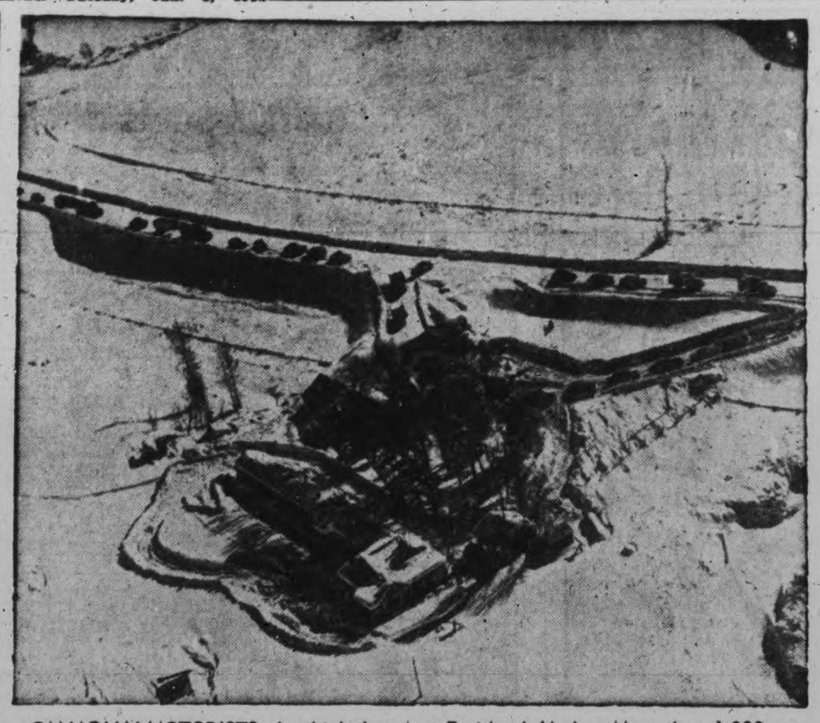
As Monday's announcement indicates, the move to end foreign exchange control came at a time when Canada's holdings of gold and US dollars were at a high and relatively stable level.

Although imports from the United States exceeded exports by $487,000,000 in the first 10 months of 1951, this was offset by a large movement of American capital into Canada, with the result that there was no appreciable decline in the official reserves.

This capital movement has been ascribed partly to investment outlays, such as the development of oil in Alberta, iron ore in Quebec and electric power for aluminum making in British Columbia.

Fined For Drinking

Harvey Bedford, 221 London St. pleaded guilty in police court Monday to consuming liquor while on the interdicted list.



He was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days in jail.

CANADIAN MOTORISTS who think they have a tough time when snow comes their way can pause to consider the plight of the owners of these assorted vehicles gathered at Fruitland, Utah. More than 1,000 motorists were stranded in the Uintah basin by recent heavy snowfalls and had to form a caravan to be led through a one-way lane cut in a snow-clogged highway.

Railwayman Writes Story Of Buffalo

EDMONTON, — (CP) —Frank G. Roe, a retired locomotive engineer, has seen but one buffalo in his life.

But he is the author of a scholarly, 1,000-page study of the shaggy, onetime roamer of the western plains. Last month the University of Alberta recognized his work by conferring an honorary degree.

It took Mr. Roe 15 years to write in his spare time the book which has been acclaimed as the only complete work on the North American Buffalo. It contains more than 3,000 footnotes, some of them full essays in themselves.

The only buffalo Mr. Roe ever saw was in a Zoo at Brandon, Man., in 1924. But he remembers seeing as a boy the bleached bones of the once-plentiful "monach of the plains" about his father's Alberta farm.

The Roe family arrived from Sheffield, England, in 1849, only a few years after the last of western Canada's large buffalo herds had disappeared. Frank was 15 then, and his early memories later inspired his life study of the buffalo.

Extra Studying

Although he had left school at the age of 11, he furthered his education by reading and as a young man on the railway he filled his spare time by study. He began the buffalo story in 1925.

"I always had the scribbler's itch—by accident, I guess," he recalls. "Then the idea of the buffalo story occurred and memories crowded in to give body to my reading about them."

Studied Old Periodicals

His source of material included periodicals 50 to 60 years old, and books and magazines from the university, public and provincial libraries. He breathed life into his study with personal recollections of the buffalo country.

He also had the use of 200 volumes on the subject in the collection of Dr. A. C. Rutherford, former Premier of Alberta.

"Without Dr. Rutherford's collection I could never have done the work," Mr. Roe says. "It contained material not found elsewhere between Toronto and the West Coast."

Mr. Roe helped his pioneer father build the sod house in which the family lived southeast of Lacombe. Later he himself homesteaded for 15 years—until hailstorms one year and heavy snow the next—forced him out of the grain-growing business.

He switched to railroading in 1909.

"Sometimes I'd go four days without turning a wheel when I was on the railway spare board," he said. This allowed him time for study. It took 15 years—1925 to 1940—to write and rewrite the Buffalo story.

Mr. Roe, retired for the last eight years, now lives in Victoria, BC. He is planning a new book, an account of the old Buffalo trails, many of which were still visible when the Roe family arrived in Western Canada.

Millbrook Guild Plans Sale Of Home Baking

MILLBROOK, Jan. 8—(ENS)—The regular meeting of the Guild of St. Thomas' Anglican church was held at the home of Mrs. T. A. Campbell on Wednesday evening with the new president Mrs. Percy Hamilton in the chair.

Mrs. H. A. Turner, the secretary, read the minutes and called the roll. She reported that 24 cards had been sent to the sick and shutins of the parish at Christmas.

The Rev. A. A. Chote sent thanks for the projector donated by the Guild to St. Thomas' church. A new member, Mrs. Penny, recently moved to the village, joined the Guild. The president made an appeal for more new members.

Following a discussion on ways and means to increase the treasury fund it was decided to send cards to each family of the congregation asking for 10 cents for each of the 12 holidays of the year. The money is to be collected before the final meeting of the year held in December. January 12 was chosen as the date for a sale of homemade baking and candy in the waiting room from 3 to 5 p.m.

Mrs. T. A. Campbell and Mrs. Charles Brackenridge were supper hostesses. The February meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. H. A. Turner.

GHOST WATCH—Mysterious antics had been reported in the Louisville, Ky., home of Henry Thacker since Dec. 30th when a two-pound photograph album went swirling through the air without explanation. So neighbors—and police—held a "wake" recently to get to the bottom of things. In this crowd are Police Chief Walter Layman, seated centre, a patrolman, members of the Thacker family and curious neighbors. Joyce Sanders, an 11-year-old girl, finally broke down and admitted she was the "spook" and plagued the Thacker home because she was lonesome.

Chinese Tells Grim Story Of Red Extortion

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver Chinese has disclosed fruitless attempts to keep alive his relatives in China.

Pang Mock, 61-year-old proprietor of a downtown hotel, said he no longer feared to tell the story of Communist extortion because his last surviving kin in China had been wiped out.

His wife and his cousin had committed sulcide and their four children disappeared. One son escaped to Hong Kong.

His cousin returned to Lung To, Kwangtung province, four years ago. "When he went back he took $25,000 in United States currency. He bought a 100-acre farm," said Pang Mock.

The Red army started extorting money from the cousin three years ago. Honolulu relatives collected $355 to save him then. After that demands became regular.

Order Special Taxes

"They dreamed up fines and special taxes — always ordering him to get money from America or go to jail. They knew he had many relatives."

The last letter from his cousin said: "My cash and possessions are gone; my ways are blocked. If you can save me, please help me. . . ."

"I always sent every bit I could and more," said Pang. "We learned through a Chinese newspaper published in Honolulu that my cousin and his wife hanged themselves. The children all disappeared at the same time. They will be dead."

The son who escaped informed the newspaper.

Pang did not blame his cousins for taking their lives as they were forced countless times to walk on bare feet across broken stone and glass. Sharp sticks were poked into the body of his cousin's wife.

Book-making Business Flourishes In Montreal

MONTREAL, Jan. 8 (CP)—The Montreal Herald said Monday that Montreal's "multi-million dollar book-making business is venturing boldly from underground again."

Reporter Ryan Begley, in a story, told of visiting three establishments and being able to place bets on horses running at United States tracks.

At the fourth he was refused the opportunity to bet because he wasn't known.

Commenting on the story, a morality squad officer said police know some bookies are in operation but their method of taking bets makes it difficult to prosecute. Bets aren't recorded but only made verbally between the bettor and the bookie.

Continue Paying Occupation Bill

BONN, Germany, Jan. 8—(AP) Western officials Monday said the Germans have agreed to continue paying part of the bill for Western troops in Germany, even after a peace settlement is signed with the Allies.

The United States, Britain and France probably will promise in return to reduce this German financial outlay when German troops actually take the field as part of the six-country European army, the officials added. That is expected to be at least a year.

Agreement by the Germans to share the cost of Western troops on their soil after they win near-sovereignty clears away one of the major hurdles of a "peace contract" with the Allies.

Still unsettled is the question of how much the Germans will pay toward Western defence. This question will be discussed Tuesday.

This year the Germans are paying just over $1,500,000,000 in occupation costs.

Toronto Board Supports New School Report Cards

TORONTO, Jan. 8 — (CP) — Board of Education officials today answered criticism of a new report card introduced last year to Toronto public schools, and upheld the educational philosophy behind it.

One criticism, coming from secondary school teachers and others interested in education, was that the card scored the child in terms of his own ability and kept him from facing up to the realities of a competitive world.

Zack S. Primister, public school superintendent, Monday night told a meeting of school trustees that every child becomes aware of differences in ability at an early age. For a teacher or parent to urge a young child into active competition with someone his own age but markedly superior to him in some abilities was like urging a Clydesdale horse to take the jumps with a hunter.

He said the new system of report cards has been adopted in East York, St. Thomas, Western Canada and the United States.

The controversial report card rates the child outstanding, satisfactory or unsatisfactory, depending on how he measures up to his own known ability. Mr. Primister said the old cards were failing in some respects to reflect the present-day concern for the full development of each child.

Under the old system, he said, a child who got 70 might be just loafing while a child who got 50 might be working hard and making progress.

Captain Fights Losing Battle Freighter Slowly Sinking

Two Flyers Collide In Saskatchewan, 50 People Injured

EDMONTON, Jan. 9 (CP)—Two Canadian National Railways passenger trains collided head-on early today near Yonker, Sask. The company said about 50 passengers and crew members were injured, none seriously. Train No. 4, which left Vancouver Tuesday night for Toronto, collided with the westbound train No. 1, which left Montreal Monday night for Vancouver. Yonker is a small community just east of the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

A CNR statement said the eastbound train failed to wait at Yonkers to meet the westbound train in accordance with train orders.

All equipment remained on the rails, the CNR said. A railways spokesman in Edmonton said it was hoped to have the main line cleared by 5 pm.

Going Slowly

In a statement issued at Winnipeg, J. R. McMillan, CNR vice-president said the trains were "just crawling" at the time of the collision.

Injuries were described as mainly "small cuts and sprains." A partial list of injured Edmonton passengers aboard the eastbound train indicated a predominance of stiff necks. There were about 150 passengers on each train.

Among the injured was John Bird, Ottawa parliamentary correspondent for the Southam newspapers. He was reported to have suffered a bruise over a kidney.

The collision occurred on a curve about four car lengths east of the Yonker east switch.

Leading truck on both locomotives were derailed.

All injured passengers were treated aboard the train. If any required hospital treatment, officials said, they would be taken to nearby Unity, Sask. or Edmonton. However, Unity hospital reported no request had been made for beds there.

A doctor and two nurses from the hospital at Unity travelled to the scene.

Yonker residents reported "little confusion" at the wreck. This apparently was due to the slow speed of the trains and the fact that most passengers were in their berths.

Full Support Pledged In Defence Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill today pledged their governments to full support of a "European defence community" with Germany a "full and equal partner."

An official communique summarizing the results of four days of talks said American leaders pledged their determination to work "peace and security."

Aims Identical

Truman and Churchill reported a "complete identity of aims" in promoting stability, peaceful development and economic progress in the Middle East.

As to the Far East, they reported a "broad harmony of view."

"We recognize that the overriding need to counter the Communist threat in that area transcends such divergencies as there are in our policies toward China," the communique said.

This evidently meant that Britain and the US will not attempt immediately to reconcile their divergent views on the recognition of Red China. Britain has recognized her, the US has not.

Egyptians Raid British Convoy

ISMALIA, Egypt, Jan. 9 (Reuters)—A hail of gunfire swept the sand dunes outside this troubled hotspot today in one of the hottest battles between Egyptian and British troops since Egypt moved to oust the British last fall.

The pitched battle broke out after a band of Egyptian "liberation fighters" sprang from hiding places with guns blazing at a British road convoy.

A heavy column of British troops rushed to the rescue. They fought their way clear after bitter skirmishing.

Casualty figures were incomplete though British forces listed two of their men known dead and several wounded.

A British spokesman said a convoy of six vehicles was ambushed six miles west of Abu Sweir by an unknown force of terrorists.

The stretch of road has been the scene of almost daily ambushes and sniping for the last week.

Meanwhile, at the city of Port Said at the Mediterranean end of the canal, 1,500 Egyptian canal workers, who tied up shipping by a two-day strike that ended Tuesday night, today began a daily one-hour token stoppage.

Rail Union Asks Interim Increase

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 (CP)—Railway union leaders called on the government today for help in getting an "interim" wage increase from the railways, but it was learned they got no definite commitments.

Spokesmen for about 125,000 workers in the non-running trades—those who do not actually operate trains—laid before Labor Minister Gregg and other officials their claim for cost-of-living wage boosts pending regular wage negotiations late this summer when their two-year contracts come up for renewal.

It was understood the minister assured them of consideration of the matter in his department, but did not go so far even as to promise he would take it up with the government.

Terrorists Put Shells In Stolen Car Trunks

SAIGON, Indo-China, Jan. 9—(AP).—Communist terrorists exploded delayed action artillery shells in the rear trunks of two stolen United States Legation cars in the heart of Saigon today, killing four persons and wounding 30.

Police said two 80-millimetre shells had been secreted in the cars, which were strategically parked at each end of the parking lot near Saigon's largest hotel and its crowded sidewalk cafe.

The cars were stolen Tuesday.

Shop windows within a 100-yard radius on the Rue Catinat, the main street, were smashed.

1,000 Chinese Die In Battle

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 9 (AP) — South Korean troops killed an estimated 1,000 Chinese near the Panmunjom truce talks site on Tuesday in the war's heaviest fighting in six weeks, the United States Eighth Army reported today.

But the South Koreans had to give up two small hills west of Korangpo when the Reds hurled about 4,000 troops into the battle of Sasi Bulge.

The vicious battle has raged since Dec. 28. The Allied troops were identified Wednesday as infantrymen of the Republic of Korea 1st Division.

An Eighth Army briefing officer said since the fight for the outpost began, 3,076 Communists have been killed, 852 wounded and 10 captured. He said Allied losses were "much lighter," but gave no figures.

Blame Spark

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United States Bureau of Mines said Tuesday its investigators have concluded that "an electric arc or spark from non-permissible electrical equipment" touched off the explosion which took 119 lives in a coal mine at West Frankford, Ill., on Dec. 21.

6 Homeless In Seymour House Fire

Neighbors Attempt To Quell Blaze; One Nearly Trapped

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 9 (ENS)—A $3,500 fire destroyed the home of a family of six, two-and-one-half miles north of here Tuesday morning in less than 20 minutes.

Left homeless by the blaze, with only the clothes they were wearing, Charles Ellis, his wife Ruby, and four children: Charles, 10, Marjorie, 8, Brian, 5, and Wanda, 1, were given shelter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Cassalman who live next door. The Cassalmans were burned out last September.

Working in a silo factory nearby, William Rowe saw the fire break through the roof of the Ellis home about 11 am. Together with several workmen he hurried to the scene to try and quell the blaze.

Mrs. Ellis and her two youngest children, Wanda and Brian were the only ones in the house at the time.

Mr. Ellis was called from his work at the Braithaupt Leather Company plant where he is employed, but his home was consumed by the flames by the time he arrived.

Broke Out Again

Snow was shovelled on the blazing roof, and it was believed at one point the fire was out. However, it broke out again stronger than ever, and the volunteers were unable to save the house or any of the Ellis family's belongings.

A near tragedy was averted, when Ross Petherick dived headfirst through a window into a snow drift, just as the roof caved in.

Petherick had been upstairs, trying to put out the fire and seeing it was impossible hurried downstairs.

In trying to get some furniture out, some of the men had jammed a table in one of the doorways, blocking the exit.

Red hot embers were falling all around him. The ceiling started to sag. Seeing the roof was about to collapse, Petherick dived through

Towline Breaks During Night, Waves Batter Ship

FALMOUTH, England, Jan. 9 (CP)—Mountainous waves today threatened to write the end of the Flying Enterprise saga, and almost swept Capt. Kurt Carlsen into the sea he has defied for 13 days. The American freighter, broken loose from its tug, was being smashed mercilessly 30 miles off the English coast as Carlsen and his lone companion, Kenneth Dancy, tried to make fast a new line. The Enterprise was sinking a little every hour and at times the fallowing hulk, almost on her side, seemed in imminent danger of turning upside down.

The towline with the tug Turmoil broke at 1:30 am. For the next 13 hours, whenever the waves would permit, Carlsen and Dancy made ready to get another rig aboard. Then, shortly before 3 pm, they barely saved themselves from going overboard.

The US destroyer Willard Keith, standing by, reported:

"Carlsen and Dancy narrowly escaped being swept into sea while at bow of Enterprise attempting re-rig.

"Unable to pass tow this weather which believe typical of this area, therefore outlook not favorable immediate future."

50-50 Chance

Veteran tugmen at the scene gave the Enterprise only a 50-50 chance of reaching dock at dusk.
